May Not Stage Olympic Games In London In '48

(By The Canadian Press)

The prospect that the Olympic Games might not be staged at London in 1948 was suggested there yesterday when the possibility was broached that Great Britain might break with the International Amateur Athletic Federation if such Soviet athletes are permitted to participate. The Federation, at a meeting in Oslo, named a commission to deal with amateur rules and the status of subsidized Russians hinges on revision of the regulations.

Two Russian delegates are attending the Oslo conference as observers but the Soviet Republic is not a member of the Federation. It was intimated yesterday that Russia might join if the rules are broached on the question of subsidized competitors.

Three Canadian teams were ousted yesterday in the national doubles tennis tournament at Brookline, Mass. Eliminated in the men's second round were Henri Rochon and Jean Maroun and the two Mackens of Montreal. Mrs. F. R. Adair of Ottawa and Miss Jean Burritt of Toronto were defeated in the women's first round.

With the ailing back forgotten for the moment, Byron Nelson started defense of his Pro Golfers-Association title at Portland, Ore., yesterday with an 8-and-7 win over Frank Rodia of California and a 2-and-1 victory over Larry Lamberger of Portland.

Harry Fitzpatrick drove three winners in yesterday's grand circuit racing at the Wisconsin State Fair, Milwaukee. He won with King's Counsel in the free-for-all pace; captured the free-for-all trot with Dr. Spencer and drove Algiers to victory in the 2:14 trot.

SPLENDID MOUND WORK OF NAGY HELPS THE ROYALS

Young Portsider Has Turned in 16 Victories Against Four Defeats

By The Associated Press

One of the prime factors in Montreal Royals' dash towards their second consecutive International League pennant has been the excellent mound work of Steve Nagy.

The 27-year-old portsider has turned in 16 triumphs and suffered only four defeats for Manager Clay Hopper's fast-moving crew.

Nagy has hurled 16 complete games in 21 attempts and hasn't been driven from the hill in last 10 starts. He also is no push-over at the plate, having clouted three home runs and being used often as a pinch-hitter.

Last night Nagy allowed the Royals to a 7-4 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs. The Royals provided Nagy with a 5-1 lead in five frames and the little southpaw coasted to victory. Herman Franks led the Royals attack by batting in three runs on two hits.

Newark Bears moved into a second-place deadlock with Buffalo Bisons by downing Jersey City Giants, 4-3 while the Bisons dropped a 10-3 contest to Rochester Red Wings.

The Bears overcame a 3-2 Giant lead by scoring twice in the eighth frame to enable lefthander Herb Karpel to gain his 13th triumph of the season.

Max Surkont yielded only seven hits while his mates clubbed Art Houteman and Zeb Eaton of the Bisons for 10 blows.

The fifth-place Syracuse Chiefs drew to within half a game of Baltimore's fourth-place Orioles by trouncing the Orioles 7-3. The Chiefs hammered starter Lee Webber for five runs in the first two innings to enable Millard (Dixie) Howell to breeze to his ninth win of the year.

COWS TO MISS SALT

Brantford, Aug. 26 (CP)—Even the cows are liable to feel the current salt pinch. Yesterday one local grocer offered red salt squares, usually found in pasture for cows, as a substitute for table salt.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By ENID NEMY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Regina, Aug. 23 — (CP) — Those gaunt characters shuffling down the streets of almost any Canadian city this summer can well understand why racing is known as "the sport of kings."

Take the novice at betting, for instance. That is, of course, always assuming there still are some. He hears glorious tales all year about how Joe bought a new suit with his winnings last season and how Bob got his wife an electric stove.

So Harry saves up $50 and dreams of the trip he will take when the meet is finished. And he probably could have taken that trip — but Harry had one failing — he believed in his fellow man.

At the track he bought a "racing news" and a tout sheet. And there in the first race, was a horse called "Good Beginning." He took out $2 and made his way over to the wicket. It was then that the little man started chatting with him — very amiably.

"Got a winner?" he laughed.

"No, I'm playing a hunch," said our hero.

"Well, I was just talking to the owner of 'Hit the Dust' and that's where my money is going."

With that, the little character walked away. Harry was in a quandry. After much mental debate, he decided to play the sure thing.

He was stunned when, "Good Beginning" paid $17.30 to win while his sure thing was still tearing up the track. But after all, there were six more races.

Harry was still standing there, picking his second horse, when the hand picked "Hit the Dust," please. And in return for this kindness, she did him a favor — "Aspirin" was a cinch in the 2nd. She was so convinced that a tenspot would win Harry's pocket into the pari-mutuels.

"You still blame him if he felt rather badly when 'Aspirin' placed seventh?

The rest of the tale is really too sad. Harry retained his faith in his fellow men and lost his money.

Kiwanis Juniors in Second Round of O. B. A. Playdowns By Beating Peterborough 10-2

Bunton Strikes Out 13 While Teammates Plaster Ball to All Corners of Diamond—Two Triples and Homer Hit

(By G. H. C.)

Clustered clouting of the extra-base variety behind the six-hit hurling of Bobby Bunton, right-hander of the Belleville Kiwanis Juniors featured the local arsenal's straight victory over the Peterborough Royals at the Alemite Field Wednesday afternoon. The score was 10-2 and by virtue of their 4-3 win over the Royals on Tuesday night in Saturday, the Kiwanis now meet the winners of the Kingston-Cobourg series in the second round of the OBA junior playdowns.

The game played before 1,000 fans, was a pitchers' duel up to fourth when the locals batted suddenly exploded and all but blew Loucks, the Peterborough hurler off the mound. Both pitchers were on the hard way with plenty of 3-2 counts on batters while both were generous with their bases on balls.

Bunton, however, was good in the clutches as were his mates with the bat. The blonde hurler struck out 13 of the Royal Blues while he issued seven free passes to first base.

Blasted With Four Hits

Loucks went well until the fourth when the locals bats blasted him for four hits for as many runs and after walking Bunton and allowing two hits for a trio of markers in the fifth he was yanked in favor of Esenick, another right-hander who was nicked for five hits and two runs over the remainder of the pastime.

Loucks generously presented the St. Louis crew with their first marker in the second innings. Vern Green had drawn a free ticket and went to second when McIsaac bobbled Bush's fly to right field. Fitzpatrick filed out and Bud Green got on when the play on brother Vern at second failed. Reeves got a life and Loucks then walked Semark to force in the run.

Bad Green Hits Homer

With Kelleher and Bunton falling victim to the Loucks shoots in the fourth, the Kiwanis bats suddenly flashed into life.

Vern Green, starry young second baseman shot a smashing triple down the first base line which caused plenty of consternation when the Peterborough master-mindr claimed a foul ball. The hit stood and Bunton promptly drove out a single to score Green. Dick Fitzpatrick then lined out another bright and deep right field inside the foul stripe and Bush and Bud Green whose hitting has featured the series drove out a line home-run over centre field that sent Fitzpatrick racing home ahead of the ball strolling on the Kiwanis.

Kiwanis picked up where they left off when they came to bat in the fifth innings. Loucks walked Semark and Wright. Kelleher struck out for the third time and Bunton also walked, filling the bases with Green batted out a double scoring three runs and went out after Bush had lined out a clean single.

End of Loucks

That was the end of Loucks and Esenick was rushed into the breach. He walked the first man up, Bud Green got on on a fielder's choice when a play at second failed, but Esenick struck out Reeves to end the inning.

Kiwanis scored another in the sixth when Bunton who singled and stole second raced home on Fitzpatrick's second clout of the day. They got another in the eighth, two in fact but the second run was not allowed as Kelleher who was thrown out at third had left second base before the runner had crossed the plate.

Tied Score In Fourth

Peterboro counted one in the fourth to tie the score when they tallied three of their six hits for the lone run. Bunton had retired two batters then Conway, Isaac and Cornwell hit in succession. The former scored on the latter's hit but Bunton forced Plumpton to ground out to the box.

They got their second marker in the fifth when Spencer beat out a bunt, went to second and third on Wright's sacrifice and scored after Semark pulled down Sullivan's long fly to left field.

Vern Green paced the Kiwanis attack with a perfect day at the bat. He got a triple, double and single and drew two walks. He collected a triple and a single, while Bud Green got a round-tripper and a single. Bush himself a brace of hits with Lockyer getting a double and a single. Conway, Cornwell, Fitzpatrick, Wright, Semark and McIsaac hit safely in the singles for the Royals.

AMATEUR BASEBALL

By The Canadian Press

Saint Catharines Saints in the third game of the Niagara District Senior B baseball finals last night defeated Thorold Tigers, Thorold 3-2. In the Inter-County Baseball Association senior semi-finals last night Waterloo Tigers defeated Stratford, Ontario 6-5.

A ninth inning run gave the Saints their tying tally when Stocker singled and advanced to third on an error, and then scored on a sacrifice. Pitcher Jack Scott of Thormes struck out 10 and then gave way to Cecil Conderre in the ninth because of a sore arm. Diggins of the Saints had three singles in five times at bat.

At Waterloo the Tigers tied the semi-finals with their win. Their second-sacker, Johnny Meyer, led the way by pitching four-hit ball for seven innings.

The second game of the Inter-county Intermediate semi-final playoffs between Brantford Red Sox and Galt Vets ended in a 3-3 tie at Galt.

Peterborough Tigers defeated Lindsay All Stars 12-7 in an Ontario Baseball Association contest.

In the Ontario Baseball Association junior playdowns, Belleville Kiwanis Juniors eliminated Peterborough Royals 10-2.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

Two 60-second workouts with finesse may do you some good. It may save you many hours of worry in the future. Like knowing where the light switch is when the dark night when you stumble.

A finesse is a misnomer as win a trick with the card of a suit in which an opponent has a higher one. It works fine when you control such opponent to play ahead of a higher card of yours.

Those are when you may try two finesses in the same suit. In such cases, you may first use the lowest of the two finessing cards. This is known as double-finessing.

Look at the hearts in the four hands as shown here:

North
♥ A Q 10

West ♥ K J 7 | East ♥ 9 8 6 3

South ♥ 5 4 3

Suppose north foolishly leads the ten and queen. This avoids any chance for finessing. It lets west take two tricks without a struggle.

But if south leads hearts toward the north hand, west is trapped. It compels west to play ahead of the ace. And north is getting over the west hand with a double finesse to win a trick.

Whatever card is played by west, north barely covers to win the trick. If west does not play his highest, north can double-finesse.

Suppose the first card played by west is the seven. North wins it by playing the ten. This is known as finessing the ten. It is a card lower than one west still has.

Instead of the ten, north might have played the queen; a finesse of the queen, a card lower than one west still has. But playing the ten, known as the finessing cards, is a double finesse.

When south gets in again and leads a second heart, west is in hock again. If he plays the jack, north finesses the queen. The ace is still good for the third trick. Some fun.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Aug. 22 (AP)—Note to California's newest: a brown-haired man ogles you more than he should, don't holler "police" too soon; it might be Harry Conover.

The man whose model agency supplies beauties for magazine covers and elsewhere is in Hollywood prowling for talent. This is a fine pastime for a man on his honeymoon; but it is strictly business for Harry.

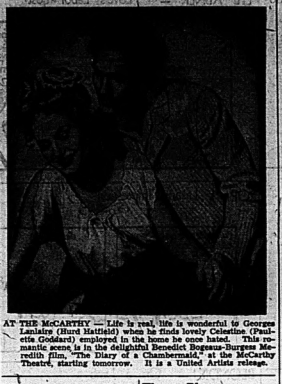
Amateur is fair play, he explained while lolling beside a hotel pool with his model-bride, Candy Jones. "After all, Hollywood took girls like Anita Colby, Joan Caulfield, Jinx Falkenburg and Dusty Anderson from my agency. Maybe I can steal some beauties from Hollywood."

Conover arrived here from Dallas, where he signed up five girls in three days. "Then I returned to the hotel and found the girl behind the counter was more beautiful than any of them," he said. "Texas is the most fertile field for beauties—Texas and California."

You'll think he'd have enough talent, what with 900 "model schools" trying to send him their graduates. But many of these are rackets in a way, and it's no cinch to learn to be a model.

"It takes the three B's," said Mrs. Conover, "brains, beauty and breeding." Obviously she has; that's why she's Mrs. Conover.

The little man who pays can expect to pay more for attending the neighborhood movie show. The price of new film stock is rising and theatre admissions may follow....Abbott and Costello leave Saturday on their tour to benefit Lou's youth foundation. They'll play at Winnipeg and leading American cities....Sonny Tufts, recovering from his black widow spider bite, is having his entire house fumigated.



AT THE McCARTHY — Life is real, life is wonderful to Georges Lanlaire (Hurd Hatfield) when he finds lovely Celestine (Paulette Goddard) employed in the home he once hated. This romantic scene is in the delightful Benedict Bogeaus-Burgess Meredith film, "The Diary of a Chambermaid," at the McCarthy Theatre, starting tomorrow. It is a United Artists release.

Three Players Given $1,000 Raise

Toronto, Aug. 22 (CP)— Conn Smythe, manager of Toronto Maple Leafs, National League hockey club, said yesterday nearly all players have signed their 1946-47 contracts. He still is awaiting word from Frank McCool, Jackie Hamilton, Elwyn Morris and Doug Baldwin. Ernie Dickens is the only player to return his contract unsigned.

Many of the players signed at the conclusion of last season when a fifty-game schedule still was the basis for negotiations. With the change-over to a sixty-game schedule, salaries were raised. Syl Apps, Gaye Stewart and Billy Taylor headed the list of those given increases with an additional $1,000 each.

Sports Roundup

Unanswered Question

A report kicking around the National Baseball League is that Branch Rickey has promised each and every one of his Dodgers a brand new car if they're still in first place when they return from their western trip. That brings the query: If the Dodgers deliver, can Rickey?

Sheets and Sheils

Although Notre Dame already is being talked as the year's No. 1 football team (are you listening, Army?) folks at South Bend claim they're really worried about Illinois, Army and Southern California....Billy Gates, who must have imbibed some bigtime football ideas as sports editor of the Baton Rouge, La., Advocate, has taken a tub-thumping job with the Mets.

Cleaning the Cuff

Michigan's Barry Field originally was purchased for $3,000 as a cricket field....Tom Root, Jr., new publicity man at Wake Forest College, still is blushing every time he encounters backfield coach Bob (Jitterbug) Kellogg.

AT THE BELLE — The enviable role of romantic hero in Warner's "One More Tomorrow," falls to the lot of Dennis Morgan, who makes the most of his opportunity by making screen love to both Ann Sheridan and Alexis Smith, who co-star with him in the comedy, also starred in the film are Jack Carson and Jane Wyman.

Six-Hour Curfew at Tehran

London, Aug. 22 — (Reuters) — An official communique issued in Tehran today imposed a curfew from 11 p.m. to 5 a.m. "By order of the military governmen," Tehran radio reported today.

(No recent reports have been received from Iran to explain the curfew.)

BOATS TRAPPED IN BAY

Frenchman's Bay, Aug. 22 (CP) — For the first time in 28 years commercial fishermen in this community 10 miles east of Toronto are idle because their fleet of about 30 sailing vessels are trapped in the Bay due to collapse of the piers and filling of the channel. No one could explain the sudden filling in this year.

Peat Bog Fire Out, Threatened Plant and Crops

Ladner, B.C., Aug. 22—(CP)—A swirling peat bog fire, with smoke rising from underground levels, which for 12 days has endangered property and crops nine miles from here, was brought under control last night.

Earlier in the day, fanned by a stiff breeze, the fire was headed for the $250,000 plant of the Industrial Peat Company and potato and oats crops, valued at $120,000, as well as a timber stand, were in its path.

A crew of 30 firefighters fought the fire, digging ditches which were filled with water to halt progress of the blaze. Chinese berry pickers were blamed for starting the fire.

Advice to Ambulance Drivers

Kitchener, Aug. 22 (CP)—Kitchener-Waterloo Hospital ambulance drivers are going to stop at all red lights in future, drive carefully and conform to traffic regulations. Member of the hospital commission, Dr. S. F. Leavine told them recently: "You are not permitted to kill the living to help the injured or dead."

CHAPTER 14.

The first working hour of the next morning was taken up by a customer who was maddeningly slow with his dictation. About the time he seemed near the height for finish of his work, Jacqueline glanced into the lobby just in time to see Larry passing.

He gave her a bright smile which she returned mechanically, then began typing once more. From the corner of her eye, however, she watched her husband drop into a chair and unfold his newspaper. That meant he was coming in as soon as her customer left.

Before the client was finished, Jacqueline had assured herself that Lieutenant Staples was not in sight.

Then, Larry looming in the doorway. His familiar drawling voice asking: "Is Miss Sherlock home?"

Then Larry had received his cue and understood the message!

Jacqueline's sense of relief was so great that she repressed a thankful exclamation with difficulty. Instead, she murmured a greeting in some fashion. Waited —feeling more than ever that she was being watched. She must play her part. And not overplay ever, she watched her husband drop into a chair and unfold his newspaper. That meant he was coming in as soon as her customer left.

Before the client was finished, Jacqueline had assured herself that Lieutenant Staples was not in sight.

Then, Larry looming in the doorway. His familiar drawling voice asking: "Is Miss Sherlock home?"

Then Larry had received his cue and understood the message!

Jacqueline's sense of relief was so great that she repressed a thankful exclamation with difficulty. Instead, she murmured a greeting in some fashion. Waited —feeling more than ever that she was being watched. She must play her part. And not overplay ever, she watched her husband drop into a chair and unfold his newspaper. That meant he was coming in as soon as her customer left.

Before the client was finished, Jacqueline had assured herself that Lieutenant Staples was not in sight.

He paused as Jacqueline inserted a sheet in the machine with fingers that trembled slightly.

"This is just a personal letter..." Larry raised his head and stared up at the ceiling as though recalling his entire concentration to the composition. "Dear Jack", he began.

A few staccato taps of the keys. Silence.

"Yours of the nineteenth instant received....contents carefully noted....thanks for information contained therein....I want to know how this particular data came to your attention, but I am accepting gratefully....I was not particularly surprised to read what you had to say and will be pleased to discuss the matter more in detail when the opportunity presents itself. I hope it may be soon. Paragraph.

"With renewed assurances of my appreciation, I beg to remain yours very....sincerely. That's all."

Without changing his tone, Larry continued, "Tell me in an off-hand fashion where I can see you tonight. It's important, please."

Jacqueline took the sheet from her machine and looked over the few lines as if to assure herself there were no errors. She held it out gravely, saying in a low tone:

"Tonight. Baxter street entrance of the South Side Hospital. Nine o'clock. Twenty-five cents."

Larry rose to his feet, chuckling silently as he reached in his pocket for the change.

"You're superb." Then he added rapidly, "Don't forget that my Montreal friends are Todman, Kell, Limited. Thanks."

Todman, Kell.....? Jacqueline found herself repeating as Larry walked away without another word. Why did he say that? Oh... Now she knew. If anyone were to ask her to whom he had written, she was at liberty to mention that firm. She wouldn't, though. It would be easier to say she didn't remember....that it was merely a business letter. Well, it was. But it was clever of Larry.

This was a dreadful game she was playing....and fascinating. She always had been longing for adventure and now she was in the midst of one that might end in....She shivered a little and tried to forget that.

All day long her heart had an uncomfortable tendency to climb into her throat each time a caller paused at her door. Jacqueline expected momentarily that the lieutenant would drop in to demand to whom Larry dictated that letter. But there was no sign of him.

It was a dreadful thing to admit, but the stenographer was glad that Virgie Blake was at home nursing a cold. The cigar stand saleswoman would have seen Larry in her office and hurried over to ask questions. Poor old Virgie was innocent enough, but she didn't have a way of making disconcerting suggestions.

Jacqueline was Dr. Kennedy's first visitor that night, making the stop at his office before going to see her father. Vince's operation was scheduled for tomorrow at eleven. His daughter felt that she must have a final word of assurance from the surgeon.

"I don't believe there is the slightest cause of apprehension," was the doctor's comforting report. "Your father has responded very nicely to treatment. His heart is in very good shape for a man of his age. I'm not looking for any complications. If I were you, I should go to work tomorrow as usual. You can call up the hospital in the afternoon. If anything should happen, I'll see that you hear at once. That's a promise."

"Surely?"

"Absolutely. By evening, you should be able to see him. Trot along now and don't worry."

But it was not so easy to be cheerful when she found herself with Vince. She couldn't bear the thought of anything happening to him....with things in such a dreadful mess. In another hour she would have to face Larry, too. No telling what that was going to mean.

At nine o'clock, Jacqueline gave her father a lingering kiss. She left the room smiling at him through the door, and waving a cheerful little farewell. Then out through one of the side entrances to Baxter street.

Parked in the shadows was a long, black sedan from which Larry leaped when he heard Jacqueline's step.

"You're very prompt," was his greeting. "Hop in. We'll take a little spin somewhere and talk as we go." He chuckled slightly. "And I haven't been trailed. So don't let that worry you."

Jacqueline said nothing until they were some distance from the hospital. In spite of herself, her thoughts persisted in straying back to Vince. Larry might have guessed the reason for her preoccupation, for her asked quietly, "Visiting the sick tonight?"

"My father."

"What! You mean he's a patient! Why, I thought—I mean, I didn't know he was in the city."

"He has been in hospital for a little time."

"Came home sick, then. That's tough. Nothing serious, I hope."

"He's going to be operated on tomorrow. The doctor thinks there is no danger."

"I wish I had known. Is there anything at all I can do for him? Doctors or nurses—?"

"Oh, no." Larry had gotten all these things for Vince, but he didn't know it.

"Care to tell me?"

"Larry..." she burst out miserably. "Vince has been in town all the time! He kept out of my way until—until he finished one of his inventions and...." Her voice was breaking treacherously.

"I see," Larry offered easily. "He wanted to surprise you. And he was taken sick instead."

"Yes....Yes, that was it." She could hardly speak."

"He had a job working nights. But I guess he used most of his pay—"

"I know," Larry broke in. "Instead of bothering to eat, he fed his brain child instead. Until he broke down. I know all about that sort of thing....It's the way geniuses come to light."

It was very nice of Larry to speak of Vince as a genius, when he wasn't one....exactly. But she had to go through with it now.

"Larry..." she began, "I couldn't manage about Vince....then I will put it back. If I didn't....

"My money?"

"Those bonds."

"Whatever are you talking about? Those bonds aren't going to use in any way you like."

"I know, but I couldn't. You don't understand. I wont spend any more than I have to, and

"If you didn't, you'd think you had sold yourself. That's what you're trying to say, isn't it?

"Yes."

"Wish you could forget it. I'm only glad to do anything I can for your dad....But we'll fix it any way you like. When is the operation?"

"At eleven."

"Going to the hospital?"

"The doctor thought I'd better wait until afterwards....until evening. He promised to call me, in case—"

"I get you. I'll tell you what I'll do. If you don't mind my passing myself off as a friend of the family, I'll drop around and make sure that everything's all right. Sort of a double check, you know. Okay?"

"That would be awfully good of you."

"It's all in the family....so to speak. And now that that's out of our systems, I want to talk about something else. I'm curious about that note of yours."

"Would you rather I hadn't sent it?"

"It was mighty square of you, Jack. But there's one thing I can't figure. How did you get wise to the code?"

"That was really an accident. Lieutenant Staples....he's a detective who is around the hotel quite often. He happened in the office, just visiting. Then, right out of a clear sky he asked me if I ever had written any letter for you."

"Just like that, eh? Your friend Lieutenant Staples apparently is a discerning gentleman. Do you mind telling me how he got my footprints under his magnifying glass? Or did he tell you?"

"He isn't my friend...exactly."

Jacqueline explained. "I met him the same as I have several other detectives. They came into the Rayner lobby and we got to know who they are. I do know Mr. Staples better than the others because he did some work for me once." She admitted that with a sudden laugh at the recollection.

"Recovered some lost jewels or something?"

THE CANADIAN DEPARTMENT STORES LIMITED

PRAISES SYNTONA FOR RELIEF OF INDIGESTION GAS AND SOUR STOMACH

Glad to be Able to Eat Once Again Without Suffering Afterward: "Sleep Better and Feel Better in General," Says This Man.

When the stomach is out of order and food fails to digest proper, bad ferments causing sourness, gas and a full, bloated sensation; when poor kidney action brings on night-rising, backache, and rheumatic aches and pains; when bowels are constipated and you have dizzy spells, dull headache or nerves are on edge, try a short treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound and the chances are that you, too, may find it to be just what you need to put you on the road to better health again.

"For 2 years I suffered with a bad disordered stomach," said Mr. Cecil Brooks, London Park East, Sarnia, Ont., in a recent report. . . . "Food I ate would sour in my stomach and give me so much gas I felt I could burst. The gas caused cramps in my stomach and I just couldn't seem to get relief. I always had a coated tongue and a lot of trouble with constipation. I got so that I couldn't get my proper sleep at night and I felt very tired and jaded in the mornings.

"One day I decided they advised me to try Syntona and this medicine has been a wonderful help to me. It is the only thing that has ever given me relief from the gas and troubles in my stomach. Since I've had this medicine, I can eat better than I have for years. I sleep better, too, and get up mornings feeling much rested and have more energy to get away to my work. I think Syntona can be a great help to anyone suffering this way and I am glad to recommend it."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

TITO ORDERS NO FIRING ON FOREIGN PLANES
HAMILTON POLICE CHIEF ASKS FOR OUTSIDE HELP

Tells Commission Dept. Helpless To Keep Law, Order

Police Board Adjourns Without Taking Action

Hamilton, Aug. 23 (CP)—Chief Constable Joseph R. Crocker today asked a special meeting of the Hamilton Board of Police Commissioners for assistance to maintain law and order while the situation in the wages-hours strike called July 15 against the Steel Company of Canada and other basic steel plants in Sault Ste. Marie and Sydney.

After it heard the request, the Commission adjourned its meeting until tonight.

The Chief told the Board his department was helpless to maintain law and order and asked that the wishes of the Board could not be carried out without "extensive, revolutionary measures."

Asked If Effort Made

Judge Ernest F. Lazier asked the Chief if an effort had been made to get trucks into the partly-strikebound plant.

"Indeed we did," the Chief replied. "Every man knows the fact that the police made a valiant effort to maintain law and order. We can not cope with the situation without help. All attempts to run steel out of the plant are like waving a red flag in front of a bull."

The Chief's request arose from a new explosive device which developed yesterday on the picket line outside Stelco's Hamilton Works. Police tried valiantly to escort trucks through massed strikers.

Magistrate Will Attend

Judge Lazier asked the Chief if adjourning the meeting until 8 p.m. today would be convenient. A. Burbidge to attend would endanger life and property. The Magistrate is out of the city on holidays.

Chief Crocker replied that he expected more trouble as attempts were made to force trucks through the line. C. R. W. Bowlby, K.C., who represents the Steel Company at the meeting, said no company trucks would try to enter or leave the plant today.

For the fourth consecutive day, skirmishes broke out yesterday between pickets and police but an uneasy calm prevailed last night.

Three attempts to move vehicles through the picket lines ended in failure yesterday and Chief Crocker announced to the strikers: "You have shown by your actions that you are not wanted here. It's for one reason only, you're on the spot. . . . Now there is only one thing for me to do and I am going to do it promptly. You know what I mean; I do not have to enlarge on that."

"You have only yourselves to blame for what is to happen as you defied the Police Commission meeting. That is all I have to say to you."

The police chief's statement over the strikers' loudspeaker system met derisive cheers. There can be means they're going to call in the Provincial Police, form a union steward, Norman Carter. Women Asked to Go Home

Another union official said police reinforcements could be expected any moment and women should be ordered from the plant gates were asked to go home.

PEEL OR SCRUB ALL RAW FRUIT AND VEGETABLES

Five Other Bits of Advice Given For Precaution Against Polio

Toronto, Aug. 23 (CP)—Residents of Toronto were asked to "peel or scrub" all raw fruits was given today by the Ontario Department of Health as the first of "six simple precautions" against infantile paralysis.

Dr. Charles Hincks, newspaper advertisements the Department of Health issued "common sense precautions":

1. Peel or scrub all (the word "all" was underscored) raw fruit and vegetables before serving.

2. Protect all food from flies.

3. Teach your children to avoid overtired, hatches and swimming pools and swimming in dirty water.

4. Avoid over-fatigue and if possible have your children rest for two hours each afternoon.

5. Prevent your children from suffering sudden chills or exposing themselves to too much sun.

6. Make your children wash their hands before eating.

The Canadian Press in a story Aug. 9 erroneously quoted a statement by the Canadian Medical Association as warning against raw fruit contained by virus-bearing flies. The report actually said the danger lay in raw fruit wheat unwashed by people.

This distinction was elaborated today by Dr. D. S. Puffer, Ontario chief medical officer of health, who said peeling or scrubbing was a precaution in all communicable diseases.

"Flies on the fruit or vegetable itself that is destroyed," said Dr. Puffer, "it is the contamination which might be placed on the outside by some flying insects and which can be eliminated by peeling or scrubbing."

All Dolled Up for Peacetime Service, 'Queen Elizabeth' Soon to Seek Record

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Southampton, Aug. 23 — (CP — Cable) — Queen, world's largest ship — the 84,000-ton liner Queen Elizabeth today is being all dolled up in her party clothes for what is to be her "maiden" voyage to New York.

During the war the Elizabeth sailed almost 500,000 miles and carried nearly 1,000,000 troops but she has never sailed as a peacetime liner.

Next Thursday she goes into the regular run for which she was built, her captain, 58-year-old Sir James Bisset, Commodore of the Cunard White Star fleet, will try for a North Atlantic record.

Thousands of Canadian troops and GIs have sailed in her and travelled across the Atlantic on the 1,031-foot queen of the seas would not recognize her in her new coat-of-peace for her obvious size. Black and red paint replaces the drab, wartime grey and the Elizabeth, like every peacetime ship, the Queen Mary,

Her funnels which were big enough to squeeze in 14 army officers during the war have been refitted for two passengers. During the war troops slept above the waterline in 3-tier bunks, standees. Now they are about ready for berths.

Blackout paint has been scraped from the port holes and the glass replaced. Blackout shutters in lic rooms have been fitted up with bright fluorescent and signs such as "D section, 108 beds" so the only indication they ever were crowded with Canadian soldiers.

More than 1,000 employees of John Brown and Company, the Elizabeth's builders, were brought to Southampton from Scotland to carry out the overhaul, working 24 hours a day.

The Elizabeth is scheduled to make six round trips by mid-January with sailings from Southampton, Oct. 16, Nov. 6 and Nov. 22, Dec. 7 and 21 and Jan. 3, and New York sailings Oct. 25 Nov. 14 and 29, Dec. 14 and 27, and Jan. 17.

Fares are more than 50 per cent higher than pre-war rates aboard the Queen Mary. The cheapest first-class passage is £91 ($364), tourist class £56 and tourist class £41.

H.M.C.S. WARRIOR RUNS AGROUND IN ST. LAWRENCE

Grounding Result Of Breakdown in Ship's Steering Apparatus No Damage Results

Montreal, Aug. 23 (CP)—H. M. C. S. Warrior, 18,000-top Canadian aircraft carrier, ran aground today, on a mud bank at Points St. Antoine, 30 miles upstream from Quebec, naval authorities here reported.

The recently-launched addition to the Canadian navy sailed from Quebec for Montreal at 8 a.m., E.D.T. today. The grounding was the result of a breakdown in the ship's steering apparatus, naval authorities said.

Officials reported that a preliminary examination of the hull revealed no damage. They said tugs were being sent from Quebec to help free the vessel from the mud bank.

May Return to Quebec

It was reported here that the ship's engines had been unaffected, might return to Quebec stream under its own power.

Decorated from stem to stern with flags and pennants, the vessel docked at St. Victor's cove in Quebec last night amid the shrill of whistles from ships in the sale and pleasure yachts moored in Quebec harbor.

The flat-top was scheduled to anchor in Montreal for four days, returning to Quebec Aug. 29.

Says Tito Refuses To Accept U.S. Ultimatum

Belgrade, Aug. 23 — (Reuters) —Belgrade radio said today that the United States airmen forced down in Yugoslavia now have been released but that they have refused to accept the American ultimatum.

The broadcast injected another enigmatic element into the international tug-of-war which started with the shooting down of two American transport planes. It was believed previously that the strained relations had led to an increase in the tension in releasing seven interned airmen and in giving his air force "the strictest orders" to fire on foreign planes constituted compliance with the American ultimatum, which was to have expired today.

There was no official comment immediately on the unelaborated statement by Tito's radio that the ultimatum would be rejected.

TROOPSHIP PUTS TO SEA WITH 600 JEW IMMIGRANTS

Sails After Phone Warning Received That Craft Would Be Blasted

Jerusalem, Aug. 22. (CP)—The British troopship Empire Heywood put to sea with 600 illegal immigrants after naval headquarters received a telephone warning that the vessel, carrying 600 Jewish immigrants, would be blasted tonight.

Authorities said the Heywood would remain in the Mediterranean for four days, because it was believed she would be safer at sea than in port. She left Haifa Wednesday, swimming saboteurs blew a hole 30 feet by 30 feet square feet in the side of the troopship Empire Rival, but the damage which had been damaged in a previous explosion.

Camp conditions at Cyprus prevented the immediate landing of the illegal refugees aboard the Heywood. They are being deported under the British policy forbidding further illegal immigration to Palestine.

One destroyer accompanied the Heywood, scheduled to dock at Cyprus Aug. 27. She started for Cyprus a week ago with the refugees but was diverted by return to Haifa when refugees ignited two small gelignite bombs in the hold.

Otherwise, Palestine was quiet today, with the main interest centering on the awaited decision confirming or modifying the death sentences imposed on 18 Jews—members of the so-called Stern Group—for their conviction last week at Haifa.

Milk Flows on Highway

Brantford, Aug. 23 (CP) Hundreds of quarts of milk flowed in a river on No. 24 Highway north of here yesterday and the truck carrying it was badly damaged in a collision. Provincial drivers of the truck, and two passengers escaped serious injury. The truck driver and driver and driver with the rear of the car ahead but the latter also escaped serious injury.

Archdeacon G. R. Beamish Dies at John St. Home After Sudden Heart Attack

The Venerable Archdeacon Beamish, former Rector of St. Thomas' Church for many years, died at his home, 208 John Street, shortly before ten o'clock Friday morning of his third or fourth seizure which he suffered Thursday afternoon. Four months ago he sustained a heart attack from the effects of which he failed to fully recover.

In the death of Archdeacon Beamish, the life of one who over a long term of years served faithfully and with eminent success in the priesthood of the Church of England, has ended. During his active years in the ministry he was prominent in the Church Synods and held a high place in the esteem of his fellow clergy and the members of the parishes where he served. He was a strong churchman, an eloquent and forceful preacher and one who possessed marked organizing ability. He was a good man, a kind and sympathetic friend to those in trouble or in need and many friends he will be held in affectionate remembrance.

Born In London

The late Venerable George Rose Beamish, M.A., was born in London, Ontario, and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Beamish. He lived until the 31st day of this month he would have reached the age of 86 years. He was educated Trinity College, Toronto, and graduated with honors in Classics and honors in 1880 and was Governor General's gold medalist in theology and arts.

In 1882 he received the degree of Master of Arts. He was made a deacon in the Diocese of Huron in 1881 and was ordained to the priesthood in 1882. In 1891 he was appointed curate to the late James' Church, Stratford; Locum Tenens at St. John's Church, Kingston, 1892 and 1893. During 1893 and 1894 he was given leave of absence for health reasons. He visited the Holy Land and attended a course of lectures in Divinity at Oxford University.

On returning home he served as assistant to the late Rev. A. H. Gooderham at St. George's Cathedral, Kingston. In 1897 he became Rector of Trinity Church, Brockville and on July 1st, 1902 he was appointed Rector of Belleville and of St. Thomas' Parish. He was Rural Dean of Hastings from 1905 to 1911 and in 1912 he was made a Canon of St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, and some years later he was created Archdeacon.

In 1926 Archdeacon Beamish left Belleville to live for a time in England and he was engaged as lecturer for the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel—under the Bishop of London, until 1928 when he became British Chaplain at Spa, Belgium. In 1929 he became British Chaplain at Genoa, Italy, for six months, and from 1930 until 1935 he was British Chaplain at Fiesole, Italy, and Belgrade, Yugoslavia. In 1941 he returned to reside in this city.

Archdeacon Beamish was a life member of the Masonic Order and also a life member of the Orange Order. He served many years as Chaplain and held the rank of Major. He was a good citizen, a loyal subject of the Empire and a friend to all who knew him in this country and his fellow men.

Surviving and to whom the sympathy of many friends will be extended are his wife, Mrs. Beamish; Miss Mary Ackerill of this city; one son, Mr. Desmond Beamish, Montreal; one brother, Charles, Mrs. Frank (Margaret) McKenty, Montreal, and Mrs. Christopher (Hilda) Hannay of Watford, England. The late Mrs. Beamish was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ackerill of this city.

Funeral announcement is made in this edition.

PILOT FAILED TO UNDERSTAND SIGNALS GIVEN

One Fighter Plane Rocked Wings as Signal For U.S. Airman to Land

Goriza, Italy, Aug. 23 (AP)— The pilot of the United States army transport plane forced down in Yugoslavia by fighter planes said today he failed to understand the signals of two Yugoslav fighter planes which ordered him to land with their guns fired over his plane "a few feet from my wings. I was told after I landed that one of the interned planes signal to land, but in the American and British air forces that means to attack.

"I did not know what they meant. They kept diving at us and we kept climbing.

Capt. Crombie said this was his eighth flight over the Vienna-Athens route, on which a second unarmed transport plane, the Skymaster, was shot down last Monday with possibly five American fatalities.

Capt. Crombie said today that yesterday with three crew members and three military and three civilian passengers after an American ultimatum.

He said one of the Yugoslav bullets went through the tail of the Dakota, narrowly missing one of the passengers, a Turkish army officer.

Flies Gives Interview

Capt. Crombie, in an interview supervised by the United States security Officer, said he was supposed to fly a load of personnel from Vienna to a lake, thence to Graz, to Klagenfurt, to Travisio and Udine.

"I flew contact as far as the lake and then started to climb to get above the clouds," he said. "At 15,500 feet I was over some of the weather. I circled in and I went on instruments, although there were occasional breaks in the clouds."

HOUSE COMPLETES THREE-DAY DEBATE ADOPTING REPORT

Labor Minister Claims Policies Set in Motion Designed to Destroy Reconversion Efforts

By JACK WILLIAMS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Ottawa, Aug. 23 (CP)—Parliament has provided the three-day debate on Canada's troubled industrial situation by voting 129-28 in support of a report of its Commons Industrial Relations Committee.

The report, which dealt with proposed amendments to the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, was considered by the committee after Mr. Patterson's two-hour conference at Bled yesterday with Yugoslavia Foreign Minister Kardelj, which required satisfaction within 48 hours with the alternative of arraigning Yugoslavia before the United Nations.

Probe Seems of Crash

Two American graves registration representatives today were scheduled to inspect the scene of the Dakota crash amid indications that none of the five crew members survived the forced landing decision which occurred when the ship was forced down.

The foreign office earlier in the day stated that two more men had been rescued but Yugoslav military authorities told the United States Embassy in Belgrade yesterday that no trace had been found of the two. The other was presumably perished.

The two Americans and two Europeans aboard the plane forced down Aug. 9 were released by Yugoslavia on a new Belgrade-Tito conference with Mr. Patterson. They had been held at Ljubljana hotel for almost two weeks. The Yugoslav planeload, Turkish captain, was reported recovering in a Ljubljana hospital from wounds suffered by gunfire when the plane was downed.

Tito's reply was expected to "cease fire" orders to his air force pending a note sent over him by two American newspaper correspondents representing the Associated Press and one of the New York Times.

Tito Silent

Said Tito's written reply: "I fighting and have ordered that the Yugoslav Fourth Army commanders not to fire on foreign planes without my order."

In response to another question, the Yugoslav premier said the American transport planes had deliberately infringed upon Yugoslav sovereignty "without any provocation among Yugoslavs that the Belgrade and Ljubljana (Yugoslav) government are so overwhelming that the Yugoslav government must take everything."

Veterinarian Saved Hitler's Dog's Life But Never Received Payment of Bill

By TOM REEDY

Munich, Aug. 23 — (AP)—Hitler stood in the big reception room of his chalet at Obersalzberg. There were tears in his eyes.

"If you save my dog," he said, "you can have anything you want."

Dr. Alphons Dopfer, Munich veterinarian, said he would try. The ailing dog got well. But the Fuehrer never paid the bill.

On Aug. 23, Dopfer would just as soon forget the 6,000 marks he says Hitler owes him.

Dopfer, in March, 1943 he got a telephone call from one of the Fuehrer's aides in Munich. In a short while S. S. men came for Dopfer and his car and drove to Obersalzburg. There he was told that the Fuehrer's Great Dane, Blondie, had a fever.

Dopfer examined the Dane, found a trace of pneumonia, concluded that what was really wrong was the Fuehrer's own vegetarian diet. Great Danes need meat, the veterinarian told the Fuehrer, who grudgingly consented to include it in Blondie's diet.

In November, Hitler put in a hurried call to Dopfer from the Russian front. Blondie had a skin disease this time. A special courier flew the doctor to Hitler's headquarters.

Again his work was done. Hitler's staff told Dopfer to submit a bill. He sent it. Blondie's disease was worth 6,000 marks. But Dopfer never heard another word from the Fuehrer.

Seven Americans Released, Crash Probes Authorized

Yugoslavia Complains U.S. Holding Ships, Says Report

By GEORGE PALMER

Belgrade, Aug. 23 — (AP) — Premier Marshal Tito, having complied with an angry United States ultimatum demanding the release of seven interned Americans, has given his air force "the strictest orders" not to fire on foreign planes again, even if they happen to fly over Yugoslavia without clearance.

Tito also has informed United States Ambassador Richard C. Patterson that permission would be given American representatives to visit both United States transports shot down by Yugoslav pilots, the second day after the ultimatum. One plane was downed near Ljubljana Aug. 9 and the other near Bled last Monday.

The Yugoslav government has promised to give satisfaction." American diplomatic officials said after Mr. Patterson's two-hour conference at Bled yesterday with Foreign Minister Kardelj, quoting a Tass News Agency message from Belgrade, said:

"Dr. Stampar Yugoslav delegate and Deputy Chairman of the United Nations Economic and Social Council, has sent a letter to the Secretary General of the United Nations Organization at Lake Success on the agenda for the next Council meeting opening on Aug. 31 of the question of the incorrect detention of passenger ships and aircraft.

"The other vessels are 16 tugs, 16 tankers, 3 barges, seven pontoons, one crane and four other objects.

In Upper Reaches

"These goods which were stolen by the Germans are at present in the upper reaches of the Danube, in the district of Austria, Hungary and Germany."

The Moscow radio said the Yugoslav government had made "repeated demands" for the speedy delivery of property seized by the United States and that the latter, by ignoring the demands, was "thereby doing Yugoslavia a great disservice and increasing the losses which the country already devastated by the war."

Newsprint Ceiling Up Seven Dollars Per Ton in U.S.

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH
Washington, Aug. 23 (AP).

The ceiling price on newsprint sold in the United States is up $7 a ton today, the OPA announced.

The boosted further soon.

They didn't be surprised to see another increase before long," an Office of Price Administration official told a reporter.

In announcing the immediate $7 hike yesterday, O.P.A. cited these reasons:

1. To help assure an adequate supply of newsprint for United States publishers by stimulating to prevent a diversion to other markets to foreign newsprint.

2. To "check any tendency on the part of domestic producers to divert newsprint production to other more profitable lines of paper."

3. To offset manufacturers' higher costs for raw materials, labor and freight.

The announcement, O.P.A. made no mention of the recent 9½ per cent devaluation of the Canadian dollar, although this was said to be a major factor in the decision to allow a higher ceiling.

Canada, the source of 80 per cent of this country's newsprint imports, has set the price for this paper $6.80 a ton shortly after the Canadian dollar was devaluated lapsed July 1. This higher price reflected the Canadian dollar revaluation.

4½ POUND BLACK BASS HOOKED IN THE BAY

Who said there were no bass in the Bay of Quinte? Don Dalgrymple, 10, of Pinnacle Street in Belleville, angled successfully Thursday there were bass in the bay and big ones. He did not use his fancy bait and tackle but took along a can of worms and near the Filtration Plant hooked a 4 1-2 pound beauty. Today he is the envy of his Public School classmates. Don says "the bass gave him quite a tussle."

Member Springs A Little Ditty On the House

Ottawa, Aug. 23 (CP)—Members of the Commons, who frequently hold an informal singsong on Tuesday, may wait for members to get down to the House chamber from their offices Monday to see if yesterday had a timely addition to their repertoire. It is "Sweet Adeline," M. P. Diefenbaker (PC—Durham).

The song:

Show me the way to go home,
I'm tired and I want to go to bed.
I've listened to debates for days and days.
Oh why sit here for weeks and weeks.
While they only swing the lead.
The Prime Minister has decided to roam
O'er land—and sea—and foam.
So, let's all be of one accord,
Show me the way to go home!

Show me the way to go home,
For the government is almost dead.
So why sit here for weeks and weeks
While they only swing the lead.
The Prime Minister has decided to roam
O'er land—and sea—and foam.
So, now you hear me singing this song,
Show me the way to go home!

Two U. S. Tourists Drowned at Espanola

Espanola, Aug. 23 — (CP) — Searchers today found bodies of two of Bear Lake, southeast of Espanola, Ont., which yesterday claimed the lives of two American tourists who were drowned late yesterday afternoon.

The second search, it is headed by Provincial Constable Bill Cook, and Gene Cowell, of Mt. Brydges, left Espanola. No further information on the tragedy was available here but it is believed the two were father and son.

Bear Lake is in the Long Lake area, a popular tourist centre east of the Espanola — Little Current highway.

come they will use drastic tactics and will "smash night clubs and billiles," he said. "I would suggest that all the members of the club because we are liable to need them there on Sundays at 10 a.m. Union officials said that no particular strategy was planned to meet the threat of reinforced police. They stood by the statement of C. B. Millard, international director of the union, who said previously: "We are ready."

All normal charges such as electricity, gas and water must be paid for by the tenant with Wartime Housing assuming no responsibility for their payment.

Of frame construction and of different design, the houses cost on the average of $4,000 each and at the end of the five-year period the city would have the option of purchasing the houses for $1,000 each. The houses could then be sold by the city.

No Basements in Houses

The houses are built on concrete foundations without basement and have fireproof concrete interior finish, are fully insulated and have hardwood floors. Heating is by circulating hot water. Seven thousand such veterans' houses were constructed by Wartime Housing last year with many of them having been built in Ontario centres.

To the argument set forth by Alderman Chamberlain that the city had been waiting for 15-years but did not give the veteran anything, Alderman Bowerman pointed out the result of a survey which showed that over 90 per cent of veterans had no desire to own their own home. Wartime Housing is ready to assist the veteran with no desire to own his own home, he said.

Start Work in Three Weeks

On question from Mayor Follwell it was stated that Wartime Housing would be prepared to commence construction within three weeks of signing the agreement, but with the present shortage of building materials it was doubted if any of the units could be ready for occupancy before May of 1947.

Alderman McDougall pointed out that the plan of dwelling construction put forth by Wartime Housing amounted to subsidizing of housing which, he declared, was something new in Belleville. Supplying of money to such houses would cost the city in the neighborhood of $1,000 each, while the total cost to the city for a project of 75 houses would be over $100,000. He wanted to know how other municipalities in Ontario felt toward such subsidization.

In answer to the housing representative replied that Wartime Housing had been asked to build more housing units for veterans than they had built for war workers during the war. The contribution of the government toward the scheme was the lines that of the municipality, he said.

Stalled or Materials

Alderman Thompson wanted to know why priorities in building materials could not be given to veterans wishing to build their own homes. "We have 75 veterans in Belleville wanting to build homes but are stalled because of lack of materials," he said. "I think the matter has priority for materials for veterans' homes should cancel out priority held by the individual veterans to permit him to build his own home."

This same question was asked by Hance Clarke, representative of the local rehabilitation committee. He claimed that veterans' housing priorities for building materials they would build their homes individually.

At this point Alderman McDougall was interjected with the statement that at present there were over 300 vacant houses in the city awaiting housing accommodation. This was according to the lists of the local labour registry, Gestare Not Equalled

"The question is whether taxpayers in Belleville are ready to subsidize housing for veterans," stated Mayor Follwell. "In view of the sacrifices which veterans made overseas I would be the least taxpayers of this city could do."

Mayor Follwell pointed to the present plan in Belleville for a housing project building lots for a nominal sum of $1. No other city in Canada has done "as much for future," he said.

Willis Clarke then drew a hand from the audience when he declared the question was not whether houses would be built or whether they would not be built, "it was not get the money then for God's sake let us get them," he pleaded.

Alderman Allin asked if council had made application to have any of the housing units to be erected by Wartime Housing.

Alderman Allin asked if council application could be vetoed should council decide to construct only a number of housing units to be erected by Wartime Housing.

"This city applied to Wartime Housing in 1943, but the applications was not granted following representation by a delegation from this city," he said.

One Mill Raise

John Bridgley, Chamber of Commerce secretary, asked what increase in the city's taxation would be in Belleville if 100 houses were placed on each lot plan suggested by Wartime Housing. "your Follwell replied that would be only a one mill increase on each mill.

"But this is necessity," returned Mr. Badgley. "We bought the Home Bank. How much did that increase the mill rate?"

"Nothing," was the Mayor's reply.

The recommendation for the appointment of a committee to investigate the various housing projects planned in this city put forth by Alderman McDougall with the motion carrying unanimously by council members.

Mutual Life Holds Annual Picnic At Presqu'ile Point

On Wednesday afternoon the Agency Force and families and office staff of the Belleville Branch of the Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada held their annual picnic at Presqu'ile Point.

The afternoon was spent by all persons competing in various games under the direction of Mr. Perry Everett after which dinner was served in the cafe dining room of the Presqu'ile Summer Hotel.

Mr. S. R. Burrows, Branch Manager, welcomed the members and their friends and expressed his gratitude for their co-operation and support during the past year.

Mr. Perry Everett presented the prizes won during the afternoon. Prize winners were: Mrs. P. C. Mitchell, Belleville, Mrs. D. G. Williams, Belleville, Mrs. R. Gamble, Trenton, Mrs. W. N. Hurst, Tweed, Mr. C. E. Thompson, St. Ola, Mr. W. N. Hurst, Tweed, Mr. D. G. Williams, Belleville and Mr. R. Gamble, Trenton.

Mr. F. A. McGuire, Agency Supervisor, commented on the excellent work of the sales staff during the past year, pointing out the outstanding production obtained by a number of the members of the staff and wished them all continued success.

Bridge and dancing were enjoyed by all for the remainder of the evening.

Representative of Wartime Housing Explains Agreement For Building Homes in City

Special Council Meeting Attended by Many Veterans to Hear Plans Outlined; Council Names Committee

Approximately 75 persons, the large majority of them veterans who had seen war, indicated their interest in the local housing situation by attending a special meeting of the council in the Memorial Auditorium on Thursday evening when council members were addressed by a representative of Wartime Housing Ltd., with the view of erecting a number of veterans' houses in Belleville.

Details of the type of house which would be built in the city and the agreement with the municipality were outlined by the speaker who during a question period answered questions submitted by those present who were particularly interested in the housing situation.

Following a committee of Aldermen McDougall, Follwell, Alderman Chamberlain and Bowerman and the city engineer was appointed to investigate the various housing projects and report to the next meeting of city council. Details of the housing planning plan will also be investigated by the committee with the view of its being adopted in the city.

According to the Wartime Housing representative the firm's current program of building what is termed "permanent" dwellings greatly from that which existed during the war years when emergency shelter was needed for the war effort and many of the country's many war material manufacturing centres.

"In the first instance, we have nothing to sell," stated the representative. "All we look at is the construction of these veterans' houses and the financial contributions are made by the government and the municipality in the various cities in the province to offer only where there is a housing problem."

City to Provide Lots

Under the Wartime Housing project for the construction of veterans' houses the city would provide the building lot and supply the services such as sewers, roadway and sidewalk and would accept from the company for a 25-year period $1 Quinte in lieu of taxes.

The housing would build two, three and four bedroom houses costing from $4,000 to $6,000 and with Wartime Housing paying the city as taxes $24 annually in the case of the $4,000 dwelling and $30 yearly for the three and four bedroom houses.

All normal charges such as electricity, gas and water must be paid for by the tenant with Wartime Housing assuming no responsibility for their payment.

Of frame construction and of different design, the houses cost on the average of $4,000 each and at the end of the five-year period the city would have the option of purchasing the houses for $1,000 each. The houses could then be sold by the city.

TRENTON

Police Station And Cell Block Newly Decorated

Trenton—While Trenton's crime record is no worse than any other town or city in Ontario, the lawbreakers who do fall foul of the law may find their new quarters a delightful alternative surrounding.

For the police station there has been a fresh coat of paint applied and now the reporter, some of whose visits to the police cells is regular portion are invited to learn the newly-painted interior of the cell-block.

The cell-block which now boasts of three new "rooms" is equipped with brand new tool-proof doors while the floors, tiled in case the boys discover a sudden yen to obtain their freedom without going through the regular procedure is built of reinforced concrete. The walls that will withstand anything but a mining operation.

The block, police quarters and the police court has been also decorated in creams and browns. In the constables' room is a shower bath, hot water, toilet and washing facilities, all spick and span.

The old-fashioned prisoners' "cage" has been replaced by two new cells built in their place. Toilet facilities available to those in the block but outside the new cell-block.

The inspector of prisons of the province has placed his stamp of approval on the new cells already officials of nearby communities have visited the new quarters and cells with an eye to placing similar police station facilities in their own centres.

Trenton Twelfth Annual Field Day At Trenton Station Success

Trenton — A gala dance with music supplied by Norman Harris and his King Edward Hotel orchestra climaxed the twelfth annual field day held by the Trenton Canadian Air Force Station, Trenton, Friday evening.

Following a match pest of the participants, the program was officially opened by Wing Commander R. H. Cummings officer commanding Captain H. H. C. Rogers, O.B.E.

Track and field events highlighted the afternoon's entertainment. Hundreds of interested spectators viewed the station's leading athletes in action and very keen interest was shown in all competitions. Betty Taylor and Margaret Stewart two W.D. "Wrens" were outstanding performers in the events, placing first and second in all entries. Cpl. Taylor was the outstanding competitor of the meet, emerging with four firsts.

Aerial Show Staged

At 4:30 p.m. a formation of aircraft staged an aerial show over the station. Led by two Hawker Hurricane fighter planes piloted by Mitchell, Mosquito, Beechcraft, Harvard and Anson aircraft flew Pilots dived and rolled over the crowds, providing the best display of aerobatics ever staged in Trenton for some time. Ex-Wing Commander Buck Buchanan stopped off the flying show with a particularly breathtaking display.

The formation of planes commenced at 7 p.m. with an aquatic display featuring Johnny Weissmuller's gigantic fireworks exhibition illuminated the station, bringing further enjoyment to the thousands of people who thronged the park.

Hidden Exley Midway

The midway, under the capable management of Norman H. Banfield, the midway chairman, operated successfully and successfully throughout the afternoon and evening. The screams and shouts of the barkers replaced those of the drill instructors who usually hold forth on the sports field.

Peter the Clown and his trick horse "Charlie Again," Li Tchan Yuen, who put on a thrilling display of magic and the Radium Boys, the outstanding dweller skating team in North America were only a few of the attractions which drew crowds especially. Puppy Land and a Punch and Judy Show were spotted on the midway throughout while the Casino Rollies, billed as good clean fun in the time honoured manner of businessmen were equally popular with others. Although there was not a great deal of evidence which indicated the presence of thick farmers or bush leaguers there was no shortage of visitors at this show.

Marshal Tito Learned Methods Of Communism in Russia

By The Canadian Press

Premier Marshal Tito, undisputed head of the Yugoslav government, emerged during the war from Serbian obscurity as the underground Communist agitator "with a price on his head."

Born of a peasant stock 54 years ago in the tiny Croatian village of Kumurvec, he was proclaimed last November as head of the National Liberation government in recognition for his leadership of Partisan forces.

When he formed his new government under the republic, replacing the kingdom of Serbia, he held a place in the presidium, became premier and minister of National Defence and retained his rank of commander-in-chief of the army.

Tito was born Josip Broz. He assumed the name Tito from a pseudonym signed to his articles in the illegal Communist press to conceal his identity from King Alexander's Communist-hating government. He learned his methods in Russia.

The country under his leadership has fared well with United States Treasury funds. Since the Germans retired Yugoslavia has received $430,300,000 United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration funds of which 73 per cent or $310,000,000 came from the United States directly. Yugoslavia also received $28,900,000 in the land-lease program and still owes the United States upwards of $60,000,000 in debts contracted after the First Great War.

Yugoslavs call him "Comrade Tito". He has conferred many times at the Kremlin. His last reported visit there was just before the recent trial and subsequent execution of his leftist rival, Gen. Draja Mihailovic, leader of the Chetniks, first underground force to gain attention for action against the Axis.

Tito was 23 when the First Great War was erupted and was conscripted into the Austro-Hungarian army, for Yugoslavia then was part of that Empire. He deserted to the Russian army in Galicia in 1915 and was caught in the revolutionary fervor following the Russian army and the country behind it.

After the Communists took control, he returned to Yugoslavia as a radical agitator. In 1920 he was sentenced to six years in prison and when he left prison in 1934, he was a man marked and watched by the police. By the time the Second Great War broke, he was secretary-general of the Yugoslav Communist Party.

During the Spanish civil war, he was an important cog in smuggling men into Spain to fight against Franco.

Tito was living in Zagreb when the Germans invaded Yugoslavia in 1941. The first action of his Partisans, however, came when the Germans attacked Russia.

The Partisans were not only a guerilla force, but a political movement with political commissars and instructors in every unit. Tito's emissaries ceaselessly flooded the country with his manifestos. He claims to have fought off seven campaigns to crush him.

Tito lives in a white palace now called "Red Brow". His home and office are guarded heavily. The palace was built for Prince Paul, regent before the war.

Senate Juggles Foreign Exchange Control Bill

Second Reading Given Bill But Only After Sharp Debate In Upper Chamber

Ottawa, Aug. 23 (CP) — The government's bill to extend the Foreign-Exchange Control Board into peacetime was on its way back to the Senate's Banking Committee for a second time today after a stormy passage through second reading in the Upper Chamber.

A fusion of Progressive Conservatives and recalcitrant Liberals came close to giving it a hoist into the next parliamentary session last night but their support of an amendment to that effect moved by Senator Arthur Roebuck (L-Ontario), went down on the vote of 22 to 21.

In the wake of that defeat, second reading was given on the understanding that the committee would work changes in the provisions to bring in a time limit for its existence and to eliminate certain petty and other restrictions.

In an unprecedented move, the "substance" of the bill had already been sent to the Banking Committee for study to enable the Senators to determine just what it meant and whether they wanted to give it second reading or not. It was put back yesterday after it had been defended by government officials as an essential protection for Canadian currency during the years ahead.

The Senate Committee yesterday wrung from the government one new concession which could develop into

Supported by Liberals

The group opposed the second reading and was supported by Liberal Senators Roebuck, Rupert Davies and Joseph Lacasse of Ontario, G. G. McGeer of British Columbia, Neil McLean and F. W. Piris of New Brunswick, William Ruthven of Quebec, T. C. Crerar of Manitoba, W. J. Harmer of Alberta.

Senator J. J. Bench (L-Ontario) possibly echoed the sentiments of those who favored second reading when he said that he would prefer to have the Board set up for a limited time under legislation than for an indefinite period by order-in-council, as it now is constituted. But he would insist not only on the time limit but on other concessions in committee and would vote against it if they were not granted.

Senator Davies said he did not like to see the extension of controls as severe as those imposed by the foreign exchange order. He also did not like to see them become an act of parliament.

Not Convinced of Merits

The proponents of the legislation had not convinced him of the merit of the bill which, if placed on the statutes, would provide looser powers than if it were continued by temporary order-in-council.

He had recently attended an Empire Press Conference in London and there had seen a taste of what controls could develop into.

Colonial newspapermen had told him that newsprint controls had been lifted at various times to suit officers of government who wanted full reports on statements carried in the press.

He said he was of the opinion that most newspapermen would have not minded price increases if they could have been free of controls.

In Britain he had heard of cases where heavy penalties were imposed for what appeared to be trivial breaches of controls. The people there seemed to be getting used to control by bureaucrats.

Busy Day for Senate

Senator McGeer said the bill would "permit legislation for government by the regulation of a board which is infinitely worse than being governed by a government by order-in-council.

It had been a busy day for the Senate. Before dealing with the control measure the banking committee voted 16-8 in favor of a principle granting senators tax exemption on $2,000 of their $6,000 annual indemnities and placing them on the same footing in this respect with members of the House of Commons.

Senator Haig, who introduced the principle, described as discriminatory last year's parliamentary action which gave members of the Commons an expense allowance of $2,000 tax free and provided no exemption for the Senate's $2,000-increase.

The Senate also gave final reading to a bill providing for construction of a C.N.R. spur line in northern Quebec.

Full Scale War Seems Likely In Manchuria

By GLENN BABB
(Associated Press Foreign News Analyst, Written for Canadian Press)

A resumption of full scale warfare appears imminent in Manchuria, that vast, rich prize of the Orient. The Chinese Communists have driven off the country and appear determined, in the face of international fears that the hold the southern tip, show equal determination to regain this rich territory, withheld from them by a succession of invaders for the last 15 years.

Manchuria is the prize most worth fighting for in Eastern Asia, despite the dismantling by the Russians of the best part of the great military industrial plant built up there by the Japanese.

Few parts of the world have seen more of war and its resultant misery than the civilian population than Manchuria since the beginning of the century. There the Russians fought the Japanese, Japanese fought Chinese, Chinese fought one another in a series of civil wars of which that now in progress promises to be the bitterest. Most years of misery of the patient peasants who make up nearly all its 38,000,000 population are in prospect.

As proof of their determination to remain, the Communists have moved their entire power set capital in Yenan the establishment of their own government of Manchuria—"The Provisional Supreme Administration for Democratic Manchuria", made up of 86 elected delegates from all sections and dedicated to the founding "a peaceful, prosperous Manchuria by uniting all."

Every consideration dictates that the Chinese Communists should fight to the last to hold Manchuria and strive to make it the foundation of a China Communist state. There, with Communist Russia at their backs, they might have some chance to found a state of their own, which, however would have little chance of remaining outside the Soviet orbit.

Relations between the Chinese Communists and Moscow remain pretty much a mystery to the outside world. But if the Communists hold on in Manchuria it is inevitable that a vast community of interest should be established.

Although Moscow in the year-old Russian-Chinese treaty promised to give aid to China only through the National Government —apparently discovering the Communists after the date of that agreement make it impossible for

Cost of Oranges, Coal in U. S. Up; Meat Price Down

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

Washington, Aug. 23. (AP)— The cost of coal and oranges in the United States is going up, but the cost of meat prices will go down effect September 9.

Nanticoke Lake when retail meat ceilings are to apply again, office of Price Administration Chief Paul Porter also pledged an all-out drive against black markets.

As this campaign developed, O.P.A. announced a price boost of 30 cents a ton for hard coal and for coke, and an increase of 18 cents a ton for soft coal. On oranges, maximum prices in retail stores will climb about a half cent a pound.

But even while the parade of price increases continued, O.P.A. went ahead with an announcement it rarely handles any more—a price cut.

Mr. Porter reaffirmed at a press conference that the new meat ceilings, which the Price Decontrol Board ordered restored, will be in effect June 30 figures. In ordering them back, the Board said meat prices had climbed 20 to 80 per cent after controls lapsed June 30.

Mr. Porter announced a price increase of seven cents a pounds for flour, effective Friday, to offset higher parity prices for wheat, which remains ceiling-free along with all other major farm products.

Predicting that "we will be in trouble on the dairy situation this fall," Mr. Porter said O.P.A. will recommend restoration of ceilings of prices on such items as milk and butter climb further.

Canadian 'Y' Winds Up Its Work Overseas

London, Aug. 23. (CP Cable)— The Canadian Young Men's Christian Association overseas has completed its work and its last staff should be repatriated and remaining goods disposed of by the end of August, it was reported today in the final monthly report of Senior Officer W. J. G. Macdiarmid.

The report said that since December, 1939 ,191 Y.M.C.A. supervisors and 40 Canadian hostesses have served overseas. At the peak of operations more than 1,-700 persons were employed, aided by more than 700 women volunteers.

Drew Will Seek Amendment To Liquor Control Act

Toronto, Aug. 23. (CP)—Premier Drew of Ontario announced Thursday that, because he learned that hotels contributed prizes, he his asked a committee in Windsor to cancel all arrangements for a picnic Saturday which he and other members of the Ontario Government planned to attend. He also had insisted that the committee return the prizes and other contributions to the hotels.

"Having regard to the clearly stated policy of this government, I did not think it was possible that such a situation would arise but so that there may be no possibility of a repetition at any time, the government will introduce amendments to the Liquor Licence Act and the Liquor Control Act prohibiting contributions to any political organization or for political purposes of any kind from distilleries, breweries, wineries, hotels, or any other manufacturer or distributor of alcoholic beverages," the Premier said.

An Enduring Institution

Soon across the rich and pleasant land of Ontario will be the familiar scene of late summer and autumn fairs, annual fall fairs which give the coming season a peculiar appeal of countryside to city and town dwellers. With the last week of August just ahead a number of early fairs in the province are only a few days away and beginning next week. With the following week a great number of exhibitions will be held and from that time forward there will be a steadily progression of these time-honored autumn events which are a symbol of the life of the people of this Province, a life that is marked by intense and tireless industry and rich in the gifts of nature shown in the fruits of the orchard and the products of the fields, a life of progress in the development of the country to expand its production of the grains and roots and livestock and dairy products. All of this attractive and accomplishment the fairs are the show window of the vast rural life of this wide province. To city dwellers is given at the fair a ringside seat at the pageant of farm achievements and a peep into the mysteries of the great art of agriculture, which has always been and always will be the primal occupation of man. The fair is also a record of industrial and mercantile progress of city and province.

The fall fair is a review of the year's work and nothing finer in review can be found. Its appeal is wide, to the agriculturist, there is the pride in achievement, the zest in competition, and the hope of still greater progress. To the urban resident it brings understanding of and interest in the life of the country, which has a distinct value in all its own, which appeals to so many city dwellers. Within the grounds of a fair park the charms and mysteries of rural life are in full command.

Fall fair season is the great parade or inspection time of agriculture. The fair comes with the height of the season when the year reaches that stage of nature that man takes a little rest to survey last year's work in the fields. It is the season of harvest and the garnering of the grain gathered in the late autumn and winter period. It is the time when looking over what has been done by the agricultural, plans for the feed mangold, men and women feel the glow of pride and satisfaction in having so well co-operated with nature.

Fall fairs are like no other institution, they come with the growth of agriculture and at the same time they have endured appeal. In Belleville for instance how far fairs go back is not clear, but there is evidence that for at least a century and more fairs around about have been held. In 1849 the county fair at Belleville was a full grown adult agricultural and industrial exhibition and a reporter of that time tells years ago, parts of the streets of Belleville at thronged with the arrival of livestock, on their way to the fair grounds, "team after team conveying articles of manufacture" and "the number of articles and quantity of stock exhibited exceeded those of preceding years." Deep rooted this institution is here and in every other part of the country. It has survived change of conditions, expansion and modernization, it has survived wars and depressions, it thrives. It still remains an institution on a sound and enduring foundation.

Fairs this year should be successful for nature has been kindly disposed and has brought forth and is bringing forth good harvests for which the need has been felt across the world.

Foch Memorial

The French monument to Marshal Foch, Allied commander-in the first World War is on its way back to Compiegne, France. So little did its removal and transportation to Berlin in Paris in 1940 benefit the Hun. German workers are now moving the stones of the monument in anticipation of their shipment to France. They were discovered in Berlin at the late war's end and steps were at once begun to return the memorial to its original site.

So came to naught the sinister plans and designs of the German would-be conquerors of the world. The only memorial that remains to Hitler is the desolation in the ruins of Germany which he brought to the abyss by his crimes of brutalities and aggression. His henchmen did his behest while he had power, they stole monuments and they looted art treasures, many of them for the Nazi leaders' own personal benefits and pocket. But they could not hide their priceless works of art stolen from Italy, France, Poland, and other European countries have been recovered. No salt cave was hidden enough to secrete them.

At the same time the Germans were storing up wrath for themselves. Clever as they might think they were, they left records of their crimes which have stood the allied test proved in their search for proofs of the Nazis' iniquities and crimes. Like the thieves they were, they could not steal everything, and they could not hide all they stole so great was the wealth overrun Europe. Like criminals they left their finger prints which have guided the Allies to their hiding places and to the proof of their crimes. Death, dust and ashes mark the end of the course of wrongdoing of Nazi Germany.

France will have her great war memorial of Marshal Foch again, to prove that the Hun was twice defeated decisively.

Where Are They?

Where have they gone? One never sees them any more. Apparently the old-fashioned parlor organ has gone to join a lot of other things that stand for an out-moded way of living. A generation ago the parlor organ was a prized piece of furniture and the family was ever complete until the organ was acquired, often with considerable sacrifice and hard work. It brought happiness into the home and after a certain period of practice for which nothing else had just the same standing. On a cold winter's night or on a Sunday afternoon or evening, mother or sister would sit at the organ and play all the old favorites, "Sweet Genevieve," "Seeing Nellie Home," "Nearer My God to The," "Rock of Ages," "Silver Threads Among the Gold," and so on and on. It may not have been the great music but it was the music of today, but the family sang the old folk songs, beloved Christmas carols, the tender hymns, and here was Home Sweet Home and everything and everyone of them safe and secure. The radio typically represents modern living, the old parlor organ something fine that we have lost.

Crime And Punishment

Questioning both the wisdom of Solomon and ancient Hebraic law, Britain is simultaneously considering abolition of capital punishment for killers and corporal punishment for schoolboys.

Suspension of the hangman's functions is under study as a "five year plan." Convinced by statistics that executions do not discharge killing, the government reportedly plans to try out milder methods for that period, reverting to the noose if the experiment fails.

The proposal to end caning has provoked lively reparties in Commons. Considered in conjunction, the moves suggest that the British Lion is mellowing with the years.

Russia And Dardanelles

Stripped to the bone, Russia's note to Turkey proposing to scrap the twenty-year Montreux convention in favor of a new treaty drawn by the Black Sea Powers alone is a blunt demand for Russian control of the Dardanelles. Ever since the expiration of the Russo-Turkish pact of friendship last year the Soviet Government has been waging a war of nerves on Turkey to prepare the way for such a demand.

ABOUT RAIMENT

I never was one for the fancy tie,
The cane and the pearl gray spats.
I never was one to attract the eye
By wearing distinctive hats.
I once wore a screaming suit of plaid,
Till a stranger said to me:
"Could you name me a horse in a race, my lad,
That a winner is sure to be?"

But once have I walked in a high silk hat
But "Never again!" I said,
"Will I go through the town with a lid like that
On top of my foolish head,"
For, a vulgar fellow I chanced to meet
With a horrible gift of gab,
Said this to me on a public street:
"Hey, where did you leave your cab?"

My hats are plain, and my ties are plain,
And plain are the suits I wear.
I've solemnly vowed that never again
At me will a stranger stare.
For once, in a beautiful suit of white—
The best of the tailor's art—
I was asked by a fellow most impolite:
"Hey, where is your ice cream cart?"

Washington Spotlight

By CLYDE BLACKBURN

Washington, Aug. 23. (CP)—There's nothing remarkable about an individual being short of money but when the United States mint is in that predicament it's serious.

That's how it is at the moment with the mint in Philadelphia and Denver working 24 hours a day in three shifts to mint coins just after the First Great War.

Fit to be lucky July holiday of Price Control regulations that period between the death of Mr. Truman and the administration on June 30 and its arrival by a reduction measure 20 days later, mint official say.

The mint is "broke" in the sense of money; than they ever did but they are "making" less in the sense of money could be earning if things were normal.

In addition to supplying the domestic needs in half dollars, quarters, dimes, nickles and copper coins the mints make coins for a number of other countries, including Bolivia, Ecuador and Saudi Arabia

Now those countries have to make do with the coins they have or take their business elsewhere until the United States mints satisfy home needs

The mint has coins of all our troubles was that 20 day vacation O.P.A. took" and a mint official. "Once the lid was off all our estimates of the nation's money needs for the year went out the window and now we are working at top speed as never before.

Recently the mint had to get 224,000,000 ounces of silver in a hurry to make coins. Normally the daily output is 80 tons of coins and still there's a shortage.

The Federal Government will put up about $50 million of new dollars provided by State and local governments up to a total of $1,125,000,000 for a hospital survey and construction program which will take nearly 10 years to complete. It sounds big but the Public Health Service Public Service estimates it will meet only about one-third of the current deficiency. The country needs 714,000 new beds, replacement of 1,200,000 existing beds and 4,500 new Public Health centres and clinics. The service estimates that as a minimum requirement. That would cost $4,000,000,000.

Increased Supply on Hand

New York, Aug. 23. (AP) Daily newspapers reporting to the American Newspaper Publishers Association had 37 days' supply over the amount for the end of June.

At the end of July, 1945, these newspapers had 54 days' supply on hand.

KID UNDER NEWSPAPER

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 23 (AP)—A child's life while he hide himself from his playmates under an old newspaper led to the death here of two-year-old Richard C. Bell.

The driver of an automobile swerved to avoid hitting a child riding a scooter and ran over a newspaper under three feet from the curb. Under the newspaper was Richard.

PRIZES FOR HANDICRAFT

Toronto, Aug. 23. (CP)—Hon. Arthur Welsh, Ontario Travel and Publicity Minister, announced that $1,000 in prizes will be awarded to the winners of handicraft competitions at the 81 Ontario Fall Fairs. The purpose of the award is to stimulate the development of native handicrafts as an additional source of revenue for residents of tourist areas.

Social Service Cost 3 Millions In Year to S.A.

Actual outlay of social service operations in the Canadian Penitentiary for the fiscal period of 1945 came to nearly $3,000,000 last year according to the final annual report just tabled. Of this costs exceed income by nearly $1,-000,000 and this was met by funds subscribed during the 1944 National Service campaign, according to Colonel Joseph Ryndall head of The Salvation Army Finance Department.

Actual figures given in the report of the penitentiary within the category of social service work total $3,386,730.92. The net re-sults from the 1944 campaign applied to meet the gap between total costs and total income from operations were $964,200.29, said Col. Ryndall.

Largest individual item in the outlay of funds received from the public, $1,500,000 was expended as grants-in-aid toward maintenance of more than 300 centres for investigation, treatment of problem cases, visitation of the sick and in the case of maternity home section work; all this being done by Salvation Army field officers.

Second largest amount, $370,-181.38 went to meet deficits on social and welfare work of 24 social institutions including children's homes, emergency and transient hostels, maternity hospitals, men's shelters and food depots, hostels for unemployed homes for aged men and women, relief of distress, provision of convalescent gate money, support of the League of Mercy which carries on hospital visitation and other welfare activities.

Third largest amount, $136,-682.33 went for rehabilitation work which covered assistance to individuals and families, men and women, including temporary help with rent, clothing, meals, travelling etc.

The sum of $113,000 was spent on conducted tours, training of Salvation Army officer candidates and other activities.

The balance, $20,589.21 was allocated to the support of Canadian officers overseas and Red Cross.

In an effort to raise $3,000,000 for maintenance and expansion of facilities next year, The Salvation Army has announced it will be inaugurated across Canada on Sunday, September 15. Belleville's share of this amount is $5,000.

Repair Work In West France 'Magnificent'

London, Aug. 23. (CP Cable) Repair work in devastated areas of the West France is "magnificent" nificent effort and ingenious improvisation during the present shortage of all raw materials," a report by the western field party of a non-conformist commission of inquiry into devastated areas said today. The party has visited several towns in various parts of Europe to gather material for evidence to the United Nations Assembly.

Towns visited included Caen, scene of the fighting in 1944 in which Canadians had a large part. "Many houses still standing were almost completed and 400 permanent, attractive houses erected, but that 1,500 more were needed.

At Caen the party saw a state-financed experiment in which five factory laborers built and apartments were, and a model square from a new material made from cement rubble and stones. The new process was described as three times faster.

Caldwell Says C.C.F. Turned Down Liquor Funds

Ottawa, Aug. 23 — (CP) — M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said last night in the Commons that the party turned down offers of party fund contribution from liquor interests in Saskatchewan.

A. M. Nicholson (CCF — Macleod) was discussing liquor matters and said his party was not ashamed to admit it had received contributions from labor unions, but the Steel Company of Canada, "which is engaged in the present steel strike, had never contributed a cent to C.C.F. funds." Hilton, president of company had indicated that in the past the company had made contributions to political funds.

"I challenge the brewers in Saskatchewan!" interjected James Sinclair (L — Vancouver North).

"We have never accepted a cent from any liquor industry," interjected Mr. Coldwell. "In fact we turned down offers in Saskatchewan."

Mr. Sinclair said the C. C. F. government supported the brewers in Saskatchewan on receiving contributions.

"You don't know what you are talking about," said Mr. Coldwell.

At Toronto yesterday, Premier Hepburn of Ontario announced he had ordered cancelled a political picnic at Whitby, Ont., because it featured hotels had contributed prizes. He asked that the prizes be returned and said it was most improper that hotels or other distributors of alcoholic beverages should be permitted to assist in the holding of an event of this kind under political auspices at any time."

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

DON'T DABBLE IN VITAMIN B

In his book "Vitamins and Other Dietary Essentials", London, '23, W. R. Aykroyd, M.D., says:

"The writer has sometimes given Newfoundland fishermen victims of 'night-blindness' a little tablespoonful of cod-liver oil' (It oil is rich in vitamin A as well as in vitamin D) "and been gratified to find that they were able to see on the subsequent night. Years ago I had fears, few other remedies in medicine so rapid and reliable."

I (Brady) have never seen nor heard a doctor say he had seen any such striking or immediate effect from vitamin treatment, although I have more faith in the value of vitamin B complex as a heart tonic than I have in digitalis.

After all, when you have a fair understanding of the part this or that vitamin plays in the economy, metabolism, nutrition, nutritional efficiency, growth, immunity and inadequacy, it is a matter of wit, you do not expect any such dramatic results as "Pep" or a few day's use of any vitamin.

It is my belief that a great deal of the disappointment experienced in the use of vitamins is the current or correct deficiency conditions (a) to small dosage in quantities and (b) too short period of administration.

Many people are misinformed or Wiseacre laymen acquire the notion that a vitamin is a tonic or that synthetic vitamin...gives immediate "pep" uplift in strength or relief of any kind is perhaps natural, in view of the fact that vitamin B1 is a specific for certain deficiency by charlatans. But it is not in any way surprising that how physicians can adopt any such irrational principle of practice.

In a report of a study of nutritional deficiency in diabetes (Rep. Med. and Surg., Nov. '45), Blaikley and Schreiner have shown beyond reasonable doubt that vitamin B has a most important place in the treatment of diabetes. These scientific investigators have studied the variable and inconclusive results obtained in vitamin B complex (a) to insufficient quantities and (b) over too short a period.

If you are one of the thirty million persons in the country who are carriers of the diabetic tendency or tendency to develop diabetes or to pass the tendency on to your children, (statistics 20 per cent of entire population are carriers) it will do you no harm at all, at all, to send the booklet "Training for Diabetes" and enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope—but no stipling if you please.

When taking any vitamin as all for any purpose it is advisable to have it with food. Have your say and keep on taking it long enough to see whether it will do any good. That means, I should say, not less than three months, and generally at least three months. Short of that you haven't given it a fair trial.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Dear Dr. Lankester:

Please do not use the words d—n and h—l—they are very unbecoming to a man of your usefulness and standing.

(W. D. H.)

Please don't apologize for those expressions of mine. I—and how. What is so forceful as an expletive, like the above, when occasion does not come forth with an explosive vent at the instant? I'll be d—d if I'll do it again, at least for a long may you wave.

(H. E. S.)

As a teacher of English I submit that the use of "damn" lacks the standard of liveliness, but confines not children—and not teachers.

(H. C. B.)

Answer—As for the first two letters of the alphabet—and I do apologize for having used them—I am sure I have had only the teacher of English—Webster says it is out of fashion—but I have children in many parts of the South and to rear cattle any where.

Like a Red Flannel Belly Band

Struggle and strain as we get a hive of honey bees and let them build their own nest. This has been found to cure scirrhitis. The druggie said he'd never heard of it sold as a serum injection, but that the real test of value is unsurpassed.

(Mrs. W. C. H.)

Answer—And I'll be damned is no more fanciful than the carrying of a horse chestnut in pocket or a red flannel belly band or going away from a cherry tree, or tying yes, to a fire cherry tree, wherever it may be.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What is the principle of the thermos bottle?

The thermos bottle or "vacuum flask" consists essentially of a glass container with double walls from which all air has been removed. Heat escapes from or enters into ordinary bodies chiefly by means of conductivity and radiation; part of it is carried away by the air by the movements of the molecules.

Across the space between the walls of the vessel, especially when the walls are silvered, as in the thermos bottle, only radiation and conductivity is greatly reduced. In fact an approximate vacuum is produced in the flask. The substance virtually a non-conductor of heat.

The only place where the inside and outside walls touch is the thermos flask join and provide a path for the communication of heat from one to the other is the neck, which is therefore made as small as practical.

Highly reflecting surfaces are poor radiators of heat. That is why the inside of the thermos bottle are silvered.

Between the bottle and the person the vacuum combined retard the inflow and outflow of heat. The result is that the contents of the vessel remain either cold or hot for a considerable period irrespective of the temperature of the surrounding atmosphere.

The principle of the thermos bottle was discovered about 1892 by Sir James Dewar (pronounced "DEW-ar"), British chemist and physicist, who employed double vacuum-jacketed vessels for storing liquefied gases at low temperatures.

These flasks, known at first as "Dewar bulbs," proved to be invaluable for preserving liquefied gases by preventing the influx of external heat.

"Thermos" is merely the Greek adjective for "hot" and "Thermos bottle" originated as a trademark for a vacuum-jacketed vessel of this type.

COMMITTEE FAVORS $2,000 EXEMPTION FOR SENATOR

Ottawa, Aug. 23. (CP)—The Senate Banking Committee voted today in favor of a principle granting Senators tax exemption on the first $2,000 of their sessional indemnities and placing them on the same footing in this respect with members of the House of Commons.

Then they carried on division —without a recorded vote—an amendment to the Income War Tax Act which would put the principle into effect.

to suggest that it is a cure-all."

Makes Prediction

At another point he said:

"My advice to the steelworkers, to the electrical workers, to the rubber workers and to all other trade unions in their own selfish interest if you want to put it on that level, and my advice to the employers, and you can put that on the same level in the interests of our way of life, is that they avail themselves of the machinery set up by the government for the adjudication of labor disputes in this country."

The C.C.F. had tried to block adoption of the report earlier in the day with two amendments, both proposed by Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre). Both were defeated.

Calls for Revision

Mr. Knowles first proposed an amendment which amounted to non-concurrence in the report and, placing responsibility for present strikes on the government, called for a revision in labor policy. When that was rejected by the Speaker as out of order Mr. Knowles was promptly on his feet with an alternative. It was that the report be sent back to the committee with instructions that it recommends specific changes in the government's labor policy.

When speaker Gaspard Fauteux declared that one out of order Mr. Knowles challenged his ruling and the C.C.F. members called for a vote. The resultant vote was raised 116-69 with members of the C.C.F. and Social Credit parties and a section of the Progressive Conservatives voting against the ruling.

Once the amendments were disposed of the debate continued. Alistair Stewart (CCF—Winnipeg North) said if the union was broken in the Hamilton steel strike there would be unprecedented labor strife in Canada. Unions were threatened by the proposal of the committee to place strike votes in the hands of the government.

Claims Clandestine Lead

Mr. Stewart said Labor Minister Mitchell had lost the confidence of Canadian workers and he could perform "a signal service" by resigning.

Karl Homuth (PC—Waterloo South) said if the committee's report were implemented it would go far towards curing current industrial ills. The unrest was due not to the labor minister but to the policies of the government.

He made a vigorous attack on Communists in the labor government saying they went into town, organized a union, called a strike with no hope of winning and then disappeared.

"There never was a more perfect plan to communize Canada than there is at work today," he said.

A. M. Nicholson (CCF—Mackenzie) attacked the Liberals for relations with Communists in the Grey North by-election. He read the House an advertisement marked as paid for the Liberal party, which pledged the support of Communist labor leaders.

"HE WOULDN'T BELIEVE ME!"

"You mean it's pleasant to taste too?" he asked.

"Yes sir," I enthused. "Abbey's is a gentle laxative . . . and it helps chase those sluggish poisons out of the system — but it isn't bitter . . . no sir, it's easy to take . . . leaves your mouth feeling refreshed . . . and, that means a lot!"

How true, how true! ABBEY'S EFFERVESCENT SALT is known as an alkalizer with a pleasant flavour! Try it, just a teaspoonful or two in a glass of water — that's all! Abbey's pours freely, effervesces quickly, completely!

CANADA UNLIMITED — The Formative Years

The Prospector—after a painting by R. York Wilson, O.S.A.

Out of the Lonely North

UNTIL THE THIRTIES, the barren bleakness of the Arctic North was Canada's unknown. Suddenly it leaped into the news. Out of the lonely North there came word of discovery. The searching picks of the prospector had chipped Pitchblende from the rugged face of the rock. A new major source of material for Radium, for U-235, for Plutonium, had been found.

Because of this discovery, the beneficent ministrations of radium have been made available to increased thousands of suffering people at such a price that its curative powers could be used for rich and poor alike. Then, for Canada, possessing quantities of Uranium, is assured of a leading position in the development of all the benefits of this new power which are indicated but as yet unproved.

Today the pitchblende deposits at Great Bear Lake belong to the Canadian Government in trust for the Canadian people. Wisely used, this great new asset can bring us measurably closer to that future greatness and security we call Canada Unlimited.

And just as the Victory Bonds we bought during the war helped, amongst other things, to develop atomic energy for war purposes, the Bonds we hold will provide for the utilization of the fruits of Canadian discovery in a better, finer, world.

WEDDINGS

CASSIDY—ELLIS

A quiet wedding took place in St. Mark's Anglican Church, Toronto, August 10, when Grace Elizabeth Ellis, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Ellis, Heward Avenue, became the bride of Earl Kenneth Cassidy, of Oshawa, son of Mrs. H. Blair, of Napanee.

The bride wore a turquoise suit with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Mrs. John C. Smith of Windsor, was bridesmaid and wore a navy suit with white accessories and a corsage of white gladioli.

Mr. John C. Smith, of Windsor, was best man.

ROBERTO—KELLER

A lovely Summer wedding was performed at St. Anne's Church in Niagara Falls at 3.30 p.m., August 17, when Luella Daisy Keller, second eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Keller, of Crookston, Ont., became the bride of Louis Frank Roberto, of Niagara Falls, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Roberto. The church was decorated with beautiful flowers.

Given in marriage by her father, Presentation, the bride wore a lovely picture in a floor-length gown of white brocaded marquisette, with a sweetheart neckline, and finger tip sleeves. She wore a long trailing veil with a pearl crown and carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses with long white streamers, tied with lily-of-the-valley. Her only ornament was a gold necklace.

Mrs. Carol Bivlatto, cousin of the groom, was matron-of-honour. She wore a floor-length gown in pink taffeta and a flowered headdress, and carried a bouquet of pink gladioli and pink roses. Miss Helen Mackinnon was bridesmaid, wearing a floor-length gown of white silk faney and carrying a bouquet of pink gladioli and pink roses.

Mr. Christopher Bivlatto was the best man. Mr. Adam Camilo was usher.

After the ceremony a buffet luncheon was held at the St. Anne's hall, and was served to about fifty guests. The bride's mother, wore a gold silk jersey dress with white accessories, and a corsage of gold and mauve gladioli. The groom's mother wore a navy blue dress, with black accessories, and a corsage of red gladioli.

Following the reception the bride and groom left on a trip to Toronto and Detroit. For travelling the bride wore a brown tailored suit with white accessories and a corsage of mauve and white roses.

The bride's bouquet was given to Miss Mary Ann Hunt. Fred Keller of Crookston on his 83rd birthday.

McEWEN—ISTEAD

Trenton. (Special.)—St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Trenton, was beautifully decorated with gladioli, with guest pews marked by bows of white satin ribbon and gladioli, was the scene of a pretty midsummer wedding on August 6, at 3.30 p.m., when Naida Marie, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Istead, became the bride of Ray McEwen, son of Mrs. Etta McEwen. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. C. MacLean and wedding music was played by Mrs. G. V. Wilkins.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Lewis Istead, the bride was lovely in a gown of white satin and lace, fashioned with a round neckline of lace outlined with satin bows, long sleeves with pointed tips, fitted bodice of satin and long full skirt of lace. Orange blossoms held her embroidered French net, fingertip veil. A cascade of American Beauty roses and bouvardia was carried.

Miss Nora Alexander, who acted as bridesmaid, looked charming in a floor-length gown of coral pink taffeta with matching headdress and shoulder-length veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses. Sheila Bellamy, niece of the groom, was flower girl and looked sweet in a floor-length gown of pink flowered taffeta, with a halo of flowers and carried a nosegay of Summer flowers.

Mr. Leslie McEwen was groomsman, and Messrs. Claude Hickerson and Sandor Graham, Trenton, were ushers.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the groom's sister, Mrs. Walter Ramsay, where the groom's mother, wearing black crepe with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses, received the guests. The bride's mother was unable to be present. Later the young couple left on a wedding trip to Toronto and points in Western Ontario. The bride travelled in a navy rose shantung suit with white accessories and a corsage of white gladioli. On their return they will reside in Cookstville.

The bride's gift to the bride was a wrist watch. The bridesmaid received a gold bracelet, the flower girl, a silver bracelet, and the groomsman, a cigarette lighter.

Christian Church Needs Ministers Young People Told

In a direct appeal to the Young People of the National Council session in Toronto, Rev. Gerald B. Switzer, of Vancouver, pointed out to them that the Christian church needs salesmen, both at home and overseas, "salesmen" with conviction and professional leadership.

"It is a tragedy to get behind the most revolutionary news, the most exciting news in the world, straighten out his living, it is a chance to put one's full talents on the line, into something enduring, to have the only view of life that's worthwhile," said Mr. Switzer.

"It is the quality of character in individual lives and the will to work together that makes a strong society. A man has a loyalty that is bigger than his loyalty to his club or union, a loyalty big enough to put all races before his race and all classes before his class, to realize a world-wide fraternity; the sacred worth of human personality and every individual's supreme worth. This is a world-wide responsibility, and the Christian ministry provides the means to set up a revolutionary ferment."

Presidential Summary Given

Following the series of talks which Rev. Mr. Switzer has been giving each morning on the Council's topic "Canadians United in Christ" Mr. Switzer gave a practical summary of what young people can do.

"It is a sad thing", he stated, "that the undertakings of our national life are loosening because of lack of ministers. There are hundreds of miles in Western Canada where there is no spiritual leader in the field. What they do when someone has the temerity to die, I don't know," he remarked the speaker.

"When a church gets so respectable that it settles down to cliche, it cannot last, and the United Church young people are going to see that doesn't happen."

In the afternoon the Young People enjoyed a walking tour visiting places of interest in and around Belleville.

The first sound movie ever to be made in any Canadian Church in its own laboratories was shown at the meeting on Thursday night. It was entitled "Western Hands Are Busy", and told the story of Dr. A. E. Archer and the hospital at Lamonte, Alberta.

Forty years ago Dr. Archer settled in the heart of this great non-Anglo - Saxon community, and has been there ever since. The film was the story of how the community built a seventy-five bed hospital for him, its influence, and the general life of the area.

TRENTON

Preliminary Work On New Hospital Has Been Started

Work preliminary to the actual construction of the new Trenton Memorial Hospital has been undertaken during the past week, with the result that the foundation and perhaps part of the steel work may be completed before the snow flies.

The foundation for the building which is quite different in shape from that originally planned, has been staked out and gives one not only admission of the size of the building but what it will look like when actually completed.

The building will be of a horse shoe shape, according to revised plans prepared by Chester Wood, architect who was here a few days ago conferring with the directors. The basement plan is sufficiently complete to allow a start to be made on the excavation, and the directors are hopeful of getting this work under way very shortly.

Three Storey Structure

The plans call for a modern, 3 storey structure which will embrace all the latest details in construction and convenience. The hospital site is a most ideal one, and has won the high commendation of many who have visited it, including Miss Russell F. Kelley, Ontario's Minister of Health. Only a few days ago a visitor from Australia stated that there is a smaller hospital, recently built in that country, than one just like it.

The plans although greatly altered, still call for fifty beds, and there are those who believe that with the ever increasing demand for hospitalization, and the crowded condition of hospitals nearby, the fifty beds will soon fill up. It is pointed out that last month 22 Trenton mothers went to the Belleville hospital to give birth to their children. It is calculated that most of them would have remained in Trenton had proper facilities been available. Industrial growth in Trenton and district is also another encouraging factor.

Many Donations Promised

With a decision having been reached to proceed with the actual work of construction, the directors with the knowledge of continued active support by the Lions Club, hospital sponsors are planning to go all-out to raise the necessary money to complete the project. Many donations have been promised, they say, and others should be available. The Courier-Advocate strongly in favor of the hospital, had volunteered to help and will acknowledge from week to week from now until Christmas all donations given. Official receipts for all of them will be issued. It is estimated that well over $50,000 is still required.

The directors are encouraged by the fact that not a few organizations in the town are planning to furnish wards in the hospital. This will keep down the over-all cost of the structure.

No word has yet been received from Queen's Park with respect to the grant which a deputation requested from the Minister of Health a few weeks ago.

Parents Absent

The building occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Robert McLaughlin and family of Bay Street was burned to the ground together with contents when a coal oil lamp was overturned, on Wednesday night shortly after nine o'clock. The parents were absent, attending the Field Day at the Airport, when the accident occured. The quick arrival of firemen when the alarm was turned in, prevented the fire from spreading to other homes. The children, three children who were looking after the house were not injured but the home was a complete loss. McLaughlin is a civilian employee at the Trenton Air Station.

Obtained License Number

Edward A. Brook, 56½ Bridge St., Belleville, reported to police early Thursday morning that he was driving his taxi west on Dundas Street when a car driven by Russell Fyear, 31 West Street, Trenton, struck the left rear fender of his car and failed to stop. Brook obtained the car number of the hit and run car and turned it over to police shortly afterwards. Police apprehended the driver on North Front Street, He stated to police that he knew he had struck the other car but did not think any damage had been done. Fyear will be charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

For Reducing Diets

Get More Fruit
. . . at Better Prices

AT the first sign of early dropping, spray trees with PARMONE, the C-I-L hormone concentrate so successfully used by many growers.

PARMONE prevents or greatly reduces pre-harvest drop of both apples and pears. Fruit clings longer and more firmly to the trees. Result — larger size, better finish, improved colour, quality and size . . . a longer picking season. PARMONE does not delay normal ripening processes. Consequently fruit should be picked at the proper stage of maturity.

PARMONE costs little. Just one four-ounce bottle makes 100 gallons of spray. PARMONE is highly effective. In some cases, pre-harvest drop has been reduced 85%.

This year, market better fruit, more fruit, by using PARMONE.

All Purpose Coat

Melon pink fleece coat By TERA WINSTON

MADE TO wear over anything, and nice for either town, country or resort wear, is a good recommendation for a coat. Shaggy nylon fleece in a beautiful shade of melon pink is used for this coat. It has deep revers while the blouse back is softly full. Long dolman arm and easy sleeves are featured. The belt, attached in back only clinches the waist, then it's a few gathers in front. Six matching pink bone buttons are used for the double-breasted effect.

ONTARIO PARENTS CAN TAKE THESE RECOGNIZED PRECAUTIONS AGAINST THE POSSIBLE THREAT OF POLIO

It is in August and September that poliomyelitis (polio) is most prevalent. During these last weeks of summer, thoughtful, parents should observe every rule that protect their little ones from this disease.

In our Province, comparatively few cases of polio have occurred as yet but in some sections of the United States, infantile paralysis—as it is more commonly called—has reached epidemic proportions.

The Ontario Department of Health therefore urges every family to keep in step with the common-sense precautions outlined below. Read them carefully. Encourage your children to practice them daily. Guard your family's health during this particular period of the year!

SIX SIMPLE PRECAUTIONS:

1. Peel or scrub all raw fruit and vegetables before serving.
2. Protect all food from flies.
3. Teach your children to avoid crowded beaches and pools and swimming in dirty water.
4. Avoid over-fatigue and if possible have your children rest for two hours each afternoon.
5. Prevent your children from suffering sudden chills or exposing themselves to too much sun.
6. Make sure your children wash their hands before eating.

If your child is ill do not hesitate to seek medical advice

To a Clear Complexion

Give your face a soap washing

By HELEN FOLLETT

GIRLS who are afflicted with oily skins get pretty exercised when they talk on their pet subject. The trouble annoys them excessively. It is not pleasant to go through life vale of smiles and tears with a buttered complexion. They ply the old powder pad, find it gives only temporary relief.

By stimulating the circulation, the oil glands may be coaxed to stop their monkey business, to cease their working overtime, pouring out more oil than the epidermal coat needs to keep it smooth.

So, here's the way to a cleaner complexion. After the soapy face washing at night, apply hot moist compresses. Use a thick wash cloth, give the flesh a good cleansing. Apply ice cold applications, or rub gently with a piece of ice. Dry and use an astringent. A good quality witch hazel will serve for this purpose. Top it off with a pledge of cotton, let it dry.

The diet has much to do with excessive oiliness. Fats should be cut down to the minimum. Rich sauces and gravies make abhorrent glands riot. Don't keep dipping into the cookie jar.

Start the day with orange or tomato juice. Once a day have a green salad. The diet should include lean meats, sea food, dairy products, vegetables, cereals, fruits. It is helpful to drink five or six glasses of water a day.

The daily bath, scouring the entire surface with a well-soaped brush, sloughs off dead skin, helps wash the surface to function normally.

Be fussy about the cosmetics you use. If you are a member of the oily contingent.

The powder should be fine and light. Do not rub it in with the pad. Puff it on, removing the surplus with a camel's hair brush designed for the purpose. Never apply powder to a surface that has not been freshly cleaned, either with a lotion or soap and water.

All oily cosmetics should be applied sparingly, never left on over night.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The problem of the family with whom a man won't take his wife out with him, but leaves her alone to pass the time any way she can, where does the trouble lie? With him or with her?

Here is a letter typical of many that come to this column, seeking a solution of this problem.

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"What would you suggest for a lonely wife when a husband never takes her out?

"Friend Girl: Don't misunderstand me. He is a very hard-working man and always brings home his pay envelope, and is wonderful to his children. We have been married 28 years and have two grown children, a girl 24 and a boy 18. We are the girl through college, which was a great struggle, but, we are not sorry, as she is a wonderful daughter."

The letter then goes on to tell the story of this woman's struggle during the depression, when her husband, out of work, took to drinking and gambling to keep his home going.

"I hoarded children for 10 years," she writes, "and in that way had the house. I nearly went out of my mind trying to make ends meet, and trying to keep his condition from the children and neighbors. After seven long years, it was over, and he settled down. Now he only goes to the races on his day off and only spends his own money, several dollars.

After her valiant struggle, this woman naturally feels that she deserves a better break than she is getting from the husband she stood by so loyally and so long. But whenever he goes on a vacation "he takes the daughter or son, and I stay home." When she goes to a party, he tells his wife, "You don't know the people and you don't want to go. So I stay home, as I hate to fight. Often I hear people say, 'I pity husband, 'Bring your wife,' but he just won't."...He always travels alone, and I guess he thinks a woman should just stay home. He's afraid he'll get jealous and there's nothing to be done about it."

Apparently this man not only refuses to give his wife normal companionship but is unwilling to have her seek entertainment with her friends. Or, he says she only goes to visit her friends when her husband is away, and if she goes to the movies by herself, she doesn't tell him about it.

"Would you advise me," she asks, "to be more open about going out by myself, as I can't fight any more! I'd rather live in and live in peace".

Yes, I certainly would advise this "Lonely Wife", as she signs herself ,to come out in the open and assert her right to enjoy herself with her friends any time she pleases. Undoubtedly, since she has given in to her husband so long, for the sake of peace, it would mean a few quarrels. But there are times when it is not only right but necessary to stand up and fight for oneself. Everybody wants peace at home, but sometimes the price one pays is too high, as this wife herself has come to feel.

Naturally, no wife can force her husband to take her places if he is determined not to do so Nor would she get very much pleasure out of an excursion by tagging along on the opposition.

But if he insists on the privileges of bachelorhood prerogatives, she should have the courage to claim the same privileges for herself. And once that principle is established between them, it might lead to better things.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Expression of The Lips Tells The Story

Swinburne wrote about "sweet red splendid kissing mouth". Well, they're red enough these days goodness knows. But they are not all sweet splendid kissing ones, by any means. They assume expressions that will never win good-looks laurels.

Observe the ladies as they stalk dry goods in the shop. Look at them on the buy-ways. Take a survey of mouth. It may lead you to keep your smiling. Keeping the lip-ends lifted is a permanent gesture of friendliness to what one's fellow creatures. A smiling mouth helps to sustain sound musculature of the human portrait. With good cheer to form a background, the skin will remain smooth, free of wrinkles.

There are many women who spend much time, thought and money on personal appearance, but who will never make the charm grade because of their facial expression, which on any thing but appealing. They take on hard look. They appear calculating or grasping or intolerant.

It's so easy to read faces! The wise and clever woman will see to her company face all the time, so it will get into the habit of looking pleasant and appealing. She will, it is likely, have a sound, reliable nervous system.

It is a subject worth thinking about.

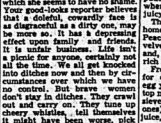
The discontented woman has lips that are soft and drooping. She advertises self-pity, for which she seems to have no shame. Your good-natured reporter believes that a doleful, cowardly face is as disgraceful as a dirty one, may be more so. It has a depressing effect upon family and friends. It is unfair business. Life isn't a picnic for anyone, certainly not all the time. We all get knocked into dithcs now and then by circumstances over which we have no control. But brave women don't stay in ditches. They crawl out and carry on. They tum up cheery whistles, tell themselves it might have been worse, pick up the threads of a normal existence.

They don't wear defeat on their mugs. They're not dead pan girls.

The small fibres around the mouth are delicate. Tiny muscles give way first. Muscles that make wrinkles and sagging tissues are attached to the skin and to the circular bundles of fibres around the eyes and the mouth.

Making doeful faces is the best possible way of causing these structures to lose tone and invite facial furrows. Don't squint your eyes; don't pull down your lip-ends. No one can afford to indulge in facial caithness.

Keep sweet. Look sweet. You will always stay young.



Small cuts, cracks or scratches in the surface of linoleum may be partly restored by occasional rubbing with boiled linseed oil. Wipe off excess oil with a soft cloth.

New-Fashioned Satin

The Experts Say

By HELEN BANNERMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 22. (CP)—The peach parade has begun. It is evident that the crop will far exceed that of last year so we shall see a lot of peaches in the next month. Nothing could be more welcome for peaches are a general favorite.

Whole raw peaches make the best of desserts. They can be cut in half, the stone removed and the pulp eaten with a spoon "on the half shell". This way most people don't think of adding sugar.

But for some reason people who enjoy a peach eaten from the hand generally ask for sugar on sliced peaches. Honey sweetens them, blends with the flavor and helps to prevent discoloration. Sliced peaches when a small quantity of honey is dripped over them.

Peach Shortcake takes its place with Strawberry Shortcake as one of the favorite desserts of Canadians. Peach Cobbler and other puddings are also pretty special when the peaches are ripe and juicy.

The Agriculture Department home economists say that Frozen Peach Cream is an ice cream with velvety-texture and fruity flavor and, best of all, it requires no rich cream.

Frozen Peach Cream sufficient for eight servings requires two egg yolks, 2-3 cup sugar, one cup top milk or thin cream, 1-3 cup sieved fresh peaches (six medium ones), one tablespoon lemon juice, 1-4 teaspoon almond extract, one tablespoon gelatine,"1-4 cup of cold water and two egg whites.

Beat the egg yolks and sugar together; add milk or cream, peaches, lemon juice and almond extract, blending well. Soak the gelatine in cold water for five minutes then dissolve over boiling water. Add slowly to the first mixture, stirring to prevent the gelatine from lumping. Place in freezing tray of refrigerator and turn into a chilled bowl. Beat and add unbeaten egg whites. Beat with a rotary beater until the mixture is fluffy. Return to tray and freeze until firm.

When it comes to canning peaches a six quart heaped basket should give about five quarts of canned fruit. The peaches should be fully ripe but not over-ripe and bruised spots must be carefully removed. Under-ripe peaches will be poor in flavor and color when canned.

Peaches are only mildly acid and a thin syrup (one cup sugar to two cups water) is recommended though this proportion may be decreased or increased a little to suit individual taste. For a six quart basket of peaches add eight cups of boiling water to four cups of sugar. Bring to boiling point, skim and keep hot.

The Dominion Experimental Station at Summerland, B. C., has been studying fruits for four years to determine their nutritive and health value and this is what they have found out about the peach: they are relatively rich in carotene, the form in which vitamin A occurs in fruits; they are a good source of riboflavin, one of the vitamin B family, and also contain a fair amount of thiamine (vitamin B1); they are usually only fair to poor sources of vitamin C when compared to citrus fruits.

SAYS WRITERS NEED SUPPORT FROM PUBLIC

Geneva Park, Lake Couchiching, Ont., Aug. 23. (CP)—Literature is one of Canada's natural resources like minerals ore or timber or wheat, and is threatened with extinction unless it receives the same cultivation from the Canadian people, William Arthur Deacon, president of the Canadian Authors Association, told the annual conference of the Canadian Institute of Public Affairs today.

"Canada's future depends on what the world thinks of us, which will be decided by the books we send them," said Mr. Deacon

Despite lack of financial support, Canadian writers have developed to the point where the Saturday Review of Literature published in New York, could say editorially that no American poet in 1945 had published a work as fine as E. J. Pratt's "Collected Poems", nor had any American novelist in that year published as good a work as Hugh MacLennan's "Two Solitudes."

"In no country of the world has the craft of writing been held in less esteem; in none are the natural handicaps as great as in Canada," Mr. Deacon added.

Canada's first professional novelist, Major Richardson, had starved to death in 1852 after selling his favorite dog to provide his last meal, he said. Some Canadians of definite writing ability have been driven into other work because the conditions facing writers were too hard to be mastered. Yet, hundreds of writers are contributing to Canada's well-being today, and are willing to accept a bare living in return, he said.

The United States offers dozens of money prizes for which writers may compete, running from $2,000 to $145,000 each. The only prizes offered in Canada are offered to Quebec writers by the provincial government, ranging of $200 to $800, totalling $6,000 annually.

The Governor General's awards, the highest recognition of Canadian writers, offers no reconciliation for their labors other than stimulation of sales of prize-winning works.

The Canadian Authors Foundation, a private trust receiving a small grant from the Dominion government, Mr. Deacon said, provides funds for re-education of aged and infirgent authors. The government has also recognized the author's plight by making concessions on income taxes on royalties to prevent authors from being penalized by reason of their income arriving in bunches.

Of all Canadian universities, only the Ontario Agricultural College has a compulsory course in Canadian literature, he continued, and only the University of Saskatchewan offers a course in Canadian literature exclusively.

"We are therefore met in the stately halls of learning with indifference and contempt," said one of the vitamins in this kind of intellectual snobbery is a dying vice. So long as the public buys our books, it may be as well that professors do not try to explain what we mean by them."

St. Louis Cards, Pre-Season Favorites, Make Experts Look Good as They Catch Dodgers

If Team Fails to Win National League Flag It Won't be Fault of Stanley Musial

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

If St. Louis Cardinals fail to win the National League flag this season, it won't be the fault of Stanley Musial, the circuit's number one batter.

Top man in almost every offensive department of play, Musial, in the last two weeks, has staged a terrific batting rampage which reached stellar heights yesterday when, practically single-handed, he batted the Cards into first place by with Brooklyn Dodgers.

Musial rapped out six hits as the Cardinals swept a double-header from Philadelphia Phillies, 7-6 and 4-3, to draw even with the Dodgers who were shutout, 2-0, by the Reds in Cincinnati.

The hard-hitting first baseman won the opener with a home run in the 11th inning and helped the Phillies' hopes of a split with a trio of base hits which accounted for the winning runs in the second game.

Dodgers Shut Out

Johnny (Double-no-hit) Vander Meer pitched the shutout against the Dodgers, handing the Brooks their second loss in three games of their fourth and final western trip. Rookie third baseman Gady Hatton drove in what proved to be the winning run in the first inning.

Chicago White Sox won their first game from the American League leading Boston Red Sox in nine starts at Fenway Park this season by coming from behind to eke out a 4-3 11-inning decision.

Referee Boston's Lead

Winning their second doubleheader in two days, the runner-up New York Yankees trimmed St. Louis Browns, 4-3 and 8-2 to reduce the Red Sox' lead to 1½ games.

Boston Braves won their sixth straight victory over Chicago Cubs, 3-2, to move within 2½ games of the third place Bruins.

Rookie southpaw Monte Kennedy won a shutout pitching duel from veteran Rip Sewell as New York Giants edged out Pittsburgh Pirates, 1-0 in 10 innings.

Philadelphia Athletics hammered Bob Feller for three consecutive hits in the seventh inning to outscore the Cleveland Indians, 8-6, for their third straight victory. Feller, who has been the bulwark in pushed a one-run Cleveland lead to the side, Joe Berry was charged with the loss.

This gent pictured above does not fool when he gets the opposition in the ring, and he tries to dispose of him as quickly as possible regardless of ways and means. He is Karl "Krippler" Davis, bad man of the mat who faces Tom Morgan, at the Lindsay Lion at the Hume Arena tonight. Which means "rabbit" fireworks are in the offing, but soon, and the boys won't be fooling.

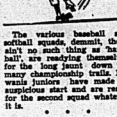
Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Cuttle, Sports Editor

FLASH—W. H. Snyder, secretary of the Ontario Baseball Association announces today that the Belleville Kiwanis Juniors, conquerors of Peterborough in the provincial junior playdowns, will meet Oshawa Majors in an elimination round. Dates will be announced later but the winners will meet the winners of the Ottawa-Kingston series for the title.

What's the leading hitter in the International League? Wally Moon, Rochester boy? Not same up with the nearest because we could say Jim Bunning, Detroit flash from Owen sound is showing a trick or two. He's good at all departments of the game, and not forgetting pitching, who gets around a hit and is one of the few pitchers to win games in the Montreal dugout, shutdowns or hotel rotary doors. Lucky Jim is a gentleman par excellence. He has not got a big head at times, and says he is a quiet, modest guy off the field. He takes his baseball laurels with a minimum of expression.



The various baseball and softball squads, dammit, have slid into the dog days, and "here's ball", are readying themselves for the long drive through to the many championship trails. Kingsmills have made such an auspicious start and are ready for the second squad whatever it is.

Latta starts their search for the Intermediate "B" title next Monday when they play on the Bancroft team, North Hastings champions, at the Almite Field here. The game is scheduled for four o'clock and both teams are out to cop that all-important first heats. Bancroft defeated Latta here on the Bancroft diamond on Saturday, August 11.

Ottawa Wrightwillies won the championship of the Ottawa City Junior Baseball League and are representing Eddy Byte's in the Junior OBA playdowns. They defeated the Kingston Athletics on Wednesday night 3-1 in Ottawa in the first game of the two game series and play in Kingston on Saturday in the second tussle.

The Wrightwillies are apparently a French-Canadian team judging from their names. Introducing against Kingston Wed, gloaming included such playing names as the De Desjardin brothers, the Cloutier brothers, Beniquez, Carmen, the Fortin brothers and M'ieu Dupere, the pitcher. Three sets of names on the team, and Miss R. Desjardin batted a measly .300 over the season. He is the batter batting over .300 on the squad and the next best is M'sieu G. Desjardin, a fellow b'gar who clout dat pill for, lemmesee, two hunnerd, eighty t'ree.

Eet, M'sieu, do not go wer' sa quick. Listen, to the flagcurs records of the Wrightwille clouters. There is a tall garcon, named Lauriah, he one dam good chucker. He hurl four-five-six game all season with only one loss. Den dere is M'sieu Bertrad he win three game in row before he fracture ankle. And M'sieu Dupere, he chuck wit fork hand he won five and lose two. Dat M'sieu Lauriah, he lead dat loop all season. By dat way, dat is the second year dose Wrightwillie garcons win dat city title.

Alats report from Convener Ernie Summers today stated that the OBA has ordered the Kiwanis Juniors to play the Lakeshore Loop winners, who drew a bye in the first round, in the second circle of the junior series. It seems Ottawa and Kingston are in the throes of their series, and to save time, the local squad will tilt with the youngsters from up around Port Hope. Lindsay, Cobourg and Peterborough comprise the official before this column is final.

Tonight, Tom Morgan, the dashing marine, tangled with villainous Karl "Krippler" Davis at the Hume Arena in the main bout of what looks like to be an outstanding wrestling card. Tom fresh from that win over Lee Henning last Friday when he punished the lowan Cornhusker so severely that he will be hors de combat for at least another week, isn't scared by the record nor the tactics of that "Krippler." Davis who is a master of unorthodox ring methods will need all his bag of tricks to subdue the fast-stepping marine and some mat fireworks are anticipated.

And that tilt between handsome Frankie Taylor, who gets his mail in Hollywood, and Warren Bockwinkle should set the Hamilton beach in their socks. Both lads are clean aggressive matmen and a sparkling contest is anticipated. Jan Gotch—Jan Gotch's slated to tangle with gunman Pat Flannagan in the prelim.

The Peterborough De Lesseps, grubbed by the sports scrivenors of that city as a bunch of one-eyed men in the city softball title and will represent Peterborough in the Intermediate "A" semi-finals playdowns here again against Oshawa on Saturday night in Purdue's Peterborough Memorial Park. According to the Peter teh-thumpers, the De Lesseps in the old days would be called a R. A. N. Fleet-footed Frank Hall, the season in sandscraplot misfortune and the most of them boys were left-overs from early season selections of managers of other squads in the loop.

A number of former COB Elders of this city, we are given to understand are assisting the safari to Peterborough tomorrow afternoon to honor the memory of Jimmy Gibbs, baseball friend, and diamond enemy, the late Alex Rose, who died from a heart seizure following the Elder-Peterborough Game in Peterborough last summer. The attraction is a Toronto-Peterborough All-Star baseball game, starting at 8.45 and a sell-out crowd is assured. Plenty of draw cards ranging from Jimmy Ridgeway to ten bucks worth of merchandise. Nice drive, good game, and a swell send-off farewell to a gallant sportsman and gentleman.

Down Is Kingston the DYA

Down is Kingston the DYA squad in the Kingston area in the senior softball title to represent that town in the Intermediate "A" playdowns. Thus far the DYA game has won two games over the Canadian Legion squad and the next game here evidently to clinch the title. The winners meet ear SACO Marines in the first round of the playdowns, playing here on August 27 with the second game away on August 29. Winners are the winners of the Oshawa-Peterborough clash on September 2.

BATAWA SHOEMEN BLANK NAPANEE BY 4-0 SCORE

Winners Score Three Runs in First Innings And Never Headed

The Batawa Shoemen, behind the five-hit pitching of Stojan, blanked the Napanee nine in a postponed Bay of Quinte Senior Baseball League game at Batawa the other night by a score of 4-0.

Stojan allowed but five hits struck out seven and walked five. He scattered the five clouts over six innings and was never in any serious danger.

Costhup, on the mound for Napanee likewise was nicked for five blows but pitched well in the game in the first innings when the Shoemen sent two runners across the plate to take a lead that was never threatened. Batawa's dabbs in this innings with the sacks loaded accounted for the runs.

Bata scored the other run in the third on a base on balls and Napanee errors.

Wager was the hitsmith for the Shoemen with two clouts with Austin, Spencer and Normandin accounting for the other three. Curry, Spencer and a single for Napanee with Mack doing the catching and Jocko got the remaining hit.

Niagara Falls Houcks last night defeated Stanley Clarks of Niagara Falls, N.Y. 4-2 in a Niagara Baseball League contest finale game. At Galt the Terrier Pups won their way into the International Junior finals by slinking Stratford Classics 2-1, and Napanee Lions took a 1-0 win over Gananoque to even the Eastern Ontario playoff round of the Ontario Baseball Association Juvenile series.

At Niagara Falls, Johnny Worsel, Houck moundsman, held the opposition to five hits and showed well in the clutches. Pete Long led the hitters with a double and a single.

Stratford scored their lone run at Galt in the second, Galt tied it up in the third and won the game in the fourth.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Milkman

If you have a private retard for your bridge, know a lot about finesses, are anxious for others to be ignored and good finessing against the klibitzers who are breathing down your neck:

Let me get in something right here for the records: A finesse is in no high favor in the choice of hands. In fact, it may well be classed as last in the principles of plays to consider.

Entries have much to do with successful finesses. This refers to the ability to be in a destroyed hand when a finesse is attempted. The destroyed hand is the one that must lead toward the finesse.

The spades and hearts in a deal are shown here:

	North
	♠ K Q 9 3
	♥ 7 6 2
West		East
♠ A J 10 4		♠ 8 5 3
♥ K Q 5		♥ 9 8 3 2
	South
	♠ 7 6 2
	♥ 10 4
	♥ A J 10

North will take only one spade trick if he leads that suit from his hand. The same is true of his heart suit if he leads it from there.

If spade leads come from north, north must do two tricks in this suit. The same applies to the hearts if led from north. The trick comes from leading toward the hand that can finesse.

When south leads a spade, west is compelled to play next. West must play either a spade. This gives north a chance to play his king and queen after west plays or ducks his ace.

Take the hearts. South leads and west plays the queen. North is forced to play the king to win that trick. But the jack will force the west king and north will have another trick with the ten.

When south leads a heart, west may elect not to play queen or king. In that case, north simply plays the ten on finesse. This also assures north of two heart tricks.

In attempting a finesse, lead from the hand opposite the card you intend to finesse. Assume the opponent who plays second has the card you fear. Then hope he has it. Pray, too.

Hollywood Column

Hollywood, Aug. 23. (AP) — Cecil B. de Mille rides again!

The screen's most prosperous director is back at his old Paramount stand after a three-year absence, and is making a $4,000,000 vehicle called "Unconquered".

As I tried to track him down, my faithful guide led me through studio streets, following pointing signs marked "Cecil B. de Mille —Dressing Room".

Arriving there, we found a reproduction of a Colonial mansion facing house. Several quaintly dressed actors were about, including those identified to me as Gary Cooper, George Washington at an early age and two Hogarth drawing men named Mason and Dixon. I half relished the idea of a shiny-domed man walked up and said: "How do you do. I'm Cecil de Mille. How you see me at last after by looking at it, just in it."

He proceeded to explain in an old American map on cowhide. "The Ohio Virginia extended to the Mississippi and it even claimed Kentucky and Tennessee," he expounded. "So Mason and Dixon were hired to determine the Colony's line."

De Mille was dressed not in his familiar riding breeches, which he wears only for outdoor scenes, but in rustic, dark brown pants and a khaki shirt. He was surrounded by his legendary covey of assistants to whom he uttered suggestions which were carried out immediately.

"Move that chair three inches to the left," he commanded, still gazing through a camera finder. I left him in that position. Deadlines startle for columns, if not for $4,000,000 movies.

Is The Film Palaces

"Holiday in Mexico" can best be classified as a typical MGM musical, including such pleasers as Walter Pidgeon, Jose Iturbi, Ilona Massey, Xavier Cugat and Jane Powell. It is directed by George Sidney. Joe McDowall and Jane Powell. It is a slick, tuneful job. But the story—Ho Hum.

Sports Roundup

New York, Aug. 23 (AP)—Although Montreal Royals have been threatening toward the pennant with about a 16-game margin, the International League is having a terrific race . . . and that makes cents—2,000,000 million of them. The International sets aside one cent from each paid admission for a player's pool. Of this $7,000 is split among the first two clubs in the regular season and the rest makes up the playoff pot. With an expected record attendance of over 2,000,000 this year, there'll be about $13,000 at stake in the playoffs and a team that just squeezes into fourth has a chance to take down most of that—don't think the players on the four clubs that have a chance for the three spots behind Montreal don't know all about the figures . . . Wonder what the American League race would be like with a similar setup?

ONLY TIME FACTOR KEPT "BIG TRAIN" IN PARTIAL CHECK

Versatile Lionel Conacher Was Constant Headliner in Almost All Major Canadian Sports

By GEORGE FORSTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, (CP) — As Montreal Maroons marched off the Forum ice on April 23, 1937, after dropping a 4-0 decision and their Stanley Cup honors to New York Rangers, few Montreal fans realized they had seen the end of an era. But one of the greatest careers in Canadian sports had ended when Lionel Conacher—The Big Train —had just played his last professional game.

During more than 20 years of competition, Conacher excelled in rugby, lacrosse, baseball, hockey, boxing and wrestling. He was a better-than-average performer in sculling, swimming and track; many experts say The Big Train could have reached championship calibre in these had had there been more than 24 hours in a day.

Frequently the lack of time didn't stop Conacher. He was a powerful physique and almost phenomenal endurance, he often went directly from one game to another and starred in both.

In 1920 he tripled in the winning run of a game for the Toronto baseball Aparlowalls, then rushed to the other end of the town to lead Toronto rugbies to Brampton 3-0 in a game for the Ontario lacrosse championship. Conacher's four goals and one assist brought his team from behind to win.

Born in 1900, Conacher donned skates for the first time in 1916 on a schoolyard rink near his home in Toronto's Riverdale. Six years later he refused an offer of $6,000 to play with Montreal Canadiens. After turning pro in 1924 he stayed in the big time for 13 years, two famous brothers—Chuck and Roy —also made the N.H.L.

Feared Ball Carrier

He was always more at home at rugby, and on the half-line for Toronto Argonauts in the early 20s was one of the most feared ball carriers in Dominion rugby. In one game against Montreal he gained 227 yards, an average of 1-2 yards per minute.

As a boxer he won the Canadian light heavyweight championship and once boxed four exhibition rounds with Jack Dempsey— from which Dempsey emerged with a split lip. He was also the leading figure in the Canadian debut of professional wrestling and starred with Montreal Maroons of the International-Professional Lacrosse League. In 1926 he played baseball for Toronto Maple Leafs, winners of the Little World Series.

A record like Conacher's inevitably brought its toll of injuries—his nose still bears the mark of eight fractures and he has had more than 600 stitches in his 200-pound, six foot frame.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By DAVE LENNARD
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Aug. 23 — (CP) — They'll miss Jill Al Murray, the man who master-minded Galt Redwings to the Ontario Hockey Association's junior playoffs last year, when the next season rolls around here. Al, once called the "iron midget" of the National Hockey League when as a defence star he used his chunky frame to bowl over much bulkier bodies bound for New York Americans' goal, will be operating in the Pacific Coast League, coaching San Francisco.

Red Dutton managed Amerks in Al's hey-day and was a fiery fellow on the bench. Lil' Al must've learned from him closely because he can just about outfire-cracker Dutton. Murray was one of the smallest men in the N.H.L. in his day, which was not so long before Amerks left New York for Brooklyn, starred as an amateur in his hometown of Stratford and there never was anyone to underestimate the fury he could say that Al ever did anything but play hockey. His toughest body check ready for all comers when he became one of the NHL's top referees.

Not from New York:

A group of Canadians, in New York to arrange for Toronto's entry in the new Eastern United States Professional Basketball League, fell to chatting of football, especially Lew Hayman's reported importing of players for Montreal Alouettes. So they sent Lew the following wire: "Just located wonderful new centre. Name of Rockefeller. Shall we sign?"

Incidentally the word in New York is that Hayman will be associated with the new Toronto basketball club before the loop gets underway come November.

All Washed up:

An outstanding man in the indoor field is Al McLean of Mimico Mounties. Al has turned in some excellent rough tumbling exhibitions of late, but it's defensive play on the defence side this season and when you consider that his own coach, Ken Ware, was...This game is for the young-er lads, I'm all washed up as a player" this is quite a comeback.

Before joining the armed services Al was noted for his skill and clean checking on the defence and when the war ended last year he returned to Mimico Mounties as playing coach. He did some coaching than playing last year, but when this season rumpled around Al turned out — to be around if needed. Seemingly he's needed all the time.

Finnish Athletes Dominate Long-Distance Events

By The Canadian Press

The first meet to be held since the 1936 competitions in Paris, the European track and field championships opened yesterday at Oslo, Norway, with 350 Athletes competing in 21 countries, Finnish athletes dominated the long-distance events, N. Hietanen covering the 5,000-metres 2.34.55, followed by V. Muinonen, a fellow-countryman. Victor in the 10,000-metres run was Vilo Heino and Finland's last gold medal was awarded in the 3,000-metres steeplechase by Erkki Tirkkonen.

Other team at the meet is made up of 18 men, headed by Sydney Wooderson, 1,500-metres star, and Alan Paterson, high-jumper, and six women entrants.

First-basemen Hank Greenberg of Detroit Tigers has been benched for a rest, manager Steve Owen announced last night. The high-salaried star has been in a hitting slump, having had only one safety in his last 22 chances.

Defending champion Byron Nelson defeated Harrison Brown 3 and 2 yesterday to enter the quarter-finals of the Pro Golfers Association championship in Portland, Ore. Also still in the running are Ben Hogan, Ed Oliver and Frank Moore.

Billy Conn, heavyweight boxer, made his first bid as a race-horse owner yesterday but was disappointed. His $17,000 equine, finished ninth in a 10-horse race at Garden State Park, Camden, N.J. The winner was Tacarso Briar.

The United States football season opens tonight at Chicago when the Los Angeles Rams, 1946 pro champions, hook up with the college all-stars in the 13th annual pre-autumn exhibition contest which is expected to draw 95,000 grid fans.

Leaders in the English county cricket race are Yorkshire eleven yesterday gained its 20th victory of the season with a nine-wicket defeats of Gloucestershire. Bowling star of the winners was Ellis Robinson who took six wickets for 27 runs.

His attempt to swim the English Channel from Ca| Gris Nez has been indefinitely postponed by Jorge Berroeta, continued bad weather being announced as the reason.

CHAPTER 15.

"Oh, no. I was rather new at the business then... It was before I became hard-boiled."

"Now, I am fishing out things."

"There was a nice-looking elderly man who gave me some work." Jacqueline went on unheedingly, "and asked me to put it all in a bill so that he could pay for it all at once. He came in a number of times... dictating a lecture, or something. He was a real scholarly man and I was terribly impressed. I wanted my money, but I didn't have nerve enough to ask for it."

"And then your high-brow friend disappeared. Go on."

"Owing me almost fifteen dollars. When it looked as though he weren't coming back, I mentioned it to Mr. Staples... that was before he was a lieutenant. He told me he'd see what he could do. I almost fell over when he called me on the phone one day and told me he had my man."

"I'm beginning to have considerable respect for Mr. Staples."

"Then he said that I was to come over to headquarters and identify the prisoners; said he would be waiting with him on the steps outside. It was too funny for words. The old geezer had only had hard luck story. He started to cry, and so did I. Mr. Staples was very much provoked because I said I wouldn't prefer charges. He never forgave me to tease me about it."

"But you haven't told me how he happened to drag me into yesterday's leaning expedition."

"Don't you see? He figured, if you had been staying at the Bay near, you might have dictated letters to me also."

"And you weren't able to tell him what they were about. That's where our hero ran into a stone wall."

Jacqueline tried to see the expression of Larry's face, but the darkness concealed it from her.

"When Dot-Dot confessed, you admitted quickly." I did remember that you had given me several business letters. And that was all I did tell him."

"As if you had to tell me! I'm yearning to hear the rest of his story, but I'm not going to ask you for it.

Jacqueline found herself in a fresh quandry now. She had been dreading this interview, it had been quite impossible to avoid. Her suspicions in her mind, hateful as they were. She knew that her attitude toward Larry should be one of cool resentment until he had made an explanation. He should be very grateful to her and give her the assurances she so much needed. He must.

But now, she must have succumbed again to the spell his presence seemed always to exert. Worst of all, she didn't care.

Vince's welfare seemed the only real important thing in the world just now. If anything should go wrong tomorrow... Larry's quick sympathy and desire to be of help had touched her strangely. His very nearness brought comfort... He was so big and dependable.

Her pride would not let her demand an explanation. After all, did Larry owe her that? Their association was no more than a matter of business. It had been tacitly agreed that their former lives were private affairs. Larry had lived up to his bargain in every particular. She would do the same. Only...

Larry broke the silence. "Look here, Jack." I don't know whether that gum-shoe gave you a bum steer on purpose or not. I was rather looking for something like that to happen, but I didn't think you'd be worried with it. I told you that fate was in all this, and you've helped me a lot tonight. That's all I'm going to say because you've got troubles enough of your own tonight without packing any on my account. I don't want you to be bothered with my affairs. So let's forget it. Could you eat anything, provided we can find any place that looks inviting?"

"Oh, no."

"I guess that does sound rather material," he laughed. "But I'm trying so hard to forget two years of salt pork and beans that I don't overlook any chances. That chicken you fixed still stands out as one of the bright spots in my life."

"You should tell that to the delicatessen man and... Oh, perhaps, we should turn back now. It's getting late."

"Whatever Her Highness commands."

Nothing was said after that until Larry slowed at a busy intersection, a mile from Courtland street. Jacqueline laid her hand suddenly on his arm.

"I think you'd better let me out here. I can take a car."

"Why?"

"I just happened to remember....."

"Nonsense! There's no danger of that.

I'll see you home, of course."

A few squares from the apartment house, Larry said quietly: "Don't worry about tomorrow, Jack, I'm going over to the hospital and stick around until it's over. Just as soon as I get definite word, I'll give you a ring. You can depend on me."

"Thank you.....so."

"Alright." He brought the car to a quick halt in front of number 26. "Coast's clear, Run."

Jacqueline never forgot the long hours of that next morning. Fortunately she was quite busy. But it did not keep her thoughts from staying constantly to the hospital and wondering how her father had come out of the operation.

When Larry finally called at one-thirty, her hands were shaking so that she scarcely could hold the receiver to her ear. Larry's voice was quiet and reassuring.

"Everything's fine."

"Oh, dear. Are you sure?"

"Perfectly. I've just talked to Dr. Kennedy himself. His compliments, he tells me. Nothing to worry about, so far. I guess you thought I had forgotten you. But, you see, an operation is like a procession. They never start on time."

Larry did not see fit to tell her that Kennedy had added he had found Anthony's condition somewhat more involved than he had thought and that the operation was long and tedious. But successful.

"I'm so glad! And so...much obliged, "said a choked little voice at the other end of the wire.

"Glad to be of some use. By the way, the doctor thinks your dad will be able to see you after dinner."

"I'll go to him as soon as I can."

"Fine. Good-bye."

It was not until she had her first glimpse of Vince that the girl realized what an ordeal her father had been through. His face was pinched and very nearly as white as the pillow.

Jacqueline leaned over him and placed her hand on his forehead gently, she whispered softly.

His eyes opened slowly and looked up into her anxious face. "Hello, Skipper." He whimpered childishly. "They hurt me....."

"I know, dear. But you're all right now. And you mustn't talk. All you have to do now is to rest and get well and strong. Try to sleep. Here says it we've good, I may sit by you for a while."

Vince nodded and closed his eyes again.

For more than an hour, Jacqueline sat motionless in chair close beside the bed holding her father's thin hand. Watching him as he slept.

Her relief was unspeakable, but already she was face to face with a problem that must be solved within a short time. What must she do when Vince left the hospital? She could not take him home with her to her little apartment, and he could not go back to that dreadful room in Elder street. He would need care for a long time perhaps. How could she manage that?...And there was all this expense, Dr. Kennedy's bill.

The cash from that bond presented only a temporary solution. It was merely a loan. And that reminded her...Vince's second week was up. She would settle that on her way out; that would be one item less.

It proved to be one more. The clerk at the cashier's window thumbed hastily through a file and extracted a card.

"This account was settled today, and an advance of one week paid on the room."

"I think there is some mistake" Jacqueline said firmly.

"I don't believe so...Oh, just a moment, Miss Anthony. This envelope was left with me when I came on duty. I believe it is your receipt."

There were two pieces of paper in the envelope. One was a statement from the hospital, including the operation expense and a week's additional rental for Vince's room. A rubber stamp indicated the account was paid. Dated today.

The other appeared to be a leaf torn from a memorandum book, scrawled over with a man's handwriting.

Received from Miss Jacqueline Anthony, even date, the sum of two-hundred dollars ($200.00). Account in full.

Thanks.

Erasmus Kennedy, M.D.

Larry, of course.

Jacqueline stuffed the receipts into her bag and left the building. She would walk home tonight, think this out.

Her first reaction was a hot indignation. She had no right to place her under obligation that she had been hard enough to do what she had for Vince. swallowed all her pride. All this time, having her more deeply in.....

In what?

Perhaps Larry meant only to be kind. But this hurt...she gave a little cry of contempt...she hadn't occurred ot her before. If Larry insisted upon paying these bills, she would be forced to do it...with Larry's money!

How could she ever have become ensnared in such a net of circumstances? But she would have this out with Larry the very first time there was a chance to talk to him. He must understand that she couldn't go on. Accepting always accepting. And all in the shadow of a grim fear that hovered over her hourly.

If only Staples never had come near her! On the other hand then she couldn't have warned Larry. Had Staples told her the truth? If he did, then Larry had some enchey. And he had been so cool about it all. Why couldn't he have said...

Hamilton Runner Won Racing Fame Forty Years Ago

By W. M. GLADDEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Forty years ago the news was flashed from Athens that Dorando, a little-known Canadian, long-armed from the Italian Alps, had won the marathon race of 26 miles, 385 yards from Marathon to the Greek capital in Calleon.

The story Canuck was Bill Sherring of Hamilton, Ont., who, disqualified, set as a Canadian Olympic hero, unlikely to be forgotten, sensitive of the long-forgotten St. Louis Olympics of 1904 and the Ambitious City. He was one of the first of a number of well-publicized long-distance marathoners which included Tom Longboat, Jack Hess, Jack Tweddle, Percy Sellen, Jim Corkery, George Lissemore and a host of other Canadian stars of the early century.

The modern Olympic organized "meet" that made the trip to the Athens Olympic Games of 1906 was made up of 20 athletes from Toronto athletes, Etwood A. Brown and A. Archibald and Donald S. Linden. As for organization, Sherring was financed by a group of fans, subscriptions raised by his club — after that he was on his own. To pay his living expenses, Sherring got himself a job as a "longshoreman" at a railway depot and the others just managed some how.

Through-a mishap, Hughes, who was destined to become general manager of the Canadian National Exhibition, found himself unable to himself unable to start in the favored marathon. He hurried trainer for Sherring and rode beside him on a bike during the grind. Ed. Archibald also entered the pole vault but on the rail-road trip across Canada now his one and only pole carried off into Slovenia, leaving him the side of a locomotive. With a make-shift pole, Archibald first entered in the high among the prize winners. Don Linden competed in the 100 and 200 metre dashes.

On Famous Trail

But the Hamilton runner came through with the best win of all when he finished 1st among those who had jogged the trail from Marathon since the day in 490

Released U.S. Airmen Subject To Questioning

By JOHN F. McKNIGHT
Trieste, Aug. 23 (AP)— Seven Americans released yesterday after being detained in Yugoslavia for nearly a month were subject their transport plane was forced down by Yugoslav fighters and guns, were quoted today as saying they had been questioned "for hours" on "political subjects" during their internment but had received "excellent treatment."

The men, whose release from curfew-bound Yugoslavia in a Flying Fortress was ordered by President Tito himself, were Capt. Frank Kuhn of Dallas, Tex., and six enlisted men of the 317th Troop Carrier Group of the United States 85th Division on the Morgan line at 9:30 p.m. G.M.T. (5:30 P.D.T.) last night after a 37-mile truck ride from Ljubljana, where they had been held in a hotel.

A division spokesman who talked with the nine men last night quoted them as saying that their thoroughly searched but that everything had been returned to them. The nature of the questions to which they were subjected was not disclosed, he said, since the Yugoslav censorship of the dispatches of group not to reveal the questions asked them.

The spokesman said the airmen told him the questioning ended when they reached the United States Embassy in Belgrade, where they underwent a long interview them.

The spokesman who spoke to them said they appeared in excellent physical condition and quoted one of the group as saying the Yugoslavs "leaned over backward to treat us well. We were told to ask for anything in the hotel and we received it."

An army spokesman said they told him that Yugoslav troops and officials, after having surrounded the plane as soon as it touched ground after being forced down in the vicinity of Kranj, near Ljubljana.

KNOWN TO CANUCKS

Cobham, Surrey, England—(C P. Cable)—Flt. Lt. Peter Fanshawe Pain's Hill, 230-acre estate which for a time was Canadian Military Headquarters, has been purchased by members of the late owner, Charles Combe.

Says False Report Spread in Prague

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 23 (AP)—Alarmed excitement was spread through Prague today by a false report saying Premier Marshal Tito had ordered Yugoslav reserves mobilized.

The official Czech news agency CTK issued a calming statement saying the United Press had brought in an unfounded report from London and that it was promptly denied by all Yugoslav officials. The report was published in newspapers but somehow one used it on placards in downtown Prague. CTK said no inquiry was in progress.

The United Press in New York said it had no immediate comment.)

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, Aug. 23 (CP)—The industrial and base metal stocks were up about a half-point at mid-day on the exchange today and the golds were down a point, and western oils unchanged. Trading volume was moderate and the total turnover for the first three hours was 706,000 shares.

The stronger industrial groups included the papers, foods and steels. Golds, however, lost ground. Gains appeared for the Aluminums.

Two junior golds, Lingman Lake and Aumague, featured the trade in the mining section. They moved in heavy volume at gains of 10 to 20 cents. Copper, Nickel and Normetal were higher base metals.

HOGS

Toronto, Aug. 22 (CP) — Grade A, dressed bacon-hogs, were $21.50 delivered at Toronto, at Brantford, while at Stratford prices were unsettled with no quotations reported. Other markets reporting early today.

Hog prices were unchanged at Barrie, $21.25 delivered.

Conductress Finds $3,000

San Francisco, Aug. 23 (AP)—Conductress Ethel Jeffers found a purse containing $3,000 in cash and travellers' cheques in her street car last night and turned it in at the end of her run. The loser was waiting. So was a $1 reward.

M.P. Warns 'Fight to Finish' Of Labor and Management 'Would Wreck Our Whole Economy'

Ottawa, Aug. 22. (CP)—N. J. M. Lockhart (PC-Lincoln) warned the Commons Thursday that the threatened "fight to the finish" between labor and management would "wreck our whole economy".

He was concluding a speech begun Wednesday on the report of the Industrial Relations, Committee.

Mr. Lockhart said he objected as much to the rigidity of labor week as to the government's insistence on a rigid 15 cents maximum for wage increases.

The whole system of employment was being disrupted by these set patterns. The insistence on a 40-hour week left small employers in a perilous position. The "present unrest" in the ranks was creeping into their staffs and creating disunity and decreased production.

William Irvine (CCF-Cariboo) said he "heartily disagreed" with Mr. Lockhart's views.

There was "practically open warfare" between employers and employees but it was the result of a growth of two centuries. It was Canada's No. 1 problem.

He echoed previous C.C.F. contentions that the committee report reflected "complete inadequacy" to provide a solution for any current strike.

Parliament should not close until the steel strike was ended, he said. Nothing would be settled by mere adoption of the committee's report. The situation was becoming increasingly serious.

"If we have many more speeches like that strikes will never end," commented Labor Minister Mitchell.

"If we have many more Ministers of Labor like my friend we will never have anything but strikes," Mr. Irvine replied.

Stock Prices Yield On N.Y. Exchange

New York, Aug. 23 AP) — Stocks broke sharply in Thursday's trading, steels, motors, rubbers and assorted "blue chips" falling $1 to $5, and for an interval, liquidation was so heavy that the high speed ticker tape was two minutes behind actual floor transactions.

Brokers attributed the slump partly to the threatening foreign situation, wage-price problems and the recent refusal of the market to respond to favorable business news.

97,000 Alberta Farmers Await Result of Talks

Edmonton, Aug. 23. (CP) — About 97,000 Alberta farmers anxiously await the outcome of a three-day discussion by officials of the Alberta Farmers' Union on the proposed delivery strike of all farm products, more than 20,000 members of its organization.

The remainder of the 55,000 organized farmers in Alberta and not to date shown any great sympathy with the proposed strike, but what their reactions would be should the strike take place is not known.

The Union's discussion on the possible future action in their bid for parity prices of farm products is being attended by 20 delegates, comprising the union's board of directors, executive and central strike committee.

A problem understood to be under careful consideration by the farmers is the type of farm products to be withheld from the market should a strike be called.

The main demand of the A.F.U. in its fight for parity prices of farm products is the immediate establishment of a floor-holding board comprised of organized farmers, businessmen, labor and government representatives.

Immediate removal of all increases in farm machinery prices since the 1944 level, abolishment of the Grain Exchange, equitable adjustment of freight rates and satisfactory floor prices levels for livestock, poultry and dairy products are other demands being sought by the union.

Prairies Watch Fibre Flax Crop

Portage La Prairie, Man., Aug. 23. (CP)—Here on the Portage Plains, part of the Canadian West that is ever the home of experiment, the dice are tumbling down in an agricultural gamble that may bring a new crop to the Prairies—fibre flax.

Today this experimental flax growing covers 200 specially chosen and rented acres. The crop looks "reasonably good".

In a few weeks, with the tugging of the flax completed, the scientific men of agriculture will have a fair idea whether Manitoba-grown flax will ever be marketable in the form of linen.

Experiment with the red-flowered fibre flax on the prairies is not new. This effort, under the careful eye of the Dominion Agriculture Department is just the latest attempt to bring this hard-to-grow crop to the wheatlands.

To further the experiment the Dominion government built a pilot plant here, 50 miles west of Winnipeg, where the flax will be processed and E. H. MacKay, director of the mill, said today he expected to have a "reasonably good grade" of flax for his efforts.

For this test the Federal department provided the seed and farmers who rent the land, mostly in 10-acre lots, help in sowing. As Prairie farmers have already are old flax mog, but of a type—the fine-flowered flax for production of linseed.

After sowing the Agricultural Department took over the experiment, watched the growth and will harvest and move the flax to the mill, on land donated by the Manitoba government.

Why the Portage Plains for this experiment? Experts explain the plains grow best in a temperate, humid climate and does not stand up under drought as this area noted for fine soil and superior moisture conditions, offered the West's best testing ground.

Of this year's crop Mr. MacKay said: "It didn't germinate well. The Spring was too dry".

4,100 City Workers Get Wage Increases At Vancouver

Vancouver, Aug. 23. (CP) — Union officials announced here Wednesday night that some 4,100 city workers have been awarded wage increases ranging from 11 to 18 cents an hour at regional war labor board sessions this week. Details disclosed by the unionists bear out earlier reports by Labor Minister George Pearson, chairman of the Board, that "several previously deferred applications around the 15-cent level were being approved.

Birth Rate Rises, Rate Per 1,000 23.8 in 1945

Ottawa, Aug. 23 (CP)— Canada's birth rate is on the upswing with 68,988 live births during the fourth quarter of 1945 compared with 66,864 during the same period in 1944, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported.

Deaths during the quarter totaled 32,242 against 32,585 in the last quarter of 1944. There were 26,476 marriages against 25,099 in the corresponding period of 1944.

Following are the figures for the full year 1945 with 1944 figures in brackets: Live births 238,- 998 (234,220); birth rate per thousand 23.8 (23.8); illegitimate births 12,833 (12,079); still births 6,588 (6,705); deaths 112,- 966 (116,082); death rate per thousand 9.3 natural increase 175,- 125 (171,068); marriages 107,478 (101,406).

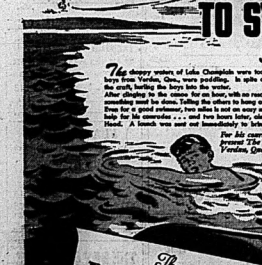
BOY SWIMS 2 MILES TO BRING HELP TO STRANDED FRIENDS!
JOHN GREEN wins Dow Award


The deep waters of Lake Champlain were too much for the frail canoe in which four boys from Verdun, Que., were paddling. In spite of their efforts, a sudden gust overturned the craft, hurling the boys into the water.
After clinging to the canoe for an hour, with no rescue in sight, young John Green decided that something must be done. Telling the others to hang on, he set out for the shore. Though far from fit a good swimmer, two miles is not an easy matter. But he had won determined to get help for his companions, and two hours later, utterly exhausted, he reached Island Head. A launch was sent out immediately to bring the remaining boys to safety.
For his courageous action, we are proud to present The Dow Award to John Green, of Verdun, Que.
THE DOW AWARD
is a mission for outstanding courage, skill or humanitarian service. Each Award is $100 and a Bronze Medal. The Award is presented by The Dow Brewery to persons of any age, creed or nationality.

VISCOUNT MONTGOMERY WELCOMED TO CANADA

Cheers Ring Out As Chief of Staff Steps Ashore

Mediterranean Veterans Form Guard of Honor

By JACK REAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Halifax, Aug. 24 (CP)—Wearing the familiar beret and battle dress, Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery stepped ashore here today to inspect a guard of honor at the beginning of his 17-day tour of Canada.

A burst of cheers greeted him as he walked down the gangplank but there was also some booing that seemed to come from some of the Canadian veterans on the ship. There was no immediate explanation for the booing which was distinctly heard amid the louder din of cheering.

Later, however, one of the group of soldiers lining the ship's rails said it was all in fun. "We always booed the brass hats," he said, "and we wouldn't accept even old Monty."

The booers were some of the 500 returning veterans who accompanied Monty across the Atlantic on the liner Mauretania. His fellow-passengers also included 800 dependants of Canadian servicemen.

Archbishop of Canterbury Leads Early

A distinguished fellow passenger was Most Rev. Geoffrey Francis Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury, named for 1946 to attend the general synod of the Church of England in Canada.

The Archbishop landed about half an hour before the Field Marshal's ship, which docked at 8:10 a.m. E.D.T.

In the bright sunshine the trim figure of the Field Marshal, wearing his multi-badged khaki beret and battle dress, was quickly spotted at his position on the bridge of the big ship.

A burst of cheers from the dockside greeted his appearance and he waved briefly and smiled broadly as he leaned on the bridge rail beside Capt. George Cove, master of the ship.

"Monty", looking perky and refreshed after his ocean voyage, took a few minutes to look at the ship's routine. He also listened to the beautiful strains played by a bevy of Dutch war brides, who carried on an interesting a programme of their native songs.

On the dockside men of the Princess Louise Fusiliers, a Halifax regiment whose personnel had fought under Monty's command in the Mediterranean theatre, were drawn up to form a honor guard formation.

Halifax, its streets gaily decorated with bunting, was on holiday in honor of the Field Marshal's visit here.

When the ship had docked the Field Marshal left the ship for breakfast.

Members of the crew leaving the ship said he had been a good sailor, had eaten hearty meals and had eaten regularly in the main dining salon with the troops and war brides.

On hand to meet the Field Marshal as he Mauretania slid up to the dock were Defence Minister Abbott, Lt.-Gen. Charles Foulkes, chief of the Canadian General Staff, and senior officers of Eastern Command.

Ahead of the distinguished soldier was a cheer-filled itinerary for the coast-to-coast tour of the Dominion. The first step in Maritimes will include stops at Charlottetown, Moncton, St. John, Fredericton before heading for Quebec by plane Tuesday.

Reporters will get the 17-day trip which will take the hero of El Alamein to Victoria and back as a corps of busy army officers.

The schedule calls for some retirement for the Imperial Chief of Staff, both on doctor's orders and because some time will be needed for decisions affecting the British army.

His party of 25 will travel mostly by plane, keeping up with the program, with the view of making the New York sailing date on time.

With the official party is a brace of photographers and a corps of dispatches from the Field Marshal to British armies in various operational theatre.

To See Veterans And Capture Something Of Canada's Spirit

Halifax, Aug. 24 (CP) — Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, in a statement issued on his arrival here today, declared that the main purpose of his visit to Canada was to "see the veterans who fought with me, and to capture something of the spirit of Canada."

He said he also hoped to see something of the military life of Canada and he thought that Britain had much to learn from Dominion in the matter of training methods.

Lt.-Col. Trum Warren, D.S.O. Toronto, Monty's former personal assistant in the field who was called back in service for the Field Marshal's tour, handed out the short typewritten statement.

In the statement, Viscount Montgomery expressed his pleasure to the honorary degrees he will receive from Laval, Bourse, McGill and Toronto Universities.

There was a touch of humor here for a reporter reminded that Monty had once been quoted as quipping that he had received a record of the University of Toronto.

Premier Drew of Ontario at Toronto last night said "Until such time as we receive the formal request for Ontario Provincial Police to participate in the parade we can make no comment." C. R. Magone, K. C., solicitor for the Attorney-General's department, commenting that it was having "difficulties in understanding Soviet explanations" with regard to the Dardanelles, recalled that Russia's demands for joint defence of the straits there with and for narrowing control of that vital waterway to Russia and the powers only.

"The government of the republic is of the opinion that Turkey herself is competent in defending with all her might the country against any attack from whichever side it may come," the government said in a long note to Russia made public last night.

"To weigh in advance the form of defence at a moment when all nations of the world are struggling with all their might for contributions in creating an era of peace and security would be to deny the existence of the aims of the United Nations and to endanger, at the present time, the unity which the Turkish government does not understand.

"The most sure guarantee of the security of the Soviet Union in the Black Sea resides in not in a search for privileged strategic position in the strait but in the establishment of friendly and trusting relations with a neighboring Turkey which decided to use all her forces to insure, under the happy era but whose efforts in that sense need to be seconded by equal goodwill coming from the Soviet neighbor.

The reply, handed to Russia Thursday, followed precisely the lines of earlier American, British and French notes rejecting both Soviet penetration of the strait and the proposal to shut off control of the Dardanelles from countries except those in the Black Sea, to which the strait links the Mediterranean.

TURKEY REJECTS RUSSO DEMANDS ON DARDANELLES

Will Not Allow Joint Defence Nor Narrow Control of Waterway

By EDWIN B. GREENWALD

Ankara, Aug. 24 (AP) — The Turkish government, commenting that it was having "difficulties in understanding Soviet explanations" with regard to the Dardanelles, has rejected flatly Russia's demands for joint defence of the straits there with and for narrowing control of that vital waterway to Russia and the powers only.

"The government of the republic is of the opinion that Turkey herself is competent in defending with all her might the country against any attack from whichever side it may come," the government said in a long note to Russia made public last night.

STRIKE TENSION MOUNTS AS POLICE AID IS REQUESTED

Police Commission Of Hamilton to Appeal To Attorney-General Some Time Today

Hamilton, Aug. 24 (CP) — Decision of the Hamilton police commission to request provincial aid in maintaining law and order today marked a critical turning point in the six weeks' old strife of the United Steelworkers of America against Canada's three basic steel plants.

While plants at Sault Ste. Marie and Sydney have been closed down, the Steel Company of Canada plant here has been operating since the strike began on Aug. 8, an estimated 2,500 workers on the job, roughly half the normal force. And it is the Hamilton company's continued production that has caused intensive picketing, with frequent turbulence that finally reached last night in the police commission's appeal to the Ontario Attorney-General for assistance.

Police Chief J. R. Crocker told the board of police commissioners yesterday that his department could no longer control the situation "without extensive police reinforcement." That meeting was adjourned until last night, when all three members were present and Mayor Sam Lawrence, Magistrate H. A. Bruce and Controller W. G. Lazier.

His Mayor Lawrence objecting, the commission by a 2-1 vote decided to ask the Ontario government for assistance. Magistrate Burbidge and Judge Eastabrooke, sitting in court, were way of maintaining law and order. Chief Crocker reported.

The Police Commission voted that the request be considered at Ontario government offices in Toronto today.

Premier Drew of Ontario at Toronto last night said "Until such time as we receive the formal request for Ontario Provincial Police to participate in the parade we can make no comment." C. R. Magone, K. C., solicitor for the Attorney-General's department, commenting that it was having "difficulties in understanding Soviet explanations" with regard to the Dardanelles, recalled that Russia's demands for joint defence of the straits there with and for narrowing control of that vital waterway to Russia and the powers only.

Czechoslovakia Says Hungarian Draft Treaty Does Not Go Far Enough

By ROBERT C. WILSON

Paris, Aug. 24 (AP)—Czechoslovakia told the peace conference today that the draft treaty for Hungary did not go far enough in stating Hungary's "complicity" in the war.

The Czech delegate told the Hungarian political and territorial committee it was "absolutely essential" the treaty state that Hungary was the first of the satellites to voluntarily join the Axis."

The committee was debating the treaty's preamble. The Romanian political and territorial committee was also discussing the preamble of its treaty.

The Czechoslovak speaker was Vladimir Clementis.

American delegate Lt.-Gen. Walter Bedell-Smith suggested that since the Czechs had not formally proposed an amendment, the committee get on with its work. He said the treaty preamble stated Hungary had "become an Ally of Hitlerite Germany" and this was "ominous enough."

Committee Strikes Snag

The Romanian committee struck a snag when delegates protested they had not received copies of a minor Australian amendment and an equally minor Romanian suggestion for changing the late at which Romania was considered to have joined the Allies.

Chairman Dimitri Manuilsky of the Ukraine observed that "if we do this we will be peace conference will last until 1955." The committee finally decided, however, not to try to take any definitive action today, but to enter into only a preliminary discussion of the preamble.

Approved Preamble

Getting down to the first actual review of treaty drafts supplied by the Foreign Ministers of the Big Four, the Italian political and economic commission of the 21-power conference last night approved 133 words in Italy's treaty preamble in a session marked by a victory for powers seeking to ease the big four proposals.

The major accomplishment of yesterday's four-hour session was the insertion by unanimous consent in the preamble for the Italian treaty of an amendment proposed by China declaring that the Fascist regime in Italy had been overthrown "with the assistance of democratic elements of the Italian people."

Italy won other victories during the day in the withdrawal by Yugoslavia of one proposal to add Albania to the list of states to sign the Italian treaty and another to pin "full" rather than partial responsibility on Italy for her entry into the war.

CBC EXPANSION STRIKES A SNAG IN PARLIAMENT

Opposition Argues That Through CBC Govt. Was Trying to Kill Private Stations

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 24 — (CP)—Government plans for the expansion of the publicly-owned CBC struck opposition in the Commons yesterday from Progressive Conservative and Social Credit benches, but drew support from C.C.F. members.

The Progressive Conservative and Social Credit members argued that through the CBC the government was trying to kill private radio stations. The C.C.F. argued that the CBC, as public corporation, was better suited to satisfy the public.

The debate occurred on a bill to amend provide revenue needed for CBC expansion, which also would provide for the reappointment for a seven-year term of Dr. Augustin Frigon, general manager.

Among participants in the debate were Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton); M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader; E. G. Hansell (SC—Lethbridge); W. J. Knight (CCF—Saskatoon City) and John Hackett (PC—Stanstead).

Ken Gamet of Affairs

Before the House turned to the public bill, members completed study of Defence Department estimates and their study of them ran the gamut of military affairs.

Opposition members urged detachment of the Alaska Highway as a tourist and commercial venture to satisfy MP. Gamet, Conservative and ex-army officer. Col. Hugues Lapointe, parliamentary assistant to Defence Minister Abbott, promised to pass along suggestions.

Mr. Lapointe completed the pledge on behalf of Defence Minister Minister Abbott departed for Halifax to greet Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery. The House then turned to considering the bill to amend the Radio Act.

Many Questions

A flood of questions and answers dotted the renewed consideration of the bill to amend the Canadian Broadcasting Act. Fellow members with Progressive Conservative sympathies wanted to know if there will be a plethora of officers in the proposed new CBC army, with the McKay (CCF—Weyburn) wanting the House told whether the world peace rested in an international government, and with United States Secretary of State Byrnes' statement force would use the warfested battleships.

Maxim M. Litvinoff, Former Soviet Ambassador to U.S., Released

Moscow, Aug. 24—(AP)—Maxim M. Litvinoff, former Soviet Foreign Commissar and Ambassador to the United States, has been released from his duties as a deputy foreign minister, it was officially announced today.

The Council of Ministers simultaneously appointed two new deputy foreign ministers—Fyodor Gusev, Soviet Ambassador to Britain and Yakov Alexandrovich Malik.

The second vacancy had resulted from the releasing of Solomon Abramovich Lozovsky as a deputy foreign minister last month. Lozovsky had been named chief of the Soviet Information Bureau.

Litvinoff, 70, was one of the oldest Russian Revolutionaries. In the past, his resignations and appointments often have presaged a change in Soviet foreign policy.

After serving for a decade as Foreign Commissar, he was replaced unexpectedly by V. M. Molotov on May 3, 1939, in the midst of negotiations with Britain and France for a mutual assistance pact.

The significance of this move became apparent in August, 1939, when the Kremlin concluded a non-aggression pact with Germany. War broke out a month later.

Litvinoff arrived in Washington to head the Ambassador Dec. 6, 1941, one day before the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. He remained until Aug. 1943 by Andrei A. Gromyko, at a time when the Russians were struggling for a second front in western Europe.

An advocate of collective security and close relations with Britain and the United States, Litvinoff negotiated the United States recognition of Russia with President Roosevelt and the United States State Department in 1933.

Litvinoff was looked upon by fellow diplomats as a strong advocate of Russian participation in international affairs such as the United Nations, and as a champion of peaceful Russia and the capitalistic nations could recognize their views.

Father, Four Sons, Chinese Boy Have Disappeared

Stamford, Conn., Aug. 24 (AP) — Abraham Kohn, 45, a Stamford auditor, his four sons, aged six to 14, and a three-year-old Chinese boy have disappeared from Kohn's home here, leaving as the only clue to their whereabouts a row boat found drifting in Long Island Sound about a quarter of a mile off a breakwater at Manacanock, N.Y.

The boat was dry and empty, save for the oars and a pair of children's sneakers when it was found last evening.

Kohn, police reported, left behind a homemade phonograph record addressed to his wife which said:

Union Employees Hamilton Plants, Out in Sympathy

Hamilton, Aug. 24 — (CP) Union employees of two Hamilton plants — Canadian drawn Steel Company, Ltd., and Union Drawn Steel Company, Ltd.—walked out today in protest against action of the Hamilton police commission in deciding to call for outside police help to maintain order in the steel strike.

Eamon Park, publicity director in Hamilton for the United Steel Workers of America (C.I.O.), said he knew workers in the two plants had gone out and added there was "considerable" support in C.I.O. unions in Hamilton over the Police Commission move.

Reported Death Of Five Fliers May Bring Action

State Department Declines Yes-or-No Answer to Querry

Tito Accuses U.S. of Deliberate Reconnaissance

Belgrade, Aug. 24 (AP)—Marshal Tito, in a written reply to correspondents' questions, today accused United States military authorities of deliberate aerial reconnaissance of Yugoslav military installations along the Italian-Yugoslav frontier.

In the text of his replies to questions by newspapermen, Tito claimed that unauthorized flights over Yugoslav soil were carried out for the purpose of anti-espionage those regions which our military units are occupying in zone A, the west of the Trieste zone.

The question which the Yugoslav Premier was answering was:

"Do you believe the Government of Yugoslav frontiers to be deliberate, and, if so, for what reasons?"

Claims it Shows Way

Tito began his answer to that question, Tito said: . . .

"Unauthorized aeroplanes flying over our territory in upper Slovenia by Allied transport and reconnaissance planes, and accidental erring from routes, or on reconnaissance flights for deliberate and arbitrary acts by Allied airmen who do not respect our sovereignty and who fly over our territory without permission in order to violate the way, as they themselves state."

Accused of Intimidation

Tito accused American military authorities of attempting to intimidate his followers and encouraging Italian irredentists. Heavily armed craft such as flying fortresses have been specially employed to these ends, he said.

"According to our profound conviction flights over our territory by Allied military planes . . . dropping leaflets on various other types, even flying fortresses—have for their principle purpose in the first place a demonstration and display of military strength and intimidation of the peaceful population on the one hand and encouragement of anti-democratic elements in Yugoslavia on the other.

Tito's accusations came while Yugoslav officials were prepared to open a mass grave believed to contain the bodies of all five occupants of an American transport plane shot down by Yugoslav fighters last week. The grave was to be dug by Yugoslav soldiers and civilians planned to verify a report by Tito that the plane parachuted from the blazing aircraft.

Tito handed a note to United States Ambassador Richard Patterson at the summer resort of Bled yesterday saying that there apparently were no survivors of the crash. He described the incident as "a regrettable accident," but offered no apology.

Visited Scene of Crash

Mr. Patterson and other American diplomats visited the scene of the crash yesterday and found reliable evidence that none of the American airmen managed to escape with their lives. They found pieces of flesh still hanging from trees and fragments of army clothing. Wreckage was scattered over a quarter-mile radius.

Mr. Patterson was told by peasants that a group of Yugoslav military officials opened the bodies from the wreckage to a nearby village."

A peasant named Skrabec said he had obtained "a common coffin" for the bodies.

Pointers Eliminate Trenton From Int. O.A.S.A. Playdowns

Point Anne eliminated the smart Trenton Intermediate softball team from the playoff game of the series at Picton last night by a score of 16-11. Point Anne won the first game and was defeated Friday by the first game but Trenton won a protest when the Ox Pointers substituted a player contrary to OASA ordered the game replayed on neutral ground.

The game was a free-hitting affair with Point Anne clouting the Trenton hurlers for fifteen hits and the latter from the town west of here nicking Stan. Luffman for twelve safeties.

A feature of the game was the hitting of Horswood, Point Anne second baseman who got six for five the last home-run which was unaffected, was the runner failed to touch the plate.

Point Anne plays Kingston Heights at Point Anne on Monday night in the first game of the second round.

Weekly Market Most Colorful For Some Time

City market shoppers had little to complain about today when an exception perhaps of some of the prices. The offering was one of the most colorful seen here in some time and housewives and visiting housewives had plenty of fruits and vegetables to choose from.

Samuel Forrester, Trenton, Instantly Killed in Fall

Two Companions Admitted to Belleville Hospital With Serious Injuries

Trenton—Samuel Forrester, 44, employed at the Canada Metal Company was instantly killed and two companions injured here yesterday afternoon when the superstructure they were hoisting to a railway flat car, crashed to the ground.

The Belleville General Hospital suffering with injuries are Norman Broadworth, 162 West Street, and Lewis Begin, 127 Murray St.

Another member of the working crew Harold Matthews managed to catch an overhead beam and escaped injury.

The four men were standing on the superstructure as it was being hoisted to the flat car. Without warning the heavy hoisting chain broke and the steel frame fell to the floor. It also crashed to the ground. Forrester was pinned beneath the iron structure and a large pile of timber.

Dr. Gordon Hepburn and Dr. E. A. McQuade were called to the scene of the tragedy and after examining the dead man pronounced them to the Belleville hospital. His body was later removed a preliminary inquest which was held today and adjourned until August 28.

8-Pound Trout Caught on Worm At Paudash Lake

A worm is no vaspecter of fish, and if used at the right time is liable to produce the most unexpected results.

Take the case of that American lady tourist who for the want of something else to do one day last week back Paudash Lake way, got herself a rod-and-line, fished a piece of tree that is, fixed a line to it and attached a nice juicy worm to the hook.

She sat on the shore of the lake and dangled the worm in the air, angling fraternity dubs it, and let the worm get its swimming exercise in the cool waters of the lake.

Then things happened. There came a vicious tug on the line and the fishing pole nearly was dragged from the lady's hands. She regained control and after several minutes' battle landed an eight-pound two ounce lake trout.

And a lot of other fishermen, 'tis reported, troll the northern lakes for hours for the 250 feet of copper line and get nary a bite.

National Council Of Young People Drafts Motions

After a week of discussions and conferences the young people of the Methodist Church meeting in United Church are meeting today to draft their resolutions based on their findings, and to present a slate of officers for the next meeting in the year's time.

Rev. Gerald B. Switzer, B.A., B.D., B.Sc. in Chemistry, is guest at Albert College on "Smashing the Dollar Sign."

"Let us get to the fundamentals of life" said Rev. Switzer. "There are diverse elements trying to bring harmony in our lives but it is no contribution to union for us who claim to be Christians to look down our noses at other people. No man, however down or out, should be refused the hand of fellowship and a friendly welcome. Sometimes we find young folks looking down their noses at older folks and calling them old fogies, and sometimes it is the older ones who look down on the younger. Some times we find in particular group a difficulty for the business administrator to understand the person who is concerned with the spiritual matters. These things must be changed. Next Enough to Fight System

"It isn't enough," continued the speaker "to fight the war system, instead we must fill the peace system. We must get a Public opinion behind the United Nations. The United Nations is the machinery that is going together the good-will of the people; it is building the bridges of understanding, as an engineer couples freight cars together.

"Let us see," urged Dr. Switzer "what we can do to build racial understanding. What are the basic principles of democracy? As the first place it is old-fashioned. It may have been all right when geographic boundaries separated people, but that was a thousand years ago. It is also unscientific. there is not a single pure race in the whole world and there never has been. There is no race better than any other. Some people think that because from babyhood when everything centres around the child's ego and he thinks in terms of things. This type of person is grown up physically but not psychologically. everything centres in 'me'. We must recognize that Christians, that we cannot be in vital relationship to Jesus and still maintain any prejudice. Such things, we must get in there and do something about it. Are you as a member of the Young People's Union the intimate, personal friend of someone of another nation?" the speaker asked. "You represent Jesus Christ. The answer for Canada and the other united nations are 'Here is my hand.'"

Moving Pictures Taken

After the morning session at Albert College the representatives met in front of the chapel and moving pictures were taken of the gathering as they sang community songs.

On Wednesday night, a number of the young people under the direction of Rev. Harold Amos of Bridge St. Church were the guests of CJBQ, local radio station and expressed their opinion of what the National Council meant to them.

50,000 WORKERS IDLE MORE THAN MONTH BY STRIKES

115,000 C.N.R. Employees Agree to Accept Wage Boosts of 8 and 10 Cents Hour

By JACK WILLIAMS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 24 (CP) — Complacities of Canada's turbulent labor situation increased today, with no indication of an easing in sight. More than a month after 50,000 workers—many of them in key industries—first struck there was a month.

Major development came in wages—the basic issue in the strikes and threatened strikes.

Prime Minister Mackenzie announced yesterday in the Commons that 115,000 employees of the Canadian National and Ontario Northland railways had agreed to accept increases of eight and 10 cents an hour. That gave support to some industries the limit in other industries might only be 8 cents.

Not Pattern for Industry

The railway workers said the 10-cent settlement they had made should not be considered a pattern for industry. H. B. Chase, chairman of the negotiating committee, said any suggestion would be "wholly unfair and unjustifiable."

Behind the discussion over wages were a number of unsettled, but electrical plants, textiles and chemicals.

Particularly, there was the steel strike, dating back to July 15 and affecting plants in Sault Ste. Marie, Hamilton and Sydney. United Steelworkers of America have set their figure at 15% cents while the government, as controller of the plants, has offered 10 cents.

Rests With Government

The responsibility for settling the dispute appeared to rest with the government, rather than with the companies. Labor Minister in the Commons action Thursday of accepting the report of the Conciliation Industrial Relations Committee.

That report dealt with labor relations in the railway term and the House rejected C.C.F. proposals that it be sent back to the committee for special proposals on the issue.

Major threat among workers still on the job was in packing-houses. Conciliator S. E. Richards of Winnipeg, acting as a commissioner, was trying to effect new agreements among packinghouse companies and the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO).

Resolution Sent To City Council

Mr. Connolly, general organizer of the Plumbers and Steamfitters Union of Canada, was guest speaker at a fully attended meeting of the Belleville District Labor Council held at the Recipient's Hall, Pine Street, August 19th.

The following resolution was passed: "That the City Council apply to the Federal government for a revision of the Housing Act to allow the municipality to enter into a housing project with priorities to local merchants that the houses so erected rented to workingmen people, according to their incomes with the option of buying, and that Union labor be employed in their erection".

Irish Times Praises Stand By United States

Dublin, Aug. 24 — (CP) — The Irish Times applauded today the strong stand taken by the United States toward Yugoslavia in connection with the forcing down of two American planes.

"Twisting the lion's tail has been a favorite pastime of the European continent for quite a long time," the Irish Dublin newspaper. "When they try to pluck a few feathers out of the tail of the American eagle, however, they find themselves brought up with a round turn.

"We do not always approve of American methods in diplomacy. They can be irritatingly crude and sometimes do more harm than good. On this occasion, however, we are inclined to think Washington has done the right thing."

DID NOT WANT TO BE DRAFTED

Camden, N.J., Aug. 24 (CP) —Franklin B. Brooks, 28, of Riverside, N.J., told United States District Court Judge William H. Madden he shot off two fingers of his left hand so he wouldn't be drafted during the war. Pleading guilty in failure of violating the Selective Service Act, he testified before Judge Madden in Federal Court yesterday that his wife tried to dissuade him on May 14, 1941, the day he left for the attic of his home and shot off his fingers. Judge Madden set September 6th. for sentencing Brooks.

From the 250,000 square miles of timberland in southern Quebec, comes more than half of the pulp wood that makes Canada world-leader in newsprint production and gives Quebec a $150 million industry. At Round Lake Camp, one of the oldest in the Gatineau district, loggers arise before dawn, retire early after strenuous days in bush and camp. Camp cook Georges Piche knows he must feed three times a week for hungry workers at Sturgeon Camp. Loggers use pike poles and peaveys to aid logs in their long journey down the Gatineau River. Jams slow progress and sometimes require dynamiting. Waiting for the end of their journey, logs arrive at lumber and paper mills near the junction of the Gatineau and Ottawa rivers where loggers on tug-boats propel them toward moving belts leading to timber piles at Gatineau Mills near Hull, Quebec.

"I Was Young Then"

By Genevieve Fournia

It seems to me, that a big hospital is a place where you will find mass drama. Patients live there, in a world apart from everyday affairs, but each case is dramatic.

Some time ago, I had to hurry my young son to such a hospital. He had cut his hand deeply, severing the tendons, and these had to be sutured.

At last o'clock he was wheeled away to the operating room, and did not come down until eleven twenty. It had been a long and difficult operation. His hand was in a cast, and it was four o'clock before he really came out of the anaesthetic. For two days he was wretched, I sat beside him. After that he sat up and took notice of all that went on around him.

He was in a large airy ward, with plenty of nurses and orderlies passing through. In the next bed was Gordon, seventeen years old. He had been terribly burned from his knees down with gasoline and was waiting for a skin grafting operation. He had been in hospital thirty days, but was in high spirits most of the time, and joilied the nurses, and we all fun in almost everything.

A big Hungarian refined worker was brought in very sick. On Sunday he had a bad appendectomy. He was very noisy as he came out of the anaesthetic. He roared for cold pop constantly. The nurse spoke firmly, "Do you know where you are? This is a hospital, let me hear no more about beer."

"Bring me beer, or I shoot the nurse," insisted the Hungarian. They finally quieted him.

Gordon got a bad scare beside him until he had a good night's sleep. He was a boy who had been carefully brought up and knew nothing about drinking. He thought he was returned to his hospital bed, as pale as death. His body was raised in a sort of wire rack to keep the sheets away from his hips, from which the skin for grafting had been taken. He was still unconscious. Soon, however, as his parents sat near, his lips began moving, and my son, who was listening intently, could hardly believe his ears, when Gordon first whispered and then shouted "whiskey! whiskey!" over and over. His parents looked at each other aghast, and Alan, my son, giggled audibly. When we told Gordon about it afterward, he would hardly believe he had said it. Subconsciously he must have been thinking of the Hungarian.

Quite a young Chinese was in another bed. He had had an eye removed and was able to get about the ward, for a little while every afternoon, on crutches. It seems that the year before, he had entered the hospital with a bad fracture. After it was reduced, his leg had been held suspended, with weights, for some time.

One night the Chinese had become impatient, and unable to bear the pain any longer. He kicked his leg free of the suspension apparatus. Of course he untied all the knitting of bones, and all the healing that had taken place. His condition became serious, and eventually his leg had to be amputated. He had been in the hospital for months after that. He was taught to use crutches to get about, but had no confidence in himself. His home was upstairs, over a store, and he felt he could never negotiate the climb. So he stayed on in the hospital. His countrymen came to see him often, and brought treats. He seemed to have plenty of money to send out for cigarettes and extras, and really was quite happy there, where everyone was friendly and kind.

Another young chap was brought in who had been horribly smashed in a truck accident. He, too, was harnessed up to steel rods overhead, and suffered a great deal. He would be there long weeks. His wife told me, however, of neighbors' kindness when I had only been married a year, and neighbors in the block came from time to time, and the village her husband came from, raised a purse for over two hundred dollars for them, which made the future look a little more secure if he could get well, and they really appreciated the feeling that their best friends were behind them. It gave them the courage they sorely needed.

Everywhere you turned lay people, whose lives had been struck by drama. I still often wonder how they have all made out.

Cottons Limited Rejects Strike Settlement Plan

Valleyfield, Que., Aug. 24 — (CP) — Montreal Cottons Limited Thursday night rejected a new strike settlement proposed by the United Textile Workers of America (A.F.L.), aimed at bringing an early end to the 83-day-old strike which has kept 3,000 workers idle.

G. R. Gordon, company official, said that the union proposals "are entirely out of keeping with the labor laws of the province and the Dominion and are contrary to the interests of the workers and the company."

The union has proposed a secret ballot among all workers at the plant be held to determine whether the Valleyfield Local should be their sole bargaining agent; that all workers be taken back without discrimination and that the company sign with the Valleyfield local, should it obtain a majority vote of workers, the same contract as in the Montreal mills of the Dominion Textile Company, parents company of Montreal Cottons.

Baronet's Heir Believed Living In Canada

London, Aug. 24 — (CP Cable) —Wanted: The heir to a baronetcy, believed to be living somewhere in Canada.

If he is still alive the heir's name probably is Hardinge and he would be a descendant of Edmund Cecil Hardinge, who went to Canada before the turn of the century, is believed to have worked for the Canadian Pacific Railway and to have been killed in a railway accident in 1915.

Sir Charles Hardinge, the fifth baronet, has been seeking for years to locate descendants of Edmund and has enlisted the aid of Debrett's Peerage, "Bible" of British titled folk.

Debretts said that until existence of the Canadian heir was confirmed or disproved, doubts would be cast upon the succession to the title of the nearest English relative of Sir Charles, 18-year-old Nicholas William Hardinge.

Nicholas William is a distant cousin of Charles H., cousin of Sir Charles. Although Debrett's does not say so, Sir Charles said Charles H. had a younger brother whose sons would have claims in precedence to Nicholas William.

Rev. George S. Buckingham, M.A. of Ottawa who has been filling the pulpit of Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal Church for the last three Sundays and looking after the congregation during the vacation of the rector, the Rev. Telford B. Russell, is no stranger in Belleville as he attended Albert College and has preached in Emmanuel Church on previous occasions. For years he has been interested in the work of the Daily Vacation Bible Schools and some years ago he formed and presided over such schools in Belleville. He is the Canadian representative of the World Association and had the privilege of conducting programs in the Hall of Religion at Chicago's "Century of Progress" World's Fair. During his present services Emmanuel Church, Mr. Buckingham has based all his sermons on various aspects of the Lord's Prayer.

Charge Woman Officer Ordered Kronberg Castle Safe Opened

Frankfurt, Aug. 23. (AP)—A new theft of priceless heirlooms from Kronberg Castle was charged by the United States Army today as the prosecution opened its case against Capt. Kathlen B. Nash Durant of the United States Women's Army Corps in connection with the $1,500,000 Hesse Crown jewel theft.

The prosecution alleges that Capt. Durant ordered a German employee of the House of Hesse to empty a safe in Kronberg Castle and hand over its contents.

The prosecution indicated that it would introduce as evidence a "voluntary statement" which Capt. Durant allegedly made after her arrest in connection with the theft of a lead-covered box of glittering gems.

In addition to the jewels placed in Castle cellar by the Hesse Foundation, the prosecution said that Prince August Wilhelm of Prussia, entrusted his personal possessions with the Princess Sophia of Greece and they were locked in a safe in the castle.

"Sometime after the jewels were taken from the cellar," added the prosecution, "the accused demanded that Herr Heinrich Lange, administrator of the Hesse Foundation, open the safe and give her the property in it."

Rubber Output Exceeds Estimates

Singapore, Aug. 24 — (Reuters) —Rubber output and stocks in the Malay states, together with imports from Dutch Borneo, Sumatra and neighboring islands have exceeded all earlier estimates, F. J. Kemlo, chairman of the Singapore Chamber of Commerce Rubber Association, told a meeting here. The United States allocation of 50,000 tons for the third quarter was absorbed almost overnight, he said. It is expected that the Government will take their quotas and that the rubber sections of the British Board of Trade will buy all that is left.

Nuernberg Trials Show Background Of Aggression

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Paris, Aug. 23 — Prime Minister Mackenzie King will confer with Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain today and should his conference clear up business on hand, the Canadian leader may be heading home Sunday on the Queen Mary.

An official announcement on Mr. King's plans is expected today or Saturday but it is known that he has come to the conclusion that he could leave the leadership of the Canadian delegation to the peace conference now that the 21-state gathering has reached the committee stage.

Mr. King returned to Paris yesterday after a swift, 2½-day visit by air to Berlin and Nuernberg. In Berlin he conferred with United States High Commissioner Conniskion officials while in Nuernberg he saw the war crimes trials and talked to Allied tribunal leaders.

Mr. King was especially pleased with his Nuernberg visit because it gave him a chance to talk over the value of the war crimes trials with key Allied officials.

He told The Canadian Press yesterday: "I am tremendously interested in the whole Nuernberg trial. It gave me a far fuller appreciation of its value (visit the court room.) I think it is a fortunate thing for the world to reveal the background of the last war and show how aggression war develops."

The Prime Minister's talks with senior British and American Control Council members gave him background to work out details of Canadian policy regarding the German peace treaty which will be considered later on at another peace conference.

Mr. King is known to feel that the German peace conference will be vitally important and that Canada will be keenly interested in it.

Precautions

Warning has been given as safeguard precautions to take against the possibility of getting the contamination which causes poliomyelitis. Medical and health departments are doing their utmost to prevent the spread of the malady and the advice should be very carefully considered and should be remembered.

The precautions to take are: to peel or scrub all raw fruits and vegetables before they are served, to protect food from flies, to teach children to avoid crowded places and overcrowding, and to avoid dirty water for bathing, to avoid over-fatigue and for parents to see that children have additional rest, to prevent sudden chills or exposure to too much sun and to make children wash their hands before eating.

As explained in a news story yesterday it is of course not the fruits and the vegetables that are dangerous, but it is the possibility they have come in contact with contamination from flying pests — there the danger may lie unless the fruits or vegetables are scraped or peeled, not only some but all of them.

On Friday the report across the country on polio showed a smaller increase, which is considered a favorable and hopeful sign.

Any and every precaution taken is worthwhile effort and time in order to protect especially the young life of the country from this dread disease, whose record of havoc has been so tragic.

Ven. Archdeacon Beamish

The death of the Venerable Archdeacon Beamish in his eighty-fourth year removes one who for many years lived in Belleville where he was rector of St. Thomas Church for many years and after fifteen years absence in England and on the Continent in the service of the Church returned to Belleville in 1941 to spend his declining years. As clergyman and as citizen he was held in the highest esteem by the people of this community. He took a deeply personal theatic interest in the Argyll Light Infantry of which he was chaplain until the time of his departure from this city. He was interested in civic affairs and always felt concern in the life and progress of the community. In the church he was a man of great organizing ability, an eloquent preacher and had served in the Church with his whole heart and won the affection and honor of his fellow clergymen and of the people of his own and other communions.

Many will recall with deep affection and feelings the kindly former rector of St. Thomas and his eminent services to church, parish and community.

Operation Unforgetting

A Commando "raid"—their last — was recently launched in Britain. It has been given the title "Operation Unforgetting," and Captain John Birbeck, one of the original members of the Commando, described it in an overseas broadcast the other day. Its object is "to raise sufficient money to redeem a promise made to every Commando, should he be killed." The broadcaster took part in every raid except two which the Commandos made, and he is in on this last one—on the Appeals Committee.

"Ordinary men with that extraordinary streak of stubborn willpower called spiritual iniquity' was Captain Birkbeck's thumbnail sketch of the Commandos. They had a love of adventure, naturally, but of adventure 'with a high purpose'. Within a week of the epic withdrawal from Dunkirk Commandos were back on those same beaches. The code name of that first Commando raid of the war was "Operation Charity." Subsequently their innumerable raids varied in design, scope and achievement. At one time or another, they were identified with every allied force; they were "farmed out" to tackle specialized jobs. Hitler's infamous order: "No Commando shall be taken prisoner for the shortest time, for the least pretext. They will be slaughtered to the last man. . . ." speaks for their work.

Now the last Commando raid is in progress. It has been coded "Operation Unforgetting" because every Commando was given this solemn pledge that should he be killed, those of his comrades who survived would stand by the widow, the orphaned, the dependants, as well as the more seriously disabled among the men themselves. Those killed were forty eight per cent of the total strength. And on volunteering for the Commandos a man voluntarily surrendered whatever previous rank he had held, and pensions granted are based on the Commando rank not that previously held.

Hence "Operation Unforgetting" is the raising of a fund in Britain to carry out the promise made.

"On the little island of the Dalmatians, Yugoslavia," Captain Birkbeck said, "used as a forward operational base for the Balkans, we built a cairn of stones brought from the scene of every Commando raid in Europe, North Africa, and the Levant. These were all carefully cemented together and on the face we set these words:

COMMANDOS

Here dead we lie, because we did not choose
To live and shame the land from which we sprung.
Life, to be sure, is nothing much to lose
But young man think it is, and we were young.

"REMEMBER US"

Even More Reticent

Inside sources in Berlin report that social life between the Western Allies and the Russians, which flourished in the days when General Eisenhower was there, now has dwindled almost to the vanishing point. One reason might be the following. Since Stalin's purges, such as Marshal Zinukoff and General Smirnoff were called home for "fraternization" with the Allies. It is certain that no Russians go out socially these days without legalistic assistance, and even then they are extremely mum regarding the home front.

Fables of The Day

Clouds are an exquisite form of beauty, ever changing, ever delightful in outline. On a summer's day they sail the skies like drifting fleece, radiant in whiteness. Before a storm they billow in purple shadows, closing the earth in a dark, hushed vault. And on a sullen day, they join hands despairing with a sorrowing world.

Watching the clouds we saw while clouds float by like patriarchs with flowing hearts, followed by camels with burdened backs, and a haughty woman with long hair streaming. When the sun's rays caught them they were golden castles and mountains surrounded by flaming forests. And these vanished away and left golden islands afloat in opal seas.

It is entertaining to watch clouds as they gather, part and gather again. It is fascinating to watch them in their endless motion, changing from shape to shape, now weird, now beautiful. It is as though, in their remote blue world, they played a grotesque and ethereal game, known only to themselves, the wind and a star or two.

Newspaper Facts

The origin of the term 'gazette', when applied to newspapers, is obscure although one interpretation relates it to a small coin called the 'gazette' which was the price of a paper issued by the Venetian Government in medieval days.

WEEK-END VERSE

Week-end for laughter,
The sunshine, the sea;
Care follows after;
Now, happy be.
Farewell to hurry
And troubles that fret;
Farewell to worry

Week-end for gladness
And dancing and song;
Farewell to sadness!
The hours are not long.
Time goes by flying,
The days are so few,
If you've been sighing,
Start laughing anew.

Week-end for playing,
The young and the old.
Friendship's assaying
Proves better than gold.
Come in with laughter,
Go laughing away.
Fun's what we're after.
So welcome to play!

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

AUGUST 24TH, 1926

Misses Evelyn and Jean Crooks of this city have returned home after an enjoyable motor trip to several interesting points in the United States.

The Rev. Charles Allen Seager, B.A., of Belleville, was this morning consecrated to the office of Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario. The ceremony took place in St. George's Cathedral, Kingston.

A new motor car owned by Mr. W. G. Bridger of this city, was damaged this morning on Front Street when it was hit by a car bearing a Michigan license. The matter was amicably settled between the persons concerned.

Mr. Ned Ridley is home from Montreal to spend his vacation.

Chief of Police Allen Reid is spending a few days at Crowe River.

AUGUST 24TH, 1916

Two ladies in a canoe on Moira Lake were attacked by a canoe a few days ago. One lady struck with her paddle at the bird as it was attempting to land upon the head of her companion. Repeated blows succeeded in driving off the intruder, but not before it had left marks upon the face of the lady whom it attacked.

At a meeting of the electors of Rawdon township, Mr. Fred Jeffs was nominated and will sold at 19 1-8 cents. At Madoc 305 boxes were sold at 19 1-4 cents.

40 YEARS AGO

AUGUST 24TH, 1906

Mr. Ernest Bullen has left for his home in Chicago after visiting relatives here.

Mr. Edward Naylor left today to spend his vacation at Toronto, Rochester and Syracuse.

Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Terwilligar of Rochester, N.Y., are the guests of Mrs. J. S. Crothers, Charles Street.

In a game of baseball at Picton the team of that town defeated a team from Belleville, the score being 12 to 2. The following composed the team:—Watkins, Curgoyne, Philp, Hyland, Cornell, Thomas, Reland, Weir and Smith. Picton: McMann, Curry, Fitzgerald, Gordon, McMullen, Watson, Illsey, Derry and Collier.

50 YEARS AGO

AUGUST 24TH, 1896

Coal in Belleville is selling at $5.75 per ton. The same price prevails in Toronto.

The progress of the saw-log drive towards the harbor boom is very slow and as a result the expense is heavy.

A fair will not be held at Belleville this year.

Christ Church Sunday School picnic took place today at Twelve O'clock Point.

The steamer Merritt conveyed the excursionists to the Point.

Mr. Allan Moon of Madoc was in town today.

Mr. Frank McKay, editor of the Peterboro Review, an old Belleville boy, is spending his vacation here.

Mr. Gibson and Dr. Clinton left today to attend the meeting of the Dominion Medical Association in Montreal.

Do it "Through The Chartered Banks"

Announcing in Parliament that the big, new copper-colored "nickels" are being withdrawn from circulation and expressing the belief that the replacement will be completed within the near future" the Finance Minister added that "the Canadian War is being carried out through the chartered banks."

We see so many statements of that kind—and this and that and the other thing is being done "through the chartered banks" that they have little or no attention to them any more.

But we should stop and think about it.

There are those in this country, no large number, perhaps, who count that day lost which does not provide them with a chance to criticize "the banks". To hear that kind of talk, you would imagine that "the banks" do as they please with other people's money and their own . . . that they carry on without public regulations, making their own laws and regulations, and generally amassing a fortune for their executives and directors.

The fact is, of course, that banking in this Dominion is hedged about by the most rigid restrictions and controls — not in these times of "controls" alone, but always, in season and out of season, in peace as in war. The banking laws of Canada are the most exacting of all laws governing financial institutions activities. All banking is done under the eye and supervision of government; and no banking system in the world is sounder from the public viewpoint.

The banks of Canada did an immense job in wartime and are doing an immense job in this "transition" period. The fact that the public hears little about it is an indication of how thoroughly it is being done, without grounds for serious complaint.

How much free or near-free service the chartered banks of Canada give governments and the public we do not know, but it must be very extensive, indeed. (Look at the line-ups at the bank wickets each week or month of people cashing government cheques.) The just one example of the service the banks are giving the public—without much "percentage" in it for the banks.

This is not a "defence" of the banks or an "apologia" for them; it is merely an attempt to give to the banks of this country a little small measure of the credit that is due them.

Britain Seeking Soap Substitute

Believe World Fat Shortage May Make Soap Scarce For Several Years

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Aug. 24 (CP) — Mrs. Housewife, your soapy song on a big soak may be Britain's swan song. The British are trying to wash up with washing agents which recently brought a howl from the rest of the country's already - meagre soap ration.

An inter-departmental committee has been appointed to plan expanded supplies of soap substitutes, including provision of scarce raw materials, in the belief the world fat shortage may mean that soap is scarce for several years.

Dr. Edith Summerskill, parliamentary secretary to the food ministry, said the committee was appointed by it to "aid in the supply of fats for the soap industries and to develop lowlather and palm oil from overseas has been disappointing.

"We're fighting to overcome the world fat fate," she said. Meanwhile the US government is out power to encourage the development of products which can be substituted for soap."

Fatty alcohols which, she says under simple conditions, can be and pry out dirt are used in some soap substitutes. Next source of the raw materials from which they are made are peanuts. Other substitutes are developed on the continent during the war and might prove satisfactory when peace comes.

The government attaches great importance to the question of soap substitutes," said Food Minister Strachey.

But one businessman who holds a licence to manufacture said he has been able to make so far only enough "concentrate" for purposes. Another company is making a powdered cleaning agent. The material is all no cardboard for packaging although it could be used for making a soap substitute to meet the soap cut.

Mrs. Housewife, it's up to the housewife's serious post-war problems. The reduced ration provides for each member of a family with nine ounces of sales every four weeks and four ounces of laundry soap.

Committee members in the House of Commons introduced a motion to amend the ration order, but it was defeated 258 votes to 105.

CBC EXPANSION

Mr. Adam said no consideration was being given at the present time to the broadcasting of weather stations in northern Canada by Canada and the United States.

Replying to Wing Cmdr. Lawrence Sinclair, Progressive Conservative, Mr. Adam said he believed regular broadcasts of the weather stations was being considered as a result of increased interest aroused in radio, but that at some future time consideration would be given to broadcasts by the two countries.

Employees Accept Raise

Labor Minister Mitchell interrupted study of the estimates to announce that 118,900 employees of the Canadian National Railways and steamships had accepted wage increases ranging from eight to 10 cents an hour.

Mr. Fleming fired the opening gun in opposition to the radio bill. He said the report of the Radio Committee, on which, he said, he had supported by the Liberal and C.C.F. parties, "unanimously condemned" the Social Credit Party were opposed to the principle.

He criticized the action of the CBC in proposing to erect a new station at Calgary, CKEY at Winnipeg and CFRB in Toronto. "The effect would be to drive competitors of the CBC" had an effect in the west, and that they were to be deprived of their choice spots on the radio dial. "The CBC would have over of the three frequencies would be another step in the direction of monopoly broadcasting centralization," he said. Should be decentralized.

Mr. Coldwell said that while he was not opposed to setting up stations for a publicly-owned firm should be the dominant force in the radio and should give coverage to all parts of the country.

He recalled that when Viscount Bennett was Conservative Prime Minister the CBC had come into effect. The parliament of that day had approved the "operation and control" of radio by the CBC. The principle of "complete control" had been supported at a later government.

Mr. Hansell said he wondered what the people would say if the government decided to expand from the present into a Canadian Daily Newspapers Corporation that would control national advertising and editorials to member papers.

Mr. Hansell stated that each provincial government be given a station to broadcast "their" night then unite in a second network and thus destroy the CBC monopoly".

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

SOME SPLATTER, SOME SPLASH, BUT EVERYBODY SPRAYS

For twenty or thirty years now, a few doctors and health officers have been telling us what dozens have acknowledged, or occasionally even warned, about the danger of catching disease from cough or sneeze droplets. Now we know that these fine droplets of germ-laden moisture sprayed from the mouth or nose of a person who coughs or sneezes without covering the face with handkerchief, hand, mask or screen, are a source of infection to the population apparently known to everyone but the sneezer and coughers. But it generally try not only to cover their own sneezes and coughs but also to avoid being coughed or sneezed upon by others. On the other hand, here is a couple seem to be ignorant of this danger—they neither hesitate to cover their own coughs or sneezes nor try to duck the spray from any other ignorant people.

As for the instruction of children about this, in schools or at home, it is pretty evident that such instruction is not being given or received in the breach than the observance.

Everybody emits some mouth spray during ordinary quiet conversation, and a sneeze, just two sneezes in this conversational spray is not noticeable, but it is quite palpable, but occasionally you are conscious of the presence of a light splash of sizable droplets or gobs upon your face.

Most of us are particularly squeamish but I get all hot and bothered by the "conversational" spray in a corner where I can't dodge it. Sometimes I spray back at the bird who may or may not spatter or splash but who certainly has some odious or other residual or chronic respiratory infection that I don't like. Then I wish heartily that suitable masks, or transparent screens were more fashionable for every one to wear in any gathering of more than two persons. Every reader of this piece will remember occasions when he has sprayed on or she thinks about the spray of open mouth conversation and the conversational spray is not quite so obvious or conspicuous as sneezing but it is just as deadly if you get caught in it. As a practical matter of hygiene the only difference between public coverage of coughs and sneezes and spray is that the latter is more frequent, is less than five feet, wherever the range of the former is greater up to twelve feet or more.

The barber, the waiter, the dentist, the patient, the doctor, the cashier, the waiter, the nurse, the clerk, the dietitian, the nurse, the stenographer, the counter clerk, the grocery one who in the course of daily work or play is brought within the fatal range of Tom, Dick and Harry, should for his own sake begin to think of everybody else understand clearly about conversational spray. This simple is the good of cod's health and, aside from the occasional nuisance it may cause, as indicated above, it need not make one at all morbid nor queer but just lets susceptible to the cri.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Soda

What harm is there in eating bicarbonate of soda—no special reason for eating it, just that I like its taste. I eat two or three teaspoonfuls a day.

Answer—(Mrs. T. C. E.)

Destroys vitamins in your food.

Contributes to development of alkalosis.

Contributes to calcium deficiency, tetany and excessive neuromuscular irritability.

No Wonder

"I'm 18, 65½ inches tall, weight 110. I don't eat—only coffee for breakfast, a sandwich for lunch and no supper. I'd like to get FAT."

Answer—Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing for diet sheet number 1. Ask for pamphlet "How to Gain Weight." Eat eight meals every half and half (half coffee and half milk or better cream) instead of just coffee for breakfast. Of course you can't gain or even prevent progressive emaciation on the diet you describe.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Will drinking blood make a person fierce?

There seems to be no scientific basis for the old belief that drinking blood will make men and dogs fierce and ferocious.

Shakespeare alludes to this belief in "Hamlet" when he has the Prince of Denmark, preparing for a duel, say: "Now could I drink hot blood, and do such bitter business as the day would quake to look on."

"The Book of Mormon" (1830) says: "They loved murder and would drink the blood of beasts."

The Kentucky settlers at the time of Daniel Boone were credited with feeding dead Indians to their dogs to make them fierce in battle.

Another backwoods notion was that dog would be made fierce by feeding them gunpowder.

Popular writers have referred to the alleged fact that pirates and other outlaws in the roys of the Spanish Main were fond to drink blood seasoned with gunpowder to give them brute courage.

Gunpowder mixed with rum or brandy is a courage-giving concoction drunk by soldiers before going into battle, according to another popular belief preserved chiefly in song verses told by veterans to entertain the credulous.

It is said that woodcuts in Haiti formerly assembled revolutionists in the woods at midnight to sacrifice a pig. The worshippers caught the blood of the animal in gourds, added rum and gunpowder and then drank the mixture.

How Loan Will be Spent

(By Sunday Dispatch British Correspondent)

Washington, Friday.

What do the British people get now from the proposed $3,750,000,000 available at the United States Treasury?

For weeks there will be no sign in the shops around the corner that there is any loan at all.

Bread rationing will continue. It's dreary menu, dictated by what will have to be tested as if they were gold, bananas will have been a miracle, fish and scheme to conserve enough points for a tin of sardines.

But any conscientious diarist could never possibly close down now. At last austerity is ending in Britain.

The apparent paradox will be worked out in offices in London and Washington. For the time being, the loan has an almost entirely negative effect under plans for spending it which have been laid, by Britain's Labor Government.

If they use it, the dollars with them from America will stave off new reductions in Britain's standard of living and new restrictions on the purchase of luxury goods.

Britain's living standard will be allowed to rise a little, and new materials which would otherwise have had to be diverted to exports.

The United States Treasury benefits, second of Great Britain has been credited with $3,750,000,000, which can be drawn upon over the next five years, and any time up to January 31, 1946.

Britain's dollar deficit is $5,000 pages to repay the loan at an interest rate of two per cent.

The British Government can draw on the credit to buy goods anywhere in the world.

It isn't a particularly big loan.

It represents roughly $80 per head of Britain's population. Every five years, that is $4 16s. for every man and woman in the country—enough, so long as he moderately heavy smoker in cigarettes for his needs.

Britain, as a nation, has fought her way off her back on to her knees; but she has a tremendous economic struggle ahead. The war cost her, in addition to the $4,360,000,000 in her international credit balance, £1,000 million sterling in the British Isles lost £700 to put it on a payment basis.

Realist that the King's said, is a drop in a turbulent sea of debt.

The dollars have to be spent where they will do the most good. There will be no New York shopping spree for Britain's hard-pressed dollar dresses for London.

In the full clutch of strategic circumstances, Britain has been reduced to a nation of the workbench.

Before luxury can bloom again it has to be weeded for, and the loan will no more than help to hasten its arrival.

Britain knows that we've been humiliated and insulted for "begging" and asked a British priest at the Embassy.

The answer is: No, though Britain was humiliated with a view to getting the loan, she didn't.

But the important thing is that we got the loan and with it we can buy machines and materials on which the machines can work to be sold to the rest of the world to put money back in Britain's pockets.

A great variety of food points will be available, a slight benefit from the loan.

But this world-come immediately. It may be a year before the full improvement is known, but it is realised that the loan is merely result of the loan may be more pages in the London Daily Mail—six daily pages instead of four.

Most of this increased supply will undoubtedly be supplied by another parcelful of the American loan, more Canadian goods and goods for Britain.

Until the loan decision was known Britain was negotiating with Canadian dollars lent by Ottawa for this period against the possibility of the U.S. loan being rejected by congress.

Britain's peacetime industry is first at the Exchequer

WEDDINGS

GOODSELL—JACKSON

Trenton, (Special.)— A lovely double-ring ceremony was performed in Trenton United Church, Consecon, on August 17, when Margaretta Elizabeth Jackson, of the Trenton Public School staff, teacher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Jackson, Carrying Place, became the bride of Trenton, R.C.A.F. Station, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Goodsell, Trenton. The Rev. W. H. Barr officiated.

The marriage was solemnized before an altar banked with flowers, as wedding music was played by Mrs. George McEwen, Consecon.

The bride was given by her father, the bride was charming in a gown of white satin with net insert around the neck, fitted bodice, and full skirt grouping into a short train. Her veil of tulle illusion was caught to a halo of lily-of-the-valley and orange blossoms, which had been worn by the bride's great aunt, Mrs. S. R. Sprague. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of Ascot roses.

The matron-of-honor was Mrs. Edwin Hugh Wallace, Montreal, and the best man was Mrs. Gordon Oder, Picton. They were gowned alike in ankle length satin with ribbon in tiers on billowy skirts and fitted bodices with round necks and full Bishop sleeves. Each wore a halo of Ascot roses and baby's breath over each ear, and carried matching cascade bouquets.

Mr. William Raymond Jackson, of Consecon, brother of the bride, ushered were Mr. George McEwen and Mr. Bruce Jones.

One hundred guests were present at the reception at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's mother received wearing a two-piece suit of dress of dove grey with a touch of charcoal embroidery, maroon accessories and a corsage of Joanashill roses. Assisting her was the groom's mother, who wore a dress of navy blue, draped skirt, black velvet hat and accessories and a corsage of American Beauty roses. Later the bride and groom left by car for a western Ontario and points in the United States, the bride wearing a navy suit with three-quarter length coat and matching hat, and blue dress underneath. On their return they will reside in Trenton.

Out-of-town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. P. A. McFarland and Mr. R. J. Wales, Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. J. Pumpell, Mr. and Mrs. A. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Otis; Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Raymond, Mr. and Mrs. J. Johnston, Capt. A. E. and Mrs. Jackson, Donald Jackson, Mr. Clifton, Mrs. John Fitzjohn, Mr. and Mrs. W. Hobel, Miller, Misses Jean and Rosemary Hall, Toronto and Mr. Pierce Stephenson, and Mr. Ralph Pierce, all of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. G. Jackson, Detroit, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. C. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Ivor Smith, Mrs. E. Curtis, of Hamilton; Mr. and Mrs. W. Brett, Mr. and Mrs. J. Mallard, Misses Spicer and Donald, Mr. and Mrs. George Spicer, Belleville.

YBEAU—WANNAMAKER

Trenton. (Special.) — St. Andrew's Presbyterian manse was the scene of a quiet but pretty wedding on Saturday, August 17, when Doris Eleanor Wannamaker, Trenton, became the bride united in marriage by the Rev. R. C. Bowen.

The bride looked lovely in a grey wool suit with fall shades of beige shaped hat and white accessories. Her corsage was of Ophelia roses. Miss Betty Ybeau was Miss Marion Miller, who wore a light blue wool suit with floral accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Mr. Gus Scarlett was groomsman.

The bride's home was beautifully decorated with Summer flowers for the reception which was held after the ceremony. The bride's mother received in a navy blue ensemble with a corsage of white gladioli assisted by the groom's mother, who wore black with a corsage of pink gladioli.

Out-of-town guests present were Dr. and Mrs. C. Collard, Dorothy Sills and community singing followed. A special feature of the meeting was an address by Mrs. (Rev.) Sparling, of Belleville, on the subject of Social Service.

Having devoted years of her life to this work, Mrs. Sparling stated that in all cases where divorce does occur in homes the whole job of the social worker is to keep the family together and when they consider the work has failed. She listed the following eight basic problems of everyday life as reasons for family disunity and unhappiness:

1. Lack of training for marriage and parenthood.
2. Economic problems.
3. Poor housekeeping.
4. Intemperance in alcohol, bad company and sex.
5. Mental cases.
6. Educational system and a lack of vocational guidance with round pegs in square holes. All parents wanting white collar jobs for their children. (We must develop a people who really have pride in their work.)
7. Moral laxity on part of parents.
8. Increasing lack of spiritual training in the home. (Spiritual values must be held higher.) Social workers do not feel successful until it becomes associated with the church. Only about 50 per cent of Protestant families that are involved in difficulties are associated with any church.

Mrs. Sparling urged that institute members get behind every effort for family betterment, and that they treat kindly every new comer. She made a special plea for the Women's Social Society, mentioning the need of homes and hospitals, and thanking for these children that they may be helped to live in the world without an inferiority complex. "Let us," said the speaker, "help to make our world new by building the great edifice of human life."

The Sparkling Satin Suit

By ALICE ALDEN

THE SILK suit goes on its fashion way with a flourish this season. It is as good in early Fall as it is for late Summer or early Autumn. Sylvia Sidney's suit of the smartly beautifully fitted black satin suit, which she dresses up or down, according to the hour and occasion.

Gold spray clips set with pearls and diamonds mark the coral neckline. The suit is topped with a frothy confection of huge pink silk roses trimmed with loops of black satin ribbon. In August a suit of this type would be equally well to a feather-pom-pom-trimmed black satin or velvet hat.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Drink watery for your complexion's sake

Water is essential to life. That statement may not interest the young members of this beauty class, but when they are told that it is vitally important to the fine texture and good coloring of the skin perhaps they'll stop looking at it with a thirsty, sallow complexions are likely to whiten the lips and will cover the eyes glasses of water a day.

About two-thirds of the body weight consists of water; it is found in every tissue and organ of the body. Water clears away impurities and mucous membranes from the entire digestive canal, acts as a health-giving tonic to the kidneys. With the internal organs functioning normally, the skin is likely to show up fine and clear.

Each day the body throws off more than four pints of water through the various avenues of elimination. The skin alone disposes of a good deal, though one may not be aware of perspiration. To counterbalance this loss, we must have plenty of liquids.

The texture of the skin depends upon the blood supply. Water improves that supply; it helps the arteries and veins in their work of creating vitality in all the tissues of the body.

Young girls who are beset and bothered by heavy beauties of the heads and pimples should include the drinking of water in the treatment of these beauty pests. In nearly all cases, the acne condition is present. The stomach absorbs little water; it goes into the intestines where it acts as a stimulant and cleansing agent.

Take a glass of water immediately upon arising, to wash out the stomach and bowels. Then one between meals and one at bedtime. If one lowers the temperature of the body, slows the pulse. It should never be taken with meals nor iced. In large quantities, it will retard the processes of digestion.

The greatest factor in the cultivation of a beautiful complexion is a clean body, inside and out. The daily bath helps the skin to function normally; the glands in the face are less likely to be overactive.

Drink a glass of water immediately after arising

The skin, being a system of elimination, is assisted in its work by soap, water and friction. Soap is a cleansing agent; it removes impurities from the skin. Use a heavy brush and plenty of elbow grease.

V.O.N. News

An average of thirty-two children attended the Friday afternoon Child Health Conferences held in the Parish House under the auspices of the Victorian Order of Nurses. The tiny visitors range from babies a few weeks old to toddlers just before school age. Careful records are kept of the child's health progress with Dr. Ella Ross in charge of the V.O.N. Committee in charge of this phase of the work. Mrs. Madill, another committee member, assists each month with the baking and this is an exciting task at times when the babies become the centre of the whole performance.

The nurse under the direction of Miss Adair, advise the mother about care and feeding of the babies and if a special problem occurs the mother is referred to her own doctor.

While the Centre was a busy place the Friday afternoon during the summer months, the nurses anticipate a larger attendance as school days begin. Members who have school age children whose health can be seen conveniently leave to bring smaller ones to the Centre. The attendance was underway, can now attend while the older ones are safely off to school.

Young Couple Feted

Recently a large group of young people from the Christian Missionary Alliance Church, Tabernacle honored Isabel and Bill Spinks, who have been spending their two weeks holiday in mission work at Crystal Beach.

Overtaken on their way to spend the evening with friends, they were ushered back to Isabel's home, where the surprise party was signed.

Miss Margaret Atyeo and Miss Betty Barragar took over the refreshment committee while Little Lenore Dixon proceeded to push the large carriage laden with parcels into the midst of the guests.

The young couple expressed their words of appreciation, feelingly from their hearts that "the friends from home are always just a little dearer than all other friends".

GOOD MANNERS

Birth-Announcements

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I, in a few weeks I am to have my first baby, and I would like to have your help on the birth-announcements. The ones I am considering buying have the following words at the beginning of the lines:

Name .....
Parents .....
Weight .....
Date of Arrival .....
Place .....
Remarks .....

Do you approve of this kind of birth-announcement card? And if so will you please tell me what to write on the line labeled "Remarks"?

S. Also when I mail the announcements, should I use a 1 cent stamp or 4 cent stamp?

L.S.

1. It is not good form to send this kind of birth-announcement card, the card that gives the child's weight, the name of the hospital, or leaves space for other miscellaneous comments such as those listed in the "Remarks" line. The only information to be sent in birth-announcements is whether formal or informal, is it a boy's name, (3) date of birth, and (3) parents' names.

My suggestion is that you further cut the announcements. It is easy to buy simple white cards with space for four or three necessary information items.

2. You should use 4-cent stamp on the envelopes of the birth-announcements. It would be better taste not to send any rather than to send them unsealed, and by parcels mail.

Difference Between Wedding Invitation and Announcement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son is to be married next month at a formal church wedding. His best friend, who was to be an usher, finds it impossible to attend because he will be out on a very important business trip to the West Coast. Under these circumstances would it be proper to send him an invitation to the ceremony and reception, or should we send him only an announcement?

Also, my husband's brother and his wife will not be able to come from their home in a distant city. Should we send them an invitation or only an announcement?

H. B.

An invitation to the ceremony and reception should be sent to your son's friend, and an invitation should also be sent to your husband's brother and his wife. The point is that they should each be sent to all relatives and intimate friends, whether or not they are able to come to the wedding. An invitation has a friendly significance, meaning that the bride and bridegroom would like to have the recipient present at the ceremony and reception present at their wedding. When many formal invitations are sent out for a wedding, it is much of a compliment to be sent an announcement.

Fashion Flashes

ALWAYS READY for general or casual wear is the well-candied plaid woolen dress. This model is of white and black checked tweed with a red overplaid. It is a smartly belted topper and adds shoulder line reversed chin collar, with a huge self button closing between the color tabs.

Interest still centres about the sleeves. A new version of the full frock is of black rayon crepe, cut on figure-fitting lines with a bow to the snug bodice. Short sleeves are very puffed, with pink roses tucked under the puffs.

New treatment accorded muslin gives this dainty fabric a finer look than ever. A new model in 36-inch length, has white muslin edged with a single-stitch border to give a mink-coat effect. The white is stitched in front of the wrist to give a softening effect. Three-flare back to this medium-light mink-shaded muskrat.

A different look marks the new dinner suits, such as the model made with a jacket of white gala rax fur with black satin facings on the turn-back cuffs and also edging the club collar. Worn with a pencil-slim black satin skirt and a bolero, expect to find the same old homlines and such in new interpretations. Some of the designs are entirely different from anything seen in years. There's the afternoon frock of rose beige crepe made with a high rising collar tied by black ribbon, the bow in back holding the back of the blouse. This model has a full waist. Wide black leather corselet belt is buttoned in back. Unusual hemline points low at side front.

Pretty nice little soft crepe frocks for general wear are arriving in the market. Self-loop bows at the neckline, "dickey" and spunlet effect in a brown and white check dress with a four gore skirt. Self-belt ties with clasps, and the sleeves are wide, balloon-ing from tight cuffs.

HEELS DOWN WITH TOURNEY PROS

Jimmy Demaret, leading tournament pro, tries to keep weight on heels during the swings.

By ALEX J. MORRISON

"Keep your heels down until after the foot rolls." This has been my advice to all golfers longer than I can remember. To many it seemed just another revolutionary idea of mine. But, it did catch the attention of several leading tournament pros and especially those who had already improved their games by following my instructions about keeping the chin back. These pros immediately went to work on foot action with results which greatly increased their winnings.

Foot action is an important part of every swing, an essential just as important as any other item such as the grip. It is foot action with the position of your head that determines your balance and body action during the swing. It also determines the amount of co-ordination between body and hands to be enjoyed in swinging the club. Foot action occurs when the body weight shifts from side to side or from one foot to other during the swing.

In the starting position most of the weight is on the left foot. The backswing starts with the weight shifting straight toward right foot. As the weight leaves the left foot this foot rolls over toward the inside. After, and only after, it has rolled over and most of the weight has been taken off the foot does the heel raise off the ground. Practically all of the weight remains on the right foot during the windup or backswing. Then the downswing starts with the weight shifting back toward the left foot. The left foot drops into the position it originally held at the start, then the right foot rolls over toward the inside before the heel comes off the ground. To learn this it is necessary to keep the heels on the ground until rolling toward the inside has become a habit. And it will help your game as much as it has helped the tournament pros.

ROYALS WITHIN FIVE GAMES OF WINNING FLAG

Rack Up 88th Triumph of Season by Defeating Buffalo Bisons

(By The Associated Press)

Montreal Royals are within 5 victories of clinching their second straight International League pennant today.

Leading the circuit by 18 games, the Royals need only five wins or Newark defeats to eliminate the runner-up Bears, three to knock out the third -- place Buffalo Bisons and four to oust the fourth-place Baltimore Orioles from the flag chase.

The Royals racked up their 88th triumph of the campaign and dropped Buffalo to third place last night by nosing out the Bisons, 4-3.

Ted Gray held the Royals to 5 hits but one was a two-run third-inning homer by Lew Riggs that sided the Royals in piling up a 4-1 lead. Pinch-hitter Johnny Radulovich blasted a round-tripper with one on in the ninth off relief hurler Armand Cardoni to make it close but Cardoni settled down and retired the side to gain credit for the triumph.

The tail-end Jersey City Giants eliminated the fifth - place Syracuse Chiefs from the pennant scramble by downing the Chiefs, 7-3 behind the four-hit tossing of Bill Emmerich.

Rochester's 2nd seventh-place Red Wings nosed out Toronto Maple Leafs, 4-3, with the winning run crossing the plate in the ninth when relief pitcher Dwight Simmons walked Chuck Dietrich with the bases loaded on four straight pitches.

SPORT FALLACIES

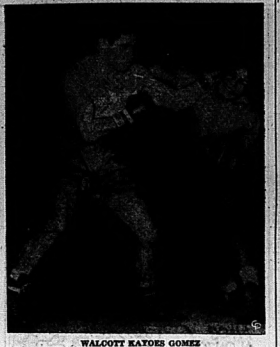
By Margery Miller

Gene Tunney did not learn to box as a marine during the first world war.

Some sports fans base predictions that many good fighters will emerge from the armed services on the belief that Tunny was introduced to boxing while in uniform. Actually Gene had fought five professional bouts, all preliminaries, prior to his enlistment in the world war.

Before turning pro Tunny engaged in several amateur fights. He was beaten by a boy named Willie Green in the first one, and began to study the reasons for his defeat. His studies of boxing technique had advanced far by the time he entered the marines.

Although fast tracks are supposed to be ideal for racing, trainers of horses are overwhelmingly in favor of slow tracks for workouts.



WALCOTT RATOES GOMEZ

Tommy Gomez, of Port Tampa, Fla., LEFT, delivers a long left to Jersey Joe Walcott's ear as the Camden, N.J., heavyweight contender cuts a right around the Purple Heart veteran's neck in a scheduled 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden, New York. Walcott became a prospective adversary for Heavyweight Champ Joe Louis by kayoing Gomez in 1.31 of the third round. Walcott's "crying" expression, ABOVE, indicates that this one blow by Gomez packed a sting.

HOGAN TURNS IN BRILLIANT P.G.A. GAME

Gliding veteran Ben Hogan is shown autographing his caddy's score card after he had turned in a brilliant 137 for the 36 holes in qualifying play for the National Professional Golfers' association championship at Portland.

WINS "BOX" DERBY

Smiling Gilbert Kiscan, 14, of San Diego, Calif., is pictured after he won the 1946 All-American soap box derby at Akron, Ohio. About 65,000 spectators witnessed the event. In addition to a trophy, Gilbert received a four-year scholarship.

Horses which are exercised or run over a fast track often come up with injuries such as injured feet, strained ankles, strained knees and sore tendons. On the other hand, if they run over a slow track they return to the stables tired but physically sound.

The new racing course at Aqueduct is very slow because it is comparatively soft. Eventually it will become hard-packed and fast. But meanwhile the trainers are having things their way. Fewer injuries to their charges mean fewer headaches for them.

Vancouver Burrards May be Eliminated From Loop Playoffs

Vancouver, Aug. 23 — (CP) — Vancouver Buzzards, 1945 Canadian senior lacrosse champions, are on the brink of elimination from the playoffs for this year's title.

The speedy Burrards, who defeated St. Catharines three straight in last year's finals . . . managed to get in the league playoffs this year in the third and last playoff spot.

In the first game of the semi-finals, Burrards lost to New Westminster Adanacs and will have to show a complete reversal of form to win the best-of-five series for the right to meet New Westminster Salmonbellies for the League title.

Salmonbellies dominated the league until near the end of the season but Adanacs, 1939 national champs, showed a late season buzz and are co-favorites with the fishmen to win the league crown. The ultimate winner is expected to have little trouble in disposing of Trail Golden Bears in the provincial final which also is the Canadian semi-final.

The western team hasn't won a final in the east since 1933 when the first box lacrosse national finals were played but some observers here feel either team may be able to change the trend.

Salmonbellies may lose their ace scorer, Ike Hildebrad, for the last part of the league playoffs because he must report in Oshawa Sept. 8 for his hockey chores.

Meanwhile league officials are beaming after the best financial season in years. League games drew 3,000 to 5,000 all season and sell-out crowds of 5,500 to 6,000 are assured for all playoff games.

Battle for National League Between Cards and Dodgers Resembles '41 and '42 Races

Both Teams Win by Identical Scores And Still Tied For Top Rung

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

It was 1941 all over again. Once again today, as Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals battled it out for the National League flag with indications pointing to a neck and neck finish.

With five weeks of the season remaining, the two rivals are identified for the lead, with identical won and lost records.

The intense rivalry between the Brooks and the Cards began five years ago with the two clubs battling it out until the Dodgers finished the championship race days before the season ended. The Cards turned the tables on the Dodgers the following year but had to wait until the last day of the season before they were assured of victory.

Both were yesterday, in almost identical fashion. The scores were the same, 3-1, but had to come from behind and each won in the ninth inning.

The Brooks spotted Cincinnati with Bucky Walters on the mound a run in the second inning, tied the score in the sixth and won in the final inning when centre-fielder Dick Whitman singled home Ed Stevens who had led off with a double. Kirby Higbe, although allowing nine hits in all, got the win for his 12th game.

The Cards fell behind when Philadelphia Phils scored a run in the opening of their night game. St. Louis knotted the count in the fourth on a walk to Ken O'Dea, a sacrifice and Terry Moore's single in Whitey Kurowski, first second with two out. Johnny Beazley was the winner and Oscar Jones, Philadelphia, the loser.

Chicago Cubs defeated Boston 3-1 to increase their margin to 1½ games over the fourth - place Braves.

New York Yankees won their fifth straight when they defeated St. Louis Browns 4-1 in a night game at the Yankee Stadium. Hank Bonham, scattering six hits, was helped by Joe Gordon's 16th homer.

Dizzy Trout's six-hit pitching snapped a five-game losing streak for Detroit as the Tigers and Washington had a twilight-night doubleheader. After Hal Newhouser, in a relief role, walked in the winning run in Washington's 3-2 victory in the first game, Trout came back to beat the Nats 5-0 with ease.

Philadelphia's last place Athletics won their fourth straight when Jones pitched Chicago to a 1-0 night game victory over Cleveland Indians.

A four-run seventh-inning rally enabled Pittsburgh Pirates to defeat New York Giants 5-3 under the Forbes Field lights.

Krippler Davis Wins Two Falls From Toar Morgan Using Cobra Hold on Each Occasion

Lindsay Wrestler Wins Second Fall With The Cut And Chop Stroke

There isn't anything funny about this Cobra Hold the wrestling boys are talking about, especially Toar Morgan after Friday night's mats go at the Arena.

Sure, Toar won the second fall, and he, according to the shouts of the fans, should have won too much about Bert Maxwell's referseeing anyway, should have stuttled back to Lindsay with the second fall. But Mrs. Davis' little boy Karl had something to say about that. Sure it was unorthodox, as the black market, but people use it anyway, so what. In say event, by the time the smoke had cleared and Toar had returned back to this earth, he discovered that the listed Krippler had slung him for the fall. Krippler had slung him for the fall. Krippler had slung him for the fall.

Many a bridge partner is kept around the house only as a pet. He can become quite a nuisance unless he is finesse-broken. On the other hand, a good finesser can make himself very useful.

You can keep yourself and your partner reasonably happy about finesses. Simply avoid them until you can find no safer plays. Let yourself believe that a finesse is a last resort haven.

Maybe you are just finding out that a finesse is not a female Finn. If so, I know the kind of a finesse you are thinking of. It is a tenace of A Q or A J or K J or Q 10 or such.

If ace and queen are in the same hand you see the operation at a flash. You merely lead from the opposite hand toward the ace, and Carry came over and sighed: "Making comedies isn't easy. It sure is hard to find out what people think is funny."

In the film palaces . . . "Moon Over Burma" is tonight's Bob Hope fare and would call ask for anything more? This time the comedian makes his way through the courts of 18th century France and Spain and the results are generally hilarious.

While many Universal executives are getting the boot, Andy Devine is calmly celebrating his 21st year on the lot.

In Manhattan

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Aug. 24 (CP) — While Manhattan theatrically remains in customary August lethargy, it might not be amiss to take regretful note of the sad information that the Murray Hill Hotel, a survivor from an almost forgotten era, soon is to be torn down.

The stately, 85-year-old sandstone edifice on Park Avenue just south of Grand Central station is closing its doors Sept. 1 and will be demolished to make way for a 50-storey office building.

This comfortable, long-established hostelry once was the center of fashionable New York. Society flocked through its foyer in the 1900's and its notable guests included Mark Twain, P. T. Barnum, Presidents Grover Cleveland and William McKinley and John L. Sullivan.

In its latter days the hotel was not the famous meeting place it once had been; as the skyscrapers towered up around it, the solid old stone building seemed to shrink into relative obscurity.

Talented team: That talented couple, Carmen Kenin and Ruth Gordon (Mrs. Kanin), are working on a comedy by Harold Ogden Stewart, "How I Wonder," which they hope to present on Broadway next February. Kanin, an actor who directed two plays here nine years ago and then became a successful film director in Hollywood, came back east last season to stage "The Rugged Path" and his own hit comedy, "Born Yesterday." The former folded after 6 months but "Born Yesterday" is still going strong.

Impersario Billy Rose read about an Englishman's dog that talked and sent an offer of $200 a week, should the report be accurate. At a deadline hour, the little man who runs the Diamond Horseshoe night club in New York called Lord Beaverbrook asking him to investigate the matter of the talking canine personally.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Aug. 24 (AP) — Making with the funny business on the screen is serious work, as Cary Grant can well attest.

After a stretch of love films and biographies, the fidgety southern actor is back at his forte, light comedy. I dropped in on the "Bachelor and the Bobby Soxer" set to see a few laughs. I could have found more at an embalmers' social.

Actors Grant and Ray Collins and Director Irving Reis were faced with the problem of wringing a laugh from a few lines. The scene will take less than 30 seconds on the screen, but several hours were required in transferal to celluloid. The deathless words:

Collins: "Where are you going?"

Grant: "To Africa."

Collins: "That's a long way off."

Grant: "Not when you're in Arabia and that's where I'm going."

All the principals on the set went into a gag conference which necessed all the ability of a U.N. Security Council meeting. With tongue in cheek, they discussed the comic possibilities of the lines. The conference broke up for coffee and Cary came over and sighed: "Making comedies isn't easy. It sure is hard to find out what people think is funny."

AT THE BELLE — James Melton, recently heard in concert in Belleville and lovely Esther Williams, two of the 22 stars in M-G-M's Technicolor musical extravaganza "Ziegfeld Follies of 1946," due Monday at the Belle.

AT THE McCARTHY — Paulette Goddard looks enchanting in two of the varied hairdos created for her role in the Bogus-Meredith production "The Diary of a Chambermaid," now at the McCarthy Theatre.

AT THE CAPITOL — Vera Hruba Ralston and William Marshall as they appear in a scene from "Murder in The Music Hall," the spectacular and exciting new screenplay, showing for the first time in Belleville, next at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program "Hard Guy," with Jack LaRue.

Would Make Jack All-Empire Flag

London, Aug. —(CP)— Suggestion that something be added to the Union Jack to make it a "true flag" representing the whole Empire" is advanced by Sir Lavington Bonython, vice-chairman of the board of directors of the Adelaide Advertiser in South Australia.

"All loyal subjects of the Empire are proud of the Union Jack," he said in a letter published in The Daily Telegraph.

"But Great Britain has her own flag, and so have each of the Dominions ... but there is no common emblem...

"Why do we not add something which while not necessarily very marked, would make it a flag really representing the whole Empire? For example, we could make some such addition as a thin cross, which would be noticed only when the flag was critically examined."

Two-Year-Old Girl Burned to Death

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 24 (AP) — Two-year-old Ruth Ann Cole burned to death while her nine-year-old brother Donald stood hysterically by, unable to help her.

Mrs. Rose Wiszymski heard a scream as she passed the Cole home Thursday night, looked in the door and saw Ruth Ann standing on the stairway, her nightdress a sheet of flames.

As she reached the child, said Mrs. Wiszymski, remnants of the burned nightgown fell from her. Donald has been awakened by his sister's screams, went to help her but was unable to approach the child due to the flames.

The mother, Mrs. Grace Cole, said she had left the house to take a music pupil to a nearby trolley stop and Ruth Ann presumably awoke, found matches and set her clothing on fire.

CHAPTER 16.

Jacqueline gave up the puzzle with a tragic little groan that was very nearly a sob.

Unfortunately for her peace of mind, there was no sign of the errant Larry Cutler during the ensuing days. It seemed scarcely possible that he would have left town without getting some word to his wife. Unless he had, very suddenly...

Then Lieutenant Staples banished that suspicion by thrusting his head into the office one afternoon to inquire guilelessly, "Any news, partner?"

She shook her head smilingly and the detective strolled on. Larry still was with the city. Perhaps he didn't like to face her on account of Vince's bills. Perhaps he expected her to call him and express her gratitude. He should know better than to expect her to try to get in touch with him under the circumstances. He might be in hiding, for all...

But you would think he would be...mildly interested to want to hear about Vince, how nicely he was getting along now.

Vince's improvement was the only bright spot. Except that it made her that other decision nearer and nearer. In another week or so, Vince would be leaving the hospital. And for...where?

That problem struck her with renewed force when she called to see Vince that night. He was propped high in his bed. He was smoking and enjoying a cigarette at her cheerfully.

"Hello, Sister! Have a fag? Friend sent me a barton."

"No, thank you." She laughed as she seated herself in a chair. "I see she frowned suddenly. Fag. That didn't sound like Vince...and he said something about a friend."

"You look ever so much better tonight," she suggested.

"I am better. Feel fine. And I had a caller. A friend of yours."

"Who, Vince?"

"Mr. Cutler. He was here almost two hours. Seemed to know you pretty well."

"Oh, yes...We're quite good friends."

"Where did you meet him?"

"He's been staying at the hotel for quite a while...off and on. I've done quite a little work for him."

"He's a nice fellow. And he's an engineer, Skipper." Vince frowned. "I don't know when I've met a fellow you could talk to in the way you can with him. He's got a head on his shoulders. Smart as a whip."

"Do you think so?"

"I'll say. I was telling him about my new invention. He was so interested and seemed to understand so well what I was trying to do that..." Vince smiled a little sheepishly. "I guess I spilled pretty nearly the whole works to him. But I know he isn't the kind of a fellow to try to do me out of anything."

"Oh, I'm quite sure he wouldn't."

"That's the way I size him up ...especially since he's a friend of yours." Vince lowered his voice. "Cutler says I'll be making a big mistake if I don't go ahead with this thing and get it on the market as soon as I can. I could see he was interested. I wouldn't wonder a bit if he'd help me launch the blamed thing...get it started, you know."

"I wouldn't worry about it yet" Jacqueline suggested cheerily, trying to hide the dismay she felt. Suppose Vince were to accept Larry's help! She knew from a long and bitter experience about those "inventions." "You must get well and strong again before you even think about work."

"I've not much else to do except think," Vince objected. "Cutler is coming back to see me again. And he sent these fags to me just after he left. Then, you see, I got to wondering..."

"Wondering what, Vince?"

"When I get out of here, I sort of feel I should do what I could to keep you company..."

"Of course. And I want to have it so I can take care of you, too. Well, we'll work out some way. Don't worry."

She resolutely changed the subject until the time came for her to take her departure.

As she reached the street, a tall figure loomed out of the shadows and a familiar voice spoke.

"I thought you'd be coming out about this time," Larry said, smiling. "Busy for a little while?" Without waiting for an answer, he hooked his wife's arm through his and started across the street. "The car's over there," he explained.

After they had left the hospital behind, he offered:

"I had a sort of sneaking idea you were set to give me a lecture, so I thought I'd be obliging. How about it?"

"I do want to talk to you," Jacqueline said soberly.

"And you thought I was keeping out of your way." Larry had a disconcerting way of figuring things out. "Shoot."

"I don't know what to say..." Jacqueline began unhappily. "Of course I want to thank you first of all for saying those bills.... for Vince...but...but I wish you hadn't."

"I don't see why, my dear," Larry said. "I can't think of any better use of money than taking worries off your shoulders."

"That's just it!" she cried softly. "Can't you see that...that it hurts?"

"I'd never hurt you, Jack. I just want to...help."

"But that isn't the way. Larry, it's putting me under obligations that I have no way to meet. Yet." She shook her head. "Yet," she said quickly, "Don't you see, Jack, you and I are pretty nearly six feet apart in which to settle accounts? If there are any. And, in a way, Vince's affairs...I have a right to try to make things as easy for you as I can. It's the only possible right I have and... well, it means a lot."

"There's so much I can't...understand."

"Don't try just yet. I asked you once to trust me for a little time. I think all I have asked for...I'm still asking."

"I want to," he answered simply.

"And it's a hard strain, I know. By the way, I hope you don't mind my dropping in on your father today, I thought, maybe, he might be finding the days long."

"It was good of you. He appreciated it."

"Nothing of the sort. I had a good time and a very interesting visit. He sure is wrapped up in his latest project...very anxious to get back to it. Has he told you anything about this invention?"

"No."

"He don't sound very enthusiastic," he chuckled.

"Larry!" she burst out, in spite of herself. "All Vince's inventions have been...duds. Ever since I can remember. When one flops, he just goes on to the next. I never had the heart to discourage him ...but once. And I'll never forgive myself as long as I live!"

"You know," Larry observed musingly, "inventors are queer animals. I should say, being a son of my father. And as for duds ...sometimes they turn out unexpectedly. All this talk and the moonlight have put me in a reminiscent mood, Jack. Won't you let me show you a relic of my youth? It's not so far from here ...not more than an hour."

"What is it you want me to see?"

"The birthplace of a hero."

"Yours, you mean? All right. I'll go...for the ride."

When the city was left behind, Jacqueline said, "Isn't the moonlight beautiful? Did you ever notice how it seems to...to take the rough edges off everything?"

"Hope that includes me," Larry ventured.

"You are rather nice...at times," was his reward.

"Thanks. But I was going to tell you about our old place. It was all right, I suppose, considering what Father built the house, and the original setting isn't bad."

"Does some one live in it now?"

"No, worse luck, and it seems to be going to pieces. I always thought I might get it for myself and make it look the wy it did when I was a kid. Guess I told you my dad lost all his money."

"Yes."

"He and your dad would have hit it off well," Larry observed unexpectedly." The old gentleman was quite a scientist. The basement of our place was his laboratory and workshop and he almost lived in it. You can imagine how that appealed to a kid. From the time I was old enough to mess around with tools and such things, he fixed me a bench near his. Always took time out to be interested in whatever I was trying to do. We were great pals."

Larry's voice died away. He was staring at the road ahead of the car.

"You must miss him," she ventured.

"I do. He was too good to me, as a matter of fact. I always felt closer to him then to my mother. And she was as sweet a little woman as ever lived."

"Has she been...gone long?"

"Not less than two years after my father. I think I was more self-reliant then, as was. When he died, there didn't seem so much left for Mother. And... here's where we leave the main road," Larry observed, making a right turn. "The next crossroads marks the line of our old property."

A few moments later, on the crest of a wooded knoll, he swerved the roadster into the weeds at the side of the thoroughfare and cut off the motor.

"Well, here..." He leaned forward, eagerly intently past his companion.

A little exclamation of delight escaped Jacqueline. There, in the bright, lighted clearing, stood an unusual house. It was long and low, with four former windows set in its steeply pitched roof. The central entrance door was flanked by portico supported with heavy, square columns. On either side of it was small casement, with shattered panes, seemed able to hide their scars.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop came home hungry, saying to me, by golles I could eat a horse. Mom, I rather not. What's for dinner? he said.

Well, I did intend, to serprize you with a tea bone steak for an unexpected change, and I...even went so far as to personly pick out a beeyu, but when the butcher waved it with a grand flourish, and told me what it would cost me, I realised the serprize would be on the other foot when you discovered you were lightly departing 3 dollars and 90 cents of your hard earned money, ma said, and pop said, Yes gods did the butcher was mail that money, so she changed it.

One single steak waying less than 2 pounds, I assure you, ma said. Of course I must admit it was a beeyu, but when the butcher waved it with a grand flourish, and told me what it would cost me, I realised the serprize would be on the other foot when you discovered you were lightly departing 3 dollars and 90 cents of your hard earned money, ma said, and pop said, Yes gods did the butcher was mail that money, so she changed it.

One single steak waying less than 2 pounds, I assure you, ma was not going to be the goat for no butcher, so I changed it.

Has he told you anything about this invention?

No.

If he don't sound very enthusiastic, he chuckled.

Quote Pastor Saying Fraternizing With Jap Girls 'Natural'

Tokyo, Aug. 24 — (AP) — The army newspaper Stars and Stripes today quoted a visiting St. Louis pastor as saying fraternization with Japanese girls "is natural."

"He personally did not blame American soldiers for it," the paper said in its interview with Dr. C. Oscar Johnson, pastor of the Third Baptist Church of St. Louis. He is visiting Japan at the invitation of the War Department as a representative of the Federated Churches of Christ.

650 PRINTERS AFFECTED

Toronto, Aug. 24—(CP)—The Ontario Regional War Labor Board Friday announced approval of a joint submission by approximately 650 Toronto printing firms and the International Typographical Union (A.F.L.) calling for a 40-hour week and wage increases up to eight cents an hour. Approximately 650 printers are affected.

'QUATTERS' TAKE OVER OLD CAMPS

Belfast, Aug. 24 — (CP)—Several army camps near Londonderry which formerly were occupied by United States and British troops were taken over by "quatters" Friday.

It was the first invasion of public property by homeless families to be reported in Ulster.

The movement seemed to spread in a number of English counties. Thirty families of Chippenham, Wiltshire, moved into huts on the edge of town which once housed American soldiers but had been vacant nearly two years.

Best Years of Life After 50 Depends How You Use Them

Walter Pitkin, Author of "Life Begins at 40," Has Written a New Book on the Pleasures to be Enjoyed After Passing Half Century Mark

Walter Pitkin's new book "The Best Years of Life After 50" published and is reviewed by Clarence Mudney in the Hillsdale Times Journal as follows:

An English lord once remarked that a lot of great wars come in the decade between 90 and 99 that everybody ought to hunker up and get their. Walter Pitkin, the optimistic oldtimer in these parts, makes it even more emphatic: I'd rather be 25-today than a youth in any earlier age of the world. I'd rather be a dear octogenarian than young Alcibiades in the Athens of Pericles.'

The life expectancy of the average man has increased 15 years in the interval of 25 years between the publication of Pitkin's most popular book, "Life Begins at 40," in 1930 and his most recent one, "The Best Years," just out.

The "best years" for Mr. Pitkin are now, however, a matter of decade, but the whole span from approximately 50 anywhere up to 90. Grant that there is an unavoidable falling off. The 40 year span—more or less—represents the fifth and last age in man's life, according to Pitkin, for in contrast to Shakespeare's seven ages he has only five. The first phase is coming to life, the say up to five years. In his autobiography Pitkin wrote that not a hundred minutes of his first five years carried over into later life. The second period he calls growing up, and judges just as severe as the first. "No youth or maid under 20 ever reaches the wildest contentions in any social problem great or small, so far as I can find, that a boy of a few crusades and wars. The third age is that of reproductives. "When full grown you get lost under the hot lava of sex. No man is quite himself through these years." The fourth age is making a living. Men in their thirties and forties are so absorbed with moneymaking and improving their own houses and getting promotions as moving in the social circles that not one in a hundred gives any thought to the improvement of anything except what may yield him a quick profit.

"Fifth Age" Most Enjoyable

The fifth age is living your own life. Only when he approaches the half century mark does a man become thoroughly human. He is not any longer an animal in heat. His economic needs are not so pressing that he must live like stock of him self and listen to Pitkin's advice. It is almost as good to be type. The author himself realizes that, "A book such as I have written today wouldn't have been possible a century ago—or if it had the brothers Grimm would have written it."

Yet the advice was not impossible even two centuries ago. Benjamin Franklin, "the grandfather of our country," followed it almost to the letter. In his first 45 years Franklin kept a printing shop. Then he retired and let future printing shop have him. But he did not retire in the usual sense.

Having earned his bread and butter, he learned that man does not live by bread alone, so he left the bread line at the peak of his powers and turned to the things that matter. Men have forgotten the first half of his life. The world will never forget the second.

Not all of us can duplicate Franklin's feat, but we can use more today about the abilities and the liabilities of old age. It as an example. We know The trick is to cultivate a retiring disposition as we prefer-ably on one's sixth birthday. But their is still time to do it at 50. Plan where and how to retire at least five years ahead. Then taper off as gently as possible, so that you do not change your way of life violently at any stages. The ideal executive is not a man on the order of Thoreau, a farmer who carries a farm like a millstone about his neck. Rather he is one who has planned his business and delegated its responsibilities so well that it will continue to function when he steps out, either for a vacation or for retirement.

A housewife is luckier than a man in this respect. As her children grow up and leave home, her volume of work just naturally grows smaller. She tapers off so gradually that she is often unaware of the fact that she has retired. The boredom in which the middle aged woman often lives is not, however, Pitkin's ideal of retirement.

Live Long and Not Grow Old

The middle-aged man usually follows one of two procedures and both are boring. He may be so over worked that one day herselves to get away from it all and spend his remaining years plans in case. But since he has developed no interests outside his work and has no plans for retirement, he will probably suffer the usual fate of his kind.

Dr. CHASE'S

He will pass from de da to do-on in a twinkling, on the day he retires from his high presidency. Being a shaky old fellow he is able to live his own life; and so he will step Ping. Funeral Thursday noon. Please omit flowers.

Therefore the maxims: Keep is a disease. The way to keep young is to keep active. Use it or lose it.

The second type of man reaches the same goal but by a different route. He is the tall executive that he is going stronger than ever. He can do all his work and play 18 holes a week. Retire? Nonsense! I'm good for another hundred years. Have a cigar." He will end in a nervous breakdown or sudden death. More often he holds up progress by sticking tenaciously to his job after he has outlived its usefulness. To him Pitkin says:

Hitch your wagon to an atom. Don't think that from now on it will be as of old: That when a man retires he comes to a dead halt, does nothing at all, and all his powers and authority and is ignored by younger people, Nonsense. You can do as much or as little as you like. You can do what you like, too. You can be yourself more than ever before since boyhood.

How then is it possible to live long and not be old, to run out the track and not quit, to stay in circulation and impress the young? Only do first things that the youth of 50 must realize is that he will accomplish most by taking things easy. Let him learn to take short vacations regularly. In the course of a long life at least 75 years says Pitkin, man should have taken about 1000 vacations. Relax for a few minutes at a time, for a few hours a day, but not more than six hours at one time or more than two or three days in a row. To live a full time life after 50 learn to do many part time things."

Keep First Childhood Alive

The second part of Pitkin's advice, perhaps the most original in his plan, is summed up in these words: To avoid the horrors of second childhood keep your first childhood alive and young. This requires some explanation. People usually have more than a single talent or interest, though they may foolishly to have developed only one to the exclusion of all others. In childhood they may have shown interest in a whole "cluster" of activities ranging all the way from playing football, or sawing logs to writing stories or playing an instrument. If, therefore, you have arrived at 50 without an interest outside your trade or profession, you can perhaps most easily revive another one by going back to your childhood and finding what you were interested in then. If you once developed a dramatic hobby or some youthful dream remained unfulfilled, it might turn out to be the ideal activity for your old age.

Above average people show the most marked tendency to such a clustering of talents. Eminent writers of fiction, statesmen, philosophers and religious leaders have shown themselves most versatile in this respect. musicians, least so. A retiring musician therefore is likely to have a big problem to find an outlet for his energy, unless he has been wise and prepared a hobby or side activity early.

Another feature about these talents is summed up in the line: Come early, stay late. The earlier a trait unfolded in childhood, the later it will go on blossoming, especially if the trait does not require too much energy.

A boy displays lively creative imagination in his tenth year. He is likely to show it when he is 12, however, he's a grand opera singer at 15, he may no longer be one at 50. It cannot take more than one ambitionists as he must energy to carry on a fantasy as to sing opera. A boy displays creative imagination for the first time when 20. Odds are that he will never be a poet if not at all after 50. What comes late goes early.

Work for a Cause

What kind of work will prove most valuable for older people? Pitkin lists five possibilities:

Work for a cause, not money.

Work done to fulfill responsibilities.

Work done to cure, to alleviate or to prevent ailments.

Work done under regimentation.

Work done for some cause that enthuses the worker.

Of the five, exercise, Pitkin says: "After 60 take it in small doses. Allow for brief periods of loads. And then go ahead to your heart's content. As to the second, responsibilities, they are admirable in middle age, doubtful value after that. They tend to ruffle the serenity of one's best years. Better to unload gradually than to assume too many or to assume a kind one which may some day catch you in a trap from which you can escape only by fast moving. The fifth kind of work may be of some benefit to good health in later years. People that have never had an illness such as a sick ulcer, asthama, a tendency to headaches or nervousness or even a weak heart —have never learned to take care of themselves. It's smart to be imperfect, provided one doesn't develop into a hypochondriac. Unpleasant Work done under regimentation, as in large, well managed factories, though not to one's interests outside his work and has no plans for retirement, he will probably suffer the usual fate of his kind.

He will pass from de da to do-on in a twinkling, on the day he retires from his high presidency. Being a shaky old fellow he is able to live his own life; and so he will step Ping. Funeral Thursday noon. Please omit flowers.

CANADIAN GRAVES AMONG BEST-KEPT IN WEST EUROPE

11,000 Servicemen Buried in Eight Cemeteries in Holland, France and Belgium

By ROSS MONRO

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Brussels, Aug.24 (CP)— In eight permanent Canadian cemeteries in western Europe, 11,000 of 13,000 Canadian soldiers who lost their lives in the long advance from Normandy into Germany now lie buried.

The war graves organization of the Canadian army has carried out its task with great care and the cemeteries are among the best kept in Europe.

Of the 13,000 other Canadian Front campaign, 400 to 600 are buried elsewhere and about 1,500 are buried in British military cemeteries or civilian graveyards.

Four of the Canadian cemeteries are in France, one in Belgium and three in Holland. General H. D. G. Crerar, first commander of the 1st Canadian Army, decided that Canadian soldiers would be buried permanently in Germany.

The first cemetery of eight is probably near Beny-sur-Mer in Normandy where the men killed on D-Day and in the great battle for Caen are buried. It is on a slope overlooking the Canadian beachhead and the Dieppe-Caen highway. Each grave is marked by the cemetery's white picket fence along its frontage.

Simple Design

All Canadian cemeteries have been in the same simple design and shell, subsequently to be being added gradually. There is a "stone" house where a caretaker keeps records of the buried men.

The cemeteries will be shortly turned over to the Imperial War Graves Commission, which usually the metal crosses will be replaced by permanent stone crosses.

All the Canadian plots are to be become Canadian territory with France, Belgium and Holland given over to the care of the men who helped liberate their countries.

Besides the Caen -Fallaise road near Bretteville-sur-Laize is another large Canadian cemetery. The other two in France are at the hills Dieppe, Dieppe, and at Leubringhen, between Calais and Boulogne.

The cemetery in Belgium is at Adegem, between Ghent and Ostend and has more than one mile from the Leopold Canal where one of the fiercest Canadian actions took place.

The largest is near Nijmegen where the dead from the Reichswald and Rochwald forest battles are buried and where most of the Canadians killed in Holland are buried.

The other two in Holland are at Bergen-op-zoom and at Holten, 12 miles east of Deventer on the Ijssel river.

Captain Denies Any Insanitary Conditions

Sydney, Australia, Aug. 23 (CP) —With a large cabin sign—"SS Floating Pinghouse"—pinned over her side, the United States army transport Marine Falcon sailed into Sydney today after a Pacific crossing which brought complaint after complaint from her 558 passengers when the vessel berthed.

The sign was hunted out by some of the passengers as an expression of their feelings about conditions aboard. The master of the vessel, Capt. Robert A. Eastman, said in reply that the Falcon was "trooping from the keel up" and that his daily inspections he failed to find any insanitary conditions.

Archie MacDonald, Daily Telegraph shipping reporter who went hours aboard interviewing passengers, said he failed to find one who had a good word to say about the voyage.

Nola Luxford, founder of the Omaz Club in New York, complained that an Australian merchant seaman suffering tuberculosis had been placed in an isolation ward with "no porthole and no privacy."

She said no one on the ship gave any service and asserted that sick children "were crying hour after hour in the sick ward at night." Only once, she added, did she see a nurse go to the ward

T. R. Fellows, business man from Montreal said: "The sanitary conditions were only be described as a disgrace."

The Australian explained that the Falcon was not a passenger ship, but offered passenger accommodations for passengers.

He said he had rectified a complaint that Australians charged 5s for afternoon tea that should have been free.

Anything Goes As Lamp-Makers Try New Styles

New York, Aug. —(CP)— The nation's lamp-makers and fabrikers gathered in a New York hotel for their huge mid-summer trade exhibition demonstrated that anything goes in new styles.

Some 300 hundred exhibitors were on hand to show again the well-known lamps of 19th century English reproductions of turned and boring leather and plaster, and to introduce the things that have been added—and the things that have been left out—since the days of Victoria.

It has been a long development to the modern fluorescent, and the electric lights—the first American oil burning lamps.

We have progressed circuitously and whimsically from candle to kerosene to gas to electricity and back to candles, for candlelight is popular.

Today's lodies are made of a dozen different materials and come in different styles—right up the 18th -century crystals with teardrops (a few of these period types can be found in antique shops).

The newest thing in lamps is one which uses a fluorescent tube hidden in a shade made in built. These lamps are being manufactured with classical bases and other conventional forms. In room size they are very much like any other except that they produce a more diffused and softer light.

Try Anything Once

In designs the manufacturers are trying almost everything. There are Bases and shades in leather for library or den. There are painted paper shades, and imitation parchment handhammered copper ones and plaster bases with the colorful initiated by the queen of rococo decoration, Dorothy Draper.

For home decorators who are tired of rods and spirals and blocks piled on each other, there are always the genuine antique lamps.

The prosperous burning lamps of the 1890—1900 period are selling at prices that amount to a dollar for every five cents of the original investment — lamps once $1.98 now cost from $20 to $30. The student lamps with brass bases and green or opaque glass shades are priced around $2.50 to $7.50 now cost between $20 and $100.

Whether gunning for a modern lamp or antique, select style and design carefully or you'll come home with something not unlike the novelties given away on the midway at a country fair.

POLICE FORCES ARRIVE AT STRIKE SCENE
BRITISH UNIT SURROUNDS PALESTINE VILLAGE

200 Rounded Up For Questioning After Ship Hit

Operation Follows Pattern Of a Full-Scale Invasion

By JOSEPH GOODWIN

Sedot Yam, Palestine, Aug. 26 —(AP)—Two hundred residents of this tiny Jewish fishing village were rounded up today by British troops and Palestine police in a move said by officers to be directed at finding the "frog men" who almost succeeded in sinking the immigrant-transport Empire Rival in Haifa harbor last week.

The village was surrounded by a brigade unit before dawn and the villagers were herded into barbed wire enclosures for questioning by police while army crews searched homes and buildings. Mine detector equipment and dogs formerly used for mine detection in Germany were used in the search.

Brig. C. H. Anderson, commander of the 2nd Brigade, who was in charge of the operation, said the village was "a hotbed of terrorism" and "we believe (the raid) was a complete surprise to the villagers."

He said the village, only five miles from Haifa, was one of the bases for persons who blasted the ship, and added: "We believe the village was harboring illegal forces."

Villagers said the search was the second conducted here. They added that the first search was made June 30.

The military operation followed the pattern of a full-scale invasion. Lines of troop-carrying trucks, field kitchens, radio communication systems and first aid facilities stood around the sparsely treed rubble of an ancient Roman fortress.

Three Sherman tanks were deployed in support. Armored cars and All roads were blocked and covered by machine-guns. Reconnaissance planes buzzed overhead. Police launches lay off shore and machine-gun crews manned the at elevations along the beach.

Duplessis Urges Unity Against Communism

Rimouski, Que., Aug. 26—(CP)—A warning that unity against Communism was the only way to prevent it from taking root in our country, "our greatest enemy in our country," highlighted an address last night by Premier Duplessis of Quebec before delegates to the 11th annual convention of La Federation des Chambres de Commerce Des Jeunes de la Province de Quebec.

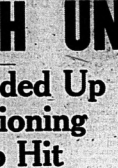
Mr. Duplessis told the 750 delegates, who thronged the Seminary Auditorium in this St. Lawrence River town some 200 miles below Quebec, that "the world now is swamped by a wave of anti-religious anti-social ideals which is expressed in the world by Communism."

"It is for all Canadians, but especially young Canadians, to safeguard in all its integrity the confederation of Canada which was the result of deliberations of men of different language, different nationalities, united in the love of their political birth to a strong nation. These men united their unity through the confederation pact could Canada exist as a powerful nation, and we must realize that this pact holds today," Mr. Duplessis said.

Mr. Duplessis, warning against what he termed another threat to Canada, said: "The spirit of confederation can only be assured by the respect of administrative, judicial and constitutional decentralization of governmental power . . .

"Unity is teeming with Canadians who would want to see in Canada a single government, a single race and a single religion . . ."

YUGOSLAV SPEAKER



Yugoslav Vice-Premier Edward Kardelj was summoned by U. S. Secretary James F. Byrnes in Paris and told Yugoslav explanations of the shooting down of U. S. planes over Yugoslavia were unacceptable, Byrnes acknowledged to get his government's clear up the entire matter.

Bacteriological Warfare Entrusted To Goering

Nuernberg, Aug. 26 (AP) — A German general told the International Military Tribunal today that in July 1943, Hitler entrusted Hermann Goering with the task of carrying out preparations for waging bacteriological warfare.

Maj.-Gen. Walter Schreiber said an institute was established near Posen, Poland, where bacteriological cultures were to be produced on a large scale and experiments carried out.

Only the time needed to produce enough cultures was to be effective and the necessity of developing serums to protect German soldiers and civilians prevented the plan being put in action, Schreiber said.

Goering started forward sogrifly ber when the witness told Gen. Alexandrov of the Russian prosecution staff that Goering had ordered experiments on human beings in order to develop new suits for pilots many of whom were being shot down into the English Channel and freezing to death before the arrival of rescue planes.

3 U.S. Navy Planes Bomb Yacht On Lake Erie, Mistaking it for Target

Detroit, Aug. 26 — (AP) — A full-scale investigation was ordered by United States Navy officials today in the accidental dive-bombing of a private yacht on Lake Erie Sunday by three Navy planes.

Seven fishermen aboard the 38-foot cruiser Comm. named the Abbatross, escaped serious injury when it was set afire by a practice bomb. Navy officials said the planes apparently mistook the white boat for their floating target.

Albert Reisig, of Toledo, owner of the cruiser, suffered minor burns about the face.

Charles Desmond, secretary of the Ottawa River Yacht Club who talked to the men when they returned ashore, said they related that the planes made three bombing runs.

"Comm. is the first run three of the bombs were dropped but none exploded close," he said. The third time they came down one of the bombs struck at the water line near the gas tank. Several of the men jumped overboard."

A navy crash boat, which was in the area with a rescue helicopter craft, rescued the men. The boat towed the Comm. Navy officials said charges of car theft and of obtaining cars by false pretenses at Kingston, Peterborough, Millbrook, Toronto, Port Hope, Bowmanville and Kirkland Lake. Officers of the Toronto force were assisting the task force. Reisig, on a holiday stealing a motorcar from Toronto last November. Toronto officers said Bloom was wanted on

Haircuts, Shaves Raised Five Cents By Local Barbers

After consideration of an application forwarded by the Barbers' Association of Belleville, Mr. Davies, deputy administrator of services of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Toronto, has affixed and approved a new standard of prices for barber shop dressing services in the city. Hazen Hicks, secretary of the barbers' Association here, was advised today.

In his communication to the local association, Deputy Administrator Davies has set the following maximum prices: Haircut, Adults, 45 cents; haircut, children, 35 cents; shave 25 cents. The new scale of prices goes into effect immediately.

Prices charged for all other barbering services may not exceed the present lawful maximum figures as established under the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Following the meeting of the Peterborough barbers some time ago, members of the local Barbers' Association settled application for an increase in the prices of barbering services, due to the high wages demanded by experienced help; increased cost of barbering materials and other expenses.

Members of the association here were notified today by Secretary Hicks of the decision to increase the above-mentioned prices.

Part of Highway No. 62 to be Rebuilt

With surveys completed, preliminary work on the first paved, one-quarter miles on Provincial Highway No. 62 north from Madoc was started on Monday. Clearing of the right-of-way has been completed and construction workers have commenced with blasting of rock.

Route of the grade of the new highway will follow closely the present road, but curves will be straightened, hills and knolls cut down and the level raised.

The three - and - one - half-mile stretch is part of a 15-mile highway which it is expected will be regraded in the near future.

South of Madoc county road employees are engaged in grading operations between Ivanhoe and Tweed. The former paved highway to paving of this particular stretch of road which it is expected will be completed next year.

Believe Lafortune In Wooded Area Near Wellington

Reports that an innkeeper, distinguished figure, heavily bearded, wearing brown trousers and navy sweater, was seen in the area were the description of Henry Lafortune, Picton, a farmer who has been seen three times in the heavily wooded area in Wellington and Hallowell Townships, Prince Edward County, during the past few days, intensified police and farmer search in that district for the fugitive.

Lafortune, who eluded guards after his capture by Provincial Police Sergeant Ken Jackson, on August 2 was arraigned on charges of breaking and entering, when he made his escape.

He was now shortly afterwards near Brewer's Mills near Kingston, and at Dead Lake, which Lafortune can be swam, and later turned up in the vicinity north of Bath's Island.

The escapee apparently slipped out into the waters of Bath's Island farmers; after a three-day search of the area failed to reveal his whereabouts. Later, a farmer living on the road from James Halliday near the Hurr's Island road off the Bath-Consecon highway, gave rise to the belief that he had eluded the cordon of farmers' guards.

Farmers Water Route

Lafortune is believed to favour the water route, for he worked his way south from Picton to the Bay of Quinte district that borders Lake Ontario from Wellington to Bath 1.

The escapee was first seen in the area by Earl Miller, on Wednesday evening by Earl Miller, farmer residing on the Hallowell Township road, who was walking in an easterly direction and when he called to him, he broke into the woods and disappeared. Later he looked at the spot in the door and there was the man sitting on the doorstep. He called to the police and the suspect disappeared.

Afterwards Miller heard a noise at his garage doors and on approaching found Lafortune forcing his way in. It was the same man and on his approach he too, more turned and fled.

Heavily Bearded.

On Thursday morning, a milk route driver Reg. Fitch, of Wellington, was driving down the farm of Earl Ellis, one mile south of Wellington, on the Hallowell-Wellington-Trenton highway. The suspect was sitting on the fence and when approached him, then disappeared into the bushes which flourished him as having "brown trousers, carrying a heavy stick and was heavily bearded."

Mrs. Mary Wannamaker, farmer's wife, living in the Hallowell area, heard strange noises during the night, but was afraid to investigate but on Friday morning she heard a fence creak and saw the suspect climbing over it and disappear into the woods at the Distance Farm.

She notified Police Constable Earl Marvin, Wellington, who immediately got in touch with Jackson and with the help of a hurriedly-raised party of thirty farmers combed the fifteen acres of woods into which LaFortune had disappeared.

Kingston authorities were notified and six prison guards from the penitentiary aided by provincial police and farmers in the all-Saturday search.

Finally Sidetracks.

On Sunday Provincial Constable Sam Devine of the Bellcourt detachment and Constable Marvin, scoured the sidetracks along the line and one of the men on a dawn searching party. They followed the road and hyway so far north as Consecon, and then gave up the hunt for the fugitive Sidetracks.

The area in which LaFortune is believed to be hiding is heavily wooded and provides plenty of hideouts for an experienced bushman.

Farmers of the entire part of that Prince Edward district have been alerted and are keeping a close eye and look for suspicious and roads leading in and out of the area.

PICTON

Four Escape Serious Injury As Tire Blows Out

Picton, Aug. 26—Four local people escaped serious injury on Thursday night when the car in which they were riding rolled over several times. Police were told a few hours later of the accident on the Cherry Valley road. The car, owned by Wm. Dunlop, was driven by Fred Patterson, both of Picton. Boyce received a cut on the knee, abrasions and shock, while Mrs. Sharpe escaped with bruises. Provincial Constable J. C. Rogers investigated.

This week the fall shipping season will get under way from Picton Harbour. C.S.S. Arnold Covert stated that around one million bushels of grain would likely be handled, providing the tonnage mark meets expectations.

Part of the pack of peas has already been canned.

Work of making a special film of scenes in the local branch of the Bata Shoe Co. was done last week and will be shown in Canada, the United States and Czechoslovakia branches of this plant.

Volunteers Cut Distribution Cost Of Ration Book

Ottawa, Aug. 26 — When distribution of the new Ration Book No. 6 is to be made during the week September 13 to 16, distribution centres throughout the country will be staffed almost 100% by volunteers under the direction of Local Ration Board Officers.

Led by various church groups and women's organizations hosts of volunteers are already offering their services to Ration Boards in their communities.

Besides many new volunteers there will also be the experienced large numbers of public-spirited citizens who worked during the Victory Bond Campaigns. Campaigns will be on hand again.

Ration Board officials have stated that due to this volunteer help, distribution costs which normally would come out of the taxpayer's pockets have been kept amazingly low. It is estimated that the cost of distributing Book 6 will be at least one-tenth that of issuing Ration Book 1.

Following are the costs of distribution for the last five books:

Book 1	$153,878.79
Book 2	31,133.00
Book 3	16,260.99
Book 4	13,479.80
Book 5	13,525.00

Barton Haggerty, Returned Veteran To be Auctioneer

Fresh from a three weeks' special course at Decatur, Indiana, Mr. Barton Haggerty, son of the late James Haggerty, former county treasurer, and Mrs. Haggerty, will commence as auctioneer throughout the Hastings district, it has been learned.

Returned overseas with the Huntingdon district, Mr. Haggerty served with the 23rd Field Battery during the past war and enlisted with the R.C.A.F. serving three years overseas with the 103rd Division. He saw service in France, Belgium and Germany, and returned to Canada in 1946.

Following his discharge from the service Mr. Haggerty decided on auctioneering as a future career and took the special course at Decatur. Five Canadian provinces and 26 American states were represented at the school where 210 were in attendance.

Police Active During Weekend

Although little of importance occurred in connection with local police circles over the weekend, nevertheless members of the local police force were comparatively busy as they were called upon to handle considerably more than the usual number of family quarrels and minor disturbances. Saturday too, were quite commonplace with a number of persons having been fined too freely being apprehended.

On Saturday police were called to the scene of the midway which was being played on Dundas Street. A local youth and one of the travelling showmen were reported to have been in a fight and both received black eyes. Sent home in the cruiser. Early Sunday morning another midway employee and Oshawa bus driver were engaged in an altercation called at a local cafe, the manager reporting considerable damage to property.

Several motorists were apprehended either for speeding on city streets or for failing to stop at "stop" signs and in each instance were quickly asked to report to the police station.

Sixteen Persons Lose Their Lives During Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

Sixteen persons, 10 of them in Ontario—lost their lives in accidents and one staying in Eastern Canada during the weekend, a survey by The Canadian Press showed. Twelve deaths were a result of car accidents and three were drowned.

Michael Dolman, 47, and George D. Ferguson, 18, were killed Sunday when the car in which they were driving crashed head-on into that of Lawson Glasson, 19 miles west of Toronto, Garnet Goodall, Hamilton, died in Tillsonburg hospital early Sunday as a result of a car accident 13 miles east of there on Saturday; Wilmot Reiss, eight, died Sunday in an Owen Sound hospital as a result of a Saturday accident near her Eldyth home, six miles south-west of Owen Sound.

Other deaths include: Hilton Meredith, 73, University of Western Ontario medical student, found by police Sunday on the Muncey Indian Reserve n London, with two bullet wounds and Alan Hadfield, 19, Hamilton, killed when the heavy tractor-trailer he was driving, overturned on a curve near Sudbury.

Rolled into Ditch

Ralph Shadd, 16, died in a Chatham hospital Sunday after the car in which he was driving rolled into a ditch and crashed into a tree; Benoni Bergdet, 33, injured in a car-truck crash near his Fort William home, died in hospital there on Sunday; Bert Olmstead, 50, proceeding from Renfrew to his farm nearby was forced into a ditch and pinned beneath the tractor he had just purchased. He died in hospital shortly after the accident.

Mrs. Marjorie Harkman, 30, slipped on loose earth at the edge of Kaaskeka Falls, 12 miles west of Wort William, and plunged 130 feet into the Kaaslatigwia River.

At Montreal, Peter O'Neill, 21, was killed when the motorcycle on which he was riding collided with a truck and Bernard Shaw, 37, was drowned when he fell from his bicycle in a deep pool of water at a powerhouse.

Serge Beaudoin, four, died in hospital after being struck by a truck near her Montreal home, and Sydney D. Stephens, 61, of Ottawa, died in Montreal early Sunday as a result of injuries suffered in a car accident near Joliette, Que.

In Nova Scotia, John McPherson, four, was killed when a car overturned and bounced on to a Glace Bay sidewalk. At Guysborough, Orin MacEachern, 23, drowned when he fell into the harbor from a small sailing craft.

Will Foster International Relations

By WILLIAM ROSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Aug.30 —(CP)— Slowly emerging from its hitherto ill-defined reason for being, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization has at least decided what it would like to do. In November it will ask permission to do it.

Resolutions and projects recently adopted at the London meeting of its Preparatory Commission indicate that U.N.E.S.C.O. soon itself will be ready as a liaison between national organization of the type included in its name.

International relations in those fields will be fostered by bringing together people with the same pursuits, from scientists to book salesmen, and enabling them to exchange ideas on their fields.

U.N.E.S.C.O. will itself do little other than suggest, correlate, co-ordinate and facilitate exchanges. It will be an international "idea man" and having expressed its ideas to the proper people, leave it to them to act.

Where international organizations do not exist in certain fields, such as in the social sciences, U.N.E.S.C.O. might foster them. Where they do exist, U.N.E.S.C.O. hopes to persuade them against overlapping.

There has recently been established an international association of university teachers. A project for U.N.E.S.C.O. conceivably could be the encouragement among the members of a similar organization for other types of teachers.

In the field of education, illiteracy is to be combatted, through the promotion of "fundamental education," and a certain world co-ordination of text books sought in history, geography and civics.

Simple Exchanges

The system of exchanges, so popular before the war, is to be revived and applied to many fields. Officials would like to see international exchanges worked in civil servants, bank officials, librarians and other fields, and not restricted to teachers and newspapermen.

One of U.N.E.S.C.O.'s few longterm projects for itself will be the establishment of a library, not so much of factual information, which telling where questions ought to be sent for authoritative answers.

Keeping within the means of its budget the organization has limited its own immediate projects to three— educational reconstruction in the war-devastated countries of Europe, setting up in Paris of a "Study Centre on International Relations" to be attended by selected graduate students from all over the world, and a summer course established in Paris for teachers from all countries.

LIGHTNING STRIKES TWICE

Harrison, Me., Aug. 26—(AP) —Melvin Jordan is minus his second barn because lightning struck twice in the same place, Johnson Hannah and its street to some extent still follow the lines of the old Roman walls.

It is the modern place of the Empire. Within its gates are the Bank of England, Lloyd's where the stock exchange, the Fleet Street home of the great news agencies, and, rising above all, old St. Paul's.

It will be the first of the London boroughs to be reclaimed from war's devastation, and city planners, envisaging a new metropolitan area, say the more the city is modernized the more it will remain as a world centre of commerce and finance.

From a traffic viewpoint, the "City" is referred to as a heart or lung, into which and out of which are pumped each day some 500,000 workers and about 50,000 vehicles. It is planned to divide the program of relief into two stages, 1946-1955 and 1955-1975.

The road system is planned for double the amount of traffic. Two new routes will run from Falcon Square to London Wall and from the Guildhall to a new junction at Cannon and Queen Victoria Sts. A special route of two arms, 80 feet wide, will start at Holborn Circus and Aldgate and meet at Liverpool St.

A circuit of inner distributive roads, 66 feet wide, will be provided for mixed traffic. Old through routes will be widened.

Underground Parking Planned

Underground parking space also is being planned.

The St. Paul's precinct— of the program— will be opened out to Carter Lane and Paternoster Row, the choir school re-built at the east end, with the top of Ludgate Hill becoming mainly a processional drive to the west front of the cathedral.

DETROIT WINS SOCCER TITLE

Detroit, Aug. 26 —(AP)— Toronto Greenbacks defeated the Detroit Wolverines 4-2 here last night, but Detroit kept its lead to win the North American Professional Soccer League title.

A crowd of 2,33 saw the Canadians stage a last half rally on three scores by Harry Phillips, John McCusker and Jack Davidson, to take the game.

Detroit finished the season with 11 points on five victories, two defeats and a tie. Toronto placed second with 10 points on five victories and three defeats.

TO REBUILD LONDON CITY IN 30 YEARS

Many of Quaint Corners in Financial District to be Sacrificed as St. Paul's Becomes Centre of Traffic Circle

By RICHARD TOMKINS

London, Aug. —(AP)— St. Paul's cathedral as the centre of a great traffic circle is now part of a 30-year plan for reconstruction of the old City of London district devastated by the "blitz."

Sacrificing many of the quaint corners of the "City" oldest of greater London's boroughs, may grieve sentimentalists, in the new plan.

TALENT SHUFFLE FEATURES LINEUP OF WINTER SHOWS

Sponsors Juggle Stars as Advertising Cuts Bring Changes to Radio Programs

By EDGAR SIMON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Radio listeners looking for their favorite program this fall are likely to find it in an unfamiliar time, on a new station or on a different night of the week. Or it may be missing from the air entirely.

Many programs faced with production problems due to shortages or strikes, have pared their radio advertising budget. Others have snapped up the high-priced radio talent, but a number of big-name shows have been left on the open market, with no one apparently willing to underwrite their expenses.

Stars who for years have enjoyed a spot during the week where they were assured of a large listening audience will find themselves bucking unaccustomed competition when the fall season opens.

Among the missing, unless "angels" turn up to back them will be songsters Rudy Vallee, Hildegarde and Nelson Eddy, comedians Danny Kaye and Messrs. Clifton Fadiman, John Kieran and Franklin P. Adams, the experts of "Information Please."

Bing Crosby, signed up with the Chesterfield people at an astronomical salary, is tentatively scheduled to buck competition from Frank Sinatra and "Duffy's Tavern" on Wednesday nights. Over the largest group of stations ever to carry a radio program," including more than 600 stations throughout the world.

Jack Benny and Eddie Cantor, both absent from Canadian stations last winter, will be heard again on United States networks. There has been no indication whether they will be in Canada this year.

Other comedians who will be back at the old stand next October include Bob Hope, Fibber McGee and Molly, Fred Allen, Red Skelton and Vaucouver's Allen Young.

Among the more prominent newcomers are Victor Borge, piano -playing comic who will share billing with Benny Goodman's orchestra, and Peter Lind Hayes who will be the starring comedian on Dinah Shore's program.

A Canadian " who achieved stardom in London's music halls while serving overseas with the R.C.A.F., 26-year- old Edmund Hockridge of Vancouver will make his first debut over a CBC network this fall. Hockridge tried out his baritone voice in an amateur contest at London's famed Beaver Club, was a prize and started a promising career.

Arrangements were made with Hockridge's commanding officer for other Beaver Club appearances, including a performance before the late Duke of Kent. Later the R.C.A.F. public relations branch in London formed a broadcasting section to which he was transferred.

After a spell of writing and producing broadcasts as well as singing assignments, Hockridge was demobilized in London with the rank of flying officer and sang in several BBC concerts in various parts of Britain.

SOUTH AFRICANS SEEK MIGRANTS

Pretoria, Aug. —(CP)— The South African government will take "whatever vigorous and positive steps are practical" to attract European immigrants to the country, Prime Minister Smuts told a United Party meeting here.

Viscount Montgomery's Visit

Canada has for the next two weeks as her guest Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery who arrived at Halifax on Saturday and was given a warm welcome. The great soldier, the hero of El Alamein, is spending an active short time in the Dominion and it is not to be wondered that he is anxious to see the Canadian veterans at home. On Saturday he stated that the object of his visit was in the main to meet the veterans who had served under his command and to catch something of the spirit of Canada.

Canadians hold highly the Irish general whose solicitude for his men and whose military skill and leadership were so inspiring to the Allied cause. The present Chief of the British Imperial Staff has always spoken with appeal to Canadians and he will find it interesting to study Canadian character and the spirit of the people. A great many Canadians are of Irish birth or descent and have had a potent influence upon the national life and the development of the Canadian spirit. Both the Viscount and the Canadian people will find it not difficult to understand one another.

Britain Building Half World's Ships

The tonnage of merchant shipping under construction throughout the world at the end of June, 1946, totalled 3,277,225 tons gross, of which 1,764,945 tons gross, or about 55 per cent, is being constructed in British yards, the highest percentage since June 1922. This represents an increase of 88,840 tons on work in hand in Britain compared with the quarter ended March, 1946, and is greater by 677,650 tons than the corresponding figure for June, 1945. The tonnage of work commenced during the April-June quarter was 329,084, and the tonnage launched was 372,405 tons gross. Of the total tonnage in hand in British yards, about 247,500 gross tons (or 14 per cent. is accounted for by overseas orders or ships for sale. Britain is building now nearly three times as much shipping as any other individual country, and if Britain and the British Dominions are taken together, the contribution of the British Empire to world shipbuilding is nearly 59 per cent.

Maple syrup crop in Canada this year was substantially above that of last year there being 2,144,000 gallons made or 614,000 gallons more than last year. Of this 1,889,000 gallons were in syrup while the maple sugar was 2,534,000 pounds. Production in Ontario was 236,000 gallons as against 124,000 gallons last year. Quebec made half a million gallons more than in 1945, the 1946 production being 1,883,000 gallons. The tapping season was generally long, beginning early in March and lasting well into April. Those who were able to put away syrup have the satisfaction of knowing that the quality was better than a year before. However in Ontario conditions varied considerably. In the heaviest production districts in the eastern part of the province the weather was cool with light frosts at night. Warm weather made it necessary to gather sap frequently as it tended to sour if left in buckets. The Canadian Pacific Railway monthly review says the quality was good but production well below normal.

There are recollections here of pre-war market days when there were large offerings of syrup in the early spring days. With the coming of war and the rationing of sugar and syrup and smaller harvests owing to lack of help purchase of syrup was not the easy matter it was in the days when the market days had large offerings of the sweet products. Several springs since rationing the presence of syrup on the market was an invitation to a rush and crowding about the stands of the producers fortunate enough to have syrup for sale.

The review of the C.P.R. says that the demand for both syrup and sugar was so great that consumers in increasing numbers went direct to the sugar camps to purchase supplies.

Maple syrup harvest is no mean part of Canadian production. The gross value of the crop for both syrup and sugar in 1946 is estimated at $6,282,000 of 40 per cent greater than the value of the 1945 crop which was set at $4,497,000.

Lure of Nature

That season known as the holidays is rushing to its end. But there is a feeling in many quarters that enjoying nature's resources should not end with the end of the month of August but even weeks later. Canada has an autumn of which Canadians do take advantage in fishing and hunting, one of the stellar attractions of Canadian waters and woodlands which has irresistible appeal to visitors and natives especially. More and more Canadians are learning the lure of the streams and rivers and lakes and great forest lands in which this country is so rich.

The freedom of motoring since the lifting of restrictions of wartime has meant and will mean a great increase in the numbers of persons taking advantage of the early and late autumn for their continued acquaintance with nature.

Lavender Harvest

Lavender, the basis of some of the United Kingdom's most famous perfumes, is now being gathered in the chief growing centre, Norfolk East England. The harvest is exceptionally good and the industry expects to produce a very good quantity of its high quality fragrant oil. The bulk of the season's perfume is scheduled for export to territories where "Old English Lavender" still holds an appeal. Several new perfumery experts from the United Kingdom have shown an exceedingly rapid rise in the last year. Their value for the first six months of 1946 was £115,040 compared with only £45,000 for the corresponding period of 1945.

Plows Field With Motorboat

Norwegians in the western fjord districts have long combined fishing and agriculture with admirable success. It was not until recently, however, that this combination reached the ultimate with a report that a certain fjord farmer had succeeded in plowing his field with a fishing boat.

Plowing with electricity is a fairly common practice in these districts where the fields are steep and there is a power supply low, but replacing a horse with a boat had never before been tried. This particular farmer living on the Kils fjord in Sunmøre had a field close to the fjord's edge. It was comparatively simple matter for him to rig up a system of cables and blocks, back back his motorboat up to the shore and then hook on and plow away. The weather was calm and the work pulled out from shore allowing a furrow in record time. With a long cable and a pulley at the far end of the field, the plowman had only to signal to his "seagoing horse" and another furrow was laid in the opposite direction. Soon the whole field was turned.

The success of the venture has made Farmer Ole Mjeitvik a subject of spirited conversation in his district.

BABY'S ARRIVAL

When first a little child arrives
To bless the home and all within it,
Changes are made in many lives
In that divinely holy minute.
The wife will hesitantly mother be,
With all the cares that mothers bother
The man who paced the hall! Ah, he Will evermore be known as father.

But something more than human lives
Is touched with grace and set to glowing;
The house to which that babe arrives
Is richer made by God's bestowing.
There'll be a line beyond the door
For little bonnets, slips and dresses;
And playthings strewn about the floor,
And ribbons gay for curly tresses.

As time goes by, the walls will wear
The smudgy prints of sticky fingers.
At table soon a white high chair.
How long the memory of it lingers!
Close at her side at meals they sat —
Tugged at her sleeves, with jelly messed them;
But, oh, she never minded that,
So happy, she, that we possessed them.

The rugs, no, doubt, will thin a bit
Beneath the feet of children racing,
But she will answer: "What of it?
Such wear, no dwelling is disgracing."
She'll tell the captious, churlish mind
That sees things broken ere they're paid for —
For children was the home designed;
To keep them happy it was made for.

Housewife's Meat Is Well-Fed Peru

Regina, Aug. 26 (CP)—It seems as though there is only one solution for women who find rationing of butter and sugar a hardship—take the first boat for Peru.

Mrs. R. A. Cole, of Tisdale, Sask., says there is no shortage of food in her country except in canned goods. This is especially true of canned fruits, she says, but an abundance of fresh fruits grown in Peru makes up for it.

A Canadian by birth, Mrs. Cole went to Peru as a bride 17 years ago. She and her husband, an oil company accountant, visit Canada every three years.

And for those who don't like the cold and howling north winds it would appear as though Peru was also for them. Mrs. Cole says the temperature never falls below 60 degrees and rain is the exception rather than the rule.

Dieppe Necessary Says Montgomery

By JACK BEATLEY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Halifax, Aug. 26—(CP)—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery completed a busy two-day opening stand in this Atlantic port on Thursday—a stand that enhanced his popularity and won him a law degree, hood and a piece of silver.

It also provided the famous soldier with an opportunity to sing the praises of the Canadian soldier and declare the blood-work of Dieppe as a necessary preliminary to the successful invasion of Europe.

The controller and chief of the Imperial Staff pleased everybody by giving up the brass hat and donning the battle dress with his rank in favor of his black beret and battle dress. He was cheered to the echo on Tuesday when he strolled through the streets of Halifax and Dartmouth and chatted with the crowds who lined the streets.

Besides that, there was Miss Montgomery, who made a point of seeing that her famous father "likes the ladies" by insisting a bevy of nurses paraded with the military hospital and provided by tank battalion, the Algonquins, insisting disabled veterans light up their fags in a hospital ward.

In his speech at the Dalhousie University convocation he described the ball-marks of Canadian soldiers as "tenacious, enterprising versatility and robust mentality." He said in his opinion the finest work done by the Canadians when under his command, was the operation carried out with the opening up of the Scheldt estuary, by the time that the Allied armies had free access to the vital port of Antwerp.

"Packed Punch" at Dieppe

Receiving a silver tray bearing the city's coat-of-arms, he said Dieppe was a case where it was necessary to "pay the price known" and Canadians had willingly accepted the job. He said that "that we got what we wanted out of the operation."

"... When we did in fact return ... three years later, in June, 1944, the experience gained from Dieppe proved of great and lasting value in that in developing a sound technique to break through the Atlantic Wall ... we couldn't have done that without the experience gained at Dieppe."

Then with a keen smile he paused and said: "I am glad in this entire order to the 1st Canadian Army at the time the Allied armies had free access to Antwerp through France.

This order had contained this sentence: "I have no doubt that the determination of the 1st Canadian Army will ensure that the 2nd Canadian Division (the Dieppe people) will be the first to deal successfully with Dieppe." And, he added: "I am glad that that order was carried out in true Canadian style."

Mr. Robinson took exception to opposition claims that rationing had not been given the private radio stations which the CBC planned to take over, and argued that the CBC had made its policy clear years ago.

MEMBERS URGE

"I submit that unless such a body is set up by parliament at freedom of the air, or at least what is known as fairness of the air."

Mr. Diefenbaker and other members referred to the fact that the bill empowered the minister or the CBC the money needed to take over the frequencies of the privately-owned CFRB in Toronto and CFCN in Calgary.

Diefenbaker Opposed

"Let me say this, that experience in connection with broadcasting has been this: place control of radio in the power of any government, and all governments tend to think of the country, regardless of any opposition," declared Mr. Diefenbaker.

The latter said he felt strongly about the usurption of power by government boards.

"I am satisfied in 1933 it was expected that it would operate as a field monopoly. There would be plenty of room for competition from private stations.

He urged that the committee recommend next year that the bill be referred back to persons operating newspapers. He did not think it was wise to give the power of refusing space on both newspapers and radio stations.

Freedom at Stake

Mr. Low said he believed the very freedom of the Canadian people was at stake.

"While the CBC is an institution potentially capable of being the top flight servant of the Canadian people to that point where they have made secure in Canada and where democracy is real and virile, the administration is perfectly capable of contributing in very large measure to the destruction of the people under a totalitarian state," he said.

Mr. Low suggested that the bill be left over until next year's session. In the meantime the government could draft a bill to define the policies and powers of the CBC. These policies should allow for competitive networks of private stations in the provinces.

"I do not know just what way would be best to do it, whether it would be wise to grant a certain channel to each province to be used at their sole discretion, as a government-owned station or as a privately-owned concern, but I do say that there should be left unrestricted private stations in the province to take care of local needs and to give the local talent an opportunity wherever they think it wise and desirable in order to give to the people the things the people want."

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

VITAMINS ARE FOOD, NOT MEDICINE.

Again I contradicted-myself in the article "Don't Dabble In Vitamin Pills" published here last week. Now, if a dozen eagar readers are right. In the article I described the general, mild, vitamin-blindness in Newfoundland fishermen by a single letter—and I got a dozen letters all which Aykroyd described in his book "Vitamins and Other Essentials" (published in London, 1939). In the same article I said I have never seen nor heard a medical colleague report any satisfactory prompt cure or relief by any vitamin treatment. I further stated the known fact that vitamins are food accessories, not-essential essentials, not medicines, and that when you take any vitamin at all you should take enough of it every day and continue taking it long enough to see whether it will help you greatly and you will help your pocketbook not to spend all your money on vitamins.

Now these alert readers advised me to make up my mind about it as was Aykroyd wrong—or not wrong. I possibly am wrong about how long it takes for vitamins to produce results?

Had I even a remarkable doubt about the power of vitamins to preserve eyesight I would hardly have cited it, in this column, as I have. I'll be disappointed if mention of it here does not bring several reports of vitamin cures for relief of night-blindness by a simple optical test. (Ask your doctor for this daily requirement) of vitamin-A.

Night-blindness is a pretty common functional fault of weak-eyed people which is relieved in various degrees from the slightest annoyance by sunglasses, dim lights or awkward groping and stumbling when one is suddenly released movie theatre from daylight or bright artificial light, to inability to read even in a dim or poorly lighted place. A moderate case of night-blindness which might go unnoticed in one person, I have known every one as a serious fault in, say, a fisherman who must navigate a boat or a truck driver who must work nights.

Why, as always, worming my way out of a tight corner.

Anyway I know of no other instance of such immediate effect from a vitamin as I have seen in the combination of vitamins. On the contrary, the proper and common way to use vitamins or vitamin preparations is day after day for a sufficient period to see whether any benefit follows—and that, as Aykroyd explained, means for not less than a month in any instance, perhaps three or four months in most instances. Don't think of vitamins as medicine, or you'll be taken in by but do look to be taken regularly as you take your daily meals.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Herala

On my request you recommended Ayerst's for hernia treatment. The treatment has proved successful and I never took a day's work through the course of treatment—I drive a truck and do considerable heavy lifting. I would advise any one with a hernia to choose this treatment. (Z. F. W.)

Answer—In the majority of cases the ambulant, office, injection treatment is the best and likely to cure as radical operation is, and is much less painful, less hospitalization, loss of time and pay, risks that invariably attend surgery.

Salsic to Miami

I can't understand why you do not mention Miami and Southern Florida. I am sure the visitors are comparatively free from hay fever. For years I spent the North on Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota resorts with some relief but each Autumn I discovered that I find complete relief. (L. B.)

Answer—Many people write me these things? Now I'll take your case, and all of it should be mine by my notice, another case, and maybe insert Miami in the list of hay fever resorts in the next printing of the Hay Fever pamphlet—and I'll be on safer ground request if you inclose stamped self addressed envelope.

Milk Poor Not Cause Mucus

Do you think of milk causing mucus? I have catarrh and it would. (Mrs. G. F. T.)

Answer—I think the notion is that hay fever results from some old quack and propagated by various food "specialists" or diet charlatans.

Why is artificial silk called rayon?

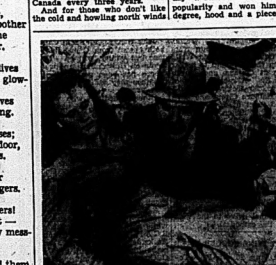
In 1923 the National Retail Dry Goods Association of the United States invited manufacturers to form a committee to select a substitute for "artificial silk," which was considered inadequate and misleading. The cause of a new, scientific textile material.

After considering many suggestions submitted by the public, "rayon" was adopted by the committee on January 25, 1924.

This term, however, failed to receive official approval, and therefore another committee was appointed to choose a more considered suggestion. This second committee consisted of twenty members of the leading manufacturers and consumers of rayon. The chairman was S. A. Salvage, president of the Viscose Company, pioneer rayon manufacturers of the United States. In a letter dated September 4, 1928, addressed to the writer, Salvage explained how "rayon" was chosen:

"We started with no idea, but we felt that a two-syllable word would be preferable, and a member of the committee suggested that a word should be found a brilliant lustre, one syllable should denote brilliancy, and he suggested that that syllable be 'ray,' and we finally concluded to tack 'on' to it and thus the word 'rayon' was born. There was also the word 'rayon,' and we felt at the time there would be room for confusion over the two words on account of the similarity of pronunciation, but we now know that there would already have been a word in the form of the term 'rayon' had it not conflicted with the French word 'rayon.'

"French 'rayon,' pronounced 'ray-YONN,' signifies 'ray' or 'beam.'"



BRIDGE HOP BEATS BRODIE

Fifteen-year-old Joan Deyo is shown being carried up the bank of the Mississippi by fireman of the St. Paul, Minn., fire department after she jumped into the river from the 160-foot span of Hish Bridge. Suffering only a mild case of shock, Joan told reporters, "I just got the urge to jump. I don't know why." In making the jump she figuratively bettered Steve Brodie's jump off Brooklyn Bridge which is 135 feet above the East River in New York at the centre.

Finds New York The Most Impolite City

(By William F. McDermott, In The Cleveland Plain Dealer)

This is Courtesy Week in Cleveland. I don't know why we should be courteous for only one week, but I suppose the idea is that the good impulses generated during the week will carry on throughout the year and be extended indefinitely. In an ideal world there should be no time limits on kindness and consideration, which are the essence of courtesy.

The theme interests me, for I have recently returned from a visit to a city which I believe to be the most impolite on this orderly planet. I mean, of course, New York, which is still the greatest city in the world. Sometime theory that the customer is always wrong, and not merely wrong but a generally undesirable character whose motives must continually be suspected.

The incidents which prompt these unhappy conclusions are small but I suspect they are typical. I asked for a certain brand of cigar in a big Broadway drugstore. The young man behind the counter said in a challenging and irritated voice. "Well, whag are they?" Point them out in the case."

I thought it should have been his business, not mine, to know what he had in stock and where the different articles he had to sell were placed. But it was his manner, rather than his words, which was offensive.

I had not met him before but he spoke as if I were his lifelong enemy.

"You bum, you unmitigated cad," he seemed to imply, "what are you doing in my store trying to buy what I make a living by selling?" His did not seem wholly reasonable.

I ordered a sandwich at a lunch counter. The young lady in attendance appeared to regard the transaction as a personal affront, since it disturbed her conversation with a man friend who had come to call. She fixed me with baleful eyes, accepted the order with a mingled air of disbelief and disdain, and neglected to deliver the sandwich until many minutes after I had seen it cooked.

Then she shoved it in my general direction as you might toss garbage to unexpected workers, forgot the coffee, had to be asked three times for the check and failed to say thank you for a 50 per cent tip.

This kind of rudeness seem to be more usual in New York than anywhere else. I do not find it in Cleveland, or I find it far less frequently.

The worst manners are most often encountered in the largest cities. I suppose this is natural.

Congestion is greater in a big urban centre and pace of life is quicker. And people who live in such places lose sensitivity.

It seems to me not only that public manners are better in small towns but that they steadily improve as you travel westward from New York. Chicago if politer than New York and San Francisco is politer than Chicago.

Small towns are friendlier and hence more polite, for friendliness and politeness are mostly synonymous, and the reason are obvious. Life is more leisurely in smaller communities. People know one another more thoroughly and they have a stronger sence of community responsibility.

I always thought of Vienna as the politest city in Europe in the days when I was there year upon year. If you asked a Viennese for directions to the destination for which you were bound he would, likely as not, insist on taking you there.

AUSSIES USE PREFERENTIAL VOTE SYSTEM

Voters Must Rank All Candidates in Method to be Used For Sept. 28 General Election

By WILLIAM STEWART
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Canberra, Australia, Aug. —(CP)— Under the Australian system, 4,000,000 men and women will turn out on election day, Sept. 28, when the Labor Government led by Prime Minister Ben Chifley hopes it will be returned to power for a third term.

Since 1925 when compulsory voting was introduced, with fines up to $7.50 for failure to get out to the polls, there have been five federal elections each bringing a turn-out of better than 95 per cent of enrolled electors. When the Labor Government was returned in 1943, the total recorded vote was 4,300,000, representing just over 96 per cent of all electors.

This year's election-day will take at least the 1943 number to the polls, and thousands more if a suggestion to reduce voting age from 21 to 18 is carried out. Voters marking their ballots by the "preferencial" method will choose members both for the House of Representatives, where at present Labor holds 49 of the 75 seats, and for the Senate, where half of the 36 seats become vacant every three years.

Under the preferential system of voting, the electors must rank in the order of his own preference all the candidates whose names are listed. When the ballots are counted, unless a candidate is overwhelmingly popular, the total of votes making up his winning margin over his opponents will be made up not only of "first preferences" credited to him on ballot papers but probably of second and third preferences, and perhaps ballots indicating lesser degrees of "preference," depending on the number of candidate.

MAJORITY NEEDED

Under the preferential system, the winner is required to have an absolute majority of the number of votes cast in his riding though this majority may be composed of votes of several degrees of preference.

Where there are several candidates contesting one seat, several counting of ballots may be necessary before the winner emerges, and in a close election it could be several days before the known.

Australians regard the preferential system as the fairest and most democratic way of obtaining public representation. Here is how the system might work, in a riding where 200 people marked preferential ballots for candidate Brown, Green and White:

Ninety voter give Brown first preference, 80 make Green their first choice, and the remaining 30 indicate first preference for White. The first count would show Brown leading Green by 10 first preference votes, and White out of the running with ony 30. Since no candidate had an absolute majority of the 200 votes cast, a second count would be taken, eliminating White. However, second preference listed on White's 30 preference ballots would figure in the second count.

If 21 of these indicated Green as second-choice, this figure would be added to his first-preference total of 80, raising his count to 101. Brown would have been the second-choice on the remaining nine ballots and his total now would be 99.

Though running second on the first count, Green would win the election with 101 votes to Brown's 99, and have so won the required absolute majority of the 200 votes cast.

SCHOOL girls are fresh and pretty. They're looking forward to the thrills that life will bring them, adventures, romance, fulfilled ambitions. Young mothers, wheeling their baby carriages, are attractive because a new life unfold.

But the average older woman, taking her by and large, as we see her in the 'bus, rarely shows evidence of tension and strain. She hurries along with quick, nervous steps

Looks Tired

Her eyebrows are drawn together. She's tired. The reaction after the anxieties of the war years.

That won't do. Some day, the world will settle down again. Old, happy conditions, no doubt will come back. Then Mrs. Average Woman doesn't want to look old. She wants to be just as pretty herself when she lets her beauty petals fall. She must keep going or do whatever you're the best to do for her own sake she must indulge in selfish moments, have relaxation, healthy recreations, pleasants company.

The war has left many women physically spent with the nervous systems tied into knots. One does not get over a condition like that in a hurry. Many of them have aged in the past four.

WEDDINGS

HAY—KYD

A quiet wedding was solemnized at 4 p.m., August 3, at Christ Church, by the Reverend Arthur Smith, when Iris Kyd, daughter of Mr. Charles Kyd, and the late Mrs. Kyd, became the bride of Gordon Stanley Hay, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Hay.

The bride was charming in a street-length dress of powder blue crepe, with white hat and shoulder-length veil and a bouquet of roses. She was attended by Miss Betty Hay, sister of the groom wearing pink sheer with matching accessories and shoulder-length veil and wearing a corsage of roses.

Mr. Jack Wilshire was groomsman.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride, where the bride's sister, Miss M. Kyd, received wearing a blue ensemble with a corsage of roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore a dress of white eyelet, white accessories and a corsage of roses.

The home was decorated with flowers, and the bride's table, centred with the three-tiered wedding cake, was decorated with bells.

Later the young couple left on a wedding trip to Toronto, the bride travelling in a powder blue suit with white accessories. On their return they will take up residence in Belleville.

RANDLE—WOOLLARD

At 2 p.m., on Saturday, August 17, at the home of the bride's parents, 30 Aberdeen Ave., Peterborough a pretty wedding took place when Pearl Mary, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Woollard, of Peterborough, (formerly of Belleville), became the bride of Albert John Randle, only son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Randle, of Belleville. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. D. C. Amos, of Bridge Street United Church, Belleville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a lovely bridal gown of white sheer with high round neckline and full sleeves gathered at the wrist. The waist was fitted with a tight basque. The lovely floor-length bridal veil (worn by the bride's mother at

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN
She Wants to Keep One Man Waiting Until She Decides About Another

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am in love with two boys, or at least I think so.

One is in the merchant marine, and the other a civilian. The one in the merchant marine was the first one I met, and I was in love with him. When he left to go overseas, he asked me to wait, but since then, I have fallen in love with the civilian. This second one knows about the first one, and that he is coming back home in four months. He has asked me to marry him this month, but I'm afraid. I want to wait and see the one in the merchant marine before saying anything.

Should I do this, or go ahead and marry the civilian? I have been being going steady with him for three months.

D.B.B.

Anyone who thinks she's in love with two men at the same time is likely to be really in love with either of them, D.B.B. Being in love means that you have eyes for anybody but the one on whom you have set your heart.

If you don't like the one here at home well enough to marry him without waiting to look somebody else over; and if you don't like the one who is overseas sufficiently to know without any doubt that he's the boy you want, then you aren't ready to marry either one.

You'd better to stay single until you can make up your mind without asking me or anyone else to help you.

Maybe It's Not "a Clear Conscience" He wants, but Just Freedom

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 19 years old, soon will be 20, and very much in love with a boy who just turned 18. I have been out with him a few times and I think he likes me very much and I know there is nobody but him for me. I am still in service and expects to get out soon.

The last date I had with him, he got fresh with me. I didn't give him a chance at that, and of course he made it an excuse to be mad. But he really was sick.

The people I work with know I love him, and every time they see him they try to get us together again. He has also told them he loves me, and when they tell me, I know it is a lie, because every chance I get to be with him he seems to tell me different I believe he is jealous because he's with men.

I heard that the reason he does not ask me to go out again is because he says I won't go out with him. I don't mind a bit, and when he says he just wants to go back to the old days, I can't see any science. What did he mean?

Trying to Be Wise

I'm rather inclined to believe that he meant he wanted to go back to the service entirely free of "enlarging alliances". And I believe, too, that you'd be wise to stop kidding yourself into thinking you might be able to get him interested in you.

If it were mere friendship he wanted, instead of a passing flirtation, he'd have been back with you months ago and he wouldn't turn down for being "fresh" instead of keeping away from you after that.

I'm afraid it's not jealousy that keeps him away, but just plain indifference. He'll be smart and give him a little of the same!

His Brother's Mistake Shows Him Away From Romance

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been going with a girl for several months now, and am sincerely in love with her. I have often told her how I felt about her, and she has done the same with me.

I have asked her if she would accept a diamond from me, and she has said yes, and we plan to be married as soon as she becomes of age.

My family has told me that we are young and don't know what we want, and that she just wants me for my money. I don't think this because my older brother married a girl who I found out is doubtful about it. What can I do about it? I don't like to interfere in her feelings, as I am!

Well, I should think it might be a good idea if you tried trusting her, don't you think? That's a good way to find out about her and how she feels about you.

And why should you doubt that she's just as sincere as you are? First thing you know, if you start talking questions about her feelings, you'll find that she's beginning to doubt you.

Then before long everything will be in the mess. Just because your brother didn't know how to pick the right one, does that mean that you don't know either? Don't you trust your own judgment any better than that?

You don't say how young you are, but if you need a friend and counsel for your girl, you're no child. So don't act like one and let your head tell you what to like and who not to like. If you haven't got much self-reasoning than you have given me for doubting this girl's intentions, I'm afraid you don't start dreaming them up.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Hostess Gives Both Orders to Waiter

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I was at a resort hotel in July I met a most charming and delightful woman, much older than I, but we became very good friends. She lives in the same city where I live, and she accepted my invitation to lunch with me at a well-known restaurant. I have never been hostess to a woman so much older than I am, and one so distinguished. And as I have been thinking over the occasion, I am wondering if I should let her give her order directly to the waiter and then as hostess, you should give both orders to the waiter — and if the orders differ, it is courteous for you to mention her order first. If you are familiar with the restaurant and its specialties, it is gracious for you to ask your guest if she would enjoy having one of the specialties.

Doesn't Want Her Father to Give Her in Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to be married soon and would like to know the proper thing to do under the following circumstances. My parents have been separated for eight years, and I have lived and am still living with my father and brother. My father and I aren't friends, and haven't been for a very long time. I see him on the street only when it is unavoidable, and when we meet face to face we merely say "hello" and go on our own ways. Now if I have a church wedding, who is to give me away? Should I ask my father, to whom I barely speak, or is it proper for me to have my brother give me away? (My brother is of age.) My friend's parents think it is the right thing for a father's place to give me in marriage, and my family and relatives think my brother should give me away.

Also, even if my father is not to give me away, should I send him an invitation to the wedding, although I am doubtful as to whether or not he will come?

Miriam

My advise is, and most definitely, that you should not ask your father to give you in marriage. Feeling as you do about him, certainly neither you nor he could have any joy or pride in such a procedure, and I see no reason why you should be a martyr because of the viewpoint of your parent's parents.

However, there are two possible alternatives to your problem. The first is that, if your denomination does not require that you be given in marriage (of very often this is not a legal requirement), you might walk up the aisle either with your brother or alone, and not be given in marriage. And the second is that I think a very dignified procedure that might please your fiancé's parents is for you to have your brother escort you up the aisle, and then, at the proper time in the ceremony, have your mother give you in marriage, by rising and responding "I do" when the minister asked the question, "Who gives this woman to be wed and married to this man?" In this way your devoted friends and three — you, your mother, and your brother — will show a unified front on this important occasion in your life.

I suggest that you invite your father to your wedding, and leave to him the choice as to whether or not he attends.

BEN HOGAN WINS P.G.A. TOURNEY AT PORTLAND

Collects $2,000 in Defeating Ed. (Dutch) Wilmington Six and Four

By GAIL FOWLER

Portland, Ore., Aug. 26 (AP)—Golf's greatest money winner of the year—135-pound Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa.—today was $2,000 richer, today after his blazing comeback in defeating Ed (Dutch) Wilmington, yesterday to win the 1946 National Professional Golf Championship, six and four.

The victory boosted Hogan's winnings in 20 tournaments this year to $33,317, some $13,000 more than collected by defeated champion Byron Nelson.

In the morning round yesterday little Ben was three down after three sired an eagle three and birdies at him on the second nine. Ben, who had been consistently erratic with his woods, stormed over par for the first time with a 72, while Dutch was a two-under-par 70.

Hogan completely reversed the trend in the afternoon. He won the 30th through the 33rd with three birdies and a par to erase Oliver's lead and go one-up. The little gold machine kept hitting 'em down Hogan's alley on the final nine, his three birdies in the last five holes putting him eight under par for the round.

They call the Portland golf course "Hogan's Alley" because Ben set a world record of 631 for 72 holes here last year.

The morning round was 32nd after Hogan pitched 118 yards with an eight-iron to within three feet of the pin.

Niagara Houcks clinched the Niagara Senior Baseball title Saturday by defeating the Niagara Falls, N.Y., Kimberley-Clarke team 4-3, for their third victory in four games. The two border teams were tied going into the ninth when the Canadian team shoved across the winning run.

In Intercounty senior playdowns Kitchener defeated London Majors 10-2 and Stratford won from Waterloo 14-10. At Kitchener a crowd of 2,500 saw the Panthers square their best-of-five semi-final at a game apiece, while Stratford now is leading 2-1 in the best of five against Waterloo.

With the play-downs progressing in practically all divisions the veteran pitcher, Nestle Nestor, led the Thorold-Merritton Thorners to a 5-4 victory over the visiting St. Catharines Saints in a game which gave a 3-1 lead in the best of seven series for the Niagara District Senior B Final. In the Intercounty Intermediate Tillsonburg Fan-Drieds took Stratfordville 2-1 in 10 innings, the first game of a best-of-five.

Brantford Red Sox travelled to Galt to defend Galt Vets 3-3 before a crowd of 2,000 in the third game of the O.H.A. Intermediate play-downs. Galt won the first game and the second was a tie.

Guelph Juveniles qualified to meet Brantford in the Intercounty finals by beating St. Thomas Kiwanis 13-0 at Guelph Saturday.

Another juvenile game saw Oshawa eking out a 6-5 victory over Peterborough to tie the best-of-three series at one each. The games at Oshawa went 16 innings before the Peta, who garnered seven runs in the eighth inning, admitted defeat.

At Sudbury the Frood Tigers edged out a 6-5 victory over Creighton Mine in the first game of the B series of the Nickel Belt senior semi-finals. The B series is held up pending determination of the fourth-place spot between Shamrocks and Copper Cliff.

Midsummer Week's Theme

(New York Times)

According to a reliable almanac, this present week stands at the exact middle of the summer. Six full weeks have passed since summer arrived on June 21 and six full weeks are to follow after this one before Sept. 23, when an equinoxial storm with hurricane symptoms is due to sweep up the coast, convincing the most devoted sun-worshipper that the summer is really over.

If we were an artistic people like the ancient Greeks or a romantic people like the medieval English French, we should perhaps be observing this interesting season with open air drama or a mask and revels in Central Park. But nothing of the sort has been announced. The English to be sure, have set aside by act of Parliament the first Monday in August as one of four "bank holidays." When England was in normal spirits it was really a rugged" holiday; Arry and Arriet out loose with an abondon that alarmed Conservative backbenders. But that too, has passed away.

Things Have Changed

Nothing will be changed this but that in itself is a change from a few years back when New York slowed down very considerably in midsummer. When Fifth Avenue and the side streets were lined with private houses one could walk for blocks and see nothing but boarded-up fronts and no sign of life in these homes except an occasional caretaker with the family cat. Caretakers and cats have vanished along with the houses themselves. Death taxes and income taxes have seen to that. The tall apartments which rise on all those streets appear to function sedately on a year around basis. People may be away, but "life goes on."

Subways, sidewalks and buses seem no less crowded in midsummer than at any other time. Traffic is if anything more congested—motor transport having progressed to the point where nothing can move. For every New Yorker who leaves for a vacation elsewhere a visitor arrives for a vacation here. For the first time since the war one hears Spanish frequently along the shopping and business streets For our good neighbors who live close to the Equator consider a Neuva York "way up north" and a proper place to visit in the hottest weathers.

Haves and Have-Nots

As for the millions who live and work here the year round, they tend to group themselves in midsummer in two large categories: (1) those who have had a vacation and (2) those who have not yet had a vacation but are going soon. Between these Haves and Have-Nots there exists a certain amount of strain which may explain some of the testiness which is noticable just now.

A lot of fresh air and a healthy tan inflate the ego of the Haves, but at the same time they are depressed by the thought that vacation is a thing of the past. The Have-Nots may be suffering from fatigue, but they are keyed up by a great hope: "Next week (or week after next) vacation!"

In the office the Have-Nots will note that the Haves is looking well and rested but that he shows no great burst of energy—in fact, seems to have suffered a decided let-down. The Have will not fail to observe that the Have-Not is looking ragged, that his work looks the same, and that "what he needs is a vacation."

As Yee Like Hie It

But the office keeps going, thanks to the simple principle that enabled Mr. and Mrs. Jack Spratt to get along as well together. Some like their vacations early, and some like them in between.

Carlos has bought a boat and must go early to try it out. Carlos and likes Maine, but not before August. Evangeline, who was an officer in the Marine Corps, chooses an in-between date with military precision. Josephine carries on because she doesn't like to get back from vacation while the weather is still hot.

Leslie, whose life outside office hours is mainly devoted to urging horses along bridle fences, will naturally go late. Jean is Scotch and much to thrifty to spend a whole summer's vacation in one place at one time. She'll take a week for the seashore early in July and casually mention a week for tennis when the weather is cooler.

Word Of Warning

While the Haves and Have-Nots and strain, the work of the city during this week there is a third group— it must be very large— which is away on vacation. For them there may be a word of timely warning in the most famous work of the author whose name is related to this midsummer theme, namely, William Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream." It will be remembered that it was while observing the antics of a group of people on the loose a not very long way near that Puck, the wise sprite, was moved to remark: "Lord, what fools these mortals be!"

Ontario Girl Breaks Into English Movies

Denham, England, Aug. 26 — (CP) — "Little Canada" is the nickname given to young Maxie Taylor, Brampton, Ont., by British actors and actresses during "Hungry Hill," at the Denham Studios.

Miss Taylor, who has been cast for a small part in the film, was recently discharged from the RCAF Women's Division after touring the British Isles and the continent with the W.D.'s "Blackout" company.

Brown-eyed Maxie has given herself six months to make a success of movie work.

"I love England," she said, "though my father has a duck farm back home in Brampton and I miss it sometimes."

Margaret Lockwood, British movie star, appears with Maxie in "Hungry Hill."

Apparently undisturbed by his forthcoming appearance at the war trials court in Tokyo, Henry Pu-yi (Right), former puppet emperor of Manchuria, laughs as he meets Joseph B. Keenan (Centre), head of the war tribunal prosecution section. At the left is Col. Alexander Ivanov who escorted Pu-yi from Russia. When he appeared on the stand later, Pu-yi defended his acceptance of the Manchurian throne on the ground that the alternative would have been a death sentence.

Boo Ferriss Nears Sophomore Pitching Record; Brooks, Cards Still Tied For First Position

Registers 44 Victories in First Two Years and Only Three Short of Record

By TOM BENCHLEY
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Davis (Boo) Ferriss, Boston Red Sox sophomore pitching wizard, not only is the major league's biggest winner today, but appears on his way to establishing a modern record for most games won by a pitcher in his first two seasons in the big leagues.

Ferriss, whose 22nd mound triumph yesterday helped the American League leaders sweep a doubleheader from Cleveland Indians and increase their margin over the second-place New York Yankees to 14 games, already has registered 44 victories in his first two years, only three shy of the record of 47 set by Grover Cleveland Alexander with Philadelphia Phillies in 1911-12.

Ferriss outdueled Rid Ehmke of the Indians 3-1, aided immeasurably by home run, who smashed two home runs, the second coming in the ninth inning to decide the first game. Two big innings, a three-run third and a six-run fourth, enabled the Sox to coast to a 9-3 victory in the nightcap, while Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals, after a seven-hour battle in St. Louis, ended in a tie, even in their doubleheader. As a result they remained tied for first place in the National League pennant race, the Brooks came from behind to eke out a 3-2 victory in the opener, but the Cards checked all over Dazzy Brooks' pitchers to win the wild and woolly nightcap 12-8.

Two More to Play

The two teams will complete their foreign series in 1911-13 game tonight and another tomorrow afternoon.

New York Yankees became the first club ever to reach the two million mark in attendance yesterday, but their joy was chilled by Hal Wiltse and Hank Greenberg, who collaborated to give Detroit Tigers a 7-2 victory at the Yankee Stadium. Allowing only five hits for his 22nd victory, Newhouser helped his own cause with a home run. Greenberg also hammered a homer, his 28th, and added a double and single.

Lou Fonseli, former Illinois University and semi-pro right-hander from Chicago, made a successful major league pitching debut against Cincinnati Reds, who divided a doubleheader with the Phillies in Cincinnati. Pitcher Joe Beggs had blanked the Phils 7-0 in the opener. Jacques-Old Fossel won a 4-1 hurling duel with Harry Gumbert in the nightcap.

Hank Borowy pitched and batted Chicago Cubs to a 2-1 victory over New York Giants in Chicago.

Boston Braves made it 12 out of 15 from the Pirates by taking two games in Pittsburgh 7-5 and 10-5.

Washington rallied for two runs to tie the score in the ninth inning, then pushed across the winning run in the 12th on Sherry Robertson's triple and Dutch Ritter Early Wynn's single to defeat the St. Louis Browns in Washington 5-4. After Ed Lopat pitched Chicago White Sox to a 4-2 victory over Philadelphia Athletics, the Mackmen, behind Phil Marchington, came back to win the second game 6-5.

JERRY DOWNES SERIOUSLY HURT IN KINGSTON RING

Sustains Two Fractured Ribs From Solar Plexus Blow by Rowe of Ottawa

Jerry Downes, local boxing star was seriously injured in Kingston on Friday night when he suffered two cracked ribs while substituting for George Polmanter, Belleville, in the main bout of a Kingston club boxing show, against Doug. Rowe of Ottawa.

According to a Kingston report, the climax came in the final round when after 30 seconds of sparring Rowe, golden gloves champion, landed a solar plexus blow that stopped Downes.

Hank Wells, referee, sensed that Downes had been painfully injured and went to his assistance. Downes was helped to his corner where investigation revealed that he had sustained two fractured ribs and was later taken to hospital in an ambulance.

George Polmanter, who was in Downes' corner substituted for the unconscious lad would like to meet clever Rowe "as soon as possible and in a longer ring."

Tony Acerra, Belleville heavyweight defeated Harry Brooks of Kingston in the third round of a spirited bout.

Swedish Athletes Capture Six Titles at Meet

By The Canadian Press

Athletes of Sweden captured six championships in the final day's competitions yesterday of the European track and field games at Gothenburg, to bring their total to 21 titles in the four-day meet, during which two world records were smashed. Finland followed with four first while France and Great Britain each provided two champions. Eight other countries, including Russia, took one event in the championships.

Britain's winners were Sydney Woodcock in the 5,000-metres event and John Archer in the 100-metres.

Participating for the first time since 1923, Soviet women captured five titles. Holland also counted for three and France recorded one victory in the female contests. The European meet was staged for the first time since 1906.

Attendance at American Association baseball games has already established a new record at 926,722, the total being in excess of the 1925 attendance mark of 1,- 653,065 which was set in 1927.

The International series of the National Sandlot baseball tournament will open at Victoria, B.C., Sept. 5 when the Windsor champions, representing Canada, will engage the United States semi-pro winners. Play continues until the team emerges victorious.

Jorge Berroets, champion swimmer of Chile, made his bid yesterday for the English channel swing and came within half a mile of the English shore before he was taken out. As he had been successful, it would have been the 20th accomplishment. The record for the feat of 11 hours, five minutes, was set by Enrique of France in 1926. The 23-year-old Chilean intends to try again within the week.

One of the greatest turf upsets occurred in the $103,250 Arlington Derby at Arlington Park, Chicago, Saturday, when Eternal Reward, 50-1 shot, won by a head from almost three lengths in front of Pellicle to take $83,480 first money. Sarazen, 2-1 favorite, finished a poor ninth.

Capturing three events, a youthful Toronto swimmer, Jack Standing of the first National Junior Olympic championships at Clevelland, O., Saturday. Cincinnati and Cleveland were first and second in points among 12 cities.

John Lyttle, of Hamilton, Ont. placed second to Frank Bennett of the United States in the Saturday's Canadian Grand American Handicap Trapshooting title at Indianola.

Rufus Gentry, right-handed pitcher with Buffalo Bisons of the International League, is the latest baseball player as the result of a gun accident Saturday night. While cleaning a shotgun, he shot himself both hands. He is with the club on option from Detroit Tigers.

Because of numerous requests for personal endorsements and public appearances, outfielder Ted Williams of Boston Red Sox baseball team, has had signed Fred Corcoran of the U. S. Pro Golfers Association to handle his business affairs for the next five years.

Four races with purses totalling $30,800 will feature today's opening program of Grand Circuit harness racing at the Ohio Scioto State Fair. Junior Protest

The Kiwanis Juniors management has announced that a formal protest has been filed with the Juniors-Eatts game last week at Memorial Park by Mr. Alex Sclive of the Belleville Senior Baseball League. The protest contains two clauses; one claiming that player Ken Wilson, who did not commit a balk in the third innings, and the other protesting the decision of the calling of the game in the sixth innings by Umpire Jack Thompson, on account of poor visibility.

Baseball Czar Thomas of the Belleville Baseball Loop confirmed the story that the protest had been filed and stated that a special meeting of the Rules Committee would be called immediately to deal with the protest.

Kingston Athletic and Ottawa Wrightvilles are at the same spot they were in prior to Saturday's games as the Junior squads were rained out in one game and split the other 5-4 decision and that leaves the teams in the same position as before. There has one game in the bag and the teams will play it again on Wednesday, so we were informed Saturday night.

A Smart Squad

Speaking of the series, Ken Calling, a great who knows his baseball and Athletic fan saw the Kingston-Ottawa game on Saturday opined with the remark that one of the best defensive teams he has seen in years has been the infield fairly sparkles, Mr. Calling remarked, as the smart hitters tried out with the Stuffy Stewart infield last night. Other spectators from the city who saw the game, their comments are the same, their hitting is said to be not exactly for championship class but their 961 what those French Canadians is lacking in fielding skill is backed by a solid infield is a sight for baseball-hungry optics.

Tomorrow night should see the week's softball tidbit at the Pals' playground, when the RACO Marlboro, take on the fast-stepping Bell Telephone squad, winners of the Kingston City League pennant. Manager Mazie Peoples will start his starry right-hander Marty Halleran against the Kingston veterans who will rely on the right arm of Steve Hook to fling them to victory. The game is scheduled for Kingston on Thursday night.

Meanwhile Point Anne who defeated Picton in the third game of their Intermediate "B" first round, will tangle with Tweed in the Heights team. The first game was originally scheduled for Friday last, but the third tussle between the clubs which became necessary when the Trenton squad refused to protest against substitution of umpires, necessitated the delay. We have no information as yet as to the dates of the Kingston-Tweed series, but that will likely be forthcoming late today.

On Wednesday night at the Alemite Field Tommy Coldern's Stewart-Warner Alemite ladies will defend their laurels down the Women's Provincial Softball championship trail. The gals will meet the winners of the Bowery-Colborne series for the Kaleidoscope Ladies' title which is now being played. The game starts here at six of the clock and a big crowd of the ladies' softball fans will be on hand to cheer the Colden crew to victory. The second game of the series will be played in Cobourg or Colborne next Saturday starting at 1.30 p.m., and the third tussle if necessary will be played at 4 o'clock on the same date.

If the fates decree that Belleville Juniors clash with the Wrightvilles, the series should be a thriller. The Wrightville guns will need to be at their best, with extra-base clouts served up as a specialty.

Red Kingston or Ottawa settled their junior first round series Saturday there was a strong possibility that our Juniors would stage a "Come Back" game this week. According to Ken. Colling, who is a member of the Ontario Baseball Association executive, it has been suggested now that the locals take on the Ottawa crew who drew a bye in the draw. Mr. Saunders stated that he was in favor of the idea, providing conveyor and arrangements can be completed for the series. More about that later.

When you have finished reading this and maybe if you have time, take a passer over to the Alemite Field where, barring rain, the Latta and Hartsville Tobacco teams are battling in their first game of the ORA Intermediate "B" first round playdowns. The Hartsville crew won the North Hastings championship and, so we are informed are a doughty group of baseballers. The squad are at it right now and play the second game in the north-ville village on Saturday, August 31.

It's playdown time all over the circuit, but Friday night the Mountain View softball squad, conquerors of the Tyden Brewers, will play Tweed in the second round of the Ice Cream Cup playdowns. Tweed defeated Wanane in their opening game and are said to be a smart softball club. The return game is played on the air station diamond on Wednesday, August 25.

K.O.S AFLENTY

Belleville and district leathern pushers will stage a record large crowd of box-fight fans in Picton last week when the Rotary Club's K.O. Show featured its second boxing show. There was a number of local boys some honest-to-goodness slugging and plenty of excitement throughout the eight-fight card.

Bill Westfall, Trenton's smart scrapper, KO'd Jimmy Lee, rugged Belleville batter in the first round. Westfall was floored while clever Jerry Downes battled out a K.O. decision over Fred Little, Trenton, in the 2nd round of the semi-final. Harry Ayres, Picton, had to cart Clapper, likewise by the K.O. route in first round of the first round while Belleville's Cecil Anderson got the nod over Wilf. Duby, Trenton.

"Soup" Mondeville TKO'd Denslow Foshay, Trenton in a brief seven rounds. ROYALS CLINCH SECOND PENNANT IN SUCCESSION

Newark Bears Have Only 16 Games to Play and Montreal Has 19-Game Lead

(By The Associated Press)

Montreal has clinched its 4th International League flag, its second in succession, with a 19-game lead over the runner-up Newark Bears who have only 16 games to play.

Surviving a managerial change that found Clay Hopper moving to Montreal to succeed Bruno Betzel, the 1945 skipper, the Montreal club that has held first place ever virtually the entire season made it certain yesterday by beating Rochester 4-3 in the finale of a twin bill.

Branch Rickey has seen to it that the Montreal club was outfitted with many promising Brooklyn Dodger farm talent. He padded it out with a flock of veteran farmers like third baseman Low Riggs, catcher Steve Dyer, Hanks and pitcher Curt Davis, although the accent has been on youth.

It was Davis who applied the clincher yesterday when he toned a neat three-hitter to beat Rochester after Lefty John Mikan had won the opener for the Red Wings 3-2, on Vernal Jones' hit in the 13th inning.

While the Royals celebrated their pennant win, Newark, Baltimore, Syracuse and Buffalo continued their battle for playoff positions.

Syracuse squeezed past Buffalo into fourth place by one percentage point by taking two from Jersey City 9-4 and 7-3, while the Bisons were bowing twice to Toronto 3-2 and 5-4.

WHIPPER WATSON, KRIPPLER DAVIS HERE FRI. NIGHT

Belleville fans who just about "blew a gasket" when Karl Kripplerr Davis slugged Tost Morgan into unconsciousness during their week, may view next Friday's main bout with considerable optimism.

Davis has been signed again and this time his opponent will be none other than Whipper Billy Watson, British Empire Champion. Actually Davis has been pointing to this match ever since his arrival in Canada from his native Texas. But if he lays Texas Tornado thinks he has any kind of a set-up in meeting the Whip he is due for a marvellous shock. In any case the match should stir the local wrestling scene as few bouts ever have.

Karl Davis is not only big and tough but he has this deadly Cobra Hold which polished off Morgan and many another good heavyweight during the past season. Resembling a strangle-hold this Cobra grip need not necessarily bring pressure on the windpipe but there are plenty of fans who believe that Davis slides it down until it actually does constitute a choke.

Another 'great' bout is predicted when handsome Frankie Taylor hooks up with Jim Goon Henry in the semi-final. Taylor did one of his greatest pieces of work ever seen here when he pinned Warren Bockwinkle last week. The fall came as a complete surprise to their second match which had been a classic to witness.

That old favorite (?) Bunny Dunlop will be back after a few weeks absence from the local scene and will meet Ben Sharpe the older of the two magnificently built Hamilton boys. Dunlop, bloodied young Mike up so badly a month ago here that the fans were ready to riot. Now it's up to Ben.

Montreal, Aug. 30 (CP)—That drum-beating and fanfare ringing in your ears is just the build-up for the Cauliflower-Greco bout to here next Wednesday, which already is beginning to take on the aspects of a minor battle of the century.

The fight mob is hepped up no end by the affair and all present point to an all-time record gate for the cauliflower business in Canada. The weekend ticket advance sale was well on its way to the $20,000 mark, and so we were Great Expectations that the gate would gross a neat $40,000 by the time all the fans took their seats at fight time.

The ring followers have been waiting a long time to get Dave Mead and Johnny in the ring together, and there's the expected chest thumping from each managerial camp, and from the respective retinues.

It'll not be outdone by the versatile Deacon Allen's prediction confidence for easy Pit Audette comes up with a boost for Johnny.

According to Pit, the champ is confident "has a good chance to go part of the first round."

"It's just a question of when Johnny will get a belt at him," he said.

Word from south of the border is that Hollywood plans to film the life story of Monty Stratton, pace that has Darnell Smith's Falls and Ottawa as possible second choices. Coincide in the revised loop when next season comes around. Manager Stratton of the Greenville Green Sox in the Border loop has his team right in the play-off fight although the old school of managers still consider him a triple damp behind the ears. Only 30, he handles the situation as well as any master-minding.

Times are when bridge rules are more confusin than amusin. As any fool can tell you. First you kinked break your neck learning a general rule. Then you find branches that differ from th ini

Out of the general rule for leads, let me lift this segment: Against a suit contract, don't lead away from an ace or a king. Thus, you may lead away from ace or king against a no-trump contract.

A suit may be headed by A Q or A J or A 10 or K J or K 10. Each of these combinations is known as a tenace. Notice that each of the tenaces mentioned here has an ace or a king.

This brings us around to a normal conclusion. It tells us not to lead away from a tenace headed by ace or king in a suit contract. Also that there is no objection to it against a no-trump contract.

Many experts, however, graft some branches to this general rule. Even in no-trump, not always do they approve of leading from some of these tenaces. It depends on the number of cards in that suit.

Against a no-trump contract, take the case of a suit headed by the K J tenace. Some experts advise against leading that suit if it contains four cards. But they favor it with five or more cards.

Opponents have bid spades and ended in a contract of three in no-trump. It is your opening lead from this hand:

♥J 5 3
♦K J 9
♣Q 9 7 4

Lead the club seven, fourth best of your longest suit. Against a no-trump contract, most good players would regard this a good lead.

On the other hand, suppose you had one less small club. Some of the experts would expect you to lead some other suit. They like to draw such close distinctions.

My advise is to remember the general rules only. Unless you are an expert. In that case, you are probably beyond taking any advice.

Some players know too much for their partner's good.

Hollywood, Aug. 26 (AP) — Victor Moore, looking more like a New England clergyman than a veteran actor, folded his hands over his comfortable paunch and said softly that he isn't quitting this racket, even after 52 years of acting.

The little funny man, who is quiet and serious off-stage, is now in his 70th year. He could easily be 50.

We were sitting in a corner of the "21 Happened on Fifth Avenue" set. He wasn't working in the scene, but was quietly watching the proceedings in his shirt-sleeves, minus a collar or tie.

"Yes," he said as he peered over his thick glasses, " have no intention of retiring, because I'm happiest when I'm working.

"My business manager has been trying to get me to retire for some years now, but," he smiled slyly, "I won't let him force me to do it."

Moore has carefully invested his money in several profitable business ventures. One of these, a bus terminal on Long Island, takes in several million nickles a year. But even this does not entice him to leave show business.

Looking back at his long list of films, (he started with Jesse Lasky; Cecil B. De Mill directed his second film back in 1916) he chose "Make Way For Tomorrow" as the film that stood out most prominently.

"You probably don't remember it," he smiled in grandfatherly fashion, "but Leo McCarey (who directed it) has always said it is his best. Unfortunately the picture never made much money."

Many young Hollywood actors shun the stage, fearing the slight shows a week in all types of weather will make them old before their time. But Moore is the perfect example of how continual hard work preserves a man.

TWENTY-THREE NAZIS ARRAIGNED IN EAST

Shanghai, Aug. 26 — (AP) — Twenty-three Nazis accused of helping Japane wage war against the United States after Germany's surrender were arraigned before a United States military commission today and all pleaded innocent. The commission set Sept. 16 as the trial date.

CHAPTER 17.

"Larry! What a beautiful little home!" Jacqueline said breathlessly. "I don't wonder you love it. From pictures I've seen, it somehow seemed like a mansion of the south."

"My mother's family came from Virginia."

"What a shame that no one is living in it. Has it been empty long?"

"Ever since we lost it. The owner never used it."

"But, Larry . . . that high wire fence looks as though it were new."

"It is," was the grim retort. "Brand-new."

"Why do you suppose it's there? It even has barbed-wire on the top."

"Yes. I've noticed. The owner must have decided that he didn't want anybody looking around there. And that fence wasn't there the last time I passed."

"When was that?"

"Three or four weeks."

Larry leaned back in his seat, filled and lighted his pipe and sat smoking in silence. Jacqueline sensed that he was thinking deeply and did not disturb him. She resumed her study of the old house, trying to picture how it must have looked in former days, how it would look now with the soft glow of lamps shining from the black windows. There should be climbing roses over those columns. She would clear away the encroaching undergrowth, build a wide, velvety lawn . . . take away the tumble-down stables in the rear. And that disfiguring fence. It seemed to ruin.

"Larry!" She whispered his name, catching at his arm. There's somebody standing in those bushes over there. I . . . saw him move!"

"I've been watching him."

"Oh—maybe, we'd better start on." She moved closer.

Larry shifted his position slightly and leaned forward, one arm resting on the wheel. 'Hey, you, over there!" he called sharply.

A deep silence followed. Jacqueline held her breath. The bushes rustled and the dim figure of a man appeared. After standing uncertainly for an instant, he strolled forward. He was a short, heavily set man wearing a sweater . . . pulled up about his neck. A cap shaded his face.

"What will do," Larry ordered brusquely. "What's the big idea?"

"Just what I was goin' to ask you, mister. You're on private property here. Better go somewhere else to do your necking."

Jacqueline felt Larry's arm grow tense.

"We have been admiring the house," he answered, quietly. "Do you happen to know if it is for sale and who owns it?"

"Don't know."

"It doesn't look so valuable. I should think that fence would be protection enough without you."

"That ain't none of your business. You'd better be movin' on."

"Please!" Jacqueline whispered.

Larry chuckled as he started his motor.

"Good night," he called over his shoulder, "and please tell your boss that we appreciate your civility." Jacqueline glanced furtively over her shoulder.

"What a dreadful looking man!" she gasped. "He's a guard or something, isn't he?"

"Has all the earmarks of one. That seems to be a valuable piece of property . . . Maybe I can't have another turn."

Jacqueline pondered that remark in silence. Larry made another turn.

"What a beautiful house that is over there!" Jacqueline exclaimed.

"Yes, that's some joint. By the way, it's where the present owner of Fairlawn lives."

"Fairlawn?"

"Yes, the former Cutter castle. My mother gave it that name."

"It's a pretty name. But I thought you didn't know the owner's name. You asked the man who it was, didn't you?"

"Sure, I know. I was just seeing how much the gentleman would talk."

Jacqueline laughed. Then they were silent.

"Larry," she said suddenly, "I can't help wondering something. That man who owns your house . . . is he a friend of yours?"

"I wouldn't say that, exactly. What's on your mind now?"

"Something Lieut. Staples said to me. I didn't tell you before, because you didn't ask me. . . . But he did say that there was some one . . . And then, when I saw the way that house was guarded . . . self."

"Fine! You do read mystery stories, after all."

Jacqueline subsided with a distinct feeling of disappointment. Larry wasn't going to tell her anything, after all. But she was satisfied of several things now. The same man who was having Larry watched was the owner of that house. It was Larry whom he was trying to keep off property, out of the home that had been his father's.

Her disappointment increased when Larry showed no disposition to converse upon the subject. He talk of inconsequential matters until they were back in the city, when he asked suddenly:

"Did you finish scolding me? We haven't much time left now."

"I think so," was the short answer. Larry was rather exasperating at times.

"Just wanted to be sure. I'm a little afraid I'm easy to retire myself in for another one now."

"What do you mean?"

"I've been thinking a little about Mr. Anthony. He'll be coming out of the hospital soon. What are you planning?"

"I don't know," Jacqueline answered hesitantly. The mention of the problem of love everything else from her mind.

"You know . . ." Larry paused uncertainly. "I haven't a dad of my own, I could use one just now. How are the chances of borrowing Vince?"

"Borrow Vince!" Jacqueline's voice betrayed her complete amazement.

"That's right," was Larry's quiet reply.

"But . . . what do you mean?"

Slowly enough. When he gets out of that bed, he isn't going to be able to do much for himself, in spite of what he thinks now. He's going to need a good deal of care, rest, and proper food. Will that sort of thing How is it going to fit into your picture?"

"I know that Vince will need looking after. I'll attend to that."

"Surely. You can do it better than anyone else in the world. But you'll find it's going to break into your day somewhat."

"I'll manage."

"Oh, I can't do that right now. I might take a vacation until Vince is able to look after him-

"If you keep him with you, that means a move, doesn't it?"

"Yes." Jacqueline did not succeed in keeping the regret out of her voice. Each time she thought of leaving that little apartment on Courtland Street, a lump came into her throat. It seemed the only real home she had ever known.

"I think that would be letting yourself in for a lot of unnecessary work," Larry said. "It's a much better plan than that."

"What is it?" Jacqueline received to be on her guard.

"Why don't you go up in the country I know of . . . it's a farm, in fact. Swell place for Vince. Lots of fresh air, eggs, milk and that sort of thing. Just what he needs while he's recuperating. He could take all his trappings along and amuse himself any way he wanted."

"It might be too expensive . . ." Jacqueline hated to say that. Everything that happened now seemed to have its financial aspect. And her own finances were so intolerably enmeshed in Larry's. If he were figuring on doing something nice for Vince, she wouldn't be . . . Wouldn't even listen to it.

"Ain't cheap," Larry insisted easily. "They don't know about city prices up there. I think it's the thing to do."

"I'm not going to be separated again from Vince. He needs me."

"Us!" she echoed.

"Yes. I'm thinking of going into retirement for a while. That's what I mean—about borrowing Vince, you see. . . I'd like him for company and . . . well, I figure there are some things we can do together."

"What sort of things?" Jacqueline asked quietly.

"I'm going in for some research," was Larry's prompt reply. "I can use the services of an inventor, when your dad gets up and about. Incidentally, I'm rather interested in that project he's working on. . . I think it has possibilities."

"Larry . . ."

"Yes, ma'am?"

"Has Vince suggested your . . . your backing his invention?"

"Pon honor, he did not! But I do not want to see him carry on with it. I'm not so sure it's practical."

"Larry, I'm going to speak plainly. I'll have to ask you something. Why do you want to go and stay on a farm?"

"You should know the answer," he replied cheerfully. "Weren't you the one to tell me that I was being hounded by the minions of the law? Why shouldn't I go up to retirement for a time? You see, I'm trusting you not to give me away."

"I can see that you don't wish to be serious. But you can't blame me if I form some opinions of my own. I suppose it sounds very silly to you, but I feel responsible for Vince."

"You think there is some danger of his becoming involved."

"Perhaps. I don't want to hurt your feelings . . . after all you've done. But you must understand how I feel. If this is just another way of being nice to me . . . it's rather intolerable."

Larry dropped his bantering tone.

"You're not altogether right, Jack. Perhaps I do want to be nice to Vince, as you phrase it; why not? He's your father and . . . and I like him. If you're unwilling for him to be my guest for a time, it's quite all right for you to pay his expenses. They won't be much."

Jacqueline clenched her hands tightly in the darkness. . . Having to sit there and hear him talk of spending . . . his money! Thank heaven, they were almost home.

"I still think it's a much better plan," Larry continued imperturbably, "than for you to leave your apartment and make Vince shift for himself while you're at work. I'm only better plan I could suggest would be for you to come along with us. Lieut's going with us would make it perfectly proper."

"You speak as if it were already settled," was her sarcastic retort.

Thomasburg

Thomasburg — Members of the Green family held a picnic at Oak Lake on Sunday.

The many friends of Mr. William B. Vance were sorry to hear of his misfortune. On Tuesday last while sawing at his saw mill he was hit in the eye with a piece which caused serious injury. After receiving first aid from a local doctor he was admitted to Belleville hospital where he is a patient in care of Dr. Forbes. It is hoped to save the eye. Vance will not lose the sight of his eye.

Master Donald McCue, of Corbyville, is holidaying with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Morton.

Miss Emma Porter has returned home after a short holiday with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Porter in Toronto.

Mrs. W. H. Storrings and little Shirley Carter of Madoc, spent a few days this week with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Robinson and family.

Mrs. Frank Bowser and daughters Carol and Lois of Winnipeg, have been holidaying recently with her father, Mr. Albert Geen and other relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Franks of Trenton, have been holidaying with friends here.

Mrs. W. H. Storrings, of Madoc, spent a couple of days at the home of Mrs. Wesley Morton.

Mrs. Edward Way and Mrs. Jig Way have had as their guest recently their niece from Minneapolis, Minn.

Mr. and Mrs. Burton Elliott and David, of Napanee, were recent callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Elliott. Mr. Alan Elliott returned home with them after spending part of his holidays here.

Master Craig Watson, of Harold, has been spending three of his holidays with Mr. Laird English.

Body of Student Found on Reserve Near London

London, Aug. 26 (CP) — The body of Eldon Meredith, 23-year-old fifth-year medical student at the University of Western Ontario, was found by police early today on the Byron Indian Reserve near here with bullet wounds in the head and chest.

Police said they were led to the isolated spot in dense bush, three miles south of Mossley, by one of two Indians who had been taken into custody last night for questioning in connection with the student's disappearance.

The search for Meredith followed the arrest of Simon Peters, 26 and Lloyd Nicholls, 25, Indians of the Muncey Reserve, who were alleged to be in possession of Meredith's motorcar in which police said bloodstains were found on the seat cushions and a spent bullet was found.

Police said Nicholls told them Meredith, whom he knew only in the army, was shot accidentally. Nicholls said he had a Luger type gun in the car and Meredith pushed the barrel back, causing it to discharge.

Meredith had left London Saturday to return to his home in Wallaceburg. On Sunday at noon police at Delhi picked up the two Indians. They claimed that the suspects were driving Meredith's car and carried a wallet holding Meredith's identification card and other papers belonging to him.

Nicholls said they also found in the car a pair of corduroy trousers similar to those Meredith was wearing when he left.

Meredith disappeared early Saturday and planned to drive along back concessions through Alvinston and Dresden selling fruit magazines en route home.

London police said that one of the Indians, Nicholls, led them early today to the spot in dense bush near Muncey where they found the body. One bullet had entered Meredith's head and another pierced his stomach.

MONTREAL LIVESTOCK

Montreal, Aug. 26 — (CP) — Cattle trading was fairly active and prices generally were firm but other classes prices held firm at the opening of the livestock markets here today.

Receipts: cattle 929; calves 1,507; sheep 2,036 and hogs 726.

Early sales of medium good quality steers and heifers met with just medium kinds 11-12 and commons $.50 up. Heifers were 7.50-11.50 with a few topping 12. Good steers were made 9.50-10, medium 8.50-9.25 and common butchers 7-8.25. Canners and cutters sold for 5.50 down. Good bulls were 9.25-10 and commoner ones 7-9.

Vealers were about steady at 13-14.50 with a shade higher. Grassers and drinkers in mixed lots were 7-9.50.

Hogs ruled steady at 21 for grade A and sows at 19 dressed.

Buyers were bidding 14 on good lambs and the few early sales made were at 14 cwt. Sheep were 3-7.50.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Aug. 26 — (CP) — Trade was fairly moderate active on the livestock market here up to noon today with fed yearlings selling steady but prices on other classes of killers looked a shade easier.

Good heavy steers made a top at $13.75 with choice steers to $11.50. Good butcher steers and heifers brought $11-12.50 with a few at $12.75. Common butchers sold at steady $10. Good cows made $10-$10.50 with the odd sales up to $11. Canners and cutters were steady at $5.50-6.50, while good light butcher bulls brought $10.50 to $11. Heavy bologna made $10 to $10.90 and light bologna down to $9. Feal yearlings made $13 for medium quality up to $14.50 for good and choice. Few quality calves $14. Stockers steers which made top $13.50 for good. Common light stockers down to $9.

Trade in sheep was steady at $14.50-$15.50 for good to choice wooled lambs, common vealers selling down to $10 and grassers $9-$10.

Hog market was not settled with the previous close being $21.75 for selects, $21.25 for B1 and $18.50 for sows. All prices are to the basis of droppers.

The sheep and lamb market was lower by 50 cents, at $15 4/t ears and $14 cwt. for the best good ewes and wethers. Bucks discounted $4 and culls and drags brought $9-$11, mostly $10.

BROCK IMPLEMENT PLANT REOPENS

Toronto, Aug. 26—(CP)—Plants of the Massey-Harris Company, employing about 5,000 men, reopened today after being closed down for two weeks, Fred G. Burgess, company vice-president, said the firm "was never completely shut down at all." He added that most workers took their regular vacation during the shutdown period.

When the plants closed down it was first reported that the closing resulted from material shortages created by strikes in the steel and other industries.

OVER 8,000 AT CORN ROAST

Keswick, Aug. 26 (CP)—More than 8,000 persons were estimated to have attended Carl Anderson's 40th annual corn roast at nearby Elmhurst Beach Saturday night. Gerald Park Lake Cochiching, Ont., was crowned queen of the roast and was entertained by the Elmhurst Beach Ratepayers Association

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, Aug. 26 —(CP)— Cheaper gold shares helped general strength on the exchange today but the index for the group was down a fraction at mid-day while other groups held minor index gains. Trading speeded up and the turnover for the first three hours totalled 1,057,000 shares.

Labrador, Sherritt, Normetal, Nickel and Noranda were some of the stronger base metals.

The base metal, food and steel stocks were stronger industrial group and the Western oils had stronger prices.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Aug. 26 —(AP)— Individual recovery tendencies continued in the irregular market although many leaders held the losing ground.

Dealings turned sluggish after a fairly active opening but advances of fractions to a point or more predominated near midday.

Canadian issues as a mid-day were mixed. C.P.R. and McIntyre each rose up 1-2. Hiram Walker lost 1 5-8 and Distillers Seagrams was off 1-4.

FIND LARGE LIQUOR CACHE

Cobourg, Ont., Aug. 26. (CP)— Provincial police raided Pontiac Harbor, at dusk after two miles east of here Saturday and seized what they said was one of the largest stocks of liquor found for some time in this district.

Basil Jones, proprietor of the place was arrested on charges of breaching the Liquor Licence Control Act and released on $500 bail. Police said they found the farm fixed up with a bar and plenty of liquor.

LIGHTNING STRIKES TWICE

Harrison, Me., Aug. 26—(AP)— Melvin Jordan's home his second barn became lightning smack twice in the same place. Johnson completed a new barn last week after wartime priorities had delayed its replacing one destroyed by lightning several years ago. Friday night the new barn was destroyed.

TENSION INCREASE

H. G. Hilton, president of Stelco, had told the parliamentary committee at Ottawa that triple pay had been promised. Millard told the pickets. The union had also a telegram from Letter to the Minister of Labor asking permission to prosecute the steel firm for a breach of the wage control order.

Sympathetic walk-outs by steel union members in plants other than the three basic steel producers were a likelihood. Two walkouts here Saturday, from the plants of the Canada Drawn Steel and the Union Drawn Steel Companies, boosted the total of steel strikers in Hamilton to roughly 3,000. Another 12 locals of the union here have threatened similar action if federal and provincial police intervene.

At Toronto William Mackie, secretary of the Toronto council of the union, said last night sympathetic strikes in "essential" fabricating plants would be discussed "as soon as possible."

At Sydney, the Cape Breton labor council yesterday favored a work stoppage by all Canadian Congress of Labor unions in protest against outside police intervention in Hamilton.

Prime Minister King to Sail For Home Tues.

London, Aug. 26 —(CP) — Prime Minister Mackenzie King today prepared to return to Canada aboard the Queen Mary after arriving here from the Paris peace conference where he headed the Canadian delegation.

Mr. King had luncheon today with Prime Minister Attlee and Viscount Addison, Dominion Affairs secretary, after spending most of the morning dealing with accumulated work. He will leave tonight to board the Queen Mary, sailing from Southampton Tuesday.

Mr. King said he was not returning home because of any Council disagreement in Canada but because he was anxious to deal with various matters with other ministers before they leave Ottawa following the end of the present session of parliament.

He said he is prepared to return to the peace conference later "if necessary" but added that a trip to Australia and New Zealand, Health Minister Claxton, remains in Paris.

To interviewers he said:

"Hanson (Sir) has been on this side of the Atlantic three times in a year and there are things that only he could do. I have been absent for a long time and my reason for going back is that the conference has reached a stage where they are dealing with treaties clause by clause."

PICTON

First Battalion H.&P.E. Regt. To Hold Reunion

Picton, Aug. 26 — Plans for a reunion of members of the First Battalion, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, were made at a meeting here recently. It was decided that this would be held on the second day of Picton Fair, September 21, and that there would be a drumhead and memorial service on Sunday, September 22.

Lt.-Col. A. A. Kennedy, Owen Sound, the last commanding officer of the Battalion, has accepted an invitation to be present, and other prominent military men will be invited. The parade in the afternoon, is to be to Picton Fair, where special entertainment and lunch will be provided. Later in the day, there will be a meeting of the Regimental Association, lunch and a dance at night.

Major H. M. Reid was named head of the committee in charge of accommodation, which is necessary as hundreds of members from all parts of Ontario are expected. Capt. William Graydon, Picton, and RSM Angus Duffy, of Belleville, will send out invitations. CSM Clifford McColpin will be in charge of Association membership; Phil Dodds, W. G. McLean and S. Lockyer, publicity; Capt. George Hepburn, canteen.

The Legion Ladies' Auxiliary are to provide lunch at the armouries and Cherry Valley church, the refreshments at the grounds. The I.O.D.E. will arrange the dance and will also hold a tea for wives of visiting personnel late in the afternoon.

The first reunion was held here last year and more than one thousand took part in the parade. With the entire Battalion now home, and joined by other service personnel of Prince Edward County, an even larger attendance is forecast.

J. H. Daubney arrived home yesterday in his sailing sloop, the Sea-Bird, after taking part in the Eastern Racing Circuit races. His arrival here was delayed two days as a result of heavy winds which swept the lake and caused a two-day stopover at Main Duck Island. Mr. Daubney's craft finished second in two races but was forced out of the third when a jibb was blown out.

Men to Provide Tea

Something of a novelty will be carried out at the Golf and Country Club next Wednesday afternoon, when the men will take charge of the weekly tea, the final one of the season. The men will be responsible for the decorations and serving and other arrangements, but it was not stated if they are to do the cooking at home as well. Not to be outdone by the ladies, the men are planning something unusually good.

Rotary Picnic

Members of the Rotary Club and their families held a picnic Wednesday afternoon at the Sand Banks. There were sports for the children, horseback riding and a treat of ice cream. The older ones took part in a medicine ball contest, while a novelty was provided when five women, with an equal number of men as partners, used lipstick and rouge liberally in an effort to beautify the male countenance. The men declared it was not a beauty contest but a smear campaign.

AUSTRALIAN CRIES 'LIES', 'POWER POLITICS'

Strikers Maintain Watchful Waiting Attitude at Plant

No Unusual Incidents Occur During Early Part of Day

By TIM DICKSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Hamilton, Aug. 27 (CP)—More than 400 striking members of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.) clustered about the gate of the steel and malleable works today in anticipation of what may be the climax of a series of serious developments in the wages-hours strike called July 15 against Canada's three basic steel plants.

There were 40 pickets on duty at the gate of the beleaguered plant at 8 a.m. and 40 minutes later they were joined by 200 workers from the Stanley Products of Canada plant who voted last night to strike in sympathy with Sielco workers after police were dispatched here in response to a request of the Hamilton police commission. Another 200 persons stood nearby watching the scene.

Four Police on Hand

At 9 a.m. the only police on hand were four members of the Hamilton city police force although it was reported that provincials and mounties who poured into the city earlier were on expected shortly. A mail truck entered the plant at 8.30 a.m. and left about 20 afterwards.

Two Canadian National Railways regulations went through the picket line into the plant after an union official announced over the an amplifying system that they were to go through.

During the morning, the Stanley Products picketing line was joined and later joined the chattering groups in the area. The number of pickets at 10 o'clock stood at 69 but was increased when about 100 men from the plant of Novion Company of Canada, came out on a sympathy strike and walked in the line.

There were no serious and children in the watching groups and a few women were among the pickets.

War Veterans Parade

Shortly before noon some 900 young war veterans paraded in the Sielco gate and members of the picket line for 15 minutes or so. They carried placards announcing they are "in the Union Army now" and that they, men of steel and electrical strikers. It was announced that they would go a short march downtown during the afternoon.

While they were on strike duty the crowd swelled to about 2,000 but it thinned later and the curious headed home to eat their noon-day meal.

An uneasy calm lay over the picket lines and the city generally as they pondered Gallard's words and discussed the issues of the strike. To the police, who themselves made no pronouncements, Mayor Hamilton-Lane looked on it as the calm before the storm.

Ontario Police Arrive

Last night mystery still cloaked the arrival of outside police, and no one in authority would say what their plans were. They came by plane, train and motor car, from as far away as Ottawa to as near Brunswick; provincial officers from many parts of Ontario.

Guards were established around the Excl quarters of the "out-sided" officers and the latter were quartered in the old Canadian Army Trade School, half a mile from the plant. Some 150 provincials bunked in the naval barracks at H.M.C.S. Star, also a half a mile from the plant.

Union officials feared that outside police intervention would result in a wave of sympathetic strikes.

NO APPLICATION YET

Moscow, Aug. 27 — (AP) — The British Embassy here said late today it had received no application from the Russian government to confirm the acceptability of Georgi Zaburin, former British Ambassador to Canada as Ambassador to the Court of St. James's. The Embassy said it knew nothing of Zaburin's reported appointment to the diplomatic post. (Agence France-Presse in Paris Monday quoted peace conference sources as saying Zaburin's name had been submitted to Great Britain.)

Warsaw Will Be Rebuilt at Cost Of Five Billions

Warsaw, Aug. 27 (Reuters) — Warsaw is to be rebuilt at an estimated total cost of 25,000,000,000 zlote—about $5,000,000,000.

Russia has offered to provide forty per cent of the cost, but Poles think it will take 10 years to transform into reality plans for the new Warsaw, which the Germans left a dead city in January, 1945.

Warsaw will be rebuilt in a number of more or less self-contained sections, each fulfilling some special function. The first, and most important section, is described as the "National Forum," planned to be the place where the Polish people will discuss its ideas and present its point of view."

Here will be the parliament buildings, a large square for meetings and greetings, and the headquarters of all national institutions. Nearby will be the political clubs, intellectual and social bodies.

To the west, will be the government and financial quarter, merging further westwards with the business and shopping centre. In the west and northwest, round the main freight station, will be the "M" Warsaw, a working centre of light, while heavy industries will be established on the east of the seat south of the Vistula.

In the north will be the "Polish" to be the "University City" with the Academy of Arts, Polish Academy, national institutions and the centre of its academic life.

Evidence All Five Airmen Died in Crash

By GEORGE PALMER

Belgrade, Aug. 27 —(AP)— Hope that at least one crew member of the American transport plane might still be alive was dashed today as searched by United States Graves Registration Commission officers found still sufficient evidence had been found to indicate that all five Americans died in the crash.

The finding of four left feet and four right shoes, all of the survivors' shoes, the officers said, laced the theory that somehow one of their plane was shot down Aug. 19 by two Yugoslav pursuit craft and forced to land in Communist Yugoslavia close to the Austrian frontier.

The report was made after the commission had investigated the scene of the wreckage and a common grave in the Holy Cross Catholic cemetery in the village of Koprivnik.

Heaps of Rubble Mar Beauty of Rio As Result of Reconstruction Plan

By CHARLES LYNCH

Rio De Janeiro, Aug. 27 (Reuters)—Rio, remote from wartime destruction, today has the appearance of a city of Europe.

Like other considered one of the world's most beautiful cities, Rio now presents to the sightseer great mounds of rubble. There are huge craters in the streets and here, there and everywhere buses and trams.

Rio is a city with plenty of cigarets, no matches to light them; no bread, little butter, and less milk; the water supply is an uncertain trickle; there is a terrific housing shortage, and there is rocketing inflation.

All of these things are the work of man. The city has gone cannibal and turned upon itself.

Rio, with acute growing pains, is pressed into a narrow coastal strip by a range of mountains. Unable to expand normally, it is turning to the Manhattan formula: to build high and deeply. Huge clouds of dust and debris mark the spots where private mansions are being pulled down to make way for new buildings.

Whole blocks are demolished. Busy thoroughfares are roped off and torn up. About the middle of July confused city works officials discovered that work-men had ripped all the trolley thoroughfares to the south of the city, cutting off the upper crust of the luxury suburb of Copacabana.

The shortage of matches, butter and milk is due to the effort by producers to get higher prices. Stocks are ample, but producers will not release them for distribution.

The same is true of the housing shortage. Thousands of flats are completed but they are being deliberately kept empty until the government lifts rent ceilings.

MORE WAR ASSETS CRITICISM HEARD IN THE COMMONS

Howe Discloses 90 P. C. Of Goods to Declare As War Surplus Have Been Declared

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 27 — (CP)—The Commons, threshing through the mountainous estimates of the Department of Reconstruction, heard another statement last night that indicated that the way, in all its ramifications, is slowly fading into the background.

In the midst of a prolonged and lively grilling, Reconstruction Minister C. D. Howe disclosed that 90 per cent of the goods that government departments have declared surplus to the War Assets Corporation.

That corporation, he said, had sold $30,000,000 business up to the end of July. It would continue to do considerably better than a $20,000,000-a-month business until the end of the year and during most particular function. The first, and most important section is described as the "National Forum," planned to be the place where the Polish people will discuss its ideas and present its point of view."

Here will be the parliament buildings, a large square for meetings and greetings, and the headquarters of all national institutions. Nearby will be the political clubs, intellectual and social bodies.

To the west, will be the government and financial quarter, merging further westwards with the business and shopping centre. In the west and northwest, round the main freight station, will be the "M" Warsaw, a working centre of light, while heavy industries will be established on the east of the seat south of the Vistula.

In the north will be the "Polish" to be the "University City" with the Academy of Arts, Polish Academy, national institutions and the centre of its academic life.

TRIAL OF GERMAN WAR LEADERS NEARING END

Presiding Justice States Tribunal Will Conclude This Week

Nuremberg, Aug. 27 (AP)—Lord Justice Sir Geoffrey Lawrence, presiding British justice, said today that the international military tribunal intends to conclude this weekend the nine-months-old trial of 23 German war leaders and seven Nazi organizations accused of crimes against humanity.

Sir Geoffrey, president of the tribunal, made the announcement after defence counsel for the German High Command had requested permission to bring another witness from the Dachau war prisoner camp in an effort to refute testimony given yesterday by Maj.-Gen. Walter Schreiber, a German staff officer who said the Germans were planning bacteriological warfare.

The closing phases of the trial —which started Nov. 20, 1945 — have been marked by apparent defence efforts to stall for time, reflected in requests for permission to question new witnesses and submit affidavits some of which in the words of the tribunal, "have little or no bearing on the case."

Still on schedule for the tribunal are defence summations for the High Command and General Staff, which are expected to be completed today, and for Reich cabinet and S. A. (Brown Shirts).

These are to be followed by prosecution summations of the United States, Great Britain, Russia and France. The final drama before the tribunal retires to discuss the verdict will be the closing statements of each of the 21 defendants in the box. These statements are to be limited to "few minutes" and will be given from the dock and not from the witness stand.

If no new witnesses are called and there are no further closed sessions of court, it appears likely the final statements should be made sometime Saturday afternoon.

Pleased With Use of Hospital Supplies For White Russia

Moscow, Aug. 27 — (AP) — Director-General of Florello La Guardia of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, is inspecting the operation of the U.N.R.R.A. supply depot in the Ukraine after a three-day visit to White Russia, a spokesman which he expressed satisfaction that the use being made of UN-RRA shipments of such items as hospital supplies.

The former New York mayor said that all items ordered for White Russia would be made available. He added that UNRRA was a $61,000,000 program for White Russia and a $189,000,000 one for the Ukraine.

SECRET DETAILS 30-YEAR-OLD PLOT RECOUNTED

Russian Emigres Tried to Gain Power In Soviet With Japanese Aid

By ERNEST JAMES

Moscow, Aug. 27 (AP)— Secret details of a 30 year-old plot by anti-Bolshevik Russian emigres in the Orient to gain power in Russia with Japanese aid were recounted in a crowded court room today by a grizzled old man notorious throughout the Soviet Union for a quarter century as the "white bandit of Siberia."

Gregory Semenov, Cossack counter revolutionary leader and one-time Czarist officer who said he had plotted to assassinate Lenin, unfolded the details of the plot today as his trial, along with seven co-defendants on charges of armed struggle against the Soviet Union, went into its second day before the military collegium of the Soviet Supreme Court.

Col.-Gen. Vasili V. Ulrich, president of the court, who presided at the 1938 Moscow trials, listened impassively as his government's arch enemy testified glibly of mass killings, huge money gifts from Japan and secret details of espionage in the Far East.

The defendants, who were captured in Manchuria by the Red Army during the war with Japan, included Czarist Prince Ukhtomsky. All pleaded guilty to indictments charging them with armed struggle against the Soviet Union, espionage, diversionary acts and terrorism.

Shabbily Dressed

Pale and shabbily dressed, the defendants, whose ages range up to 70 years, stood up in the dock courtroom at the summons of the court clerk and gave their names: Semenov, Ukhtomsky, Hazarevsky, Mihailov, Poponov, Vlasievsky, Bakcheyev and Akshenov. Most of them had served as junior officers in the Czar's army.

Semenov testified that he once turned down a Japanese offer of 20,000,000 gold yen to lead a counter-revolution in Russia, saying it was too little. He also said he once commanded 50,000 troops fighting against the Soviet Union in Siberia.

After the final Bolshevist victory, Semenov said, he fled to Manchuria, where during the 1930's and later, he and other White Russians worked with the Japanese in plans for seizing Siberia and using it as a base for crushing the Soviet Union in Europe. From this time, up until Japan's defeat in 1945, Semenov said he had the backing of Generals Araki, Tersuchi, Tanaka and others.

COMMONS ASKS GOVT. RECONSIDER SUBSIDY ON MILK

Vote on CCF Motion Of 69-41 Doesn't Mean Government's Defeat, Non-Party Vote

Ottawa, Aug. 27 —(CP)— The Commons today voted 69-41 in favor of a C.C.F. motion calling upon the government to reconsider its decision to discontinue the producer milk subsidy as from Sept. 30, but the vote did not mean the defeat of the government.

Before the vote was taken, Reconstruction Minister Howe said the government would welcome a non-party vote on the motion, moved by J. S. Woodsworth (C.C.F.-Mackenzie) As a result all parties was called off and more than 20 Liberals, including assistant Trade, parliamentary assistant to Veterans Minister Mackenzie, joined in supporting the motion.

The motion, moved in the form of an amendment to a motion to go into supply for the consideration of the study of estimates, was supported by the C.C.F., Progressive Conservative, Social Credit and some Independent members.

Cabinet ministers and Liberals from rural constituencies in the country opposed the motion.

Harrison N.Y., Votes Against U. N. Headquarters

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, Aug. 27. (CP) — Residents of Harrison, N.Y., an upstate hamlet, voted 2 to 1 in the proposed site for a permanent United Nations headquarters, with two to one against welcoming the peace organization, adding to a growing list of towns which have turned down the offer.

Eichelberger, director of the American Association for United Nations said was "approaching a disgrace in the American citizenry."

Votes were counted in Harrison last night by a packed public meeting called by Chamber of Commerce. The result was 2,059 South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, Canada, Britain, Iceland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland and Belgium.

Meanwhile work is being rushed to completion on the $2,000,000 job of reconversion on the Sperry plant at Lake Success on nearby Long Island, which will be the U.N. headquarters until a permanent site is selected, a period estimated at from three to five years.

The 11-power security council will formally launch its new headquarters Wednesday when it holds the first session there of any of the Organization's various units.

Russians Obstructing all Measures Toward Peace States Hoover

San Marino, Calif., Aug. 27 — (AP) — Former President Herbert Hoover believes Russia is "obstructing all peace measures" and "all progress in mankind."

Charging Russia is strengthening its hold on the Balkan States through the Balkans, Mr. Hoover said today in an interview that the "Russians want time completely to consolidate Communistic control of people in those states east of the iron curtain and in Manchuria."

"They are eliminating all dissident elements. They are setting up concentration camps in each of those countries and deporting many to Siberia."

Hoover, who recently returned from a 90-day tour of the world surveying famine conditions for President Truman, added:

"We (the U. S.) spent perhaps $5,000,000,000 in the form of a gift in agricultural implements and food. It seems a pretty poor return . . . that they shoot down our airmen."

"One thing can be said for the Yugoslav people. The fact that was contributed anything to U.N.R.R.A. or to them is unknown to anyone in Yugoslavia. It is a Communist state with a completely controlled press."

Blistering Attack Made on Russia At Peace Parley

Freedom From Fear Does Not Exist in World is Claim

By ROBERT RUNSON
Paris, Aug. 27 (AP)—Australian delegate J. B. Beasley brough delegates at the Paris peace conference to their feet today with a blistering attack in which he accused Russia of "lies" "intimidation" and "power politics."

But the burst of hard boiled oratory ended amicably and the Australian and his antagonist, Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, left the room smiling to one another.

Before adjournment of the political and economic council report on the Italian treaty, at which the clash occurred, Australia agreed to drop her proposal for a standing sub-committee to examine, collect and report" on the facts in Italy's frontier dispute with Yugoslavia, France and Austria and to make recommendations to the peace conference.

But the Commission adopted unanimously a proposal originating from the French to organize a standing committee to investigate any point of dispute concerning the Italian frontier. This committee will have three voting members from the countries invited to the 21 power conference and four members from the four principal powers.

Mr. Beasley began his outburst by exclaiming at Mr. Vishinsky "all right now, you've got a lot to say, and I'm going to have my say too."

He came to the defence of Col. W. R. Hodgson of Australia, whose speech before the Italian treaty economic commission Saturday was belittled by Andrei Vishinsky, assistant Foreign Minister of Russia.

Fear Abroad is Claim

"Freedom from fear does not exist in the world today," Mr. Beasley said.

"Fear is abroad in Europe, which is a sorry place after this war, and this fear is enhanced by the Russian tactics of thrusting their speeches down every throat in those who oppose them. We refuse to be intimidated.

"There is a lot of lying going on the case of many of these questions. The peace of Europe is as important to us as to anybody else.

Mr. Beasley had not spoken for half an hour when Vishinsky rose to protest. Lief Egeland of South Africa immediately intervened at one point, in an attempt to silence Vishinsky, but the Russian appeared aroused especially by a remark Mr. Vishinsky made earlier that Australia is the farthest point from Europe and has presented 35 per cent of the proposals to this conference." Mr. Beasley reported:

LONDON PAPER CRITICAL OF LAGUARDIA'S APPOINTMENT

London, Aug. 27 — (CP) — The Weekly Spectator said today that the selection of F. H. La Guardia, UNRRA director-general, in succession to Lord Inverchapel, Sir Frederick Morgan from his UNRRA post in Germany were "far from correct."

"He said of Gen. Morgan," the Spectator's comment said, "he is a distinguished soldier. It is doubtful, however, if the council and say that as director-general of UNRRA La Guardia has an outstanding mayor of New York."

Monty Relaxes After Busy Time In Maritimes

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Fredericton, Aug. 27 (CP) — Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery ended his Maritime tour today with his big bus with its 11 Field Marshal's Union Jack insignia took off from Blizzville Airport at 10:19 a.m. A.D.T.

As the plane swung towards Ancienne Lorette, Que., the famous British soldier looked back on his 72 hours in the Maritime Provinces when he used speeches, luncheons and cars in the steps in three provincial capitals.

Montgomery ended his visit to Fredericton by pulling off his boots and padding around his suite in his socks after a busy round that took him through a series of official receptions and luncheons and inspections of guards of honor.

Cheery And Happy Welcome

It was a cheery and happy welcome Montgomery got when it spits the fact fog rolled in from the Atlantic and rain pelted down. At Halifax, where he arrived Saturday to begin his 17 day Canadian tour to Victoria and back, he shook across the harbor at 50 miles an hour in a crash launch, saluted the R. C. A. F. and Royal Navy and at the big silver Dakotas of the "Monty flights."

In less than two hours he was making a cheer-filled progress through the streets of the old confederation seat of Charlottetown to the place where he provided sunshine.

He arrived at nearby Blizzville, N.B., in rain, had tea and then drove to the hospital for polio-stricken and operated ceremony met so far.

The great green lawns under the sweeping elms before the Legislature's provincial legislative building provided a soggy amphitheatre where thousands packed and cheered Monty after he had in his usual painstaking manner inspected a guard of honor several hundred veterans and disabled servicemen drawn up in long straight lines.

After his busy day, the Field Marshal relaxed at a private dinner in the evening with his hosts and members of his staff. After he had cleaned up his daily chore of office work he retired

Poachers Robbing Canadian Waters

Sault Ste. Marie, Aug. 27 — (CP)—Charles F. Cook, fish and wildlife specialist of the Canadian Department of Land and Forests said Monday the north shore of Lake Superior was being robbed of thousands of dollars of fish by American poachers pouring into international boundary line and illegally boosting their take of hooks-lines by Canadian waters.

He said the waters were in one of the richest sections of the country and that Canadian fishermen who depended upon fish for a living were disturbed over the matter.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Aug. 27 (CP) — Synopsis at 7:30 a.m.: Overcast skies with widespread showers prevail over northwestern Ontario, the northern central States and the prairie provinces east of the Rockies. Elsewhere over Canada skies are mostly fair and clear. Temperatures were near normal Monday over the eastern half of the continent while over the Prairie Provinces they were much below normal due to the presence of cold air which has been moving southeastward from the Polar Regions. The leading edge of this cold air-mass will be accompanied and followed by showers. It is expected to reach southern Ontario Wednesday night.

"SIAMESE TWINS" CUCUMBERS GROWN IN LOCAL GARDEN

"Siamese Twins" cucumbers joined together down one side by a recent natural freak grown in the garden of M. W. Scrimshaw, 83 South George Street. The cukes measure approximately eleven inches in length and three inches each in diameter. They are joined by a thin strip of skin down their entire length, and are normal in every other respect.

District Farmers Display Interest In Prairie Harvest

Hastings district farmers and farmers' sons are again showing considerable interest in going to Western Canada to assist in harvesting operations there according to H. H. Hunter, manager of the local unemployment service who stated today that nearly 300 have thus far made inquiries to go West. Additional inquiries are being received daily, he said.

Despite the interest of local farmers, however, none living the local district have thus far been sent to the western provinces as the local office during recent days has had no notification from Ottawa asking for additional harvesters. Men from this district will be held up until it is known where their services are required in the Western harvest fields.

The majority of Western farmers who early in the summer came to Hastings to assist in harvest operations there have now gone home, it was stated. Forty Westerners were located with district farmers and all of these with the exception of one had gone home by Tuesday of this week. The other seven who had been satisfied in township picking will go back this week.

Firms in City Feeling Effect Of Steel Strike

The effects of strikes in general, and particularly the steel strike at Hamilton and at Algoma is beginning to be seriously felt by hardware manufacturers and other industries in the city, it was stated this morning by plant executives.

Lack factories in particular are being hard pressed for lack of materials to carry out their work with the management of Carlaw Walkley admitting that only a few key supplies were on hand.

Even if the steel strike is settled immediately it will take some time for shipments from the steel plants to start again," stated Mr. McLean, of the Carlaw Lock Company. "We will be out of supplies in about three weeks and are holding a meeting this weekend in an effort to determine how much longer we can go without adding to our materials."

Relatively the same picture presents itself at the Belleville Sargent Company where it was admitted the lack of materials would eventually "close up" with the company as they could keep going for some time.

Similar views also affect this firm.

One other large user of steel in the city, Shephard Limited admitted the steel strike had not affected them as much as possibly other plants in the city, but nevertheless complained of the inability to complete contracts owing to material lack.

"Already we have had to reduce some work, but thus far we have not been forced to lay off any employees," stated Mr. G. A. Freeman, "Without adding to our present supplies of raw materials we can possibly operate another five or six weeks."

Last Rites Held for Archdeacon G. R. Beamish

In the old Parish Church of St. Thomas, of which he was the rector for many years, the Burial Office for the late Venerable Archdeacon George Ross Beamish was conducted Monday afternoon with many friends present in attendance. Present in the chancel and sanctuary were the St. Rev. John Lyons, Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario, the Very Reverend A. Brierly Brown, Dean of Ontario and rector of St. George's Church, Kingston; the Venerable Archdeacon R. J. Dunnville, rector of St. Mary Magdalene Church, Napanee; the Rev. Rural Dean C. E. Whalley, rector of St. Andrew's Church, Wellington and the Rev. Fred Payne, rector of Sydenham, who acted as the Bishop's Chaplain.

The opening sentences of the Office in procession were recited by the Rev. Rural Dean Grant, the lesson was read by the Rev. Arthur Smith, the present rector of St. Thomas' Church, and the prayers were said by the Lord Bishop.

The choir was present and rendered the hymns and psalms in the service under the direction of Mr. Ernest Priestley, organist and choir master.

Interment took place at Belleville Cemetery; the prayers at the graveside were said by the Rev. Arthur Smith and the committal portion of the service was taken by the Lord Bishop.

The honorary bearers were Rev. A. S. McConnell, Trenton; Rev. C. P. Hames, Brownsville; Rev. S. Kerrison, Frankville; Rev. S. Coleman, Carrying Place; Rev. F. O. Ware, Tamworth, and Rev. A. Redding, Shannonbridge. The Rev. Donald C. Ames, minister of Bridge Street United Church, was present with the clergy.

The pall bearers were Mr. Robert A. Pringle, Mr. John Y. White, Mr. Harry C. Thompson, Mr. Percy W. Geen, Mr. Jamieson Bone and Mr. George N. Gorman.

There was a wealth of beautiful floral tributes.

GERMAN UNDERGROUND PLANT MACHINERY FOR MOSCOW

These huge crates contain machinery from the Daimler-Benz underground aircraft plant at Obrigheim and are bound for Moscow. The machinery is part of some 1,200 items of equipment which produced approximately 600 aircraft engines a month for the Nazis. Reparations equipment was allocated to the Soviet Union by the co-ordinating committee. The concrete retaining wall in background is part of the subterranean plant.

Staff Members Enjoy Picnic At Presqu'ile

Staff members of the Quinte Local of the National Unemployment Insurance Association, together with their families took full advantage of the mid-holiday on Saturday to enjoy a picnic at Presqu'ile Point when approximately 40 persons gathered to take part in the afternoon's fun.

Manager of the Belleville office, Mr. H. H. Reed headed up the sports committee to get things underway and at 3 o'clock all taking possibly too much active interest in the proceedings, the weekend complained feelings of muscles which he admitted he did not know he possessed. The same was true of Everett Liddle, veteran officer at the Belleville office.

Staff members from Napanee, Belleville, Picton, Cobourg and Port Hope unemployment offices were on hand to take part in the fun which included races, softball and other sports. A basket picnic was enjoyed in the evening.

Following are the prize winners: Ladies' 50 yard dash, Phyllis Pigden, Belleville; men's 100 yard dash, Mr. H. Case, Belleville; grab throwing shoe, Mr. H. H. Reed, Belleville; ladies' throwing shoe, Mrs. Marion Houston, Cobourg; three legged race, Helen Mansell and Mary Joan Hunnigan, Picton; children's race, Hughie Brennan of Napanee and Heather Gourley, Port Hope.

Greater Portion Of Threshing Now Completed

Over 75 per cent of the threshing operations in the Bay of Quinte district have now been completed with the grain yielding the heaviest in many years of farming according to the weekly crop report published by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Showers delayed harvesting operations during the past week but machines were held up only for a few hours following each brief rain. After harvest cultivation is general throughout the district. Recent showers have done much to improve the pasture situation, although many farmers' wells are giving out, necessitating drawing water for stock.

In Prince Edward county all canning factories have commenced operations and by the weekend are expected to be operating at capacity. The week of moist cool conditions did much for the tomato crop, but warmer weather is needed to hasten ripening. Present indications point to a yield per acre of between 50 and 60 per cent of the normal year. Increased acreage, however, will assist in bringing the total crop up to normal.

Corn is quietly and below average, although there are a few even patches. Early hatched chicks are coming into production in large numbers.

TWO WOMEN DETAINED

Maple Creek, Sask., Aug. 27 — (CP)—Two women have been detained and will be held in custody until a coroner's jury meets Friday to inquire into the death of Maude Slobodin, 2l-year-old telephone operator, whose body was found in the exchange here Sunday. Mrs. Ruth Canadian Mounted Police said last night. Names of the women were not released. R.C.M.P. Superintendent W. Mortimer said yesterday the girl died under suspicious circumstances."

Footwear Sewing Shop Employing 50 Workers to be Opened by Bata Co.

Establishment of a sewing shop for footwear in Belleville by the Bata Shoe Company of Batawa, the shop to employ between 50 and 60 workers to start, has been announced by the above firm which expects to commence operations about September 15th.

Locale of the new sewing shop which will be similar to the one operating in Picton for the past three years will be on the second floor of the Graham Dehydrating Plant at 103 Pinnacle Street.

Workers at the sewing shop to be opened in Belleville will be mostly women and girls who are offered year-round employment with ideal working conditions, including a five-day week. Key personnel of the Belleville sewing shop will be trained at the company's factory at Batawa. It is expected the Belleville shop will be operated along the same lines as the Bata plant at Picton which now employs in the neighborhood of 80 workers.

POINT TRAVERSE

South Marysburgh Council Increases Bounty on Foxes

Point Traverse, August 27 — Increased bounties to protect the pheasant population and to increase the slaughter of foxes, South Marysburgh township council at its Wednesday night session passed a motion whereby a two dollar bounty will be paid for dog foxes, split taken in the township during the open hunting season.

Foxes are so thick in the area that hunters and game overseers state that the number of pheasants destroyed by foxes during the last winter was alarming.

The bounty levied should be an incentive for hunters and farmers to stalk these vulpine animals.

During certain years foxes occur in the township in sufficient numbers to provide sport for hunters. At such times the economic value of fox fur is at least of minor importance. It is reported that foxes were more plentiful in the county in the winter of 1936-37 than they had been for some years.

HITCH-HIKING SKUNK

Renfrew, Aug. 27 —(CP)— Hitch-hiking can go too far, according to J. B. Whitton of Renfrew, who, motoring from his cottage at nearby Round Lake, was unwilling patron of the free lift enjoyed by a gate skunk which jumped on his running board. Slowing his automobile to a respectful pace, Mr. Whiton carried the animal several miles before it jumped off and disappeared into the bushes.

IN MEMORIAM

STEWART — In loving memory of a kind husband and father who passed away eight years ago today, August 27th, 1938.

Eight years have passed, how long it seems,
But in our hearts, your face still beams.
Beautiful memories, treasured ever,
Of happy days we spent together.
No words can express, nor time recall you,
The world may change from year to year,
And friends from day to day,
But never will the one we loved
From memory pass away."
—Lovingly remembered by Wife, Sons, Daughters and Grandchildren.

Veneral Archdeacon R. J. Dunnville must first absorb the disease from a sufferer before it can transmit it.

Letter Received By Local Branch Of Red Cross

The following letter was received by the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross which will be of interest to many of the workers of the Branch and particularly to those who contributed to the thousands of pounds that went from this district.

Weston Cottage,
Wisbaam,
Horsham,
Sussex.

August 4th, 1946

Dear Madam:

Whilst a Sister at the Kent and Sussex Hospital, I was pleased to receive one day in my grocery stores a large tin of honey sent by your branch of the Red Cross Society.

As we are still rationed to ½ lb. of sugar per week you may imagine that such a gift does much to supplement the need of glucose especially for children.

Many times during the war have I handled articles of food and clothes in my daily work, which have been sent by Canada, but now that the war is over such gifts are still enjoyed.

Therefore, I would like to say "thank you" for all you have done even if in a belated echo.

Near my home there was a large Canadian Hospital but I had no contact there, however thousands of your menwere in the locality after Dunkirk and prior to "D" Day. Hence they became such familiar figures about the town and villages that now most have gone back home or to W. Europe the streets seem strangely quiet, as do also the inns and byways.

Do not drives through this country lanes (one comes upon Nissen huts, an old oil can, stove, or concrete slab, the base of some gun or searchlight, and remembers that only two years ago the woods were alive with soldiers, and now no one comes there any more. Perhaps a few children play, but often one sees corn growing right up to the walls of the empty huts or block houses.

Having several Canadian pass through our wards, I have always been struck by their cheerfulness and fine physique, which latter many of our boys do not share, due no doubt to the lack of outdoor life available.

They always managed "to get away with" more than the others, and the wards were never dull in their presence. At one hospital it was the custom for the nurses to be collected and delivered home by 12 a.m. after the weekly visit to a local camp dance. I was prevailed upon to go on several occasions, and never had a dull minute, for if I sat out some one always started to chat on any subject under the sun.

Though some of our men are now coming back home the country will never be the same again for your boys certainly have made us look to our laurels. I have also met some Canadian sisters and they were always good fun.

Might I add that I have no personal interest in any particular one of your men, but a general admiration for all.

This letter may be a sentimental one, but tonight is the end of my birthday and as a small child I remember the declaration of war on August 4th, 1914, and Canadians camping in our cornfield soon after. May they never have to do it again.

Thanking you all,
Sincerely,
Signed: Brenda Lovegrove.

Polio Victim Helped by Rotary Addresses Club

Rotarian faces flushed with justifiable pride at their weekly luncheon on Monday when the first case to go through the hands of the club's Crippled Children Committee twenty-five years ago stood up and gave them a brief address.

He was Ken Clark of this city, who has been touring the Dominion from coast to coast in his employment capacity.

He was introduced by Rotarian Charles Symons, chairman of the Crippled Children's Committee since its inception a quarter of a century ago who stated that Mr. Clark, when he first saw him, "used crutches eighteen inches long, and grew with them. When we took over his case, his leg hung like a piece of rope. Now he walks well."

"It is a great pleasure to present Mr. Clark, who is the first of over 800 cases of crippled children who have passed through the hands of my committee over a period of twenty-five years," Rotarian Symons told his fellow clubmen.

Deeply Touched

"I am deeply touched," Mr. Clark said in his opening remarks, "for in my first appearance before this Rotary Club I stood on a table on two legs made possible through the generosity of this club, and the untiring efforts of its crippled children chairman, Mr. Symons.

"There has been Scripture quoted at this luncheon," he went on, "and I would like to add a portion myself: 'Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of these, my children, ye have done it unto Me.'"

In his journeys across the continent Mr. Clark has never missed an opportunity to visit sick children's hospitals, he said. In particular he selected one hospital, that at Dartmouth, Nova Scotia, where a Polio Clinic is housed. He visited that clinic in 1942 and helped to entertain over 200 small children afflicted with the dread infantile paralysis.

Bodies Twisted, Torn

"There I saw little bodies twisted and torn. Little eyes that could not see. Little hands that could not applaud the entertainers, yet on each little face was a smile; a ray of hope that some day they would be able to play a game.

"In June, 1946, I again visited this clinic," Mr. Clark said. "I saw a vast improvement in those kiddies I visited four years previously. I noticed one case especially, that of a small boy who on the occasion of my first visit wore a cast on one arm and another on a leg. He was a helpless cripple. On my second visit the casts were gone. On his hand he wore a first baseman's glove and he was playing ball with his nurses.

"And I discovered that over 60 percent of the dreams of helpless little children were made to come true through the assistance and generosity of Rotary Clubs throughout the Dominion.

Urged to Carry on Work

"Today," he urged the club, "I ask you to keep carrying on this noble work and make many a stricken child's dream of future happiness come true. Through your committee chairman Mr. Symons, a man who has devoted 25 years of his life to this work and who has shed many a tear over a crippled baby, you can go on to further fields. When he appeals, get behind him. Dig a little deeper. Then when you see a little limb supporting a little body and hear a mother say 'Thank God for Rotary' you too can say 'Thank God I was able to help a small child's dream come true.'"

President Mark Vanner of the Belleville Kiwanis Club was a guest and enrolled for Rotary help to canvass the city in aid of the Salvation Army drive for $5,000 which is being held here in mid-September. President Bert Howard was in the chair. Another guest was Bud Johnson, Y.M.C.A. community recreational director who outlined briefly his aims and objects in his new capacity in the city.

QUESTON MOST URGENT

Ottawa, Aug. 27 (CP)—G. K. Fraser (PC—Peterborough West) tried without success today to find out what the government proposes to do about a shortage of laundry soap.

The speaker informed him that his question was not urgent and that it should be placed on the House order paper for later response.

"This is a serious proposition," Mr. Fraser protested. "Cleanliness is next to godliness."

May Revise Itinerary Of U. S. Naval Force

London, Aug. 26. (AP)— A United States Navy spokesman said today that, "in all probability" the itinerary of the American naval force now cruising in the Mediterranean would be revised.

He said, however, that he had no information to support rumors that the force would visit Smyrna, Turkey.

Despite the official explanation that the Mediterranean cruise is for "training and good will" purposes only; some newspaper editorials have referred to it as a "show of force" to back up American foreign policy in the Mediterranean area.

HIGH-PRICED DIAMONDS

Capelown —(CP)— High prices are being paid here for cut diamonds by overseas dealers and Johannesburg merchants. A few months ago a single gem of more than nine carats was sold for £4,175 ($1,375).

RECEIVES FIRST CANADIAN DEGREE

Field Marshal the Viscount Montgomery of Alamein, G.C.B., D.S.O., is shown being conferred the honorary degree of LL.D., from Dalhousie University. Shaking hands with Mr. Monty" as he confers the degree is Dr. A. E. Kerr, president of Dalhousie. Following this the insignia of the degree was placed around the field marshal's neck by Prof. J. M. Johnstone, secretary of the senate of the university. After he received the degree "Monty" spoke to the packed gymnasium where the ceremony took place.

Primate of England on Visit

In Canada at this time is the Primate of All England, the Most Rev. and Right Hon. Geoffrey Francis Fisher, the first of all the archbishops of Canterbury to visit the Dominion while in office. He is accompanied on his tour of Canada and the United States by his wife, who in 1943 broke precedent by being the first woman to speak in St. Paul's Cathedral. The Archbishop is the one hundredth in line from St. Augustine, the first to occupy the see of Canterbury at the turn of the sixth century. The Archbishop was consecrated bishop of Chester in 1933 and succeeded in 1939 Dr. Cosmo Gordon Lang, P.C., Winnington Ingram as Bishop of London and in the same year he became prelate of the Order of the British Empire. He was at one time headmaster of Repton School. He became Primate in February 1945.

The visit of so distinguished a churchman and scholar is of intense interest in the Church of England in Canada and by the Church in the United States. The Archbishop will be welcomed everywhere as a great leader of the Christian Church.

In his office of Primate he exerts a great influence for good and his attractive personality and good humor add to the appeal which he makes.

Not only the Anglican communion of which he is the head but other communions join in the welcome of the Canadian people to this leader and champion of righteousness among men.

Qualities of Canadian Soldier

Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery paid a fine tribute to the Canadian soldiers as he spoke at Dalhousie University after receiving an honorary degree. He said:—"I spent a great deal of my time in this war with the Canadian soldiers and they often used to talk to me of their home towns and cities and about their wives and families and they used to speak with such great pride of their ladies and I felt that it was necessary I must go and see all these men who fought with me in their own homes and in their civil life and that really was the main purpose of my visit to Canada, to see the veterans who fought with me and to try and catch something of the spirit of Canada. That is what I want to do."

Britain he told the audience would never forget what the men and women of Canada had done in the services, he lauded the Air Training Plan, and "not content with this, you turned your country into a great arsenal and factory, to carry on the war. And you gave financial aid too, great financial aid."

The hero of El Alamein stated that he thought he was well qualified to speak of Canadian soldiers because a great part of their fighting was done under his command, "a very great deal of it," he added. "And I can say quite honestly and truly that I don't think they will speak about themselves—that would hardly be usual. But they fought under my command in Sicily, in Italy, and in Northwest Europe from Normandy to Berlin.

"All that way they fought and they were very, very fine soldiers. And I would say that of all the soldiers that fought under my command in this war none were finer than the fighting men from Canada. There may be some as good but none are finer. None are finer and there is no doubt about that, to battle they are terrific, absolutely terrific."

Three events he associated with Canadians, the first the action of the First Canadian Division in Sicily in July 1943 and later at Ortona, in Italy in this year, the second was at the operation in clearing the Schaldt estuary in the autumn of 1944 and the third the battle for Walcheren which began in February 1945, the prelude to the end of the war.

Emphasizing Canadian achievements in battle he said that no second-rate troops could have asserted them out. The reason for the Canadians high achievement as soldiers he saw in their training as citizens. It is a man's bringing up that influences soldiers as well as civilians, he stated. Knowing a Canadian soldier he felt he knew something of the Canadian people.

The Field Marshal cited the necessity of a commander to know human nature and his men. In war as in civil life a great deal depends upon the human element. No two fighting men are alike and this same fact applies to civilians.

The great commander then gave what he deemed the hallmarks of the Canadian soldier, "You may say he is a brave fighting man but that does not distinguish him because the soldiers of other nations are brave fighting men. I would say from my experience there are three definite things which hallmark the Canadian soldier. First his independence, second, his enterprising versatility, and third, his robust mentality. The Canadian soldier is inclined to be impatient if the discipline of the battle imposes on him any undue measure of restraint or control, he does not like it. But the Canadian soldier will accept the need for it although he is at his best if he is given liberty and freedom to get on with the job."

To have the praise of this great soldier is something not only the soldiers who fought under him but all Canadians appreciate.

What Do Those White Lines Mean?

How many motorists in the Province of Ontario know the exact meaning of the varied collections of white traffic lines on the province's highways. We wager their number is relatively small.

The meaning, which should, we feel, be known to every motorist who takes his car onto the main highways, is as follows: One broken line in the middle of the road means that passing of cars is permissible for autos travelling in either direction; one unbroken line means no passing for cars travelling either way; two driving lanes, an unbroken line and broken line running side by side with the former immediately beside his left fender is informed that it is against the law and dangerous for him to pass the car ahead; the driver who finds this situation reversed, namely that the broken line is next his left fender, can safely pass the car ahead.

If every motorist knew these rules of the Department of Highways there would probably be fewer accidents on our roads.

Air Races and the Future

In comparison with air races in years gone by it might seem that the national events opening in Cleveland next Friday represent the supreme and final development of air power.

The national classic traces its ancestry back to Rheims, France, in 1909. Little imagination is required to see the distance that planes in use at that time. That was the period when airplanes were matched with automobiles in speed tests.

In the decade following great strides were made, both even on the national race at Mitchell Field, Long Island, in 1930 was won by United States Army Capt. C. C. Mosely at 154 miles an hour. Speed was sharply in the early 1930's when the national race in 1921 at 176 miles an hour, Russell Maugham at 205 in 1922 and Lieut. Al Williams of the navy at 243 in 1923.

The Thompson trophy record, set in 1939, is 283 miles an hour. This year however, planes with standard engines will reach 350 on the closed course and the jets should beat that by 100, or straightaway speeds of 450 miles an hour. Shooting Stars will ride around the 600 mark. Under some conditions planes have caught up with sound. That's how aviation has developed.

However, only a foolish person would long entertain the belief that the top has been reached. The improvements which have come about since the last national races in 1939 are primarily due to war's tremendous needs. It is well known that countless ideas were shelved up in the pressure of war and await thorough tests in the leisure of peace.

PROMOTION ALWAYS COMES

Yesterday a place was filled;
Now it vacant stands today.
As the Lord has often willed,
He who held it couldn't stay.

Yesterday the man ahead
Left the town on fortune's chase.
Now, by men in charge 'tis said:
"Who is there to take his place?

"Who among us can we find
Ready for this vacant post?
Who is there a step behind
Who deserves promotion most?"

Young man, follow unafraid;
Hold the post ahead in view.
Ready be when change is made,
And the place may come to you.

"Did it contain a message?"

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

30 YEARS AGO

AUGUST 31ST, 1918.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. L. Mason and daughter, Aileen, have returned from Toronto after a pleasant motor trip to Smith's Falls and Ottawa.

Mrs. George A. Bonisteel of this city is addition to winning a beautiful silver cup for her putting at Gladstone at Peterborough, won a bronze medal donated by the Mitchell Seed House of Philadelphia, also the first prize for the best single spike of Gladiolus and the prize for the best decorated basket.

Huckleberries are selling at 30 cents per quart and red raspberries at 18 cents per box.

Messrs. Thomas and Charles Jeffery, Albert Street, left today for Detroit, Mich., where they have accepted positions.

30 YEARS AGO

AUGUST 30TH, 1918.

The baseball fans in this city and there are a number of them, were out to see the game yesterday afternoon between the policemen and the barbers, certainly making it the star line of the season. It was some game and will linger long in the memory of those who witnessed it. The stunt was pulled off at the Agricultural Park in the presence of hundreds of excited and expectant spectators. Of all the games of ball played in this city for some years it was without doubt, in many respects, the only game. The teams had a number of rooters present and did they root! Well, we should say they did. Although the park was a little off the beaten track, all players were on hand when the game was called. The game throughout created a lot of fun and the features of the umpire, J. L. R. Gorman, caused continuous merriment. At the end of the 9th. innings the game was called and the score was announced as 5 to 5. The following composed the teams: Constable Truaisch, Donovan, Dehart, Detective Collins, Leonard, Ellis, Ketcheson and Soult. Barbers: Osborne, Bennett, Sullivan, Watts, Smith, Skinner, Warham, George and Langbeer.

40 YEARS AGO

Mr. Mark Fleming of Suffolk, N.Y., is the guest of Mr. John Downie, in this city.

Mr. Ingram of the D. & D. Insurance Patrol Branch has returned after a trip to the Old Country.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Yeigler of this city are visiting friends in Rochester, N.Y.

Mrs. J. Fleming, Cedar St., has returned home from Rochester, N.Y., where she visited relatives.

Mr. Dan Cameron has resigned as soloist at John Street Methodist Church and has accepted the position of soloist at St. Metropolitan Church, Toronto. He will, however, retain his connection with Albert College.

Earle and Dawn Smith, South John Street, have returned home after a pleasant voyage on the steamer C. Hickox, from Fair Haven, N.Y.

Diplomats Expect More Vigorous Russian Policy

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

Diplomats in both Washington and London are viewing the "release" of Maxim Litvinoff from his position as Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister to head a special agriculture in the present strained situation between the Russian bloc and the Western Allies.

Diplomatic circles in Washington interpret the development as a set-back to co-operation with the United States and Britain. London, apparently also viewing the change through dark glasses, thinks that Litvinoff long has been an advocate of collective security and close relations with Britain and America. Hence in the past his resignations and appointments sometimes have foreshadowed changes in Soviet policy.

Perhaps it is possible to exaggerate the importance of the old revolutionist's removal. He is 72 years old, and his health may easily be failing.

It is safe to assume that the Soviet government, which occupies a more vigorous—or perhaps more alert — foreign policy and that, for one reason or another, he doesn't fit into the picture. Also it is possible that some of the Soviet Foreign Office were "on the spot."

The general picture emphasizes the growing breach between Russia on the one hand and the United States and Britain on the other—the Iron Curtain, as Churchill has called it. Both sides, however, are banking to preserve the peace of the world.

Daily the diplomatic warfare has become more fierce until it exploded into actual fighting in the Yugoslav incident.

The Berlin crisis puts just as ready to boil over.

Even if people would use your pet name for cold, could they make anybody one whit less likely to take cold from getting wet...? (R.C.A.)

I'll say they could! Anybody who thinks such rhetorical questions are reasonable does care to know how to avoid the COMMON RESPIRATORY INFECTIONS, my and all of which, I call cri (three) for short or until the illness or infection is diagnosed specifically, as tonsillitis, diphtheria, meningitis, coryza, bronchitis, infantile paralysis, scarlet fever, or whatever it may prove to be, by which time I have something to do or her advantage by studying the subject of cri. The composite question above is a fair sample of the childish attitude of many people regarding the intelligentsia, in respect to health. Take the three-months of the illness physicians refer to as to give me if I seem impatient about it. You see I am being teaching this elementary lesson in hygiene for how to keep well for years, and I can't help thinking, when I get queries like these that I am talking to children. Or, rude, how stupid my students must be.

Of course when I stop to think some more it is obvious that it is not the same old class, but just some freshmen, so to speak, who have only just joined the class. MORE WAR ASSETS

At one time during the war assets administrator, Gordon Scott (L—Halifax), chairman of the Commons war expenditures Committee, took exception to previous statements by Minister Graydon (PC—Peel) that its "whitewashed" charges made by Auditor General Watt in his magazine. He said the report was established by members to be "very fair."

Compared Volume

Mr. Howe compared the transactions of the W.A.A.C. with those of the Maclean's articles dealing, he said, with "the sales by the government $7" and with "an item of $40 worth of material that was sold as scrap which it was thought had already been salvaged and sold as valuable material."

If criticism of the corporation can be kept on that scale then it is a very better institution than I ever thought it was."

He told Arthur Roebuck (PC—Calgary West) the policy in selling industrial properties was to review the bids and accept the one likely to provide the most employment in the particular area.

Few Plants to Sell

Mr. Howe said New Sarum, near St. Thomas, Ont., is the area where the army had taken over an airport to process vehicles. There were 1,000 vehicles, he told C. D. Coyle (PC—Elgin), there were 1,000 vehicles there of which 300 have been declared surplus and are purchased by War Assets for sale, but I believe the matter is being actively dealt with and I think some must have already been disposed of."

The matter of selling "few industrial plants" remained to be dealt with, Mr. Howe added. Cancellation of war contracts had been "pretty drastic" but he never thought it would still be going on in six months' time.

Following some consideration of Mr. Howe's estimates, questioning took the House from subject to subject. These were some of the answers in the various fields—

Old Country Letter

A new approach to Canada-Britain diplomats has been started at the Commonwealth Relations office in Cobham, Surrey. Under it, future ambassadors will be trained to together, patiently pile up bricks, and demonstrate their parlor manners before the eyes of inquisitive eyes of psychologists.

Candidates for key jobs in the foreign and domestic service must undergo this course at the top hat Sole D'Abernon Manor, which was used during the war by the Special Air Service Brigade. Only a few are passed.

The candidates come as 'guests,' being greeted by a pleasant hostess who will make the candidates by which he is known during his stay. The staff live in the main house while the visitors are set up in comfortable army huts nearby.

Special observers are in each group, watching the candidates as they undergo tests, eat their meals or relax in a well-supplied bar. Quizzes are conducted and all sorts of annoying, petty tasks —including the washing and reassembling of a water tank . . . are imposed.

Patience and tact are two prime factors under study. Of 700 foreign office candidates tested last summer, 11 were passed and 689 rejected. The other 15 were placed on reserve and may still be called.

Demobilized Allied Soldiers Finding Way Back to Germany

By JAMES DEVLIN

Herford, Germany, Aug. 27 — (AP)— A new problem for occupation authorities is the demobilized Allied soldier who finds that civilian life back home fails to match his expectations and smuggles himself back into Germany.

"We are getting quite a few of these cases," said a British official, although the exact number is unavailable.

What happens a soldier, given a chance to enjoy placid life at home, to return to these bombshattered cities — particularly when United States Army surveys shows that the highest hope of many Germans is to leave the country and start life anew elsewhere.

Officials say there are at least three reasons:

1. Food, obvious, some have fallen in love with German girls and would like to marry them.

2. Adventurous types, after years in the army, find life at home dull.

3. Some can't find jobs at home, or jobs as well-paying as they want.

Added to these, life as a member of the occupying forces offers good food, clubs, swimming pools and other amenities that not all Germans can be home.

So it is that many an officer on leaving for home and demobilization says:

"I'll be back."

By GEORGE W. STIMPSON
INFORMATION BOUNDUP

No one person deserves the entire credit for inventing rayon, which is now the recognized trade name for all synthetic fibres. An artificial of imitation silk was first taken out in England in 1855 by George Audemars, a pioneer of rayon manufacture.

The lustrous filaments of the fibre are made from various solutions of cellulose, such as wood pulp and cotton linters in a proper solvent, which is forced through fine spinnerets into a solidified by means of a precipitating medium.

In 1664 Robert Hooke, an English experimental scientist, published a book in which he described a microscopic examination of natural silk and suggested the possibility of producing a similar thread artificially. Rene Reaumur, the French scientist, made a similar suggestion in 1734.

Perhaps the first patent for the use of nitro-cellulose for the manufacture of artificial silk was granted to Count Hilaire de Chardonnet in 1878. He worked in Paris with Pasteur who sought a cure for a silkworm disease, and while watching the worms convert cellulose of mulberry trees into silk the young nobleman got the idea to imitate their achievement.

The first commercial silk substitute yarn was exhibited at the Paris Exposition in 1889.

Moving into naval barracks at H.M.C.S. Star on Hamilton Bay, Ontario Provincial Police are seen lined up for inspection after arrival by motor cars in preparation for taking up position around the Stelco plant.

VETERAN TAKES SMART TROTTER ON U.S. TOUR

Halifax, Aug. 26 (CP) — Maritime harness racing fans, when they are not engrossed in their own tracks may be caught watching the sport sheets this season for news of W. R. (Billy) Hood veteran trainer and driver, and his great charge Watchim, rated as the best of Maritime trotters.

Late in July, Billy, now in his 33rd. year of racing, fathered up a caravan of six horses, including the nine-year-old son of Volomite, to take a whirl against world champions in the United States. He has a half-dozen good horses in his van, but all Maritime eyes will be on Watchim. The trotter has a mark of 2.06¾ on the half mile local tracks, and is expected to better this considerably on the mile ovals south of the border.

The smooth trotting stallion is so good that in his last race in Nova Scotia, at Amherst, he was barred from the betting, despite the strong field against him.

Hood, now 56, first saw Watchim as a yearling, when Alderman Frank Adams of Halifax, bought the little speedster. Billy took over Watchim's career from there on, broke him in, and drove him to a two-year-old record of 2.26 on the Halifax track, the four-year mark of 2.07 and the 2.06¾ mark chalked up last year.

Now, Hood has embarked on an extended tour of the American tracks, from Bangor, Me., through Lexington, Ky., and Indianapolis for the peak of Watchim's career.

In Lexington, Watchim is slated to meet Titan Hanover, one of the best in the world, a world's champion as a two and three-year old and unbeaten until this year. Aveda Predictions.

Billy is completely sold on the stallion, first has avoided any prediction of Watchim's chances of making the two-minute mile. He claims, however, that he has the stallion good enough to beat any trotter anywhere.

Watchim will have to make this season his best, however, because he is getting old for a racer. Present indications are that he will be retired to stud this fall.

Billy Hood also feels at times that he is nearing the end of the trail as a trainer and driver. He has been handling horses since 191, and says sometimes he feels that he should retire.

"But that's in the fall," he added. "In the spring I begin to wonder when the snow will leave the ground so I can get to the racetrack. I hope to keep active for a long time yet."

The veterans around the tracks know that Billy will never quit. Racing is not only in the blood; it's in the family. His wife is the former Margaret Ballard who owned horses like Calumet Buddy with a 2.02¾ mark. Although no longer an owner, she never misses a harness meet.

Before Billy packed his horses into a trailer to head for American tracks, he sold his home in North Sydney where he has always wintered his racers. Now neither he nor Mrs. Hood know where they will live this winter. "Maybe I'll have to live in the trailer," Hood said.

Arts Co-operative Seeks Originality

BY KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Trois-Pistoles, Que., Aug. —(CP)— The habitants of Trois-Pistoles realize their tourist trade depends on their ability to keep one foot on the threshold of the new world's advantages and at the same time to hold the door of the past open for the historical and acquisitive-minded.

That's why the Domestic Arts Co-Opertive of Quebec, formed two months ago to provide an outlet for the handicrafts of the rural women in the province, has become so popular in this small Quebec town 21 miles north of Riviere-du -Loup on a bluff overlooking the blue St. Lawrence.

Needlework of every description, hand - woven window - drapes and hooked rugs in myriad -colored patterns, leather purses and carved wooden costume jewelery, filled part of the Trois-Pistoles town-hall as women from th surrounding area displayed their handiwork in the Co-Operative's first exhibition in this district.

At the close of the display the exhibits will be sent to several large department stores in Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg, where eventually they will find their way into the possession of tourists anxious to buy samples Quebec handicraft.

During the long winters women in isolated farm communities throughout the province pass their time making rugs, sewing and tatting— all the handiwork so typical of French Canada since the days of the fur trader and the log cabin.

Neither the spinning -wheel nor the loom has become an antique in those centres. And the wife, of a French -Canadian farmer would never think of lining up at the nearest store to buy socks for her husband. She knits them herself, just as she weaves her own bedspreads and hooks her own rugs.

It was a wise group of persons which decided to form the Domestic Arts Co-Operative. The aim of the organization is to teach its members the advantage of the co-operative movement and to further the sale of French Canadian handicraft outside of the province.

Above all it seeks to instill in the women of Quebec the necessity or originality of design and perfection of work. In the socks they knit and the scarves they weave they are urged to make their pieces as typical as possible of the province in which they live.'

THEIR WAY TO Enjoyment

Our lakes this summer are going to attract thousands of friendly visitors from the States. We want them to enjoy themselves . . . it's in our own interest to see they get the very finest of everything we can give them.

WHAT CAN I DO? Each of us can pitch in and help and, in our own interest, we should. Here are a few practical suggestions from an Ontario hotelman, famous for his hospitality:

1. There's lots to attract visitors everywhere in the Province. Find out what your neighbourhood has to offer and become a booster!
2. When you write your friends in the States tell them about the places they would enjoy visiting.
3. Try to make any visitor glad he came to Canada . . . and be really friendly when you meet.
4. If they ask for information or directions, take time to answer them fully and graciously.
5. In any business dealings you have with them, remember Canada's reputation for courtesy and fairness depends on you.
6. To sum it all up, follow the "Golden Rule."

IT'S EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS . . . it's good business!

Worth his weight in gold! Actually the Province of Ontario, in pre-war years, profited to almost the same extent from tourist business as it did from the gold mining industry. It is up to each of us individually to see that this business goes on growing.

We all share! Everyone benefits from the income Ontario's tourist business represents. The diagram, based on figures supplied by the Hotel Association, shows this. Aside from hospitality, it's good business to make our visitors feel at home.

It works both ways! They treat us royally when we visit them . . . we can't do less than return the compliment. Remember that it costs money to take a holiday . . . so let's see they get a good return for every penny they spend,

"Let's make them want to come back!"

WEDDINGS

BATEMAN—GORDON

Marmora, (Special.) — In the presence of a large congregation the wedding took place in St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora, at 2.30 p.m., on Saturday, of Elda Myrtle, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy A. Gordon, of Marmora, and Murney Cecil, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Bateman, of Rawdon Township. Rev. E. M. Cadigan was the officiating minister. The church was prettily decorated for the occasion with gladioli and ferns. Wedding music was played by Mrs. L. R. Green and during the signing of the register, Mrs. L. R. Rundle sweetly sang "Because".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a gown of white crepe. Her veil was of white tulle, caught with orange blossoms. She carried a nosegay of roses.

She was attended by Lenora Bateman, sister of the groom, who was frocked in pink crepe and wore a pink tulle veil, caught with rosebuds. Her nosegay was also of roses.

Ernest Gordon, brother of the bride, was best man. The ushers were Howard Kelly and Clayton Burkitt.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents with about fifty guests in attendance. The bride's mother, who received wore a gown of Burma rose with black accessories and a corsage of gardenias. Also receiving was the groom's mother, who wore a gown of flowered crepe with black accessories and a corsage of gardenias. Later the happy young couple left for the Thousand Islands. For travelling the bride wore a gold crepe dress with brown coat and matching accessories. Upon their return they will reside in Rawdon Township.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Blakely, Mrs. Edward Wanamaker, Sr., Eldor-

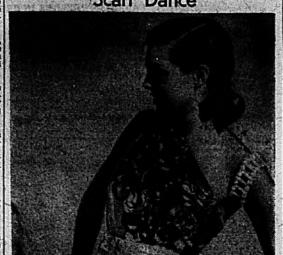
Scarf Dance



By ALICE ALDEN

THE WAYS OF a maid with a scarf are endless and equally ingenious. With a scarf or two of the right type, she can contrive all sorts of pretty yet practical wardrobe additions and improvisations. So a scarf has become a good weekend companion. One together girl has solved the blouse situation by using scarves in all sorts of bright ways. She made a clever bare-shoulder blouse out of a scarf in flower printed rayon, by tying the two top ends together over one shoulder. Then the scarf was draped across the opposite hip and the remaining ends pinned in front.

Announcing the Adoption of a Baby

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Before I had any idea that I would need such information, I remember reading in your column the suggested wording for an announcement sent to the friend of the adoption of a baby. Will you please be so kind as to give that suggestion again? Are these announcements always formally worded?

R. H.

There are two ways of sending out announcements of an adoption: (1) the formality of an announcement worded in the third person, or (2) the informality of a note. Or you may combine these, as some people do, by writing notes to relatives and intimate friends, and send the formal announcements to others.

The formal form, which may be either engraved or written on plain white cards, may read:

Mr. and Mrs. John Kindly have the happiness to announce the adoption of Joan aged three months
(Or the second line may read: "are happy to announce".)

Informal notes to tell the happy news are always, of course, proper, probably in the majority of cases more appropriate, and in the case of being more personal:

Dear Margaret:

John and I want you and Bill to know that we have just adopted a baby. Her name is Joan, she is three months old, she is lovely and has an endearing personality. It is our prayer that we will make her as happy and to be with us as we are to have her with us! We hope you can come to see her soon.

Dearest love to you both.
Affectionately,
Roberta

May Groom's Mother Give Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married soon, and as my sister is to be my maid of honor, my girl friend is giving me a shower. Though I prefer to have this shower given for me by my friend, is it permissible for my prospective mother-in-law to give me a shower?

M. T.

It is not considered good taste for a member of the groom's or the bride's family to give a bridal shower. Looks too much like a planned "promotion" for gifts for the new home.

Position of Flower Girl and Ring Bearer

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm getting married soon, and will have a fairly large wedding. One problem has caused so much debate that I wish you would please settle it. Where do the flower girl and ring bearer walk in the processional? Am I correct in saying that they should be in front of the bride? Several of my friends have told me that it doesn't matter; that if I prefer to have them walk in front of the maid of honor, it is proper.

E. R.

You are right . . . the flower girl and ring bearer walk after the maid of honor and before the bride and her father. The ring bearer may walk alone, preceding the bride and her father, or he and the flower girl may go down the aisle together.

Donly and Mrs. Blake Kerr, the soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in floor-length gown of taffeta with three-quarter length veil and a shower bouquet of cream roses.

Mrs. James Hunter, Belleville, was matron of honor, wearing a floor-length gown of blue net with matching feather hat. Miss Nina Hunter, bridesmaid, wore pink net with matching feather hat. Both attendants carried Colonial nosegays of pericians.

Mr. James Hunter, Belleville, was groomsman, and Mr. Blake Kerr ushered.

At the reception, held at the bride's home, the bride's mother received in a street length dress of brown figured crepe, with matching accessories, assisted by the groom's mother, who wore rose taffeta crepe with white accessories. Later, the young couple left for Western points, the bride travelling in a light blue gabardine suit with navy accessories. On their return they will reside in Belleville.

She Opened Her Husband's Letters

They say that listeners never hear any good of themselves.

Alice's reason to be just as true that people who open other people's letters often do themselves more harm than good.

Here is a letter from a wife who says that she "accidentally" opened letters addressed to her husband which she arrived from overseas and, as a consequence, has been unhappy ever since.

This is what she writes:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"When my husband and I had been married 8 years, he was reducted and drafted. He served 1-2 years overseas. We were always very happy during our married life and while he was away I wrote to him every week and he wrote to me nearly every day.

"Then, to my joy, he sent word he was coming home and gave me the name of a certain steamship. However, before he got home, a few letters arrived and I innocently opened them, to be shocked into the realization that he had evidently slipped out on me while he was away, as the letters were from a girl. For my part, I had remained true to him every minute.

"When I questioned my husband about the letters, after his return, he claimed the entire friendship was purely platonic and that I had misread. However, he refuses to destroy the letters, saying that they mean so much to him. He admits he kissed her and that he took her to dances. To my knowledge, he has never answered any of the letters to the girl, but I can't forget the whole thing.

"I love my husband so dearly I would rather die than be apart from him, but it hurts me deeply that he desires to keep the letters

STIRLING

Over One Hundred Attend Reception

Stirling—Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Carleton were 'At Home' to over 100 guests on Saturday evening, August 24, on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary. Mrs. Nina Morton ushered the guests into the spacious living rooms which were charmingly with a profusion of pink gladioli and ferns. The tea table was attractively arranged in front of the fire-place with cut work lace cloth, ivory candles in candelabra and silver candelabras. Mrs. Bain, of Toronto, and Mrs. Guilbridge, of Belleville, presided at the tea floors and serviteurs were: Mrs. Walter Elliott, Mrs. Earl Fox, Marion Graves, Kathleen Wright and Kay Fanning. Miss Grace Carleton, daughter and Dr. Carleton, and Miss Eleanor Fox were in charge of the guest register. Mrs. Carleton was modishly gowned in a dusty rose crepe ensemble with matching corsage of roses and Miss Lillian MacGillivray of Toronto, sister of Mrs. Carleton, who was bridesmaid of twenty-five years ago, was present.

Dr. and Mrs. Carleton were the recipients of many lovely gifts, including one from the School Board and crystal and-fruit dishes and silver candle holder from the Bowling Club. They received the good wishes of a host of friends and also many telegrams and long distance calls.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto, Belleville, Trenton, Madoc, Crowe Lake, Campbellford, Roslin and Tweed.

Couple Honored On Anniversary

A very pleasant event took place on August 23, when Mr. and Mrs. George Lathanque, 112 Charles Street, were at home to their relatives and friends on the occasion of their 30th anniversary. The enjoyable afternoon was spent during which many pictures were taken.

The house was tastefully decorated with white streamers and bouquets of gladioli, snapdragons and asters.

The table, covered with a white pretty lace cloth was centred with a beautifully decorated three-tier wedding cake. About fifty guests were present from Lindsay, Belleville, Peterborough and district.

Delicious refreshments were served. Mr. N. Pogue of Lindsay, proposed the toast and Mr. Lathanque replied in a few well chosen words on behalf of himself and Mrs. Lathanque.

Mr. Bob Sutton, of Lindsay, gave a piano selection after which Mrs. Lathanque cut the wedding cake.

Mrs. H. Taite poured tea assisted by the following, Miss Vera McKenzie, Mrs. Sydney Latchaque, Mrs. Leon Smith, Mrs. Leonard Russell and Misses Florence Lathanque and Joan Ellis.

Many beautiful gifts were received to commemorate this happy event.

RUSH

WE'RE WORKING AGAINST TIME ... in more ways than one
Every time you lift the receiver to place a call, it's a challenge to us to rush it through; we don't like to keep people waiting. But sometimes delays can't be avoided, even though every last piece of available telephone equipment is on the job, handling more traffic than it was ever built to carry.
And that fact is directly related to our other battle against time—our big building program. Every addition to present facilities hastens the day when we will once again be able to handle every call as promptly as we would like. Construction and installation of additional telephone equipment are going ahead just as fast as the supply situation permits.
We've got it marked "Rush"!

Butch MacCallum And Tony Acerra Tangle at Arena

Tony Acerra, Belleville's popular heavyweight will make his return to the local ring Wednesday night when he tangles with Toronto's "Butch" MacCallum in the main event, a five-rounder, at Stone Arena.

Acerra has not appeared in the local ring since he dropped a tough decision to "Tiny" Ainsworth of Oshawa a couple of months ago. Acerra sustained a badly cut eye in this bout and decided to wait until it was properly healed before boxing again.

Tony rounded his return to the ring last Friday night in Kingston and demonstrated that he had lost none of the old power by dropping "Darkie" Brooker of Kingston in the third round.

MacCallum has been improving every time out and last week in his last two starts in Toronto. The Toronto fight fraternity is in a mighty sweat on the big boy and are prophesying that he will go places in his chosen pastime.

Out to Avenge Defeat

Acerra spilled MacCallum's dreams ago. Acerra sustained a but about four months ago and the Toronto lad is out to avenge that defeat. However, Acerra is just as anxious to win in order to demonstrate to the local public that he is just as good, if not better than his conqueror.

Lac Maurice Lapacte, the Montreal boy who is presently stationed at Mt. Tremblant Camp, it was just a "lucky" punch that sent Tony Acerra down and out in the first round of their scheduled ten round battle here last night. Lapacte's right fracture of the jaw of Acerra with a powerful right hook that dropped the Belleville boy for the count of nine.

Acerra was floored in the first round by a right to the jaw and was unable to continue. Lapacte weighed 175 pounds and Acerra 185.

LATTA DEFEATS BANCROFT 13-2 IN THE PLAYOFFS

Int "B" O.B.A. Playdowns Staged at Alemite Field, Next Game in North

Unleashing a powerful midgame batting attack spearhead by the sluggy bat of Timmy Williams, Laurenceville and Shannon, Latta's International "B" baseball team decisive defeat on the North Hastings championship O.B.A. playoff yesterday afternoon at the Alemite Field. The score was 13-2.

The game was loosely played in the first few innings with both teams being guilty of bobbles that in some cases proved costly. Joe Marsh on the mound for Latta and T. Barker, Bancroft southpaw, dualled for four innings with the northerners taking the lead and the Latta crew tying the score at two-all in the fourth.

Then the Latta big guns exploded and laying down a powerful barrage of clouts in the fifth drove in six runs and sent Barker to the showers. He was relieved by brother G. Barker whose efforts meant practically nothing to the Latta bats and he lasted just two innings after he was pounded for four hits and as many runs over that period. Thanes, a right-hander, relieved him and held the homesteaders to one-run for no hits over the remaining two innings.

Marsh Touched for Eight.

Marsh was touched for eight safeties, three of them being bunched in the fifth, but the wicky hurler was good in the clutches and retired the side for only one run in that innings. He struck out four batters but one and had tight assists to his credit.

Latta scored singles in the third and fourth innings after the visitors had grabbed a one-run lead in the second. Bancroft tied the score in their half of the fifth and then came the deluge. Collins got on by an error, and Laurenson and Keon singled in succession. Shannon walked and Goyer singled. Tim Williams drove one of the longest home runs seen in the field when he came to bat and that was the end of Mr. Barker. Relieved by Brother.

G. Barker relieved him and retired the side after being touched for a safety by Red Conron. In the next innings three hits, one a bounding home-run by Shannon, and two singles by Laurenson and Williams plus two walks sent three more runs across the plate and exit the second Mr. Barker.

Bancroft scored their first run in the second when Ken Hunt belted Burns' drive get away from him and the Bancroft infielder raced home on it. Bancroft closed to right field. Their second run came in the fifth on three consecutive hits by McAlpine, G. Barker and Fisher but Marsh settled down and retired the side with no more damage done.

Laurenson got three for Latta and Timmy Williams two. R. Barker, Fisher and Burns each clouted two each for the losers. The second game will be played in Bancroft on Saturday

Ottawa—(CP)—The Commons is filled with defenders and admirers of the Jimmie Gardiner man, the worker, the business man and the taxpayer. Nobody but Larry Shey is especially the friend of the airman.

Forgotten by commander and first Toronto flier to win the Victoria Cross, Shey's war, the tall, dark, friendly and 31-year-old progressive Conservative representative for Trinity riding.

And the other day he was on his feet espousing the cause the airman. Following Gardiner's lament and quoting from his experience in the air force, which he said should "enable" reconstruction Minister Howe Larry said he was of a former pathfinder pilot who came back to Canada to be refused a night commercial licence.

Larry, a flying ace, a pre-war bush flier, "was able to pinpoint his way into Germany and drop his bombs within 100 yards of the mark—the target for the airman—but failing to take a test when he came back from overseas he was not licensed to fly a night crate.

Mr. Howe said it was simply by letter of application for a non-scheduled permit to be issued for the routine of transport work.

Senate Sidelight: The red chamber's sprightly justice, the Hon. Joe Beach from St. Catharines, was piloting a bill the other day aimed at increasing judges salaries and he was telling costs of living from the turn of the century when most jurists got their last substantial raise.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop and ma were hait ways through supper when I got home and I could smell the smell of frankferters and saurkraut before I hardly opened the front door, being my favorite smell of my favorite food, and I went in the dining room saying, G, frankferters and kraut, mmmm, that's just what I thought I smelt.

And that's probably what you smelt, ma said, but going to eat, but it's by no means certain you're going to eat anything, I said, and ma said, It's getting to be a public scandle the way that boy is always late and forever late for his meals.

At least it's a private scandle, and that's serious enough, pop said, and I said, Well gosh, pop, G wizzikers, ma.

Now please spare us your usual lame excuse, ma said. You'll sit right down at this table and eat your supper with a well deserved glity conscience and not a single word of ally explination, she said, and I said, Well aw jimminy, ma.

Quiet from the prisoner, please, pop said. Sit down and start executing your sentence, he said.

While I did, eating 5 middle size helpings of frankferters and saurkraut and saying, Well, I think I had enough now, I guess I can tell you now. I was over at Puds Simkins, and Puds was going to have to eat all alone on account of his grandmother and mother being invited out, so they said I could stay there and eat with him, that's what I did, I said.

Yes gods, pop said, and ma said, I'll for land sake of tin tacks.

What did you eat over there? pop said, and I said, Do you want what did Puds have, for supper? frankferters and saurkraut, but it wasn't any better than this, I said.

Which it wasn't.

Dining "corner":

Make it easy for yourself! Eat right in the kitchen . . . in front of a cool "herb garden" window. Use a "dining table" that drops down out of the way between meals . . . And then — most important of all — put down a sparkling bright Gold Seal Congoleum rug! Its smooth surface is easy to clean with the swish of a damp cloth. And durable! Why, its wear-layer of heat-toughened paint and baked enamel is actually equal to thickness to 8 coats of best floor paint applied by hand. But — when you buy your Congoleum rug—look for the familiar Gold Seal. Without it — remember — it isn't Congoleum. You'll be surprised how much quality you can buy for so little money.

Bullpen Worker Main Reason St. Louis Cards Have Wrested N.L. Lead From the Dodgers

Murray Dickson Defeats Brooklyn 2-1 in Hitting Division's Record to 13 Wins

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Murray Dickson, once an obscure bullpen worker but now one of the top pitchers in the league, is the most important single reason why St. Louis Cardinals have wrested the National League lead from Brooklyn Dodgers.

Overlooked in early season maneuvering, Dickson still had Max Lanier and rookie Fred Martin to take their regular turns. Dickson turned back the trouble-some Bucs, including Rip Sewell, last night's 2-1 victory that restored the Red Birds to first place by a full game, in lifting up to pennant-wise 12-4 won-lost record.

Dickson's masterful night put heavy pressure on the Brooklyn pitching staff. Now he has only one win final or move on to Chicago trailing by two games. Rookie Hal Gregg, already shellacked by the Dodgers will be playing 30 of them at Shibe Park in comparison. Next it's 15 home dates for the Cardinals.

Still Outside Looker

Chicago's Cubs, a distant third but still in the thick of the pennant race, shut out New York 1-0, on Hank Wyse's one-hitter. Wyse and Ray Prim earned the mound victory, respectively, although neither was no Giant runners to reach second base.

Pittsburgh put a crimp in Boston Red Sox's third-place ambitions with a 3-2 victory. Ralph Kiner drove in five lengths back of the Cubs. Elsewhere:

BATA SHOEMEN, SWACOS BATTLE TO TWO-ALL DRAW

Batawa Blanked Until 6th When They Bunched Three Hits to Score Two

In a close-fought diamond duel that featured the fine hurling of Stojan, Mutfitt and "Chuck" Barriage, SWACOS and Batawa battled to a 2-all draw on the Shoemen's diamond last night.

Batawa were held hitless blanking-the Shoemen until the sixth when they bunched three of their clouts to shove over both their runs. The veteran chucker struck out eight, and walked one.

Stojan started on the mound for the home-towners and was relieved it was stated for practice reasons after doing a fine job for five innings being touched for four hits by the SWACO first batters. Mutfitt took over the mound chore and held the city squad hitless and scoreless for two chukkers.

Mutfitt drove in Letty Witman who had walked in the second for SWACOS first run and they got their second in the fourth on practically the same play with "Chuck" Barriage doing the hitting honors to score Whitman.

Batawa got their tallies in the sixth innings when Barriage weakened temporarily to give up hits to Austin, Mutfitt and Aquino.

Kiwanis Juniors Meet Oshawa Here Wed. Afternoon

Ontario Baseball Association convener Ernie Summers was notified late last evening that the Belleville Kiwanis Juniors baseball club will meet the Oshawa B'nai B'rith in the first game of the second round junior playdowns at the Alemite Field here on Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock.

Tickets for the game are now on sale from any member of the club, including Jack McVeigh or Coach Speedy St. Louis. Thru the generosity of Meagher's "store for Men", and the Lipson Company, there will be two draw prizes the first by Meagher's a $5.50 Adams hat and the second a pair of nylons.

The game will start at sharp four o'clock and with the Kiwanis in fine condition and "eats" on the ball players should be a typical junior joust, although little is known here of the calibre of the Oshawa Lads.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

The Rules Committee of the Belleville Senior Baseball League upheld the protest of the Belleville Kiwanis Junior Baseball Club in a game played in the Hume Arena last night deciding that the complete umpire staff in calling a balk on Junior pitcher Allen Kellett, Centreton, in the base umpire erred in calling the game in the ninth on account of poor visibility under the lights at the Alemite Field during the scheduled league game between Kiwanis and the Latta team last week.

The ruling of the committee is that the game be nullified and if, at the completion of the regular schedule, the played standing of the teams involved is affected, the game will be replayed.

Manager Jack McVeigh and Coach Speedy St. Louis represented the junior squad with Manager Jack Cook representing for the Latta team. Bill Cook was chairman of the Rules Committee with members Walter Gerow, Sr., Bill Dennis and Harry Bishop, Belleville league secretary sitting in confab.

The committee ruled that Kellett should not have been asked to throw the ball to third baseman Wilbur Thompson while a Latta runner coming in from second base, with first occupied and two out. The complete umpire based his decision on the fact that the hurler threw the ball to an unoccupied base and that in this case but the committee over-ruled this and ruled that Kellett was entitled according to steal third and was set when he threw to the third sacker. As far as this phase of the protest was concerned, the committee decided that as the run would not affect the ultimate result affected, the game stood as played.

On the second phase, however, called in the ninth inning because of poor visibility at the end of the sixth inning, the committee ruled that due to the statements of the base umpire that he could not see the ball in the fifth and that plate umpire Ted Gilbert thought the light, he should have called the game in the fifth inning. In the view of the fact that the game continued until the end of the sixth, it should have been allowed to proceed to the end of the seven inning game.

Tommy Colden's Stewart-Warner-Alemite softball league also ran into its first hitch at Port Hope gals on Saturday, winning 2-1 in a 10-inning affair game and taking the nightcap by 13-0 count. The doubleheader killing may prove costly to the Colden colleens for their star catcher Betty Nelson, has a finger badly injured when a sleeper came her way. Thelma Drake's fast shoots and was taken to hospital for an X-ray.

Lois Gaudet pitched the first game with Alma Farrar behind the plate. Jean Corneal smashed out a long home run, driving in a brace of tallies in this tussle while in the second game, Leal Nelson homered with the sacks empty in the second heat and Bowbotham also smashed out a four-bagger in the same innings with two on board. Marg Stewart took advantage of Jan Peer Hoag's wildness to throw the ball around and clutched a single into a four-base knock.

Thelma Hanake twirled the second game with Leal Nelson doing the receiving. The Port Hope gals bolstered their squad with some star players from the district with Hoag and Howden doing the hurling for the homefolk.

The first round of the Women's Provincial Softball Association has been finally arranged officially and the Colden girls, champions in the Counties Towns Classes have at the Bata Field on Wednesday night. Last minute arrangements call for a floodlight game starting at 8.30. The second game takes place in Cobourg on Saturday at 4 p.m. and if the series is deadlocked, the third round re-games at 7 in the evening on the same ground.

FIGSKIN POINTER

Fred Dufton, Ontario Rugby Football Union Commissioner, of Cobourg informs this desk that a meeting of district clubs will be held in the Cobourg Town Hall on Thursday evening Sept. 5th at 8.30, and all interested in the formation of an Intermediate Rugby League in this district are cordially invited to attend. There is little chance for an intermediate squad being formed here, but in case there are persons interested, Dufton's the info. Dufton states there is a possibility of Cobourg and Peterborough fielding junior ORFU clubs, and wants to know if anyone here is interested. You can get in touch with Fred at P.O. Box 320 Cobourg.

Kathusiasm is at a high pitch here tonight over that SACOS-BATA OBA intermediate "A" first-game clash at the Bata field tonight. The boys "in the know" have been telling their friends to examine the line on SACOS and the faithful are all primed for victory what could be a stout fray between the two squads. The same aces will be on hand with Halleran for SACOS and Stojan for Bata. Mutfitt will be off on the mound for their respective clubs while batting assistants changes are made.

For those who prefer baseball and don't mind driving a bit, that Hamilton-Trenton Flyers clash seems to be their fancy. It will be held at "Smoky" Smith Cor the Shoemen and Joe Smith for the Flyers. It looks easy the chucking chores and the result should be a neat pitchers' duel. Thomas and Red Townsend will be the mask 'n pad boys behind the plate and on bases. Game at 6.

To date Monty has won 16 games and lost 7. Despite playing on an artificial leg he has done well with his fielding and has batted around .300 although he has to have a runner after reaching first base.

Morrow said he got the idea for the screen story during a visit to a war veterans' rehab where he saw amputees watching a softball game. He said he sensed their aching desire to get into the game. Technical aspects were handled by advisor while the picture is being made.

MONTY STRATTON PLAYS BASEBALL WITH ONE LIMB

Picture Will be Made to Show Ability of Man to Rehabilitate Himself

Sherman, Tex., Aug. 27—(AP)—Monty Stratton's return to professional baseball despite the loss of a leg last month is a screen story and the gangling former Chicago White Sox pitcher will cash in two ways on the game he loves.

Stratton, who came back after seven years to become a winning hurler with the Sherman Twins of the class C East Texas League, will pitch two more games this season, then it will be "Hollywood, here I come."

Monty has signed a contract with Douglas Morrow, Hollywood writer, to make his life's story into a movie on which production is due to start in January. The film will be on the theme of how Stratton, 28, made a man to rehabilitate himself.

Stratton lost his leg in a hunting accident in the winter of 1938. But he didn't lose his bright outlook on life nor his humor.

PLAYOFF SYSTEM KEEPS INTEREST UP IN INT. LOOP

Syracuse Chiefs Whip Bears to Move Within Half Game of Third Place

(By The Associated Press)

Robbed of any semblance of a pennant race by Montreal's early clinching of the flag, International League club owners and fans thirsting for the big President Frank Shaughnessy for devising the four-club playoff system back in 1933.

With only one game separating fifth-place Buffalo and second-place Newark, the struggle for the three vacant playoff berths promised to keep the turnstiles humming during the final 12 days of the season.

Syracuse applied the tightener to the situation last night by whipping Newark 8-2, moving to within a half a game of the runner-up spot but still lacking one percentage point of moving into 3rd position.

Baltimore turned back Jersey City 4-3, to cling to third place although the Orioles collected but five hits. Home runs by Eddie Robinson and Bruce Campbell helped the visiting Jersey Red Birds down to defeat.

Montreal, having clinched first place yesterday, took the customary thing and lost its next start, bowing to Rochester 6-4. Glenn Gardner registered his 12th victory with the help of Cliff Chambers' first inning triple with 3 on and Art Revel's 11th homer.

Buffalo and Toronto were not scheduled.

AMATEUR BASEBALL

(By The Canadian Press)

In two senior Inter-county Baseball Association games yesterday Oshawa Tigers deadlocked the semi-finals at two games each when they walloped the Nationals at Stratford 15-4, and London Merchants pasted Waterloo Clippers 3-0.

As a result, the Waterloo-Stratford series was forced to a fifth game to be played Wednesday night. London's ace has been a 2-1 edge in their series with Kitchener.

In the Niagara senior "B" baseball finals at Niagara Falls Saints evened their series with Thorold-Merritton Thormens, by 6-5 decision, the latter St. Thos. series stands at two wins each and one tie.

In the inter-county Intermediate playdowns, Galt Vets took the lead 2-1 in their best-of-five series with Brantford Red Sox, winning at Brantford by a score of 4-3.

In the Inter-county Junior League playoffs, Hamilton Thurstons, playing at home, started their series with London with a 4-2 win over the defending champions.

New Calgary Stampeder Club Being Groomed For Nat. Crown

By KEN METHERAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Edmonton, Aug. 27 — (CP)— A new Calgary Stampeder club is being groomed for a national football crown.

Calgary football supporters are hoping to see the successful combination of a grid experiment which began in the early 1930s when Carl Cronin, former Notre Dame stylist, arrived in the city to manage the colorful Calgary entry.

Under Cronin's direction a number of imports from the American gridiron began instructing high school teams. A new homegrown talent was developed they joined the senior squad—and the collegiate coaching staffs.

Since that time these players have labored to instill their football skill and knowledge into Calgary youngsters and today the Calgary youngsters trot out a right fancy brand of football in their junior and high school leagues. The fans feel that this may be the year when the experiment will really pay off.

Head coach is big Dean Griffing, one of the most colorful players to ever step from the United States into a Canadian gridiron.

Many Americans on Team

Other Americans are Hal Harrison and Jerry Searight. Both have played a number of seasons with former Calgary entries and Searight also spent a year or two in Montreal. Harrison, rated one of the better ends in Western Canada, is coaching quarters for that position, while Searight plays centre.

Paul Rowe, former Victoria athlete, is another with U. S. football experience. He played with Oregon and his full-back play has been a mainstay of the Calgary attack for a number of years.

Line-coach is a Calgary product, Jack Lawrence, an all-star fullback while attending high school, while another home-grown product, Wes Cassidy, has already won the vital quarterback spot with Stampeders.

Bulk of the speedy backfield is being built around a group of other ex-juniors.

Three former members of the famed Winnipeg Blue Bombers, perennial Western champions, are trying to win back their blazers. They are Bert Borden, Rube Ludwig, tackles and Dave Barry, end.

It is still too early to judge accurately Stampeders' chances in the Western Football League this year. But sideline quarterbacks will be full of confidence when they get their first glimpse of their gridiron team under the fire when Stampe face Saskatchewan Roughriders Aug. 31.

The Ribbster

The simpler things in life and bridge are not to be sneered at. I may not know much about life. But bridge is something else again. The simpler the bridge rules, the more they are cut down alley.

One of the very good simple rules for leads and plays is: When you lead from a sequence, lead the top; when you play from a sequence, use the bottom. Lead top of sequence; play bottom of sequence.

An ace lead may show a short suit. A king lead may show the ace. These are two special signals. Room for four. You will keep an honor card, you admit having the card below it; deny the card above it.

When another player leads and you play an honor card on it, you deny having the card below it; and your lieve the card above it. That is because you play the lowest card of a sequence as nonsense's lead.

Suppose you hold Q J 10 in clubs. If you lead that suit, your lead is the queen; top of sequence. If partner leads a club, you play the ten; bottom of sequence.

You have the hand shown here:

♦ J 10 9 4
♣ 8 6 3

If you lead diamonds, your lead is the jack; top of the sequence. It says you have the ten of diamonds and do not have the queen. This is the standard policy for the card you lead from a sequence.

Suppose a diamond is led by your partner or one of your opponents. Your play is the nine of diamonds; bottom of your sequence. It says you do not have the eightspot and may have the ten.

If the next opponent takes your nine with the queen, partner may assume you have the ten and jack. He then correctly could have used a card lower than the queen.

All such simple rules are an evolution from years of experience. The best ones have survived over confines of play in allied games.

It sounds good, anyway.

COCK FIGHTING VERY POPULAR BUT ILLEGAL

Held at Dawn or on Moonlight Nights in All Parts of Eire

Galway, Eire, Aug. 27. (Reuters)—One of Eire's favorite sports, perhaps because it is illegal, is cock-fighting. The sporting Irish enjoy the secrecy and pass-word excitement surrounding preparations for a cockfight as much as they do the sadistic sport itself.

Held at dawn or on moonlight nights in sequestered valleys, cockfights attract followers from as far as 200 miles away. Hundreds of pound notes are exchanged during the rounds.

At five a.m., I was called for, only on condition that "out of peril of your immortal life don't mention a word to a soul." After a 10-mile bumpy ride, we were admitted to a natural amphitheatre on payment of 10 shillings (£2) each.

A whistle, blew and ghostlike figures in the dawn light formed a ring. Into each corner like seconds to champion boxers, came three men, each with one cock. One man held each cock while his assistant put on the spurs, curved steel spikes three to four inches long. On a level piece of rock is leather was placed on the cock's natural spur and a thin tubular end of the steel spur was fitted over it.

At this juncture the third man of each group poured a small drop of "knockout" drug down (Irish home-made whisky) down the throat of each cock.

Another shrill blast of the whistle and the fight was on. In three seconds the fight was over. One cock circled warily and with a swift kick at the breast, it impaled his unfortunate rival through the heart.

So it went on, for eight fights, and I went home £20 poorer.

Kingston Heights Beats Pointers In First Game 10-7

Point Anne ——(Special)—— Kingston Heights wrested Point Anne in the first game of the second round OASA Intermediate "B" playdowns at Point Anne on Monday night by a 10-7 score in a well-played game. The teams go back to Kingston tonight to resume the series, it being on a two-out-of-three basis.

Kingston got to Pat Mennie's slants in the early innings and rammed home five runs after opening with a base on balls. They scored another in the sixth and three in the ninth to break a seven-all tie while holding the Loft crew scoreless.

Point Anne touched Frasso, the Kingston hurler, for 16 base hits but failed to capitalize on the most of them. They scored two runs in the third innings, three in the fifth and tied the score in the sixth. Whalen rushed to a spot near the mound to take an infield pop fly and knocked Marsele over with the ball, receiving away from both of them.

The Point tied the score again in the eighth but Marsele weakened in the ninth and allowed three Kingston runs while his mates went scoreless. Horewood was the leading hitter with three safe clouts.

Athletics, Barrie, Mimico Victors In Lacrosse Finals

Toronto, Aug. 27. (CP)— The Eastern Canada champions, St. Catharines Athletics, and Mimico and Barrie were the victors last night as six of the seven Ontario Lacrosse League senior teams started playoffs leading to competition for the Mann Cup here in October.

Opening games were played in each of the best-of-five series. St. Catharines defeated the visiting Hamilton Tigers 11-5. Mimico Mountaineers whipped Owen Sound Georgians 11-10, at Mimico, and Barrie Lakesiders won 12-8 over the Dundas.

There was a crowd of 2,800 at St. Catharines where the Tigers' ace forward Bill Isaacs was banished in the second period for using abusive language. Tiger Coach Johnny Mitchell called his players from the floor but resumed the game after Referee Joe Murphy gave him two minutes to resume play in default.

At Mimico a crowd of 2,500 saw a close match between Mimico and Owen Sound which established a play-off record in that no penalties were called. Owen Sound were leading 10-8 in the final period when Harold Wootton was caught away from his net-minding duties for Owen Sound and Mimico rallied to gain the decision.

Owen Sound had a wide edge in territorial play. Mason led goal getters with three, and Smith, Kazarian, and Cassidy each scored twice. Lefler got the other.

For Mimico McPhail and E. McDonald each scored three goals and Williams and Ken Dixon each got two. Hewett got the other.

At Brampton, the Barries rushed in three goals while Brampton's goalie Pete Anthony was serving a last-period penalty.

Second play-offs each series will be played Wednesday night.

Trenton Leads In Esquire Golf Tourney

Ideal weather conditions greeted the second round of the Esquire Allengo Trophy, held at the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club. The four teams, comprising of Trenton, R.C.A.F., Belleville and Quinte Golf clubs, 12 man teams, teed off at 9 a.m. At the end of the day's play the tournament results showed R.C.A.F. combined team ahead with 23½ points, Trenton second with 17½, followed by the Bay of Quinte with 19 and Belleville Golf trailing with 13. The combined points of the two matches played show Trenton ahead of the field with 44 points to their credit and RCAF close at hand with 43½. The next round will be played shortly at the Trenton Club.

The low gross score for the day was posted by Bill McIntosh, professional of the Trenton Club, who posted a 77.

Second low gross was by Tommy Carruthers of the Quinte Club with an even 80.

First low net was won by D. Black, of the RCAF team, with a net of 67.

Second low gross was a tie between Frank Hebert of the Quinte Club and Jack McNabb of the RCAF Club with nets of 68. The consolation prize was won by Les Truman of the RCAF team.

AT THE CAPITOL — Vera Hruba Ralston reaches new dramatic heights in the production of "Murder in The Music Hall" in which she is co-starred with William Marshall, the first run bit now showing at the Capitol Theatre, with the added thriller, "Hard Guy," starring Jack LaRue.

CHAPTER 18.

"Oh, it really is. I put it up to Vince this afternoon. He's quite keen about it."

"You didn't! Vince has spoken about my finding a place where we could be together when he leaves the hospital. That's what he wants."

"Did he say tonight?"

"Yes. Well... not exactly..."

"Vince is a man of keen perception. I think we'll get along fine. Hello... here we are at home already."

Jacqueline was making ready to leave the car without another word when Larry spoke softly.

"Jack?"

"Well?"

"Not mad with me, are you?"

The rays from a nearby street lamp fell full on her face. Larry could see her dark eyes, wide with anger or hurt. Whichever it was, he was sure of was that she never had looked quite so adorable. Her answer was not at all what he expected.

"You have made me respect you, Larry. But tonight..."

"What about tonight?"

"You've done your best to tear things from me, and I can't seem to do anything about it." Her hand was working at the door fastening. But her gaze did not falter.

"Look here Jack!" Larry exclaimed, almost roughly. "You're looking at all this the wrong way. God knows I want to do anything in the world for you! And all I can do is run around the picture, nibbling at the edges. I can't come into it...so don't grudge me that little. There are so many things I'd like to do. Really important things. One above all, this minute..."

"What?"

"Kiss you between the eyes. Just where that little pucker is."

But Jacqueline had fled.

Once in the sanctuary of her apartment, Jacqueline dropped wearily into a chair and thrust her hat from her head. There was a dull pain in her temples. She drew her hand slowly across her forehead. That was where Larry said he would like to...Oh.

A sudden sob shook her. Two big tears rolled down her cheeks. She never had felt so helpless, so baffled. Checkmated at every turn of the game. Why did it have to be like this? It all might have been very beautiful... very beautiful, she whispered to herself. It all might have been right, too, instead of that hated contract with its sordid provisions. That was what was making it impossible for all these obligations to be heaped upon her helpless shoulders. She had sold herself she had. Just for a fancied security when there seemed nothing security. Security! Facing a danger of being drawn into...mentally. Anything seemed possible now!

And here was Vince being drawn into it, too. She had been foolish enough to believe Larry when he said that no one need ever know. There was a possibility that he had taken Vince into his confidence in order to tighten his hold on her. Not She wouldn't believe that. Not yet.

Nevertheless, she looked forward with fresh dismay to her visit in the hospital the following evening.

Vince seemed in good spirits, sitting up in bed smoking and covering the back of an old envelope with figures and diagrams. When he showed no inclination to bring up the subject of Larry Cutter, Jacqueline boldly introduced the topic.

"Vince," she began quietly, "why didn't you tell me that Mr. Cutter wanted you to go to the country with him? You remember you asked me to find an apartment so that we could live together again?"

Vince wriggled uncomfortably and scratched his chin with the pencil he held before he spoke.

"Well...It was like this, Skipper. He said he'd prefer to tell you himself. Asked me not to say anything."

"But you're going with him?"

"Oh, sure! I think it will be great! You see, Cutter thinks I'll be able to do a little work for him and still have time to go on with my experiments. When I get a little stronger, I'll be able to make my own expenses. Of course I jumped at it. I knew this business of mine here was costing you plenty...that is, until I could pay you back. And I thought it would make it a lot easier for you, I don't want to be a burden..."

"As if you could be! Wouldn't you rather be here with me, Vince?" A little note of entreaty crept into her voice.

"It wouldn't be fair to you," her father said decisively.

"But do you want to put yourself under obligations to a stranger?" Jacqueline hated herself for putting it that way. But she had to find out. "After all," she added, "we don't know very much about Mr. Cutter."

"I figured you knew him pretty well." Vince looked at her closely.

"But I don't. He seems like a nice man..."

"Then you fret about that," Vince interrupted. "Cutter's all right, if I'm any judge. If he goes to any expense on my account I can always pay him back. After I get this new idea of mine squared away, 'obligation' will be just another word in the dictionary. We'll be on our way around the world, Skipper. You'll see. It won't be long now!"

"No," Jacqueline said, more to herself than Vince, "I don't think it will be long now."

That night in the country, coupled with Vince's pleased determination to cast his lot with Cutter, brought Jacqueline to a carefully thought out conclusion.

Vince was old enough to know what he was about, and so was she.

Jacqueline had no one but herself to blame for signing that contract. She had signed it, and her spirit of fair play would not allow her to break it before the end of the designated six months. The paper stipulated that, as an inducement of good faith, Larry was to give her that money. But the contract didn't say that she had to accept it if she never had.

That was at the bottom of all the humiliation she has suffered. Of course, if there hands hadn't been available, she wouldn't have known what to do for Vince; But so much had happened since then. At first, there had been no suspicion in her mind, nor, try as she might, she could not help but wonder if they were honestly come by. Or, if they were, how about the money that had purchased them? If there were something wrong there, would she be responsible in any way?

It all was such a muddle.

But one thing was perfectly clear now. As long as she had Larry's money in her possession, it was going to play havoc with her self-respect. If she returned it to him, her conscience would be much more clear. Parting with her name did not seem so serious ...when one divorced the cash features.

The whole thing must be figured out rather carefully.

Those nine bonds could be returned untouched. And most of the cash received for the other, since Larry had paid for the surgeon and the hospital bill. She would draw out what was left and turn it back to Larry, then explain that she would reimburse him for what he had spent.

That sounded fair, as though it should square their account. And, this time, she would not depend upon a conference meeting. She would take the bonds and cash fro mthe bank and ask Larry to come to the apartment and get them. Of course, she would not explain why she was asking him to call. There seemed no other way to manage it.

Arranging all these details relieved her spirits immeasurably. In a very little while now, she would be free.

She expected to have a chance to deliver her invitation in person, but, except for a call at the office, Neither did she find him waiting outside the hospital any evening. He did manage to call on Vince several afternoons, however.

Those visits were reported gleefully by the patient when his daughter arrived after dinner. Jacqueline owned to a feeling of genuine relief that she would not be obliged to move from Courtland street. But that was quickly overshadowed by something very much like resentment.

To hear Vince tell it, he and Larry were looking forward to the stay on the farm with all the enthusiasm of two boys on a holiday. Jacqueline was made painfully aware of the fact that she was an outsider. Especially, when she was forced to write Larry a note and ask him if it would be convenient to call at the apartment the following Thursday evening, at nine.

He arrived on the stroke, so genuinely delighted at the summons that Jack found her carefully prepared speech fading swiftly from her mind. She knew she dared not temporize with the situation and introduced the hated topic as promptly as possible.

"I can't help it, Larry," she misated hurriedly, after she had outlined her reasons. "I suppose it all sounds very silly to you.... but I can't help it." She fell back on that reasnn as the logical answer to it all.

She had expected that Larry would argue the matter coolly, or try to ride over her wishes in the rough-shod manner he occasionally adopted. He did neither. Instead, he sat lookig at her quietly through a haze of pipe smoke. Jacqueline felt that she would have held an advantage had she refused him permission to smoke. Come to think of it, however, he had not asked it.

"Do you mind telling me if you have an idea that those bonds might be hot? I think I put a receipt in the envelope." That was his unruffled response.

"Hot?" Jacqueline queried with a puzzled frown.

"Stolen."

"No!" she denied, her cheeks flushing. There was nothing else to say, with Larry's dark eyes looking at her that way.

"Thanks. After all, I wouldn't blame you."

Mr. Howe's Opinion

Mr. Howe said that in his opinion the motion went far beyond asking the House to express the opinions that the government regarded the subsidy as likely to continue the producer subsidy of 25 cents per 100 pounds of whole milk.

If the motion was carried it would be taken as recognition that the House wanted the government to continue the producer subsidy payment which was costing the country approximately $100,000,000 annually.

J. M. Macdonnell (PC — Muskoka-Ontario) said he had called for the removal of controls as soon as possible. But he believed that the motion simply was an expression of the feeling that the government reconsider its milk subsidy policy.

These statements were heard after party leaders and several members from various parties had spoken to the motion and after acting Prime Minister Ian Mackenzie had promised that the government would definitely give "new consideration" to the milk subsidy policy before Sept. 30.

Spanked By Speaker

Members of the Social Credit Party and J. S. Woodsworth (Labor-Progressive) and George Cruickshank (Fraser Valley) asked the government to abolish the subsidy. They announced last March that the producer subsidy of 25 cents per hundred pounds be discontinued Sept. 30. At the time it also was announced that the consumer subsidy of two cents a quart would be discontinued on June 1 last and that control on milk would be fully returned to the Provincial Milk Board.

Urged to Increase

The House devoted most of its two-hour morning session to the debate revolving around a C.C.F. amendment to a motion for the House to resume the consideration of departmental estimates.

The amendment, moved by A. M. Nicholas (CCF-Mackenzie), urged that the House record its opinion that consideration should be given to continuance of the producers subsidy in order to ensure adequate return to producers and to make it possible for the consumer to have milk without any further price increase.

Mr. St. Laurent urged that the motion be withdrawn because he would prevent the House from going into supply. He thought the opposition would be satisfied once the House had had an expression of opinion.

The government gave consideration to from that day to "the economy of the nation." There were factors present today that were not present in May when the abandonment of the subsidy was announced.

It had been felt then that it would be beneficial gradually to discontinue the producers' subsidy when cash was plentiful. For that reason the policy had been announced early for the end of the pasture season.

Warns Shortage Of Milk Bottles Developing

Ottawa, Aug. 27 (CP)—R. C. Smellie, President of the National Dairy Council of Canada, today warned of a developing shortage of milk bottles as a result of a strike at the Dominion Glass Company soda ash plant at Windsor, and appealed to housewives for return of all empty bottles to dairies as soon as possible.

Mr. Smellie said that the Windsor plant supplies practically the entire Canadian output of soda ash, an essential ingredient in the manufacture of glass bottles, and bottle works had virtually stopped production. Even if the strike ended immediately—and he understood all is quiet—no new bottles could be produced for at least two months.

Soon "an acute shortage of bottles may curtail milk deliveries in many cities."

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, Aug. 27 (CP)—Base metal stocks held a minor gain on the exchange today while the other groups were lower in mid-day and sold off quite sharply in the afternoon. Volume also was fairly heavy at 1,188,000 shares for the first three hours.

Sherritt-Gordon touched 3.10 at the start of the 25-cents gain in the afternoon sell-off. Smelters dropped 2 points, Nickel 1½ and Noranda Corporation and other base metals had major losses.

Chesterville dropped to 94 and Canada Bread to the decline of 90 cents. Quemont weakened a point.

Most of the industrial groups weakened. The liquors, papers, golds, utilities and oils declined. Hiram Walker was down 7 points to 141.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Aug. 27—(AP) Stocks generally resumed their slow drift in today's market although selling was not heavy nor widespread.

Dealings slowed after a fairly active forenoon and where not positively "thin" issues lost three to four points on transactions at odd fractions to a point or so ruled near midday. Extreme setbacks ranged from two and more.

Canadians were weak with Hiram Walker down 2 1-4, Distillers Seagrams off 1 and Canadian Pacific 3-8, Both Dome Mines and McIntyre slipped 1-2.

HOGS

Toronto, Aug. 27 —(CP)— Grade A, dressed, bacon-hogs, are $21.60 delivered at Brantford, unsettled with no quotations established at Stratford or Kitchener, delivered at Barrie, in markets reporting early today.

Grade A, dressed bacon-hogs at London were $21.15 delivered.

ASSAULT CHARGE DISMISSED

Toronto, Aug. 27 (CP)—Charges of aggravated assault laid against John J. Mahoney, prominent local labor leader, were dismissed yesterday by Magistrate J. A. Hanrahan. He was accused by Patrick Joseph O'Boland, Toronto barrister. "I am satisfied that Mr. Boland almost willingly precipitated what followed by provoking the accused . . . in the highly insulting and provocative manner which I am satisfied is used toward him," said Magistrate Hanrahan.

MONTREAL LIVESTOCK

Montreal, Aug. 27 (CP)—Trading was active and all classes sold at steady prices, with demand keen here today.

Calf receipts consisted only of heifer, cows and common to medium quality steers. Choice steers comprising 950 up, mediums 850-9.25 and commons 7.25 and more. Heifers sold 8.50 and more. Cows 5.50-7. Medium good bulls brought 9.25 and common 8.00 and more.

Best vealers were 14.50 with a few at 15. Grassers and drinkers in mixed lots sold at 7-9.25.

Most good lambs exchanged at 14 per cent and sheep were 3-7.50.

Hogs were 21 for grade A and sows 19 dressed.

'ALL IN LINE OF DUTY'

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Aug. 27 (CP)—Constable Frank Robinson, called along with another constable in the west end of the city recently, found a woman attempting to reach the city to take her to hospital. While the other constable went in search of a doctor, Robinson stayed with the woman — finally he got me a mid-wife and bring a bouncing baby into the world, as he said, "all in the line of duty."

Brief Visit Paid Aircraft Carrier

Montreal, Aug. 27—(CP)—Defence Minister Abbott paid a brief visit yesterday to the 18,000 ton aircraft carrier H.M.C.S. Warrior, in port here since Saturday night.

On his way to Ottawa from Halifax, Mr. Abbott informally inspected Canada's largest warship after being escorted aboard by Capt. F. L. Houghton, C.B.E., R.C.N., commanding officer.

Earlier, naval officers took advantage of the special visiting time allowed to them and spent two hours visiting old friends aboard the Warrior.

Tomorrow is a holiday for the crew of the flat-top, which was delayed one day in reaching port here after she ran aground 30 miles upstream from Quebec and returned there for examination. The Warrior leaves here Thursday for Quebec.

U. S. TURNS OUT LATEST AIR GIANTS

U. S. army's newest bomber, XB-36, largest land-based bomber in the world, is in flight, TOP, near Fort Worth, Tex. Dwarfing the Superfortress that carried the war to Japan, it has six motors, a wing span of 230 feet, a length of 185 feet, and can carry 10,000 pounds of bombs for 10,000 miles. Used as a troop transport, the huge craft could carry 400 fully equipped infantrymen. Pictured at BOTTOM is the U. S. navy's XR-66-1, otherwise known as the Lockheed Constitution, shown to the public for the first time at Burbank, Calif. The 92-ton giant will carry a pay load of 69,000 pounds.

UKRAINE VISITOR

Regina —(CP)— Although fashions in the Ukraine and Canada are similar, there are differences in the mode of living, says Zoya Hayday of Kiev, who visited Regina recently under the auspices of the Ukrainian society for cultural relations abroad.

"People in the Ukraine go to bed later than people in Canada. Those in industry get up about 6 o'clock, office workers arise about 9 o'clock and artists sleep much later, but recreation and leisure hours are spent much the same as they are in Canada."

Miss Hayday, a well known opera singer, studied music for five years and has appeared in a Soviet film.

France Joyous in Recovery

Vast Difference Between England and France is Seen by U. S. Editor — French Gay and Irresponsible, While English Meet Problems With Austerity and Spirit of Sacrifice

(By Ervin D. Canham, editor, Christian Science Monitor)

A few weeks in England not long ago, and this week in France now, reveal striking contrasts—contrasts which exemplify national differences and arouse puzzling questions.

First of all in England there is a very substantial equality of sacrifice and privation. Nearly everyone has an equally limited wardrobe. The deprivation of good things is virtually universal. Britain, in the material sense, is today a land of have-nots. The atmosphere—while in a rigorous fundamental sense inspiring—is to surface view rather gloomy and discouraging. It is not much fun. And in addition, particularly in London, there are the overwhelming evidences of physical damage.

In France, nearly everything is the precise contrary. It is a nation of haves and have-nots, and the line of demarcation between them was never greater since the Revolution of 1787. If you have money, you can live as well as anyone lived in France before the last war. And you do not need a tremendous amount of money, either. The splendid hotels and restaurants of Paris, and of the watering places, are running full blast. All the old lights of the old France are abundantly available.

If it is clothes you need in France, you have only to go to a shop and buy them. If you lack clothes coupons, you can buy them readily, too. The saleswoman will sell them to you. All the sensual delights are yours for the acquiring. And so, in the material sense at least, France is a charming place these days. Coming direct from England, France is even more of a pleasant surprise than it used to be. And more and more British are finding ways of coming.

Now, which nation is really recovering, France or Britain? Which has chosen the positive and the surest road back?

I am sure I do not know. Now, as ever, one wishes that each nation had a measure of the other's characteristics. One would wish Britain to be a little less austere, and France to be a little less irresponsible. The black market need not be so unrestrained in France, and self-conscious privation not quite so apparent in Britain.

Yet in fairness it must be said that Britain had little choice. It does not produce the abundance of foodstuffs that grow out of France's rich soil. It does not have the talent of attractive crockery. Its dressmakers and hatters cannot do so much with so little. It was ever thus. And so perhaps Britain's austerity is 90 per cent inevitable.

But the difference between the two nations today is positively fantastic. You would think that Britain had been the captive and downcast nation, the victim of enemy occupation, the defeated power in the war. And you would think France had been the happy conqueror. If you were to judge alone by the radiant visage of its capital.

Without delving into the economic fundamentals of the problem, it is the casual impression of this traveller that each nation has chosen the path of its own national talent and manner. Britain will get there by austerity and self-sacrifice. France will get there by concessions and compromise. And neither could do otherwise.

Yet I believe that there are certain values in Britain's method which have a profound significance. We used to talk about Britain's class lines. But today the most vital and irksome of all lines—the line between the haves and have-nots—has to a great degree been wiped out. It has been removed by the universality of having not. That is an uncomfortable process while it is going on, but misery loves company and it ought to end in a healthy state of respect between the different economic levels.

To the precise contrary, France has accentuated the difference between haves and have-nots. The luxuries available to the haves are very obvious and palpable. You can read the menus of the fine restaurants where they are posted at the sidewalk entrance. You can see the diners over the terrace hedges. But then you always could, and the poor have not been moved to the point of rebellion since the days of the Bourbons.

There in France we have something like the percolated prosperity ideas of the twenties. Undeniably, the good things that are becoming available—for a price —will be some extra fillip to the have-nots. If lobster and saddle-of-mutton are available at the luxury hotels, does it not mean soup and bread will be increasingly available at the bistro?

This is, of course, a very superficial view. The actual figures on food are not far from grim. The Ministry of Food sets the average French diet at just under 1,400 calories a day, or half what ought to be eaten. And the have-nots cannot, of course, always get the average. Children's weights and stature have decreased.

But this is not the France you see when you arrive in Paris today. It is not the France you feel. You see a nation which has cast off the mourning of austerity and which wears the joyous robes of abundance outwardly, whatever may be the situation within.

And so I repeat: I believe both Britain and France will get back to a kind of normal. But the contrast is amazing. I will not pretend to draw normal deductions. And I suggest again that one country has gone a bit too far down the road of its national predilection. Each, today, can learn from the other. More power to both!

Prehistoric Wife Was Boss of Home

By MURRAY SINCLAIR

Tucson Ariz., Aug. —(AP)— Meet Mrs. Anasazi, a fascinating woman, though she has been dead 600 years.

She was dug up recently by a group of anthropologists including Dr. Emil Haury, director of the Arizona State Museum and head of the department of anthropologists at the University of Arizona, and E. B. Sayles, museum curator.

Mrs. Anasazi, as she was christened by the professor and his students of Arizona's Archeologic Field School, came to light during excavations of a prehistoric city in the land of the Apaches at Point of Pines. She represents a lost race, they say, who lived in the region hundreds of years before Columbus discovered America and built a city with 100-room apartment houses, water reservoirs and terraced farms.

Make no mistake about it, this early American housewife was a bright character, according to scientific definitions.

She used rouge, made from cinnabar, smarted herself with marcasite jewelery or pieces made from marine shells and deer bones. Occasionally she would do a thorough paint job on her face. And she was boss around the house.

Wife Kept Busy

This little woman dished up some attractive sounding meals: deer and antelope steaks and roasts, turkey or fish for the main course, and beans, corn or squash and cornmeal loaf.

She and her husband lived in a one-room, windowless, doorless apartment which they entered by a ladder through a hole in the ceiling. The opening could be covered by sliding a slab rock over it.

"A few of her swanky neighbors had two-room apartments with holes in the walls which could also be covered with slabs of stone, but these were the exception.

Even with only one room to look after this prehistoric woman was plenty busy.

To make the family's clothes she took a stone scraper and went to work on the hide of a deer or antelope. She did a bit of sewing.

Then she had her many cooking and storage pots, bowls and jars to mold and bake. When finished she would paint them, using her own designs or soliciting a particularly creative talent from the jar f a neighbor in the next apartment.

Life in this part of the nation around 1300 A. D. was good. Game was plentiful, the farms productive. Abundant forests were near by. At least 5,000 people lived in here at this time. Why was the area abandoned and the civilization allowed to die? "That," sy Dr. Haury, "is still one of the challenging problem facing us.

"It must have been some tremendous pressure which drove Anasazi out of this area in the 14th century." No signs of war or conflict have yet been found.

3,000 Persons Stage Parade At Gates of Steel Company

By TIM DICKSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Hamilton, Ont., Aug. 28.—(CP)—A parade of nearly 3,000 persons was held at the gates of the Steel Company of Canada's Hamilton works today where striking members of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) stood guard in anticipation of a police move to open their picket lines later in the day.

The parade was headed by 1,000 striking war veterans who held a meeting downtown, went to the Government Rehabilitation Training School and persuaded a number of their fellow unionists officials estimated the number at 700 to 1,000 — to join them.

When the marchers reached the Stelco gates they were followed by another 1,000 strikers, mostly steelworkers although some were workers of the rubber and electrical plant strikes here.

The veterans, who also held a parade yesterday, carried placards proclaiming "The picket line is the line now" and "Labor veterans — unity spells victory."

Before the arrival of the parade, late in the morning, there were 35 police on the picket lines. Two men left the bargaining table and walked through the lines and a union announcer said later they were waterworks repairmen.

There was no sign of Royal Canadian Mounted Police, but Provincial Police about the gates. The Mounties are quartered in the rehabilitation school which the students are moving to join in the demonstration.

Talks Being Held

Unionists here felt that only continued talks in Ottawa between C. H. Millard, national director of the steel union, and Federal Labor Department officials had prevented police action up to now. The union has been on strike since July 15 for a 40-hour week week and minimum wage of $33.60.

The Steel Company of Canada plant here was still operating today, with 2,000 employees, of the country's two other basic steel producers in this area, Manz and Sydney have been closed by the strike.

It was estimated that 450 Federal and provincial police were in the city today. The outside police were sent after the Hamilton Police Commission appealed to the Ontario Government for aid last Friday.

Pickets on duty at the Stelco plant gates said they expected the main task of the Federal and provincial Police would be to open the picket lines to permit free passage of men and materials to and from the Stelco plant, a task which the police mounted with a force of 150 men at most had been expected Monday to accomplish in the past six weeks.

Since the strike started, between 2,500 and 2,700 men have kept the plant in operation. To do so, they have remained in the works 24 hours a day, unable to visit their families except by climbing fences andeluding union picket lines. Boats and planes kept a supply route open but union officials said Allied small truck shipments and presented workers leaving or entering by the main gate.

Disputes Statement.

Ontario Attorney - General Leslie Blackwell in a statement Monday said the outside police were sent here to maintain law and order, which included security of life, that the union is able to carry on peaceful picketing but that the time during which pickets could go to and from their homes without fear of intimidation has expired.

E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario C.C.F. leader and general counsel for the steel union, took issue with Mr. Blackwell's statement when he addressed a labor meeting at

GOVT. WILL SOON ANNOUNCE POLICY ON IMMIGRATION

Order Restricting Use Of Wheat For Human Needs is Suspended Effective Sept. 1st

Ottawa, Aug. 28.—(CP)—The Commons roamed across the vast expanse of policy covered by the Department of Mines and Resources yesterday after noting that its Liberal government survives a challenging combination that it had shunted itself from office on a technicality.

In a final drive through departmental estimates that is a prelude to prorogation, Commons subjected Resources Minister Glen to a barrage of questions on issues that ranged from the establishment of a fuel research board to the welfare of Indians from timber rates in national parks to Canada's future immigration policy.

At the opening of the night session, acting Prime Minister St. Laurent announced suspension of an order restricting domestic use of wheat for human consumption to 90 per cent of the consumption level of 1945. The suspension is effective Sept. 1.

Mr. St. Laurent said the recommendation came from the Canadian Wheat Board, had worked particular hardships at points where there was a large influx of tourists or men returning to civilian life.

Tenure Challenged

Tenure of minister's tenure in office was challenged by a Progressive Conservative member — Carl Homuth of Waterloo South — who contended that it had come into existence itself by failure to call for a vote of confidence when Premier Greene died 69-41 in favor of a C. C. F. amendment to a government motion.

Fewer than 20 Liberals had voted for the C.C.F. amendment to that motion, one that asked government disapproval of its policy of abandoning Sept. 30 the milk producers' subsidy of 8 cents per hundred pounds.

Mr. Homuth had been called on a free, non-party basis and therefore could not jeopardize his government's position.

Kenneth Lloyst Again Remanded

Kingston, Aug. 28. (CP)—Kenneth Lloyst of Kalador, 24 miles northeast of Kingston, charged with assault causing bodily harm, was remanded September 16 after bail of $1,500 was continued when he appeared in police court here yesterday. Lloyst was arrested following shooting of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Lake, Aug. 16. Patterson, shot through the chest, is reported to be in a critical condition.

John B. McIntosh and Joseph H. Lantier, escaped from Kingston penitentiary May 28 and were recaptured last week-end, were each sentenced to six months for being unlawfully at large and given time remaining terms to run consecutively. They were each given another year's sentence for car theft, to run concurrently.

"Harold E. Reeves, who escaped from Kingston Penitentiary July 3 and was recaptured July 9, was given three months supplemental sentence.

We Must Not Forget What Unity Of Commonwealth Did For Victory

—Viscount Montgomery

Montreal, Aug. 28 —(CP)— The Commonwealth unity that combined with other factors to win the war was being forgotten and must be restored, Viscount Montgomery of Alamein declared here in accepting an honorary degree from McGill University. He already has been awarded honorary degrees by Laval University, Halifax.

He spoke of the unprepareedness and weakness of the Commonwealth that had given men the courage to hope for world conquest. Then the Commonwealth had rallied from its hold out until Allied strength could arrive and, "Allied might could combine to bring victory.

"No single effort by any one part of the Commonwealth could have equalled that mighty, united freely given effort! which was all the more powerful because it was freely given."

"We have always been at peace for over a year, and possibly some of us are inclined to forget all that happened between September, 1939, and May, 1945, and to forget why it happened.

"But we must not forget; this is the last we are for the brave fighting men who gave their lives that we might win through to victory. We are all anxious that it should never happen again, but we must prepare for peace and security within the framework of the Commonwealth organization. But these things take time to arrange."

Tied in with the need for vigilance was the need for the continuation of the development of the national character the main requirement for lasting "balance." He said he believed that Commonwealth unity depended mainly at instilling "balance" into the students to ensure a balanced outlook.

Russian Ambassador About to Leave Greece; Charged Affairs in Post

By L. S. CHAKALES

Athens, Aug. 28—(AP)—The impending departure of K. V. Rodionov, Russian Ambassador to Greece, complicated the diplomatic turmoil in which this country found itself today on the eve of a plebiscite expected to return King George II to his throne.

Rodionov applied to the government last night for a "peaceful vanishing" him to leave the country, thus ending a week of diplomatic developments, including the departure of Ivador Cankar, Yugoslav Ambassador to Greece; a formal charge by the United States Greece before the United Nations Security Council, and the forthcoming visit of an American naval force.

The unexpected announcement of Rodionov's departure with his family was made, without any official explanation, as left wing circles said his presence in Greece during Saturday's plebiscite was the almost certain return of the King would be incompatible with the Soviet position of the Greek regime.

An attache at the Soviet Embassy said that a charge d'affaires would probably be charge here during Rodionov's absence. He declined to say whether Rodionov had been recalled by Moscow.

The Greek foreign office said nomination of a charge d'affaires would interpret as a sign that he was in diplomatic relations between Greece and the Soviet was intended by Rodionov's departure.

Commenting on reports that Rodionov had been recalled, the foreign office said itself by failure to call for a vote of confidence when Premier Greene died 69-41 in favor of a C. C. F. amendment to a government motion.

Fewer than 20 Liberals had voted for the C.C.F. amendment to that motion, one that asked government disapproval of its policy of abandoning Sept. 30 the milk producers' subsidy of 8 cents per hundred pounds.

BALKAN ISSUES IN SPOTLIGHT AT U.N. ASSEMBLY

Nine New Applications for Membership Including That of Albania

By CHARLES A. GRUMMON

Lake Success, N.Y., Aug. 28 (AP) — Long-standing political issues in the Balkans are expected to plague the United Nations Security Council when it is reassembled here to debate nine new applications for U.N. membership, topped by Albania's hotly-contested bid.

Prospect of a showdown on the whole turbulent situation were enhanced by the Soviet withdrawal from Greece and Yugoslavia that they had accused the rest of the Council table to air their opposing views on the Albanian application.

Greece, herself facing a hearing before the Council on Albanian complaint charging her with "provocation" along the borders, has bitterly opposed the Tirana government's application, which has been supported by the Soviet.

A full gallery of spectators was assured for the Council's first meeting in the new United Nations headquarters on the Hempstead section of the huge Sperry Gyroscope plant. More than 1,000 press passes were received in advance for the 385 seats set aside for the public out of 752 in the Council Chamber.

Albania Listed First

Albania's application for U.N. membership was filed on the last winter in London and tabled at the request of the United States, was listed for first consideration on seniority basis.

Albania has the enthusiastic Soviet and Polish support in the Security Council and the enthusiastic opposition of Britain and the United States.

Belief was expressed by one Council source that seating of Albania's delegation, representatives with permission to present their case on that issue would prolong the debate and defer action on the Ukrainian complaint against Greece.

In Paris, the Soviet Embassy's press attache, Alexander Dmitrievsky, Foreign Minister of the Ukraine, would arrive here shortly to prosecute his government's charges against Greece. It is not any intention of having a Soviet Russian representatives handle the Albanian case, but Dmitrievsky has its own representative for that purpose.

Of the eight other pending applications for U.N. membership, five have met opposition while three are (unopposed— Sweden, Iceland and Afghanistan.

MOSLEM WORLD SEEN IN STATE OF GREAT UNREST

Correspondent Finds Tiny Afghanistan Only Spot of Relative Peace

By JOSEPH C. GOODWIN

Jerusalem, Aug. 28 —(AP)— The Moslem world from Egypt to India appears to be headed for a period of international war, with Palestine the focal point of greatest infection.

In a personal travel and reporting in Iran, Iraq, Afghanistan, Saudi Arabia, Palestine and the Persian Gulf states I have seen only one spot of tranquility — tiny Afghanistan.

Political and religious agitation and the Moslem league's "direct action" campaign of last year, coupled with delaying Indian independence. Iran, torn by internal strife and Soviet threats, freed of foreign troops, now sees new threats from the Soviet Caucasus and southern frontiers.

The Iran-Iraq announcement said a brigade of Indian troops dispatched to Iraq would be withdrawn and that Indian interests in South Persian oil fields.

Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Trans-Jordan and the Holy Land. British warships have steamed through the Suez, Aden, Bahrein and Basra. Afghanistan put into effect a conscription plan officials claimed "complete friendly understanding with all her neighbors." Foreign observers said that the country is a buffer between the fear of Russia and suspicion of her neighbors across the gun-studded Khyber Pass.

In Tehran a foreign diplomat said Russia was stationing troops along the frontier facing Iran. He described the "uneasy calm" between the Iranian army and the Soviet forces operating in Azerbaijan "within two weeks unless final agreement was affected with the Soviet Union concerning oil in Tehran."

In Jerusalem, a British officer said "watch the Iran-Iraq frontier, that's where the fire will be." He declined to elaborate. Rumors persisted at Basra that British officials were warning Arabs. The Arab states from Iraq to Egypt have mobilized their armies and Palestine Arabs in the move for Arab unity and Arab nation.

Palestine provides the greatest visual evidence of spreading war potentialities, of Moslem-Jewish violence occur daily despite all out security regulations.

BRITISH TROOPS SEARCHING ARCA FOR ARMS

Surprise Raids On Jewish Villages Made At Dawn; 85 Persons Detained for Questioning

Jerusalem, Aug. 28 (CP)—Reddened troops of the British 6th Airborne Division swept into the Jewish villages of Dorot and Ruhama in the Gaza district at dawn today and began a search for arms.

The first official announcement of the surprise raids did not disclose the number of troops involved or whether they had encountered opposition.

The two villages are situated in southwest Palestine.

Both are comparatively new communal settlements on the edge of the Negeb.

While the raids were under way other British forces conducted an intensive search for the Buhabrist quarter in Jerusalem, occupied largely by Jews. This quarter figured in the house search ago when Lieut. Airgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground organization, held a kidnapped British officer prisoner there until he escaped.

A search of the small Jewish village of Kfar Sedot Yam near Naifa, which was launched Monday, was completed today and 85 persons had been detained for questioning. The Sedot Yam raid was revealed last night by a Jewish agency spokesman as the British might have obtained information concerning the meeting of the Big Four tomorrow night in Paris. The conditions now bogged down by more than 300 arrests connected to the Dror draft treaties.

Mr. Thory, financial adviser to the United States delegation, was supported by Herve Alphand, French foreign office spokesman.

Glenville Hall, British delegate, supported Mr. Thory for the United Kingdom, bringing the Big Four solidly into line.

A French Foreign Ministry source said France had accepted last Monday a British proposal for a Big Four Foreign Ministers' session because the first such meeting since July 13, two weeks before the Peace Conference convened.

A British spokesman confirmed the Russian acceptance of a reparations commission by withdrawing his own Australian amendment to the Rosenman Treaty that might have helped bring up the proposal in discussions of other Treaty drafts.

Method Is Criticized

Dr. Walker said he had never questioned the principle of the $10,000,000 agreed by the Big Four as Romanian reparations, but he demanded the method of fixing war damage claims as "arbitrary."

Mr. Molotov took the floor again to thank the United States, France and Great Britain for their support of Russia's claims.

He launched into a long discourse, declaring payment for war damage was "in accordance" for the Soviet Union's reconstruction. He was understood to declare rumors that Russia wanted to dominate the new World Press at Conference debates were baseless.

Replying to an assertion by Dr. Walker that Australia favored reparations only after detailed investigations, Mr. Molotov said that Russia had refused to sit down with you and then pulling his chair out from under him."

Mr. Bevin, political commission, Guiseppe Saragat, president of the Italian Constituent Assembly, declared his country would be willing to give France the Mont Cenis Plateau if Italy could keep the power plant there. The draft treaty left the award to Plateau to France.

A short session before, the United States had sided with Russia against the Australian proposal suggesting the creation of a special commission empowered to investigate reparations claims and the ability of former enemy countries to pay.

Critiques Soviet Innuendos

Dr. Herbert Vere Evatt, United States Deputy Assistant State Secretary, told a press conference today that the United States "doubted the necessity for a number of further reparations investigations, but he sharply criticized Soviet "innuendos" against Australia.

"The United States will support strongly the right of any nation to say and propose" what it likes," he declared.

Foreign Minister Molotov of Russia yesterday angrily attacked the Australian reparations proposal with an accusation that it was "directed against the interests

'Monty' Only One Untired by Swift Itinerary

By JACK BRAYLEY

Montreal, Aug. 28 (CP) — A heavy schedule of state civil military engagements in Ottawa, lay ahead of Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery today as he completed his first visit to the city in a day Canadian tour by enjoying his first train ride in the Dominion.

Before he entrained for Ottawa he was given the Freedom of Honorary Degree by the University of Montreal after a long and wearying schedule took him by automobile over a 40-mile dirt road to Shawbridge, Que., Valleyville, N.B., by aircraft through the thick cloud that hung over and by the same means through the Laurentians.

French Canada gave him a friendly and happy handshaking welcome as he passed behind ropes and clearing a pathway for the supporting soldiery.

At Montreal he quipped jokes with colorful Mayor Camillien Houde and walked more than a mile in a review of 2,000 veterans. Montgomery was at ease for this task and the tired official party had breakfast at 8 a.m. three cities since eight o'clock in the morning and spent most of the cars while he completed his inspection. "Monty" is the only one of the party not to feel the effects of his aides remarked.

Montgomery flew to his silver Dakota R.C.A.F. transports and then through the cloud to wait for the next air leg of the trans-Canada tour to Winnipeg. At meanwhile the control office at Ottawa looked over the record for air flights and found that they had not "got off the tracks" once in the 24 hours since the start of its schedule at every stop so far. The office even had a record of except the inside of hotel room headquarters in Mal. Vic Jamieson, Trans-Canada Air Lines' chief, who superintends the big job of coordinating all the R.C.A.F. dispatches that flood into the Flight Control headquarters.

There is only one newspaperman with the party — a Canadian Press reporter — Lieut. Col. Ralph Allen, Canadian Army Public Relations is representing the C.B.C., Fred Du Doucet, O.B.E., of Montreal, its special writer, and Jack Ellis of Ottawa, a photographer.

Public Relations have made elaborate press arrangements that include the lining up of photographs for the distribution of releases and the packaging of a press kit for distribution across Canada. So far more than 1,500 photographs have been dispatched and the unit has had one picture in a New York paper an hour after it was taken.

Big 4 Ministers Will Meet to Speed Conference Work

Proposal to Investigate Reparations Claims Opposed

By ROBERT KUNSON

Paris, Aug. 28. (AP)—The Big Four lined up solidly today against an Australian proposal for a special commission to investigate reparations claims while American sources predicted that the Foreign Ministers Council would meet tomorrow in an effort to find means of speeding the work of the month-old 21-power Peace Conference.

The proposal that the Big Four Foreign Ministers meet separately while the Conference is in progress first was advanced by Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada.

Willard Thorp, deputy assistant United States State Secretary, announced that the United States on the Australian reparations proposition and speakers from France and Britain concurred. Foreign Minister Molotov of Russia, had fought the proposal for two days.

Speaks on Move.

While Italy was presenting her views on redrawing the Italian frontiers and the Trieste question was debating its procedure for appointing a Governor of Negeh, the corridors at old Luxembourg Palace were rife with speculation as to whether the Big Four Council meeting of the Big Four tomorrow night would end the deliberations now bogged down by more than 300 secret sessions in the five draft treaties.

Mr. Thory, financial adviser to the United States delegation, was supported by Herve Alphand, French foreign office spokesman.

Serious Drought In Peterborough County Reported

Peterborough, Aug. 28. (CP)— Serious drought which one farmer said will be devastating only by "an enormous rain" has forced farmers in the eastern section of Peterborough County to feed the new hay crop to cattle and to haul water from distant streams, a survey showed today.

"The drought has reached a serious stage," said George Elliott, of Norwood. "Pine Grove Cheese factory near Lakefield, is down from 11 cheese a day to 5 1-2——. The dairy industry in East Peterborough is very hard hit."

Spreading to Ontario

Cheese factory at Hastings was reported to be halved. At Warkworth the decrease was not so marked, but at nine cheese a day it is below the intake of 10. Last year it was 16.

"Our wells are not quite dry but they are so low that I have to go 2 1-2 miles to the river to make up the well shortages . . . Nothing but an enormous rain will have any effect on the land. The little showers we have had lately were of help but they were not enough to offset everything was just as dry as before."

Coldwell, Bracken To Attend Meeting General Assembly

Ottawa, Aug. 28 — (CP)—Acting Prime Minister St. Laurent announced Tuesday in the Commons that M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. Progressive Conservative leader, and Hon. John Bracken, Liberal, had agreed to be among the delegates accompanying the Canadian delegation at the second session of the General Assembly of the United Nations in New York September 23.

Mr. St. Laurent said he would serve as chairman of the delegation which would also consist of Hon. Paul Martin, minister of justice Wishart Robertson, government leader in the Senate.

Other delegates would be Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative, and in the Senate, George McIlraith, parliamentary assistant to Transportation Minister Howe, Hume Wrong, Assistant Under Secretary of State for external affairs, M. W. Mackenzie, deputy minister of trade and commerce, and Hon. Hugh Keenleyside, Canadian Ambassador to Mexico.

Advisors to the delegation will be appointed later.

Reds Impart U-boat Secrets

Berlin, Aug. 28 — (Reuters) — Quantities of raw material for the manufacture of U-boat components in former German factories in the Soviet zone into the Russian zone of German from Berlin, it was disclosed from today. This disclosure followed reports that Russia had dismantled the V-weapons in former German factories in Russian-occupied territories.

FLAVIAN VEZINA

Marmora (Special) — Flavian Vezina, resident of Marmora for the past few years died suddenly at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Phillip Flynn on Monday morning at the advanced age of eighty-eight. The late Mr. Vezina was a native of Quebec City and was the third oldest of sixteen children.

When thirteen years of age, he left Quebec City and went to Sherbrooke, Que., where he learned the trade of a blacksmith. Later he worked at the Canadian Arsenal at the plant of the Nicholls Chemical Company at Salaberry de Valleyfield for twenty years. He also spent two years at Chippawa, and he farmed for a while in Beauceforest township.

His pastime was that of tight rope walking. He used to perform at picnics at Stony Lake and he recounted his varied experiences along that line.

A few years ago, he took up residence with his daughter as she and her husband Phillip Flynn moved to Marmora. Owing to advancing years, Mr. Vezina confined to his room. His wife, the former Mary Rosette Lalumiere passed away in Hungerford township twenty-two years ago.

Surviving are four daughters, Mrs. Phillip Flynn, Marmora; Mrs. Josephine Lapointe, Belleville and Mrs. Mary Flynn, Marmora, and one son, Mr. Hubert Vezina. The Requiem Mass was sung at the Sacred Heart Church, Marmora, on Wednesday, Rev. Father H. J. Farrell officiating. Interment will take place in Hungerford Roman Catholic Cemetery.

Thousand Attend Bata Picnic At Oak Lake Beach

Crescent Beach pleasant park at Oak Lake was the scene of its capacity last Saturday and Bata workers gathered for their annual picnic, which included all departments of the Batawa plant and the auxiliary events at Picton, Port Hope and Colborne as well as the plant at Belleville and Trenford. Efficient hustling services were operated from Belleville, Picton, Port Hope, Colborne, Stirling, Trenton, Frankford and Foxboro. In some cases two trips were necessary. For the hundreds of cars the special parking arrangements were made under the direction of Security Master Lloyd Chadwell and the Batawa Boy Scouts. The Batawa troop also gave out the official picnic identification peanuts and the free refreshments of Orangeade were Popular.

The two small seaplanes brought to Oak Lake by special arrangement with Quinte Skyways were incapable of meeting the demand of the large number wishing to fly. But pilots Peter Ross, Les Mitchell, Don Douglas and Jimmie Wright did all they could and returned for repeated flights the next day. The other attraction to steal the show was the appearance of the clown band under the leadership of Bobbie Bisbee of the publicity making department, Frankford.

Sports Program

Bill Rose and his sound truck kept the large crowd of participants of each event as it appeared on the program and filled the entertainment in the starting lines for races and the like. Throughout the day the Bata shoe courts were kept busy and tug-o-war was the event that was popular. Teams with such bouncers as George Flindall, Bert Hall and Ken Hunter had a good share in the weight but were outclassed by the 200 pound weight team in the eliminations. Largest Prize Awarded

The special prize for the largest family present was a buggy and this was donated by the Batawa Food Market and was won by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wm. Grath of Nelson St., New Batawa.

Another special prize was awarded to the one awarded to Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Palmer as champion couple (47 years.)

Prize Winners

In addition to the long list of prizes given for the various races, they were all given ice-cream and soft drinks. Everyone present declared that everyone were for identification.

Sports Results

Six teams took part in the softball tournament for the championship of the Bata Shoe Co. plants in the entire chain. Batawa plants in the entire chain. Batawa plant won the championship with Belleville a close second. Results and honors.

Radio Greetings.

It was at 5.30 that a greeting came from the Belleville radio station in which a musical number was rendered to all the Bata workers enjoying their picnic at Oak Lake. The greeting was picked up by several car radios right at the picnic grounds.

Swimatag and Diving

Although the air was a bit chilly there was a number who enjoyed swimming and contestants in the diving competition gave a smart display of diving with Jacque Normandin gaining first honors with the use of a swan, a jackknife, a backjack, and the handstand. A. Twigg was also an excellent display.

The articles were reported lost and the first aid tent reported no accidents of any kind. It was a day of real pleasure for all present and those who missed it, missed a real treat.

Tourist Sign Produces Results

Suggestion of the local Junior Board of Trade some weeks ago that a suitable sign be placed indicating that tourist information could be secured at the Chamber of Commerce is paying dividends together as the number of tourists being served.

During the height of the tourist season up to 75 inquiries per day from tourists were answered by Chamber of Commerce officials, the inquiries ranging all the way from advice on a good place to stop overnight, to information on road conditions in the province of Quebec, and the best way to get to the Gaspe Peninsula.

Tourists from almost every state in the Union to the south, and from many Canadian provinces as well, seeing the sign town "Tourist Information" outside the local Chamber of Commerce office have stopped in during the summer.

Many of the tourists ask for directions to local summer resorts and inquire as to the possibility of securing accommodation, while many local holidayers with motor trips in view drop in to secure maps and on neighboring provinces and states.

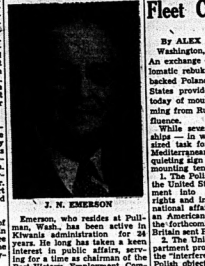
Kiwanis President Principal Speaker At Convention

J. N. Emerson, widely known west coast merchant and president of Kiwanis International, will be the principal speaker at the 1948 convention of the Ontario-Quebec-Maritime Kiwanis District Thursday and Friday, October 5, 6, 7 at Andrews, N. B., it was announced today.

The Kiwanis Club of Belleville will be represented at the meeting which also will highlight election of officers for the coming year and presentation of the 1947 objectives of Kiwanis International.

Mark Vanner, president of the local club, said that Dr. John M. Burden, Toronto attorney and vice-president of Kiwanis International, will participate in the convention program with Emerson.

Harvey R. Doand, Halifax, N. S., governor of the Ontario-Quebec-Maritime District, will preside at the various sessions to be attended by delegates from 65 clubs in the district.



J. N. EMERSON

Emerson, who resides at Pullman, Wash., has been active in Kiwanis administration for 18 years. He has also been a keen interest in public affairs, serving for a time as chairman of the Post-Victory Employment Committee for the State of Washington and as a member of the Pullman Planning Council. He is a former president of the Chamber of Commerce in his home city and for many years was active in Red Cross affairs.

Emerson, elected president of Kiwanis International at the service organization's June, 1946 Century Convention in Atlantic City, N.J., represents more than 2,400 clubs and 95,000 members throughout Canada and the United States.

Delegates who will represent the Kiwanis Club of Belleville at the convention include Ted Schwab and Archie Harris.

TRENTON

Thirty Cases Heard in Court

Trenton—30 cases were disposed of in Trenton police court on Tuesday morning before Magistrate T. Y. Wills and Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C.

Gerald McAdam, 18, of Frankford who appeared in court on August 16th on a charge of breaking and entering a dwelling in Frankford, today pleaded guilty and was given suspended sentence of one year on each charge, after paying costs of court $23.50.

Goldwin Fraser, charged with causing a disturbance was found guilty and bound over to keep the peace for six months after signing a bond for $50 and paying costs of court $7.50.

In the case of John Eric Glenn, charged with assault, no evidence was offered and he was released after paying costs.

Jean Paul Roben, Montreal, was charged with driving a motor car and given 7 days to date from day of arrest.

Thomas C. Kingdon of Ottawa, was unable to pay a fine of $13.00 for being intoxicated, so took seven days in the county jail.

John Peter, of Trenton charged with leaving the scene of an accident was found guilty and fined $27.50.

Judy Dalton of Trenton, appeared on two charges under the Highway Traffic Act and was fined each case and Sept. 3rd.

Jack Kenehan was fined $6.00 for not having a driver's license.

The following persons were each fined $13.00 under the Liquor Control Act: James C. Green, Trenton, Claude Brown, Robert Foshay, Roy Fayne, R.R. No. 3, Consecon, and Wallace Rowe of Port Hope.

George A. Clayton, Gordon Parkhurst and John W. Hough each paid $7.50 for speeding.

Colin Glass, Harold Aziz, and Edward Vandescon each paid $4.50 for driving with faulty trafic signal.

Mervin Turner was fined $7.50 for shooting with a .22 rifle in town.

U.S. and Poland Trade Unofficial Diplomatic Rebukes as American Fleet Cruises in Mediterranean

BY ALEX H. SINGLETON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

An exchange of "unofficial" diplomatic rebukes between Soviet-backed Poland and the United States pointed up fresh evidence today of mounting tension stemming from Russia's sphere of influence.

While several American warships — a wartime a moderate-sized task force — remained in Mediterranean waters, these dispatches sign posts pointed to the mounting tension:

1. The Polish Embassy charged the United States with "infringement into Poland's sovereign rights" and interference in international affairs" as the result of an American note dealing with the forthcoming Polish elections. Britain sent Poland a similar note.

2. The United States State Department promptly acknowledged the "interference." But it said the Polish objections were not valid because the Big Three declarations of Yalta and Potsdam pledged this country, along with Great Britain and Russia, to guarantee free and undistorted elections in the war-torn country.

3. The manner of the entire exchange was highly unusual. Instead of a formal reply to the American note, the Embassy issued its blast in the form of a press release. Similarly, the State Department's retort was provided by an anonymous "spokesman" who told a reporter he could not comment in detail "because I was not given the courtesy of seeing a copy."

4. War Secretary Patterson told a group of top American War Department officials to formulate "defence plans "on the basis that there is and will be no adequate control" among countries of atomic energy.

Forbidden to Publish

In his quick retort, the State Department spokesman said he considered it significant that while the embassy put out its statement, "without hindrance, the Polish press, as far as I have been able to determine, apparently has been forbidden to publish the statement."

Theoretically, the American fleet rode through Mediterranean waters in a gesture of "good will." Actually, the fleet was sent there as evidence that United States diplomacy is armed.

Admiral Richard Conway, acting chief of naval operations, put it plainly when he told reporters:

"We go where the state department tells us."

5. Civilian production chief John D. Small told newspapermen that despite the concentration on reconversion "we have never lost or dropped our system of industrial mobilization." Mr. Small added that United States industry could be swung into full wartime operation within 24 hours in the event of an emergency.

MISSING PILOT LOCATED

Edmonton, Aug. 28 — (CP) — Northwest Air Rescue Service headquarters announced last night that J. J. Hawkins of Seattle, pilot of a light plane reported missing on a mission to pick up two other Seattle men stranded on a lonely Alberta airstrip, has been located and rescue operations parachuted to him. The light aircraft had made a forced landing in a small meadow and the pilot appeared uninjured and his aircraft undamaged.

Lack of Materials Delays Completion Of New Classrooms

Although work is well on the way and progressing satisfactorily, basement classrooms at Queen Victoria and at Queen Mary schools for the accommodation of newly instituted Manual Training and Home Economics courses, will not be ready for the opening of the fall school term next week, it was stated today by Inspector-Administrator L. A. Kells.

Until such classrooms are ready for occupancy introductory courses on the two new subjects will be taught in the various classrooms at the two public schools. Pupils in grade seven and grade eight are eligible for the new courses.

Lack of suitable materials has held up completion of the basement classrooms and school authorities did not care to estimate when they would be ready for occupancy.

George A. Elliott, formerly of Lowlands, Welland county, and graduate of the Ontario Training College for technical teachers, will be the manual training teacher for the course to be given at Queen Victoria School. Mr. Elliott acted as principal at the Winona school for several years.

The Home Economics course will be taught at Queen Mary School by Mrs. Reta Emery, who has been a member of the local teaching staff for several years She was formerly at Kingston.

Veteran Opens New Business

Establishing of a business in which there are no material shortages has been started at Foxboro this day and age but Everett Valleau, returned R.C.A.F. veteran has embarked on this to this commercial Utopia as could be expected.

In partnership with his uncle, Arnold Valleau, the returned veteran is establishing a floor resurfacing business and where space is available will be expanded, to include laying of concrete floors.

A Belleville boy, Everett is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Valleau and prior to his enlistment in the R.C.A.F. was employed as a delivery transport driver. Enlisting he was trained for a aircrew but later switched to ground crew and served overseas in England and Belgium and did not return for nine half years in this capacity. A brother Mosley Valleau, completed a full tour of "ops" with the Bomber Command.

The Valleau Floor Service, by which name the new floor resurfacing firm will be known, will bring to its customers long experience in this field. Arnold Valleau served for eight years with Sills prior to starting the partnership with his nephew.

When material is available the Floor Service will include the laying of all types of tile, linoleum and hardwood, as well as roofing and insulation.

Teen-age Club Donates $50 To Rotary Fund

Appreciation of the Belleville Teen-Age Club after ope and one half years of operation under Rotary sponsorship was shown at the service club luncheon on Monday when members of the Teen-Agers executive presented Rotary President Bert Hoyard with a cheque for $50 to be applied to the club's Crippled Children Fund.

Members of the executive present were Secretary Treasurer Maureen Camp who formally presented the cheque to President Howard and Committee heads Barbara Joan Houston, whose lovely voice was heard in solo "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" with accompaniment by Leo Riggs, Doreen Hall and Don Davis. The teen-agers were presented to the club by Rotarian Newt Thompson, chairman of the Community Service Committee.

In a brief address prior to the presentations, Rotarian Thompson read the Teen-Agers' Club report of activities since it held its first organization meeting in January, 1945.

From that time until June 28, this year, the club's total receipts were $4,810.60 and disbursements and donations, $3,364.35 leaving's balance of $1,446.12.

"The profits of the club are being held in trust," Rotarian Thompson said, so that when the Belleville Community Centre is erected, the teen-agers will be in a position to use their share."

The club has held 51 meetings since its inception with a total attendance of 14306 young people.

The Teen-Age representatives present brought Rotarian Thompson expressed their appreciation of the sponsorship and supervision of the club's activities and hoped it would continue.

Members of the Teen-Age club executive who were unable to be present were: President Jim Stewart Vice Presidents, Doug. Legate and Dick Fitzpatrick) and committee heads Norm Myers and Carl MacKay.

MEAT COUPON DONATIONS MADE THIS SHIPMENT POSSIBLE

Meat, made available for export to the hungry by those Canadians who have voluntarily given up part of their meat ration coupons, is here shown as it is loaded on board the S. S. Makedonia at the port of Montreal. This particular consignment totalling 229,000 pounds of canned meat, is bound for Czechoslovakia. Each carton carries the Food Information Committee's label, depicted in the insert above. The message, "Voluntary donation of meat ration coupons by Canadians made this meat available," is repeated in French, Greek and Czech. To date 556,720 pounds of meat bearing this label have been shipped to Europe as a result of the generous sharing of their meat ration by thrifty Canadians. Valid meat coupons are being given to custodians appointed by church groups or other organizations or turned in to any local Ration Board office.—(Food Information Committee).

Transportation Problems

On immigration, Mr. Glen said the government was fully aware that its policy must be formed sooner or later and he hoped that in the near future he would be able to give a definite indication of what it would be. Despite the desire of many people to come here, transportation problems prevented much doing so.

The House heard Thomas Kill (PC — Kingston) ask special treatment for wives of British forces who trained in Canada and were now in England.

The minister said the first responsibility was to servicemen and their dependents still overseas. There also were some 1,000 Canadians who had been stranded in Europe during the war and who wished to come home.

Research Board

Mr. Glen disclosed that a fuel research board would be established to "direct an over-all program of fuel research" in line with the recommendation of a special committee which had studied Canada's whole fuel question. Synthetic liquid fuel was earmarked as one of its major studies.

Mr. Glen said the government was negotiating for return to the Abasand Oils Ltd. of its properties and rights taken over during the search for oil during the war.

Debate intruded briefly on the eccasire of quorum and answer when Indian estimates came up.

Hugh Castleden (CCF — Yorkton) said Indians had no voice in their own affairs and, as a result, there was disease and want among them, He was "astounded" at times at the public apathy towards their lot but felt it could be attributed to the fact they were isolated from the great Canadian community.

Horses Help

R. M. Warren (L — Renfrew North) said horses contributed by the Resources Department had helped work a "transformation" on an Indian reserve in his constituency. The inhabitants had plowed their land and grown enough food to make themselves virtually self-sufficient.

John Probe (CCF — Regina City) said it was "preposterous" for Canada to assume the prestige of a middle class power when it was not possible for her people to cross from east to west by road without entering the United States. Several other members joined him in his view but Mr. Glen said the Trans Canada highway was "not the responsibility of the Dominion government alone; it is within the jurisdiction of the provinces."

Malone

Malone — Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Deline and family spent the weekend in Peterboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Fox are spending some time at Ivanhoe attending camp meeting which is held there.

Miss Estelle Kelly spent the weekend in Marmora.

Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Long spent Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Long.

Mr. Jack Lowery, Marmora, spent a few days in Malone last week.

A number from here spent Saturday evening in Marmora.

Mr. and Mrs. George Fox and Mary Ann also Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Kelly and Garry spent Sunday evening in Ivanhoe.

Wheat Likely to Remain in Exile From Trading Pit at Least 4 Yrs.

By SHANE MACKAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, Aug. 28 (CP) — When, if ever, wheat would regain leadership in futures transactions on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange is supposed, anybody's guess today. But it was certain that wheat, banished from the trading pit during the war, would remain in exile at least another four years.

The reason: Signing of the Canada-United Kingdom four-years wheat agreement under which the Canadian Wheat Board will continue to be the marketing agency for the Dominion's wheat production, with farmers guaranteed $1.25 a bushel for No. 1 Northern basis Fort William.

This is the system adopted in 1943 when, with wheat a virtual weapon of war, the Board became the sole marketing agency for the Canadian crop.

Wheat War King

There was a time, of course, when wheat was king of the Exchange, it traded on the futures market in millions of bushels daily. Fortunes were made and lost in the pits. Today, all on "futures"—wheat bought or sold for delivery at some future date.

For the farmer or the country man dealing the futures market meant a safeguard against the hazard of shifting world prices. The farmer, for example, satisfied with today's wheat price could sell wheat equivalent to his own crop on the futures market. If the world price went up, he made money on the increased value of his crop but he lost an equal amount of his short sale in the futures market.

But if the farmer used this market, so did the speculator and he needed no wheat to operate in futures.

PRIME MINISTER SAILS

Southampton, Aug. 28 — (CP Cable)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King sailed Tuesday for Canada on the liner Queen Mary.

Mr. King declined comment on the foreign conferences where he spent a month as leader of the Canadian delegation.

Mr. King boarded the liner Monday night and promptly transformed his suite into a business office, where he worked steadily on correspondence.

The Queen Mary, scheduled to make the eastern ocean crossing with Canadian dependents, carried 1,271 wives of Canadian servicemen and 563 children.

Exchange officials won't say how many millions of bushels of wheat traded on the futures market in those palmy days. Neither will they give today's figures of futures operations in rye but they admit the rye trade is a pittance beside the volume of business prior to suspension of wheat futures operations.

Outwardly, however, the scene is about the same on the trading floor, a bedlam as traders bellow their bids and offers in rye and the board markets record price changes.

Grain exchange membership is still at the figure of the 1929 boom days—$203 sans the cost of membership. — $25,000 — ban t changed of recent years.

While purchase and sale of wheat is under control of the Wheat board, a government agency, many people argue this should be the case with all grains. Others argue for the open market system pointing to the fact that Wheat board cannot, of its own accord, handle the crop.

Much of the board's work is done by private grain companies, railways, lake and ocean shipping firms and insurance organizations which are paid to purchase, handle, store, ship and sell wheat under the supervision of Dominion agencies.

Tito Orders Release Of Turkish Captain

London, Aug. 28 — (CP) — An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Ankara Tuesday said that Premier Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia had ordered the release of a Turkish captain who was wounded Aug. 9 when an American transport plane on which he was a passenger was forced down by Yugoslav fighters.

The officer had been detained by the Yugoslav government, although others aboard the plane were released last week following a United States ultimatum.

There had been unofficial press reports that the officer, Capt. Ihsan Unsesn, would be held by Yugoslav authorities for trial as a spy.

His release, the dispatch said, was the result of representations by the Turkish Ambassador in Belgrade.

CARRIER AT NAPLES

Naples, Aug. 28—(AP) — A United States naval force that left Gibraltar Aug. 24 for manoeuvres in the Mediterranean arrived at Naples Tuesday. The force is commanded by Vice-Admiral Bernard H. Bieri, who is on the cruiser Fargo. It includes the carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt, two light cruisers and five heavy destroyers.

Science on the March

Science moves rapidly, loses no time and endeavor to bring hope to millions. While mankind is just learning the primary principles of atomic energy and its power in destructiveness as shown at the Bikini trials, science is at work endeavoring to draw healing from this mysterious elemental power.

In Boston a three-year-old girl has just had the third of three doses of a by-product of the death dealing atomic energy in an effort of science to keep the men of science ever eager to achieve new treatments for the pains and sufferings of human beings. Medical science relentlessly and tirelessly will pursue its work to the end that this power of energy may be harnessed to the great task of healing.

Not long ago some of the by-products of atomic research were, it was announced, being released for study. Natural science will go to work and seek to find some means of lightening the burdens of the world as in locomotion and in so many other ways affecting the welfare and the happiness of man, easing his burdens and lifting his cares if possible.

At the same time experts are planning for control of atomic energy.

The atomic age is here with all its potentialities and responsibilities.

Nuernberg Trial Nearing Close

Hitler and Nazism gave the city of Nuernberg a name of ill-repute to the world out of Nazidom there aggression went to work and had its headquarters.

But since Hitler's regime went down in ruin, there has been preparing and going forward a new influence. For the nine months since last November the trial of twenty-two Nazi leaders has been proceeding. Now it nears the end. Here at the bar of humanity in the Allied tribunal are German leaders and group organizations accused of crimes against humanity. The world has read much of the evidence brought against these men and will soon know their fate.

There has been no court of this kind in world history.

Dunkerque Symbol of Freedom

The port of Dunkerque, France, is now open and ships are passing in and out of the harbor to mark a new day and generation. French effort has rebuilt the locks and "the civilian remnant of 500 souls which was left when the Nazis marched out of this scene of their dubious glory has grown to 10,000, housed in barracks built among the ruins," comments the New York Times. That newspaper looks back to the memorable time in 1940 when Dunkerque became the symbol of enduring freedom and the will to fight to victory. Out of the crable in British and French annals, when 320,000 men were taken to Britain out of the grasp of the hungry Hun in the most dramatic movement of troops of all time.

Whatever the future greatness of the port and in spite of its rebirth never again will Dunkerque be "the supremely important city that it was during the last days of May, 1940. Then its exports were as precious a cargo as was ever carried in a good cause, 320,000 men, survivors of a beaten army; and the shipping that took this cargo to sea and safely included tugs, yachts and launches, many of them manned by civilian crews," the Times notes.

"The thought of Dunkerque still pulls at a tone's heart; here might have been a final disaster and democracy's hopes, and here that disaster was averted, not merely by the good discipline of a retreating army but by the spontaneous and splendid heroism of men who were no uniform."

Dunkerque is a name that will live in the annals of free peoples forever. Its name is already written in history. Whatever its future be, the deeds of the heroes, military and civilian, at that crucial time in life on this earth will be recalled. Dunkerque will be the deep undertone that will lift the hearts of free men forever.

"It is said," says that in moments of flesh-heartedness there may be doubts of the future of democracy. "Then we may think of Dunkerque and how democracy, meeting a supreme test, took care of its own, faced the triumphant enemy, shot down the dictator's planes, and then, in patience and fortitude, rebuilt victory. It survived that test it will survive the others, here and wherever it is planted."

Citizenship of British War Brides

The forthcoming changes in the British citizenship law announced by Mr. Chuter Ede, Home Secretary, have special importance at the present time because of the large number of British women who married servicemen from other countries.

Under the existing law, a British woman who marries an alien automatically loses British citizenship if, by the law of her husband's country, she acquires his citizenship. This rule does not affect these British women who married American servicemen: they retain British citizenship since they did not become American citizens by marriage. But those who married servicemen of certain other countries acquired their husband's citizenship automatically and therefore automatically lost their British citizenship. The law will now be changed, so that a British woman will never lose her citizenship by marriage.

Another aspect of the existing law is that a non-British woman who marries a British man automatically acquires British citizenship. This too, will be changed under the new legislation. In future a woman who marries a Briton, will have to apply for naturalization in order to become a British citizen herself.

These forthcoming changes have long been urged by women's organizations. The rule that a British woman loses citizenship by marriage to an alien dates from 1870, whether or not she acquired her husband's, and until 1918 the right of citizenship might, therefore, become stateless, e.g. by marriage to an American. In 1933 the law was changed to eliminate this possibility; from then until the present time a British woman could lose her citizenship only if she acquired her husband's citizenship. The 1933 act was regarded by women's organizations as entirely inadequate. But the difficulty was that, in the long-standing convention, the law governing British citizenship can only be changed in agreement with the Dominions, and these nations could not agree to make a woman's citizenship entirely independent of that of her husband. Agreement on this principle was, however, reached in conferences of experts from Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and the United Kingdom during the last few months, and later this year another conference of experts will work out the details.

When passed, the new citizenship act will take its place in the long list of measures which have equalized the rights of British women with those of men.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Copyright, 1946, Edgar A. Guest)

MEMORY-HOUSE

If a house is just a shelter from the wind and from-the rain,
Though it's filled with costly treasures,
I should call it but a vain.
If it doesn't ring with laughter of the tenants, now and then,
Howsoever fair to look at, it's no better than a den.

If the rugs are never rumpled, and the chairs not once misplaced;
If there's not a sign to show you where the children's feet have raced;
If the curtains hang sedately, and no toys are strewn about;
I should think the ones who keep it must be happier when they're out.

I have done my share of travel. I know what it is to dwell
In the best that is, provided by some popular hotel.
But the table's just a table, and the chair is just a chair,
And the room is just a shelter, for no memories are there.

I think houses sigh for laughter and the joys which once they've known—
When a loved one has departed and the children older grown;
For there's not a thing within them that does not contrive to hold
Some gladness to remember of the happier days of old.

MACKENZIE'S COLUMN

Greece Occupies Unhappy Position In World Politics

By GLENN HARR

(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

The unwelcome spotlight swings now across the clamorous world stage and focuses on Greece. The unhappy little country where much of western civilization was born and which stands now an almost isolated Christian island in the ocean of another culture from the east appears destined to be, for the next few days at least, the centre of the storm.

No other land is so surely caught in the vise of world politics as Greece. The imminent departure of the Russian ambassador is an expression of that. The Russian's grave displeasure with the Greek government and its policies is the latest and most menacing aspect of the terrible fact facing the Greeks as they face it alone.

British troops stand on guard in Greece. Their presence, as well as route to Greek waters for a "courtesy visit" there now at the main centre of contention of the Great Powers.

Already Greece has been for several days in the midst of the brawling at Paris. It has fought bitterly against her Soviet-backed Socialist neighbors, Yugoslavia, in the Paris peace conference, opposing the claims which Greece feels the peace table, battling against the territorial claims of the Soviet Union, and itself arraigned as a menace to international peace by a fellow member of the Soviet bloc, the Ukraine.

Today the United Nations Security Council in New York, the world's peace court, begins a series of discussions that Greece is the storm centre because of that organization's brief and stormy life in the world spotlight in the middle. She will be on the offensive in opposing the admission to the ranks of the United Nations and has taken the unusual step of asking a seat on the council table for that purpose. She will be there, alone, with stout support from Britain, certainly, and probably from the United States, against the Soviet - inspired charges against her government which Soviet Britain is playing in her recovery from the war.

Greece marks another step in Greece's troubled progress: That the ex-King is living in a Fascist cite to decide whether King George II shall return to Athens from his exile in London. The result of that world's pretty much a foregone conclusion. Opponents of the monarchy, chiefly the Communists, the Republicans left, declare in advance that they expect the king to return and the election will be rigged. A monarchist government is in power in Athens; soldiers of monarchist Britain help maintain order.

The post-war conflict between right and left in Greece is more and bitter that there is little chance for a democratic decision to cases to take effect. The king probably will be restored and the right to power, which had left centuries, with Russia and her satellites on the left, the country ravaged and dotted with ruins, the people divided, continuing their bitter feuds.

Both Albania and Bulgaria are demanding slices of Greek territory which, if given up, would mean that the glacier-like advance toward the war water. Greece, moreover, is the only country in southeastern Europe in which the western powers — more particularly Britain — retain a military and political influence.

At this juncture an American fleet is moving toward Greek waters, four days after Dandaryel's plebiscite the big aircraft carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt, a cruiser and three destroyers enter Salonika. It can be hoped, however, that this is just coincidental, a courtesy visit in the course of a voyage of training and good will, as the official announcements have it. But Moscow will not believe that in such a coincidence, nor will many others.

The visit will be taken as further evidence of American determination to prevent the Soviet power from engulfing the Middle East. It would be another flatly given official expression in Washington that not to Moscow opposing Russian domination of the Dardanelles. The United States has assumed a new role in world affairs and although she hopes her purposes may be achieved by the medium of the United Nations she will use other tactics as well.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Shortage of Vitamin A

I was born with relatively dry skin, have been troubled with a kind of acne for a number of years, and have had slight blindness to a marked degree. Shortly after I began taking 100,000 to 150,000 units of natural Vitamin A daily I experienced quite an improvement, have continued taking 50,000 units daily for three months now, and all my troubles are gone.

(Mrs. J. T.)

Answer—Dry skin, night blindness (which means difficulty in seeing in a dimly lighted place or against the glare of traffic light) and small pustules around the hair follicles, in many cases just like skin (keratin) and appearance of "fishskin" or alligator skin, are all signs of vitamin A deficiency or roughness upon outer surface of legs and arms. These are characteristics of vitamin A deficiency. Therapeutic test: Take 100,000 units of vitamin A (natural (not carotene) daily for a while and then reduce to 50,000 (equivalent vitamin A you should experience distinct improvement in two weeks. Without further improvement, continue taking not less than 25,000 units of A daily for several months. If you fail to obtain improvement after that, well, no harm has been done, anyway.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What is Kentucky bluegrass? Bluegrass, famed the world over as the perfect pasture for thoroughbred horses, is not peculiar to Kentucky, as popularly supposed; it is the same species of grass generally known elsewhere in the United States as "June grass."

"Poa pratensis" is the botanic name of Kentucky bluegrass, and several other species of the genus are also called bluegrass, such as English or Canadian bluegrass, rough-stalked bluegrass and Texas bluegrass.

"Bluegrass" and "June grass" were suggested by the fact that the smooth, erect stems, which reach a height of from one to three feet, are bluish green in color, and by the blossoms, which attain their highest development in June, are bright green.

The slender, flat and soft leaves are dark green, bright green.

June grass may be native to the temperate parts of the northern hemisphere in both the New and Old World, although some authorities believe that this type of grass was brought to America by early settlers and that its northern variety that flourishes in southern Canada is an offshoot of the same importation.

Bluegrass flourishes best in the United States, particularly where a light gravel or clay soil overlies limestone, in Kentucky, West Virginia and Tennessee, but it is common in Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, West Virginia, the Dakotas, Minnesota and Wisconsin, and there is an area in Missouri that produces more bluegrass than the entire State of Kentucky.

Nevertheless, Kentucky is known as the Bluegrass State, apparently because in the heart of the limestone region, is known as the capital of the bluegrass country.

In 1934 the Legislature declared bluegrass for goldenrod as the State flower and flower of Kentucky.

The Kentucky Derby, famous race run each year at Churchill Downs in Louisville, is called the "Bluegrass Derby" because most of the entrants are cold bred on the bluegrass fields of Kentucky region. It is the chemical content of bluegrass, the limestone soil, not the species of pasture grass, that produces the strong-boned and well-formed race horses, and thoroughbreds pastured on the bluegrass of other limestone regions generally are inferior.

The June grass seeds of the perennial are a common ingredient of lawn mixtures. June grass spreads rapidly, forms a dense sod, keeps weeds out and is not easily injured by foot traffic, although it is not a productive hay grass.

Answers to Readers' Questions About Weddings

H. F.—(1) Yes, after the ceremony in the Rectory it is proper for you to have either a reception or a wedding dinner.

C.T.—(1) From the details you give use (8 p.m. wedding, bride wearing traditional wedding gown, groom, tuxedo, the mother wearing floor-length dresses) I should say evening dress is to be semi-formal, rather than formal or informal. (2) Yes, for a church wedding, the ushers should wear hats and gloves.

S.C.—(1) With a street-length dress, the bride usually wears a corsage, and I suggest that your attendant also wear a corsage. (2) Yes, even when the wedding is such an informal one, the bride's gives her attendant a gift. (3) For this informal wedding, you may not send formal invitations. The invitations may be given orally, by telephone, or by notes. (4) Yes, your father may give you in marriage. (5) Most definitely your attendant does not "have to pay for the wedding" as her gift is paid for by you or your family.

E.P.S.—(1) A girl of your age (15) may have a junior bridesmaid . . . but this arrangement is for your brother's fiancee to decide. (2) If you are invited to be in the wedding party, you have a long gown similar in style to the maid of honor's (or, if there are to be bridesmaids, similar to their gowns); (3) Judging from the few details you give me I should say this is to be a semi-formal wedding.

S.M.—(1) Yes, you may have a flower girl, even though you are having only a matron of honor; and a 7-year-old girl may be a flower girl. (2) If the reception is a large one, the minister and his wife may be invited. But in a small reception, when only the members of the family and a few friends are invited, the minister and his wife will not expect to be invited. (3) I am not enthusiastic about this plan: to have the members of the wedding party to go to dinner and then return to the bride's house for the reception. Why not have the reception directly after the ceremony, as is customary? (4) Yes, under these circumstances it is quite proper for your uncle to give you in marriage. (5) Yes, an invitation should be sent to the bridegroom's parents.

D. W.—You are right. It is not the responsibility of the maid of honor to buy the bride's lingerie; she may, if she wishes, give the bride-to-be an item of lingerie for a gift, but this is only if she wishes to. And definitely it is not the best man's responsibility to buy the wedding ring.

H. F.—(1) Yes, even though you are positive that your orders from abroad's parents will not be able to come to your wedding, they must be sent some kind of formal invitation. If, as I judge, you are not sending formal invitations, both you and your mother (your mother, as hostess) should write notes of invitation to them. (2) Announcements are mailed as soon after the ceremony as possible . . . they should be all ready to be mailed at once.

G.G.—Since, because of ill health, the bridegroom's mother will not be able to come to your wedding, it would be correct (and a gracious gesture) for you to invite one of his sisters (if possible, his oldest sister) to be the mother's representative in the receiving-line.

Efforts Involved in Dyeing

Radio Star Polly Earl uses a blue Rinse on Her Graying Locks

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN a woman makes up her mind that she can't endure the grey threads in her brain blanket, there is no such thing as talking her out of the dyeing project. If white locks make her unhappy, she should not endure them, though frosted halos are fashionable.

But she should know what she is getting into. If she doesn't like the change, it is difficult to go white again.

If a woman has a husband who insists upon remaining disgustingly young in appearance, and she has turned grey prematurely, she may be mistaken for his mother. That has happened to many wives. They do not regard the matter as a joke. They seek relief at the beauty shop.

See the Expert

All right. Let 'em. It's their heads, and it is their hearts that are troubled. But let them be sure that they are placing their mops in the right hands. There are experts who seem to work miracles.

An operator must have a knowledge of the effect of the chemicals he uses, be able to visualize the most flattering shade, understand timing.

Hair dyeing is the most ticklish job done in beauty shops. Other treatments — permanents, shampoos, scalp massage, facials, manicures are routine work. Dyeing is something else again.

Every six weeks or every two weeks, the roots must be given a touch up. Nature doesn't help matters, keeps pushing out the white shafts.

No application of the coloring medium, however, is the same from one; only the new growth must be treated. That requires skill.

One must expect to spend considerable time and money. This investment is not regretted if the shade is becoming, doesn't carry the dull, solid dye look.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Subduing the Oily Complexion

On many feminine faces it is evident that the nose is making an endeavor to outshine the other features. Eyes should sparkle with animation, lips should be sweetly moist, but a respectable, well-behaved nose is supposed to wear a dull finish, unobtrusive. The good-looks grief about which most of the moist is the beaming proboscis. It is the support of cosmetic chemists; it wears out millions of powder puffs every year.

The larded skin is the result of sebaceous glands that are inclined to work overtime. These glands are there for a purpose; we'd have a tough time hanging onto our hides if nature had not provided us with these glands. They are nature's manufacturer's of cream, created for the purpose of lubricating the dermis and cost and preventing it from fluffing off in tiny flakes.

They are especially busy during the teen years due, possibly, to glandular changes and the fact that most youngsters partake too generously of starch and don't eat enough fruit and vegetables to supply vitamins and mineral salts. Too free an intake of chocolate excites these oil geysers, with the result that exudations bank up the skin-like mucous, edit atmospheric dust and form blackheads that often develop into pimples.

When treating an oily skin observe these points: Be really loath to stimulate the functions of the skin. A diet that is fairly free of sweets and fats, plenty of water taken each day.

Be fussy about the soap you use, if you are among the afflicted ones. Some soaps are so highly rinsed away. If sudsy deposits remain on the skin they tend to increase the shining state. Flush up a thick lather, use it freely. Rinse with warm water, then with cold. Dry the face with gentle taps of the towel. Harsh treatment is not desirable, especially if blackheads and pimples are present. Lave with a soda solution (one teaspoonful of baking soda dissolved in a cup of water. Let it dry on.

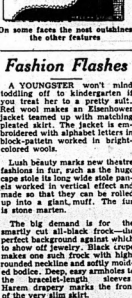
Make this treatment a nightly practice. In the morning use cold water; dry and gently massage.

Creamy cosmetics should be used sparingly; they seem to increase the flow of oil. Never leave them on overnight. If the skin is rough, use a little cream after the cold water rinsing in the morning, removing it in half an hour or so.

Powders come in varying consistencies. Some are heavier than others. These are not for you. When applying powder, fluff it on lightly; never rub it in with the pad. The surplus can be removed with a powder brush made for the purpose.

THINK HE SHOULD KNOW BETTER

Windsor, Aug. 28 (CP)—A local truck driver broke a "no rides" company rule recently when he found two old ladies shivering in the rain at a bus stop. They alighted at their home without thanking the driver who reported the matter to his office later to find a complaint had been made as a result of the incident. The complainants: the two old ladies who thought the driver was breaking regulations.



On some faces the nose outshines the other features

Fashion Flashes

A YOUNGSTER won't mind toddling off to kindergarten if you treat her to a pretty suit. Red wool makes an Eisenhower jacket teamed up with matching pleated skirt. The jacket is embroidered with alphabet letters in block-pattern worked in bright-colored wools.

Lush beauty marks new theatre fashions in fur, such as the huge cape stole its long wide side panels worked in vertical effect and made so that they can be rolled into a giant muff. The fur is stone marten.

The big demand is for the smartly cut all-black frock—the perfect background against which to show off jewelry. Black crepe makes one such frock with high, rounded neckline and softly modified bodice. Deep, easy armholes to the bracelet-length sleeves. Harem drapery marks the front of the very slim skirt.

Contrasts mark the newest coats, many of which go in for tiny collars and big sleeves or slim waists and big fullness. Pale gray woollen makes a smart coat detailed with big, bloused sleeves and deep, tight wristbands. Intricately looped brown leather belt at the slim waist, big patch pockets on hips. Coat has scalloped-leaver hood that drapes back in cowl-collar effect. Skirt is straight back fullness.

Dressed up hats is the fall millinery theme. For late afternoon into important, if informal, evenings, one designer shows a bonnet-shaped hat of satin with black and white algrette-type feather fancies massed across the front back.

A big selection of beautiful scarves is ready for fall. A smart model is of neatly checked black and white or black and white jersey with multi-colored acquins spaced over the scarf in checkerboard fashion.

Q. I heard that we would have to wait for the new ration books if they are not picked up during the distribution period on Sept. 9 to 16. Is this correct?

A. Yes that is correct. Persons failing to apply for Ration Book No. 3 during their day of distribution in their locality will have to wait until after Sept. 29 before their application for the book will be dealt with.

Q. We are a family of four and will receive about 20 lbs. of sugar weekly. The extra sugar coupons are declared valid on Sept. 19th. Will it be that we cannot get at least part of this sugar on Sept. 1 in order to can an extra supply of sugar?

A. There are not enough sugar coupons available in Ration Book 3 to take care of a further supply. Ration book 6 will be valid on Sept. 19 and the new sugar coupons in this book will be used for the purchase of this extra sugar. There are many late fruits which will be ready for use for canning purposes as late as Sept. 30, and in these circumstances we could use your complete supply of sugar coupons to-date but feel you will be able to replace it.

Q. Is it legal for my agent to charge the same price for various items and refuse to wrap my property?

A. The type of wrapping paper is a nothing which appears to do with the price of the article wrapped. At the present time there is a great shortage of both wrapping and string but I do hope we have no doubt the grocer just didn't have any. Consumers are being asked to save paper bags and take them along when they go shopping for this reason.

Q. I have a piece of land about four acres, which I have rented for the last two years at $10 per year. Another party has offered me $25. Am I allowed to sell to the highest bidder?

A. Yes...farm properties are exempt from the rent restriction regulations...you could rent this land at whatever price you like.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her Head and Her Heart Don't Agree

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young girl and I am in love with a boy who is a year younger than I am. Some of my friends say I should forget him. My head says I should become, although we go out, it is never serious.

He has never said he liked me, and yet sometimes he acts if he does. And then again sometimes he acts as if he actually hates me.

We do not go out often, as I go out with others. But I can't forget him. This has been going on almost a year, and I am at a loss as to what I should do. Can you help me?

M. G.

This is a case where I think it would be a very good idea indeed to do what you head says you should. Why waste time over a boy as indifferent as this one seems to be? If he likes you, and was anxious to be with you, he wouldn't have to be in any doubt about it. And if he does not show any eagerness to be with you, you surely don't want him to think you're pining away for him, do you? Be sensible and smart, you know—and certainly don't let him get a man interested in you—to wear your heart on your sleeve.

As for not being able to forget him, that's silly. You can if you will. And if you keep on going out with others—all the others you like—and young fellows, also in spite of yourself after a while.

Is 14 Too Young to go Out With Boys?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Do you think a girl 14 years old is too young to go to the theatre with boys? I have asked her if I cannot go because she thinks I am too young, but she won't let me go to parties or picnics.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Armstrong have returned to the city after a holiday in Rochester, Syracuse, Niagara Falls, and other points.

WEDDINGS

MACK—TURCK

A wedding of interest to many Belleville readers appeared in a recent edition of the Port Hope Guide. The groom attended public ile and high schools in Belleville and Point Anne.

At three-thirty p.m., on August 21, at United Church, Port Hope, Mary Margaret Turck, daughter of Mrs. Turck and the late H. V. Turck, became the wife of Dr. Raymond Mack, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Mack, Port Hope. The Rev. J. W. Gordon performed the ceremony.

The church was decorated in pink and white. At the front of the church large bouquets of pink and white gladioli were placed in front of banked cedars. At the head of each pew were a few gladioli held together by a large white satin bow. Mr. A. H. N. Scott-Grove played the organ. Mrs. Dorothy Stanley Windrim sang "At Dawning" as a prelude and "My World" during the signing of the register.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Raymond Turck. She wore a white satin gown with had a sweetheart neckline, tight bodice, long sleeves with Chantilly lace ruffles, and a bouffant skirt with fullness at the back. Her veil was of white net appliqued with Chantilly lace. The headdress was Dutch-cap style, the wings also made of Chantilly lace. She carried a bouquet of red roses and stephanotis.

The matron of honor, Mrs. McKinley Rankin, of Madoc, had on a full skirted yellow silk jersey dress and a yellow straw picture hat adorned with wide yellow velvet streamers. Miss Phyllis Dayman and Nursing Sister Elizabeth MacLean, the bridesmaids wore similar dresses. Miss Dayman's was blue and Miss MacLean's pink. Their hats were white straw trimmed with white streamers. They all carried arm sprays of white gladioli.

AUGUST DAYS

In the quiet dawn of an August day
When silence enfolds the morning grey,
When shadowy ile on the sand-strewn strand,
And silvery ile damp on the meadow land,
Then in the hush of the waking
Silently waiting the day's re-
A spirit comes the heart to
And the presence of God seems very near.

Then over the sunlit harvest
Where August her golden
Is heard the harvester's lusty
As he drives his sturdy team along,
And the binder's hum seems a song of praise
To God, for the wealth of harvest days—
For He alone sends sun and
That the earth may bud and bloom again.

O August days! with your wealth of gold,
Your fruit and flowers and gifts untold,
Your quiet days and your moonlit nights,
And nostrils with old and rare delight—

Oh! soon, too soon, you are drifting
I check a tear and a rising
Your magic power o'er my heart holds sway.
For I was born on an August day.

AFTERNOON TEA AT CONSECON LAKE

A very pretty outdoor tea was spent on, Wednesday afternoon, when Mrs. Harold Ostrom, Consecon, entained the members of Hillier Guild at her "Tree-Tops" cottage at Consecon Lake. The guests were received by the hostess and Mrs. Ostrom, the Guild president, Mrs. C. Ostrom. On the spacious verandah overlooking the lake, a happy afternoon was enjoyed.

Rev. E. N. Grant opened a brief address with a humorous reading after which he explained how the completion of Hillier Church had been delayed by the lack of material. Poems were read by Mrs. H. B. Anderson the first being "A Carol of Consecon Lake" whose waters that quiet afternoon were in happy mood. A contest put on by Mrs. Ross King and Mrs. Hickey, who received a dainty prize. A delicious hour with refreshments followed. Among those present were the family relatives of the hostess from New York City and Miss McKee of Toronto. This pleasant occasion at "Tree-Tops" will remain a pleasant memory.

The Ivanhoe W.M.S. held their August meeting on Tuesday afternoon in the church. Mrs. Mac-Mullen gave a reading on the "Keyword Give", and Mrs. Jones spoke a few words as a visiting lady from Stirling, W.M.S.

Mrs. M. Reid, Group Leader No. 4, conducted the remaining part of the meeting. Mrs. MacMullen led in prayer. Joyce Reid sang a fine solo. Readings were given by Mrs. Reid, Mrs. H. MacMullen and Mrs. S. Kilpatrick. The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

The Experts Say

By HELEN BANNERMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, — (CP) — Bringing home the bacon used to mean providing well for one's family and it still does—literally.

With the desire to send the major part of Canada's bacon supply overseas the amount of bacon brought into the average home is small and considered a treat. Perhaps the most plentiful usually bought is quickly used, but even one strip of bacon wasted is a real loss.

Many homemakers do not know how to keep the rasher because of the idea that country cured bacon is best in a well-aired place but not necessarily a cold one. The self-cured type of bacon will keep under those conditions but the mild - cured which is generally sold is more like fresh meat and should be stored in the same way—loosely covered and cold.

To extend the bacon flavor, the home economists of the Agriculture Department Consumer Section recommend the following recipe:

Bacon Cakes: Take six medium potatoes, six strips of bacon, two tablespoons of chopped parsley, two tablespoons of chopped onions and salt and pepped to taste.

Cook and mash the potatoes. Cut the bacon in small pieces and cook in a frying pan until crisp and brown. Remove from the pan and mix thoroughly mashed potatoes and seasonings. Shape into cakes and saute in bacon fat. This makes six servings.

We will have more sugar this year and that means we can have a few more cakes and cookies. This recipe for Sweetheart Cookies, which takes only a half cup for three dozen cookies, comes from the Consumer section:

1-2 cup milk flavored fat, 1-2 cup of sugar; 1-2 teaspoon of salt; ½ teaspoon vanilla; one egg; 1 1-2 cups sifted cake flour or 1 2-3 c6p of pastry flour; one teaspoon baking powder; three tablespoons of milk and two tablespoons of cocoa.

Cream the sugar, salt and vanilla. Add egg and beat well. Mix and sift flour and baking powder. Add alternately with milk to creamed mixture and blend thoroughly. Divide dough in half and work cocoa into one portion. Roll both pieces of dough to 1-8th inch thickness. Cut with cookie cutters into desired shape. Cut centres from cookies with differently shaped cutters and put the cocoa-ed centres into the white cookies. Roll lightly with rolling pin to seal the centres in place. Bake on greased cookie sheets in a moderate oven, 350 degrees fahrenheit, for 10 minutes. The recipe yields three dozen two-inch cookies.

Saskatchewan Roughriders Of Regina Aiming For Title

By END NEMY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
Regina, Aug. 26—(CP)—Earlier this year, Regina Roughriders changed their name to Saskatchewan Roughriders — but they did not stop there. They are aiming high, at the western championship this year and the Dominion championship in perhaps 2 or four years.

The club team has not taken full advantage of the five-man import allowed from the United States but with three American stars, two from eastern Canada, a number of former Roughrider players and some promising newcomers, they feel they have at least a 50-50 chance of taking the western crown this year.

A member of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers when they won the Dominion title in '53, coach Ken Preston has also been active with the Queen's University squad and Ottawa Roughriders. He coached high school teams in Regina and Winnipeg and an army team in Kingston.

His assistant, Bob Walker, a former R.C.A.F. officer, coached the Regina Navy team in 1943 and knew a good deal of grid action himself with Roughriders in the 30s.

Preston says that although his backfield may be light, it is fast and the team will concentrate on fast breaking and running plays.

The starting lineup is, as yet, undecided, but it's thought likely that Emil Andj, Lindsay Holt, Billy Glasser and Brown will be first-string half-backs and Pop Popkowski, George Cullen, Allie Sakell and Roy Wright, secondstring. Wayne Riders start the schedule against Calgary August 31.

A 26-year-old import from Eugene,Ore., Johnny Showalter, who played quarterback and Don King of Regina, centre. Tentative linemen are Wayne Pyne, Tony Springstein and Gord Perry, all former Roughriders, and Andy Nagy, a husky 240-pounder from Dayton, Ohio.

Taylor Field, home field, Park de Young, has been rebuilt to afford more playing space, the bleachers are being expanded to accommodate 3,000 fans and the people of Saskatchewan now are looking forward to another day like the one in 1936 when Roughriders brought home the western crown.

BATA WINS FIRST PLAYOFF GAME FROM FLIERS 1-0

Contest Strictly Hurlers' Duel With Smith Having Slight Edge

In one of the best games of baseball seen in the Bay of Quinte district this season, "Smoky" Smith's Bata nine copped the first game of their Intermediate "A" playdown series with the R.C.A.F. on the home diamond Tuesday evening, as they eked out a close decision to win over the Air Force boys 1-0.

The second game of the best of three series will be played on the Alemite diamond next Wednesday when a win for the Bata nine will send them on into the provincial playdowns.

It was strictly a hurlers' duel at Batawa with "Smoky" Smith for the homesters and Gibb for the Flyers having to accord to the defeat by reason of their error by the part of one of his teammates. Over the nine inning route Smith was nicked for eight safeties, but was afforded errorless support, while Gibb held the opposition to only six safeties and saw his teammates kick through with two double plays. Neither pitcher issued a base on balls.

The only run of the game came in the third inning when with the bases loaded, Gibb suffered great third on Bridgeman's high throw to the plate. Bridgeman was ten of the opposition, while Gibb got away to the fine pickoff route "Moose" Matthews for the RCAF got the only extra base clout of the game, a double and a single, while Peacock for the winners was the only other pitcher to get more than one safety, getting two for Bata.

Excavators Seek Clues to Roman Life Under Bomb Ruins of London

By SHAUN McQUILLAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Aug. 28. (CP)—Watched by idlers, enthusiasts, sidewalk critics and inquisitive passers-by, excavators are searching for clues to the ancient history of Roman London under the bomb-damaged ruins of the present-day city.

Eighteen feet beneath the rubble that bombs made just off Cutler Lane, Cheapside, there recently were discovered remains of poor-class tenements, probably belonging to an age when London was thought to be a place of proud Roman villas.

As a result much of the Society of Antiquaries, the Haverfield Trust, the London and Guildhall museums and the British Council of Archaeology are scurrying a few hundred yards of London life about 100 A.D.

Through lanes of mud, revealing antiquities of Tudor, Mediaeval, Norman, Saxon and Roman eras, diggers probe at first the ashes of the blitz, they those of the great fire of 1666, and finally ashes of two other great fires—the first when Boadicea sacked the city in A.D. 61; the second in 120-130.

Latest excavations are in Southwark, south of the City, where Miss M. M. Kenyon, secretary of the British Council of Archaeology, is supervising a delegation of American University students under the walls of a public building.

"These excavations may give us clues to the Roman roads we know exist," said Miss Kenyon.

Working within 30 yards of a busy London main-road, the student-diggers scrape gingerly round the remains of Roman villas with trowels, sifting earth for fragments of pottery, bone and household implements. Jagged stones—or so they seem to bystanders—are eagerly selected and cleaned for Miss Kenyon's inspection.

Vivid examples of daily life are preserved in the blackened remnants. Footprints indented on a roof tile when it was yet wet reveal a wild cat-and-dog chase across a villa roof.

Light is cast on battle-ground where warriors fought 1,800 years ago, leaving a evidence broken spears, battle-axes and flint arrow heads. The ruins of Roman ladies' toilet sets, including nail-cleaners, also have been found.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

(By STUART UNDERHILL—Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, —(CP)— A 13-year old English schoolboy is being hailed by cricket experts as the "boy wonder" of the century, certain to be a star of the game within ten years and probably a Test player before he is 18.

He is Colin Cowdrey of Tonbridge, Kent, a chubby-cheeked, confident lad who learned the rudiments of cricket in India and who is the youngest player ever seen at Lord's, where he made a total of 19 runs for a school match and took eight wickets for 116.

Colin was born at Bangalore, India, where an old Indian named Krishman backed a practice pitch out of the undergrowth and was his first coach. His father, A. E. Cowdrey, an executive engineer, also encouraged the lad.

W. E. Astill, an England Test player and coach at Tonbridge School, said of Colin: "He is the key to a professional cricketer I have seen. It's uncanny. He bowls leg-breaks and googlies like Tich Freeman and he has likes Jack Hobbs. He has a batsman's shoulders and a bowler's hands.

M. Marcel Boussac, leading French race-horse owner, is expected to make clean sweep of the spring-summer British racing trophies this year.

He won Ascot Gold Cup with his Crepello II, the Coronation Cup at Epsom with Ardan and the Goodwood Cup with Marsyas II. The latter is being touted as likely winner of the Doncaster Cup and Jockey Club Cup.

"Marsyas II just went away again," said Jockey Douglas Smith, who brought the King's horse, Kingstone, home three lengths behind the French winner of the Goodwood Cup.

Oshawa Robsons Gain Semi-Finals Over the Petes

Oshawa, Aug. 28 —(Special)— Robson Leather Tannery advanced to the Eastern Ontario zone finals after the winners of the Kingston-Belleville series in the OAHA Intermediate "A" series here last night when they defeated Peterborough Petes, 7-1, to sweep the series two straight. Jack McConkey, on the mound for the victors, was once again too good for the visiting De Lavals, who scored the first run and never came close after that. POINTERS DEFEAT KINGSTON TO EVEN SERIES

Win in Kingston by 5-4; Third Game to be Played in Napanee Thursday

Phil Loft's Point Anne Intermediate "B" softballers came back with a vengeance in Kingston last night and defeated the Kingston Heights squad 5-4 to even the second round series. The third and deciding game will be played in Napanee on Thursday night.

Stan Luffman was sent to the mound for the Pointers and came through with a sterling effort restricting the Kingston hitters to six hits two of them home runs by McGregor and Brown.

Ruthowski on the hill for the losers was nicked for ten safeties five of them coming in the second when the Pointers pounced on his delivery to score four markers, but he settled down and held the winners to five hits and one run.

Art Genereaux who paced the winners attack with three hits for four was taken from the game with pulled leg muscles in the seventh and was replaced by Murney Green Jr.

The Loft crew scored four in the second and another in the fifth. Kingston came back with a brace in the fourth and singles in the fifth and sixth. Luffman handcuffed them in the last three innings to come through with a sparkling victory. The lineup:

Point Anne: Genereaux, ct; Loft, rf; Marsele, lf; Sero, ss; Horswood, 2b; Murney Green Sr. c; Bennett, 1b; Whitehead, 3b; Luffman, p; Murney Green Jr. cf. Kingston: Udall, ss; Early, 2b; Garrison, ct; Ruthowski, p; Brown, 3b; Ferguson, rf; McGregor, lf; Selby, rf; Ruthowski p.

Umpires: Scott, Point Anne, plate; Frawley, Kingston, bases.

NAVAL CUSTOMS AND TRADITIONS No. 4

NIGHT ROUNDS: Although the great Nelson officially died at the battle of Trafalgar, many reasons of today's Navy smack Jack Tar that Nelson's spirit lives on. "Night Rounds" are still being made with a huge brass candle lantern consisting a single lonesome candle, for practical purposes. A modern electric torch is also carried — but the Navy continues to cherish the glow of tradition which radiates from this 18th-Century lantern!

Failure of Cards to Win Home Series From Dodgers Assures Neck-and-Neck Race to Wire

From Here in the Schedule Favors Men of Leo Durocher

By JACK HAND

(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Failure of St. Louis Cardinals to capture their final home series from Brooklyn has assured National League fans of a dog-eat-dog pennant scrap down to the final wire with the schedule favoring the Dodgers.

When Manager Leo Durocher took the Brooks on their last tour of the west he said he would be satisfied if his club could split even on the road. So far, the relentless Dodgers have won five of nine games, and, although they have lost their 1 1-2-game lead, they still are tied for first place.

Once back at Ebbets Field, the Brooks will have a tremendous advantage for there they have won 42 and lost 13. While they are playing 20 of their last 36 tilts in friendly territory, the Cardinals must play 18 of their 23 on the road.

Eddie Dyer's Red Birds had a chance to put the crusher on the Invaders yesterday as a victory would have put them two full games ahead. Instead the Brooks rocked Howie Pollet's pitches, Ted Wilks, Fred Schmidt and Red Barrett for 10 hits and a 7-6 victory. Kirby Higbe was the winner.

Chicago warmed up for a visit from their old Dodger sparring mates by squeezing past New York 2-1. Bob Chipman, lifted for a pinch hitter received credit for the victory over Johnny Gee.

Boston fortified its fifth place ambitions by walloping Pittsburgh 9-1, as rookie Warren Spahn gave his seventh victory.

Detroit finished its season's business at the Yankee Stadium by edging out New York 7-4 in 10 innings, thus slicing the Yanks' second-place margin in the American League to three games.

JOHNNY GRECO FAVORED TO WIN OVER CASTILLOUX

Canadian Welterweight Title at Stake in Bout at Montreal

By STEWART NEBBS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Aug. 28—(CP)—The stage was set today for tonight's battle of the ages—the one of the most ballyhooed set-to's in the history of the Canadian ring as Gerald (Sweet Cheese) Castilloux, holder of the Canadian lightweight and welterweight boxing crowns, placed his welter title at stake in a 10-round bout with challenger Johnny Greco.

Outcome of tonight's affair, although Greco will enter the ring reportedly favored to win at odds of 7-5, is in the lap of the gods as cool, calculating Castilloux, a master in the art of boxing, will pit his skill against hard-hitting Greco. Both boys are Montrealers.

Although Montreal fans have been clamoring to get the two home town boys together for a long time and the affair is a natural by itself, another indication that the bout will be big-time if any were needed, is the fact that advance sales at the Forum up until closing time last night amounted to some $38,000 with expectations to be $50,000 gate, which would be the highest in the history of boxing in Canada.

Sporting 10 Pounds

Castilloux expected to weigh in around 134 pounds and sporting his younger challenger some 10 pounds upload his welterweight title five years ago from former champion Lawrence, Maxie Berger.

Both the champion, who gave his age as 30, and the challenger, 22, took their training seriously and putting in three weeks hard work to bring them to fighting pitch.

The fighters were optimistic. Said Castilloux: "Greco has never knocked out a good boxer. So I think his knock-out punch has been overrated. I will box him, make him miss and tire him out."

Frankie Doyle, Greco's trainer, also was confident his charge, "Johnny should flatten him within four rounds. Fighters like Johnny Greco hits harder than any of them and he's as strong as a horse."

Fantastic Offers Made to Football Players Charged

(By The Canadian Press).

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, superintendent of West Point Military Academy, charged yesterday that fantastic offers had been made to army football players to transfer to other colleges, adding that some institutions might be barred from competition with West Point cadets. Gen Taylor denied that To mMcWilliams, ace backfield, had been permitted to resign. The player was reported to have received a financial offer from the Mississippi State to play.

Coach Allyn McKeen of Mississippi State, in turn, demanded that Gen. Taylor retract or prove that the college had offered cash to the gridder to leave the military academy.

John B. Nash and Colin Brown of London, Ont., carded 153 and 159 respectively at Detroit yesterday and thus failed to qualify for the U.S. amateur golf tournament at Springfield, N.J., Sept. 9-14. Leading the Detroit section were Chuck Kocsis and Bob Babbish of the Motor City, both of whom had 36-hole scores of 144.

Club owners of both major leagues yesterday held separate sessions at Chicago to consider contract demands but both meetings were adjourned without a statement on progress. A joint meeting is being held there today.

Sparkle Hanover from Florida turned two fast heats to capture the $2,000 stake for 2:20 trotters in yesterday's grand circuit card at the Hamilton, Ill., fair. Her two times were: 2:03 1-4 and 2:04 1-2.

Jesse Owens, former world champion sprinter, will wear a baseball uniform to compete with George aCse of Cleve and Indians in a $1,000 match race at 100 yards at the Iowaland Baseball Stadium, Sept. 8. Case recently won the century in ten seconds from Gil Coan of Washington Senators.

With a three-under-par 145, Patty Berg, of Minneapolis, won the honors yesterday in the qualifying round of the Women's National open match play at Spokane, Wash. She was seven strokes better than Babe Didrikson Zaharias of Denver.

Boston Bruins will open their home season of the National Hockey League Oct. 20 against Chicago Black Hawks, it was announced last night by President Weston Adams of the Boston Club.

THE NAG'S NAME WAS MORES

A few weeks ago a Winnipeg druggist bet $4.44 on a horse, bought a few new records. They cost him $4.44. The sales slip number was 444. He got a new hat and headed for the race track.

He got there in time for the fourth race, which is Race No. 4 was four years old. Since he hadn't won a race in his life, the druggist felt good. The druggist bet his bank roll on the nag. The name of the horse was Mores.

By the time this column is being read the Kiwanis Junior will be battling the C-Men at B'nai B'rith, in the first game of the second round of O. B. A. Junior "A" competition. The game started at four o'clock and many a tall tale will be told between now and then of you to get over to the Alameda Field and see these smart junior squads in action. Or, if you can't get over, the game will be on station CJBQ and hear the broadcast.

And at the same time down Kingston way, the Ottawa Rowing Club is all set to be jousting with the Kingston Athletics in the second game of the semi-finals of the Athletics' these teams attempted to settle the issue on the Alameda Field and see these smart junior squads in action. Or, if you can't get over, the game will be on station CJBQ and hear the broadcast.

And at the same time down Kingston way, the Ottawa Rowing Club is all set to be jousting with the Kingston Athletics in the second game of the semi-finals of the Athletics' these teams attempted to settle the issue on the Alameda Field and see these smart junior squads in action. Or, if you can't get over, the game will be on station CJBQ and hear the broadcast.

There was another occasion when he needed a hit against the Red Sox and Manager Willis Keeler's all-time record. Heber Newsham was on first in second for Boston and the Yankee Clipper was up. He found this exceedingly troublesome. But he sent a tremendous drive straight and deeply into the outfield in his first turn at bat only to have Tris Speaker run it down. On the next trip an even longer smash was captured by another uncooperative outfielder who made a classic catch. He was Don DiMaggio, Joe's kid brother.

The Jolter wryly thought at the time that this was a great tribute to the integrity of baseball's umpiring staff. Don was nubbing it in, "especially when he was batting only in my house for dinner that same night!" Two hard drives, both seemingly representing par for the course as far as the batsmen's efforts were concerned. With sinking heart he approached the plate again—and hit a home run!

• • •

Perhaps the bad start he made this season is accounted for by the lack of pitching up with him. Perhaps he'll find his stride again in the final two months of the campaign. Everyone who knows DiMaggio well certainly will be rooting hard for him and the left-handed swat. We know him is to read his book. It is a human story about a human guy, not annoyingly over-modest nor irksomely self-glorious. It hit this one right on the nose.

• • •

Before this season is over Jolting Joe will surely be saying exultantly: "Lucky to be a Yankee." The Yanks, this year, are a lucky lot. It's about time it gave up the fight. Joe never will.

Edmonton, Aug. 28—(CP)—You can take it from Calgary's soapbox derby king, Bobby Boon, that being a champion is lots of fun — but it's also lots of hard work.

Bobby, twice winner of the Foothills city's motorless classic and recent victor in the Edmonton event, Alta., Derby has reached the top the hard way. Like all true champions in any sport he did it through constant practice and exacting attention to detail.

Tom (Calgary Albertan) Moore says the Calgary youngster still well under the 15 year age limit for the downhill event, gives his sleek looking Jalopy "more touching up than a glamor girl gives her hair."

The young speed artist told sports writer Moore that "every steering mechanism has to be just so. If it is too wobbly you'll lose a lot of speed."

He also pointed out that "you gotta keep all the bearings clean and properly oiled—and your oil has to be just right too." He said the steering wheel holds the dust too much and "slows you down." Payoff Pitcher

Lorimer (Lethbridge Herald) Fawcett can't land directly in the big sport centres getting all the payoff "plums" simply because ticket receipts are highest there. Hockey playoffs are particularly hot spots.

He points out that when a really hot team manages to get into the playoffs, people who supported the team in any way left sitting at home frantically trying to tune in on the game with their radios.

"Perhaps some day hockey businessmen will get about money long enough to give a little consideration to the fans between who attend games regularly throughout the season and who would naturally like to see their share of playoff and championship games." But when that time comes we will probably have the ice wars and money undoubtedly will grow on trees."

With Orkshire already winning the English County Cricket title, Lancashire and Middlesex are battling attention in their drive for second place. Both won their championship matches Saturday, defeating Surrey by 10 wickets and the Lancs having back Hampshire by 36 runs.

ULSTER UNITED WINS AGAINST FORT WILLIAM

Toronto Team Has Firm Grip on Dominion Soccer Championship

Toronto, Aug. 28—(CP)—The Red Hand of Ulster had a firm grasp towards the Dominion soccer championship today, after Toronto Ulster United defeated Fort William 3-1 last night in the first game of a best-of-three series. Second game is Thursday night.

The opener of the all - Canadian soccer classic at Broadview Field, attended by 4,000 spectators, was a gruelling affair marked by two major accidents.

Ernie Smith, fast lightweight who plays outside right for Fort William, was knocked out in the first minute of play in a collision with Bill Davison, 200-pound Ulster back. He was examined and taken to hospital by ambulance, and it was found he had two fractured ribs.

Frank Novak, goalie for the likeheed team, was the second casualty — in the last minute of the last half. Novak ran out to clear an Ulster shot and collided with his right knee to Jack Whitiok, and was carried off the field.

In between these happenings the second ace in each checking but sparkling game. Art Varley, Redhander forward, scored the first goal for Ulster after 31 minutes of play, on passes from Rudland and Aiken. Nesbitt, aided by Stewart, evened it up for Fort William six minutes after the interval.

Varley got his second goal to put Ulster into a 2-1 lead after nine minutes of the second half, and the final goal came just at the end, with Ulster's Rudland setting the credit.

SYRACUSE CHIEFS IN SECOND PLACE OF INT. LEAGUE

Jim Pendergast Racks Up 17th Victory of Year in Beating Newark

(By The Associated Press)

Syracuse is back in second place in the International League today, thanks to the pitching of Lefty Jim Pendergast, a Canadian farmhand with great potentialities.

The six-foot southpaw from Brooklyn racked up his 17th victory of the season last night as he hurled the Chiefs to an important 4-3 verdict over Newark Bears.

Shortstop Kermit Wahl drove in two Syracuse runs while Hank Sauer's single and Dutch Meir's long fly produced the other scores in the fifth inning. Blas Monaco started the Newark scoring with a homer in the third but Jim Toie couldn't hold the Chiefs.

Baltimore could have taken over second place by winning two but, after blanking Jersey City Giants, 7-0, behind Stan West's three-hit chucking, they dropped the finale 3-2.

Howie Moss, of Baltimore recently purchased by Cleveland Indians of the American League hammered two home runs, for each game, boosting his season total to 36.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

BY SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When Eva Tyme is first she leads her highest card with vigor. But you can use her later deeds to atone for mortis rigor.

An opening lead is not always intended to take that trick. In fact, more often than not, it expects to lose that trick. An opening leader usually hopes to take tricks later.

In good bridge play, the prompt taking of available tricks is not the custom. To the contrary, prompt trick-takers are held in reserve as entries after slow winners are developed.

Thus, the rule is: If you have a short suit with a quick winner and a long suit to develop, lead first from the long suit; save the quick winner for an entry to make good the developed cards.

Against a three spade contract, it is your opening lead from this hand:

♠A K 4
♦7 6 5
♣J 9 6 4 3 2

You have cinch tricks with your spade ace and king. But do not start with one of them as your opening lead. Hold on to them to be used as future entries to your hand.

Instead, lead your four of clubs; fourth best of your long suit. With partner's help, your clubs may develop before your top spades are gone. They will help you take future club tricks.

There is a rule that tells you to prefer a top card lead to a long suit lead from weak broken suits. This modification which advises you to preserve entries until a long suit is developed.

There is a rule that tells you to lead the king from ace and king in order to show you have the ace. But this should be deferred if necessary to preserve enough entries for the future.

My bridge playing uncle, Heras Bosh, his other fetus. He believes in leading an ace to get a look at the dummy. You'd be surprised how many of the Boob family still do that.

The Kibitzer can trust 'em to like the wrong custom.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Aug. 23 —(AP)—In case you aren't aware of it, this is National De-sex Marie McDonald Week.

It is an occupational symptom common to motion picture actors to sire an escape from a tag which rushes them into fame. Lana Turner spent years trying to struggle out of the sweater girl which she was first identified. Ann Sheridan will probably slug you if you mention cheese to her.

Latest to espouse this cause is Marie McDonald. The blond actress has landed a contract with MGM and is currently starring with Gene Kelly in "Life's For the Loving." When I saw her she had this complaint:

"Being called 'The Body' has done nobody, but Betty Grable any harm. I would like to get away from it." ✓

Why anyone would want to get away, from a body like hers, I don't know. But she persisted.

"Actually I am not sexy," she said, almost convincingly. "Boys seldom even whistle at me."

The reason for Marie's drive is obvious — she wants to be an actress. She'd have better luck with her campaign if she wouldn't wear those filmy costumes while being interviewed.

Congratulations are in order for Edward Arnold, who is currently celebrating his 40th year in the strange business of being an actor. On the set of "Dear Ruth" he was telling one of his reasons for success.

"From the start, I refused to portray a butler or do any role in a beard. I was too easy for a guy like me to be typed if I ever wore a beard or played a butler."

It's surprising that Leopold Stokowski doesn't blow his top while conducting at the Hollywood Bowl. The place is on an air traffic lane and planes drown out the music periodically. The other night I heard a low-flying sea gull emit a loud squawk, right in the middle of Rachmaninoff's piano concerto. . . .

BABE PRATT SIGNS

Boston, Aug. 23 (AP)—Manager Art Ross of Boston Bruins today reported he has signed defenseman Babe Pratt and right winger Joe Carveth, scheduled to open deals with Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings, to 1944-47 National Hockey League player contracts during last week's tour of Canadian hockey centres.

Ross said the Bruins would start their pre-season training at Hershey, Pa. Sept. 25 with a group of 30 players and that the remainder of the squad would report there Oct. 1.

NEXT AT THE BELLE — Alan Ladd and Veronica Lake join forces in another film even more exciting than "This Gun for Hire," and "The Glass Key," in which they both appeared. It is a Paramount murder mystery, "The Blue Dahlia," written by Raymond Chandler. William Bendix is co-starred. (Adult entertainment.)

AT THE McCARTHY — Bud Abbott (R) and Lou Costello have the funniest picture of their careers in Universal's "The Time of Their Lives" in which glamorous Marjorie Reynolds headlines a cast of popular screen favorites, coming to the McCarthy for a special midnight show next Sunday midnight at 12.05.

AT THE CAPITOL — There's a love-light shining in Joan Leslie's eyes and it's all for Bob Hutton who is co-starred with her in Warners' new comedy-romance, "Too Young To Know," which opens next at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program "Sunset" Carson in "Bandits of the Badlands."

HOLLAND RIDER WINS

Zualch, Switzerland, Aug. 23—(AP)—Cornelius Peters of Holland today held the international Cycle Union's five kilometre professional pursuit bicycle race championship. Peters was timed in 6:33.4 in winning the event last night. Roger Piet of France finished second with Arne Pedersen of Denmark third and Vito Ortelli of Italy fourth.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Kirby Higbe, Dodgers:Restored Brooklyn to first-place tie with seven-hit job against Cardinals in 7-3 victory.

Phil Masi, Braves: Drove in four runs with triple and single in Boston's 9-1 romp over Pittsburgh.

Bob Sturgeon, Cubs: Collected three hits off Giant pitching, driving in winning run with eight-inning single for 2-1 edge.

Doc Cramer, Tigers: Batted home three Detroit runs, including tie-breaking score in 10th inning of 7-4 victory over Yankees.

Pete Suder, Athletics: Hammered two doubles in Philadelphia's 5-2 verdict over Chicago.

SACO MARINES LOSE CLOSE ONE TO KINGSTON TEAM

D.V.A. Wins First Game of Int. A Softball Playdowns by 4-3 Count

Belleville SACO Marines lost a close decision to the Kingston D.V.A. squad last night and are now one game down in the first round of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association Intermediate "A" playdowns. The game attracted a large crowd of the softball faithful to the Fair Grounds. The score was 4-3.

SACOS with their backs to the wall journey to Kingston on Thursday and will pin their faith on tall Jim Hunter in the second game of the series to be played at the Cricket Field at 6 o'clock.

It was simply a case of SACOS being unable to hit a cow in the ribs with a scoop last night. Marley Halloran, who did the hurling for them pitched a grand game and was deserving of a better fate, but his mates failed to support him with the hickory. At that Halloran had the opportunity to win his own game twice when he came to bat with the bases loaded only to whiff on both occasions.

Five Off Hook

Five hits was the best the SACOS could do off the shoots of Steve Hook, Kingston hurler, who got himself out of more holes than a lovesick woodchuck in Springtime. The tall righthander struck out nine and was exceptionally good in the clutches.

Halloran was touched for 11 hits but the greater part of these clouts were of the bunt variety, the DVA's favorite offensive weapon. He struck out eight and allowed only one walk while Hook issued six free tickets to first base.

The game was a nip-and-tuck affair with SACOS scoring a run in the first and another in the second only to have the veterans tie it up in the third. DVA scored two in the sixth off Firstbrook's double and Mallory's bunt aided by Hook's single in the centre.

Had Several Opportunities

SACOS had several opportunities to tie the score and take the lead after that but the best they could do was one run in the 6th.

Gene Lehpaw was the only SACO batter to get anything with Hook's shoots, clouting a double and a single. Wardman scored a double in the second innings and came in with an unearned run after Hook had thrown two passed balls.

The teams:

Kingston DVA—Baker cf; Savage lf; Beiwa 2b; Armstrong lb; Mallory c; Firsthrook ss; Hanlon rf; Hook p. Total 3b.

SACOS—Barriage lf; Carson 2b; Sword ss; LeBeane c; Reid 1b; Halloran p.

Score by innings:

Kingston	..	011	002	000	—	4	11	2
SACOS	..	110	001	000	—	3	5	3

Umpires: Young, Kingston, plate; Bawden, Belleville, bases.

HASTINGS FAVORED

Brooklyn, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Elmer (Violet) Ray Hastings, Fla., is a 5 to 2 favorite to whip the veteran Lee Savold of Paterson, N.J., tonight in a 10-round heavyweight feature at Ebbets Field.

Promoter Bill Johnston, making a serious bid for recognition, predicts a crowd of 20,000 fans and a gross gate of $55,900 for his big show of the season at the Dodgers' home park.

Ray has knocked out 42 of his last 46 opponents but has been unable to lure some of the "name" heavyweights into the same ring with him. The betting is 2 to 1 that Savold won't go the route.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, Aug. 23. (AP)—It looks strange to see reports from Oslo that the opposition to "Broken Tinsez payments in International athletics was led by a delegate from the United States—a country which has been very casual in its acceptance of "athletic scholarships," tennis "bums" and exorbitant expense accounts.

. . . maybe the amateur leaders are serious, but it looks like a question of whether there will be composed of a country's best athletes or just the ones who can afford to take time off. . . .

One Down

When Mrs. Peggy Derr, wife of a reformed sports writer from Greensboro, N.C., reached the final of the New Jersey public links golf championship the other day, her husband, Johnny, took on the job of caddie to give her the benefit of his advice. . . . Pet took a 6- and 3 trimming from Mrs. Eva Anders and John didn't even collect a tip for his bag-toting effort.

End of the Line

Sayajiro, the yearling for which the Gaewar of Baroda (say that again) paid a record $117,600 won his first start in England a few weeks ago. He's a full brother to the English Derby winner, Dante. . . . Broadway Johnny Cox, the New Orleans fight publicist, says he expects to come up with a "game, honest, young white hope who will punch his way to the heavyweight crown when he meets Joe Louis'. . . . Well, you can't pinch a guy for white-hoping.

CHAPTER 18.

"But you do understand, don't you?" She asked of Bennie in desperation. "You don't think I'm going back on my word . . . ."

"Why, no. You wouldn't do that. Where is the filthy lucre?"

"Right here. . . . I'll get it."

Jacqueline hurried to the wardrobe and commenced burrowing into a hiding place she had contrived. She was glad to escape for a moment. Larry's eyes made her uncomfortable; she was not at all sure she had not hurt him. When she came back to his chair, she had a bulky envelope in her hand. She held it out.

"Here."

Larry accepted it silently. He stared at the envelope for a moment, one of his fingers toying with the stout rubber band that circled it. With an abrupt move, he thrust the package into the side pocket of his coat.

"Thank you," he said. "Was there anything else . . . in particular?"

"No. . . . But we're still friends, aren't we?"

"Sure."

It all had turned out so differently from what she had expected. You would think that Larry was in the habit of making calls and having ten-thousand-dollar gifts returned to him. There was that envelope sticking out of his pocket, ready to be used at once. After all, it was ten thousand dollars. Didn't it occur to him that it was something of a sacrifice for a girl to surrender a sum like that? When it represented all she had to show for a bargain such as she had made? She was free now . . . or almost free. It was the exultation she had expected to feel was strangely lacking.

"I saw Vince a little while later dinner," she reported, for want of something better to say. Larry brightened perceptibly.

"Did you? I saw him a few minutes this afternoon myself. Looks pretty chipper, don't you think?"

"Ever so much better. I suppose you'll be taking him out in the country pretty soon."

"Why, yes. Dr. Kennedy says he can make the trip almost any time. I thought I'd run him up around the first of the week. He seems anxious to go."

"She's anxious."

"I've made all the arrangements. I can give him a comfortable trip up in the car and take his time. Got a few weeks up there should fix him up so that you won't know him."

"I suppose not . . . but I'll miss him."

"Naturally. After spending every evening with him. I still think it would be a good idea for you to go up there with him for a little time. The Browns have plenty of room. I'm likely to be away a good deal of the time. At all the time, if you say the word. The two of you can have everything your own way."

"Thank you, but I must stay here and attend to business."

"I suppose so. You're the busy member of the family. What about running up some Sunday to see Vince after he gets settled? Then you could drive down about him. I'll be glad to drive you up."

"That might be very nice."

"Then it's settled."

Another long silence ensued, to see Larry lounging there so comfortably in that chair, that everything was "settled."

And it wasn't at all. Life merely slipped back where it was or nearly so. Jacqueline Anthony was married, but all there was to show for it was a ridiculous contract and a wedding ring. Both locked away in a safety vault. They were as much about as much as those Furnace stock certificates which kept them company. Gerson, the alluring dream of travel. In the first excitement of the adventure, Jacqueline had allowed herself to associate those bonds with that fenced-for "cross ing." Now, the suggestion of such a thing made her hate herself. Far better to be faced with this new indebtedness than would keep her saving and scrimping for some time to come. But it would be worth it.

Her righteous pride would have suffered had she known what was passing through her husband's mind at the moment. Larry was thinking that he must see Bannie Hicks the first thing in the morning. He would tell him to take charge of the bonds and cash, put them in a trust fund, or something of that sort, for Mrs. Culten. His dark eyes lighted with sudden amusement at the idea.

Jacqueline saw and resented it. Couldn't Larry realize that she had run some risk in asking him to her apartment? For all he knew, Lieutenant Staples might have been there. She suddenly dreaded the idea of Larry's going down on the street.

"I didn't stop to eat dinner tonight," she said impulsively. "Just a sandwich and a glass of milk on my way to the hospital. I think I'll have some coffee. Won't you have some with me?"

"Sure!" Larry sat upright.

Activity in the kitchenette served to ease the tension for Jacqueline, although she could not help contrasting the situation with that others little dinner party. And Larry seemed just as happy now as if nothing had happened to change their relationship.

He remained until nearly midnight, apologizing contritely for the lateness of his departure when he caught up his hat and made ready to go.

"Oh, by the way, Jack . . ." He said that at the door, as if it were something that very nearly had escaped his mind. "Is that sleuthy friend of yours a rather young chap with a dazed look and a bald head?"

"Lieutenant Staples is quite bald."

"I thought so. I really must have a talk with him. I don't think it's the result of his technique. Good night. I'll be seeing you."

True to his suggestion, Larry arranged to take Vince to the country the following Monday morning. It was something of a shock to Jacqueline when she found her patient dressed and sitting in a chair when she called Sunday afternoon.

"I can walk, too," Vince told her proudly. "Went almost all the way down the corridor and back this morning."

"But you will be careful and not overdo it."

"Of course I will. It's going to seem mighty good to be up and around. Doc Kennedy says I ought to be better than I've been for years. I'm glad he thinks so for I've got an awful lot to do."

"It doesn't seem fair," Jacqueline attempted to say it lightly, "I no more than find you, than you're running off again. I believe you're glad to go away and leave me."

"No, I'm not," Vince said it thoughtfully. "It's been nice . . . You're a lot like your mother, Skipper."

"Am I?"

"Yes . . . I never noticed it before, somehow. That's why I'm anxious to get away now. I know I'm going to be made good this time. And then I can start doing things for you . . . things I should have done. In a way it . . . well, it will make me feel like I'm sort of making things up to Madge. . . . I'll speak of it" and busied himself lighting a cigarette.

For a moment, Jacqueline could not trust herself to speak. It was almost the first time she could recall Vince's mentioning her mother. And not then that way. It touched her more than she dared show.

"Of course, you're going to make good, Vince," she said presently. "And, best of all, you're going to get strong and well. I'm quite sure you need dancing and being out in the country away from all the noise and dirt here."

"I wish you would make up your mind to come along," Vince said unexpectedly. "Larry said he could fix it up for you if you would." He turned and called him Larry now.

"I must stay here and take care of my business," she said quietly. "It's none too big as it is."

"I'll be able to pay you for all this pretty quick," Vince encouraged.

"You know I didn't mean that! I had simply meant to make you . . . comfortable." Evidently Vince didn't know that Larry had settled the hospital and doctor's bill. Jacqueline was glad, but she did hope that Vince wouldn't out him-self under any fresh obligations. Larry and he'd bring you up to see me some time. You'll come, won't you?"

"I expect so."

The next morning, Jacqueline felt a peculiar sense of loss. It was difficult to think of Vince anywhere except in his little room at South Side Hospital. Instead, he was off on an excursion . . . he and Larry. She hoped the trip wouldn't hurt him and was glad it was a bright clear day. They could be driving with the roof lifted to let down, enjoying the sun's warmth and the feel of the wind. She could close her eyes and experience it . . . almost.

That day she and Larry drove to Terryville . . . to be married! How long ago! She would be anxious now to learn if Vince made the trip safely. She should have told him to drop her a note. But, of course, he'd know that Larry would report when he came back to the city.

Larry must have decided to stay up at the farm for a few days. It was not until Wednesday afternoon that he came into the office, carrying several letters in his hand.

"a Vince all right?" was her eager question, before Larry had time to seat himself.

"Fine. I hung around part of two days to get him settled. He and Mrs. Brown took to each other like old pals. She'll see that he has everything he needs. You needn't worry. Can you take a few letters?"

"I'm waiting."

The letters finished and read Larry gravely paid his bill and made ready to leave.

"If you're not in a hurry, I'd like to ask you more about Vince."

"Think it's safe?" he asked teasingly.

"I'm sorry. Please go."

"And I'm sorry! Shouldn't have said that Vince is very anxious to see you. Something important, he said. I told him I'd bring you up Sunday, if you could arrange it. Send him word he can expect . . . us"

She nodded assent swiftly.

"I'll go," she said, reaching for a magazine that lay near the typewriter.

"Fine. He'll be very much pleased, I know. I'll pick you up at eight."

For the rest of the week, Jacqueline repented of her promise, but there seemed no way good away to avoid the trip now. After all, Vince had asked for her and it was he who was going to see. She would make that plain to Larry when they started. He was too much in the habit of taking things for granted.

But, as usual, her air of reserve melted when Larry arrived. And she found herself in the car reacting to that exhilarating sense of flying through the air. Nor was it possible for her to refrain from exclaiming over an early discovery.

They were skimming along the highway that led to Terryville, full of memories.

"We were here before!" she exclaimed, not realizing how pointless it must sound.

"So you recognize it!" Larry laughed over his shoulder. "I wish we were going to do it all over again. But we're not going to Terryville this time! I'm added thrilling warning glint in the dark blue eyes. "We turn off before we come to the State line. Very pretty country."

(To Be Continued)

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and Glasses Magee and Puds Simkins and Sid Hunt were talking and arguing about what to do next, and Glasses said, Let's ask Shorty Judge to bring his basket ball out and we'll have a game of pase.

There's Shorty now, looking out of his upstairs window, Puds said.

Which he was, and we all ran over and yelled up to him to bring his basket ball out, and Shorty said, I would if I was allowed out, but I'm not. I was trying something out on my mother's sewing machine and I got it partly out of order and she told me I had to stay in, he said.

Well ask her again, I said, and Shorty said, I asked her about 40 times already, I'm borne asking.

Well then just throw the basket ball out, Puds said, and Shorty said, Nothing doing, that basket ball goes with me or it don't go at one goes. But hay, I tell you what you can try. You can ring the bell and ask my mother if I can come out, and when she mentions the sewing machine you can all claim you got your own mothers sewing machines out of order without having to stay in the house for it, and maybe that'll soften her mind, he said.

Sounding easy to trying anyways, so we rang the bell and Mrs. Judge opened the door and asked for Shorty and Shorty could come out and she said, No he cant, he must definitely can not.

Not mentioning the sewing machine, and Puds said, Well why not, Mrs. Judge, did he do something wrong to the refrigerator?

No he didn't, Mrs. Judge said, and I said, Did he do something wrong to your sewing machine?

The next thing that happened being Mrs. Judge banging the front door shut like somebody suspecting a plot, and we waved good bye up to Shorty and went around to the front door and rang to Mr. Riley the hooken ladder driver.

Mechanical Error In Matric Paper

Toronto, Aug. 28—(CP) — Dr. J. G. Althouse, chief director of education for the Ontario Department of Education, said Tuesday an "unfortunate mechanical error was made in last June's matriculation algebra paper "but full allowance for it was made by the examiners . . ."

The question concerned a calculation of interest and the dates for a half year were given as Jan. 1 and June 1, a five-month period.

Loss of examination time by students who worked conscientiously at the question could not be helped, except by "generous marking" of the whole paper, Dr. Althouse said.

WouldPermit$100 American Funds Being Carried

Ottawa, Aug. 28 — (CP) — The Senate Banking Committee yesterday made several amendments to the Foreign Exchange Control Bill.

The bill, as changed, would allow a person in Canada to have $100 in United States currency in his pocket without it being liable to prosecution. Under the original bill any person found in possession of American currency might turn it over to a chartered bank to become the property of the Foreign Exchange Control Board.

It was shown there is considerable United States currency in Canada, largely as a result of the prosperity in this country of American tourists, and it was felt the provision to turn it in to the bank forthwith was too severe in the case of small amounts.

Acting Finance Minister Abbott expressed the view that the Government would be ready to accept this change.

The committee struck out the clause in the bill that allows Foreign Exchange Control officials to search income tax returns or book information on persons breaking the control regulations.

At present the exchange officials can search income tax returns, and Senator Arthur Hayden (L-Ontario) moved the clause be struck out on the grounds the secrecy of the income tax returns should be maintained.

Both Mr. Abbott and Graham Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada, stated that the clause required the authority to search income tax returns in order to assist the board's officials in preventing persons evading the regulations breaking the control regulations.

The committee passed the amendment over these protests by a vote of 10 to 8.

"Walking Stick" Insects Wanted

Toronto, Aug. 28—(CP)—That funny-looking harmless insect known as the "walking stick" or a "stick-bug" — it's green and usually found on branches or loads of hay — is on the wanted list as Toronto girls everywhere, including the 800,000 Junior Red Cross members across Canada, today were asked to bring 'em back alive and ship them to Dr. W. H. Franks at the Banting Institute, 100 College Street, Toronto, as part of the war on cancer. Dr. Franks is planning the nation-wide call for the bugs yesterday said the reason for research on this particular insect is that it produces in its own system the same conditions that generate cancer. Its growth is controlled by secretions from glandular-like cells and it's the secretions which the doctory want to study.

Woodlands Park last night, "in an attempt to justify the use of a large police force for alleged breaking purposes at Hamilton," he said, "Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell claims he is merely carrying out his duty to enforce the law.

"He talks as though the strikers were a threat to law and order and says not a word about the open, flagrant violations of the law by the Steel Company of Canada . . . He has shown complete indifference to the enforcement of statutes for the protection of workers and of women and girls, and of other laws which are not particularly popular with him and his friends."

City Council by a vote of 11-4 last night rejected a request from the strikers' wives for relief, and that city relief be granted families of all striking workers and miners. Close to 10,000 men are on strike in Hamilton's steel, electrical and rubber plants. Some other plants have threatened sympathetic walk-outs over steel plant developments.

Mayor Sam Lawrence told city council that he had asked for an interview with the Federal Cabinet to seek a last-minute solution of the strike problem here, while Controller Flora-Frances Henderson said that citizens were inconvenienced and businesses were suffering because of the "lawlessness" of the mass unions which stifled public assistance.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, Aug. 28. (CP)—Industrial stocks weakened $2.53, base metals were down .32 and other groups showed little change in the early trading. Volume was 1,000 shares in the first 90,000 for the first three hours.

Trading on the New York Board unsettled the Toronto market but issues in public appearance in the Industrial section for Imperial Oil, Steel of Canada, Canada Cement and Power Corp. Great Lakes Paper Pfd. Asbestos, Dominion Bridge, Steel Co. of Canada and Penmans.

Some of the cheaper golds, especially Donalda, Armistice, Eldona, and Aldermac traded actively at higher prices. Louvicourt gained 13 cents on sizeable turnover. Base issues were firm. Pend Oreille, Sherritt, Smelters and Siscoe Base were higher. Mining Corporation lost 10.

Prices of Oils were in dull trade at small declines for Home and Dalhousie.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Aug. 28 —(AP)—Stocks rallied effectively in today's early market proceedings but then dived to lows for the last year or longer under a heavy selling which depressed many leaders one to more than seven points at one time.

Initial losses were wiped out just before mid-day when heavy offerings again put the list under the selling pressure. There was a subsequent slowdown in trading, with prices once more delayed the recording members report, and activity soon quieted and extreme losses were reduced or cancelled here and there by the close.

Hiram Walker again was a feature among Canadian issues, dropping three points at mid-day. Distillers Seagrams was off 1-4 and Dome Mines and Canadian Pacific each lost as much. McIntyre was unchanged.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Aug. 28. (CP)—Trade this morning on the Livestock Market here continued slow at last week's decline in prices.

Weighty steers brought $11-$12. Good butcher steers and heifers $10-$12.25, but most sold at $10-$11.50. Cows, $9.50-$10, with common at $8. Good bulls sold and others were steady at $5.50-$7.50, good bulls $9.50-$10 with few at $10.50. Light bolognas down to $6. Stockers were $10 for common to $11.50 for choice.

The calf market continued firm at $12-$13 downward, $10 for common and $9 to $10 for grassers.

Hog market was unsettled from yesterday's prices. $21.75 A Grade $21.25 B1, $18.50 sows.

Lambs were steady at week's decline of $1, at $14.50 off car and $13.50 to packers. Spring lambs were $16 top at $8 and culls were down $3.

SHEEP

Sheep sold for $7-$7.50 for good quality with few tops at $8 and culls were down $3.

HOGS

Toronto, Aug. 28 —(CP)— Grade A, B1 and B2 bacon-hog prices were unsettled with no quotations established in Stratford, and $21.50 delivered at Barrie, in markets reporting early today.

National Registration Already on Way To Being Dismantled

Ottawa, Aug. 28 — (CP)—National registration, which proved itself useful in wartime emergency and wedged itself firmly into Canada's life during the six years of existence, already is well on its way to being completely dismantled.

Since it joined other outmoded war restrictions on the scrap pile last Aug. 15, the staff in charge at the records, once numbering about 300, has been cut to half.

Now the 9,250,000 registration cards will be microfilmed and the original records destroyed by more than 30,000 square feet of office space in one of Ottawa's temporary buildings, will be destroyed. The present staff then will be reduced to a custodian staff of about 10.

And that's that. You may find it handy for identification purposes, but you can throw away that National Registration certificates without fear of penalties of recrimination. It's official value is nil.

There are however, officials who mourn its loss. Designed originally as a basis for a total call-up system under the National Resources Mobilization Act and to assist in transfer of labor from non-essential to essential war industries, registration developed many incidental uses.

Hard to find a job?

So valuable did the cards become that numerous concerns are finding it hard to get along without them. The Bell Telephone Company, for example, has adopted a modified system of identification by giving individuals a duplicate of a pocketbook-size punch-card facsimile.

Though the uses to which it had been put was something new to the people of Canada, National registration itself was not. In June, 1918, during a crucial period in the First Great War, a special committee was in operation in motion and with the help of Do-

Farmers Dump Cattle on Market To Beat Ceilings

By WILLIAM FERRIS

Chicago, Aug. 27 (AP)—"Eat it while you can" was the advice of the meat industry today as packers worked at turning the largest cattle run in the United States since 1934 into steaks, ribroasts and other cuts of beef.

Packers predicted freight car shortages, with new Office of Price Administration price ceilings on three stock days scheduled to become effective, the currently jam-packed American livestock markets would resemble the great open spaces.

"Cattle are coming to market which should never be slaughtered," Dan Hanrahan, director of the American Meat Institute said. He added that this winter there would be "a real famine" because producers were tending to market lightweight hogs and cattle which normally would remain on farms for months munching grain.

Majority of the country's largest stock yards handled a total of 193,000 cattle yesterday, including 40,000 at the huge Chicago yards, the largest run for any one day here since Sept. 24, 1923, and the largest one-day total on record for August, in 12 major markets receipts were 21,000 calves, 52,000 sheep and lambs, and 75,000 hogs, including a run of 31,500 at Chicago.

Prices of almost all classes of hogs and cattle dropped sharply under pressure of the bulging receipts. Most steers slumped $1 to $3 under last week's close, and the bulk sold within a range of $18.25 to $25.

Hog prices here slumped to the lowest levels since July 13. The average was $17.50 against $19.75 last Saturday.

FIT TO HANDLE PICK AND SHOVEL

San Diego, Calif., Aug. 28 — (AP) — George White, 53, producer of stage and screen and "scandals" was declared physically fit for county jail road work and it was announced he would start with a pick and shovel. The Toronto-born showman, sentenced to a year for the "hit and run" traffic death of a newly - wed couple July 20, was to be transferred to the camp in the Laguna Mountains.

TOJO SLAPPER IN ASYLUM

Tokyo, Aug. 28 —(AP)— Shumei Okawa, co-defendant with Hideki Tojo and 25 other Japanese leaders in the current international war crimes trials, has been admitted to an insane asylum. Okawa was removed from court during early stages of the trial after he startled spectators — and Tojo — by swatting Tojo's bald pate resoundingly.

Kiwanis Speaker Gives Opinion Of German People

"Food lacks variety and is not well cooked in England," said Colonel Neil Blanchette in speaking of conditions in England and Germany at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club held in the Lions Club in the city. He quoted a number of questions that he is usually asked about conditions over there and in this way gave the members an informative and instructive address. He served with the second Echelons of the Canadian Army, from 1944, being in Germany and Great Britain.

Impact of War

He stated that Britain was definitely short of fats but the people did get enough to eat. They were not hard but do not believe in mass production and are producing precision material in order to conserve and hold a place in the world market. "This will produce a low standard of living for a good many years," said the speaker. With respect to the government he stated the Tories were taking it hard with respect to the Labor government but are giving their best support to bring the country back to pre-war status.

A question often asked the speaker is, "What is the attitude of the German people?". Col. Blanchette answers this by saying the German people had no reaction from the second war but continually talk of the war with Russia and believe they will not get their nationhood back until the war between Russia is fought, with Germany being an ally of either United States or Britain but presumably the latter. He stated there were no Nazis left in Germany because he believed they lined up with that party for expediency and were willing to get out from under as soon as the occupation forces arrived. "The German will always go with the tide," said the speaker.

An illustration was given that showed their attitude. A youth was arrested for stealing a radio and he incriminated immediately six others. "That is a different procedure than would be taken in this country," commented Col. Blanchette.

Continually Thinks of Future

"The Germans is continually thinking of the future," continued the speaker and the "life" question "How are they going to be on food?" he stated that the Russians would be all right but that it would be a long time before conditions were more to send food to these people. He stated that every square inch of arable land was worked and there were few fences. He told of a farm in Russia with off 15 acres of land and saw enough machinery to set the two up in farming. He showed that which cows were used for work purposes and that it was a familiar sight to see a cow and horse hitched together and when milking time came, for the women to go out and milk both the animals then continuing with the manual labor.

Germans Better Dressed

The speaker stated that the German people were better dressed than the British but they were short on shoes and boots. To the question "What are the girls like?" Col. Blanchette believed that the Canadian girls had nothing to worry about in this regard. He claimed they were bred to a standard, not so tall as the British or Canadian girls and the facial expressions were missing. He stated they had broad shoulders and generally blond appearance. Speaking of the V1s and V2s that were sent over Britain, he said, "He not deceived because the British had about all they could take." The V1 was a war of nerves weapon, while the V2 was a destructive weapon and he told of the fear, also horror, it struck in the market place at Smithfield by one bomb.

The speaker was introduced by Cliff Saragaar and Kiwanis appreciation was expressed by Taylor Franklin.

President Mark Vanner was in the chair for the luncheon, Harold Carruthers conducted the community singing and Bill Navin presided at the piano.

Orillia, Aug. 28—(CP)—Shortage of rainfall this summer has resulted in power being cut off between 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. each day to Orillia power consumers. Factories on 24-hour basis are required to operate as usual, all store windows have been darkened and alternate street lights have been extinguished.

Indians Defy Law On Salmon Fishing

Collis Falls, Ore., Aug. 28 — (AP) — Northwest Indians speared and netted salmon from their fishing wooden perches above the swirling rapids of the Columbia River today in defiance of the state's ban on fishing with nets, but there was an 1855 treaty protecting their ancient tribal rights.

Members of the Warm, Yakimas and War Springs Indian Federation Monday night in the "long house" of the Celilo Indians here and cast their vote to resist fish laws of Oregon and Washington.

Earlier their leaders broke out in an attack on two white men, beaten up by younger tribesmen as the pair fished from a rocky perch above the swirling river waters.

Washington State patrol officers had arrested three Yakima Indians on the Washington side of the river shortly before and took them to jail on charges of violating the state law by fishing with nets.

Both Washington and Oregon have banned all commercial fishermen from Aug. 26 until Sept. 10, but allow sportsmen to fish with hook and line. The two states have agreed that the tribes must conform to the law as well as the whites in the conservation program.

Moscow Reports Eight Of "White Guard" Have Pleaded Guilty

London, Aug. 28 — (CP)—The Moscow radio said that eight members of the "White Guard" counter revolution in Petrograd (Leningrad) during the first years of the Soviet Union's violent formation have pleaded guilty" before a military court. The broadcast did not mention any sentence. It was charged, the broadcast said, that the eight "for many years under the leadership of the Japanese, first on the territory of Soviet Russia and then abroad carried out active struggles against the U.S.S.R. with the object of overthrowing the Soviet system and restoring capitalism."

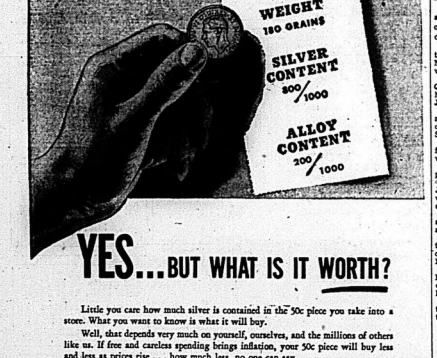
THE CANADIAN DEPARTMENT STORES LIMITED



YES...BUT WHAT IS IT WORTH?

Little you care how much silver is contained in the 50c piece you take into a store. What you want to know is what it will buy.

Well, that depends very much on yourself, ourselves, and the millions of others like us. If free and careless spending brings inflation, your 50c piece will buy less and less as prices rise . . . how much less, no one can say.

You can guard against inflation . . . and, if you are a No. 1 citizen, you will.

How? . . . By conservation in your personal finances . . .

Here are five ways you can fight inflation:

- Hold on to your Victory Bonds
- Buy only those goods which are in fair supply and save your money for the day when goods now in short supply will be readily available
- Avoid black market purchases
- Keep up your insurance
- Build up your savings account

This means wise spending and wise saving.

This is conservation—the first requisite for personal security—the first attribute of good citizenship.

TORONTO MAN STABS WIFE WITH SCREWDRIVER

Attempts Suicide After Attack, Woman Is Able to go Home After Treatment

Toronto, Aug. 29—(CP)—Alex Semchishin, 35, early today stabbed his 32-year-old estranged wife, Malania, with a screwdriver on a West-central street corner, placed the tool against his chest and ran against a wall, police said.

Semchishin, seriously wounded but expected to live, has been charged with wounding. His wife was released from hospital after treatment.

Police said Semchishin met his wife on her way to work. She was stabbed five times before she collapsed, suffering two stab wounds in the back, one on her left leg, one on her left arm and another on her right hand. Hospital attendants said the screwdriver missed the man's heart, but he had a considerable amount of blood.

Semchishin was taken to hospital after he collapsed in an alley. Police were told that while the tool embedded in his chest he staggered some distance.

Police said Semchishin told them he was saying her husband had visited her last night and "I decided to go back together." She had refused.

In Semchishin's pocket was a letter from a domestic relations court ordering him to pay away from his wife, police said.

Canada Sells U.K. Twice as Much As Other Dominions

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

London, Aug. 29. (CP)—Canada's sales to the United Kingdom were twice as much as any other Dominion but boys far less in terms of dollars than Africa or Australia.

Board of Trade figures just issued show British imports from Canada during the first six months of 1946 totalled £96,701,000 ($386,804,000) while British exports to Canada in the same period were £13,547,393.

British imports from South Africa during the same six months were £78,818 while exports were £5,807,672. Imports from Australia in the six months were £24,427,731 and exports £26,549,865. Imports from New Zealand were £64,174,000 and exports £11,791,136.

Outstanding increases in British-July exports were reported for agricultural machinery three times the average 1938 export tonnage; cranes and hoists, three times; locomotives, four times; and marine internal combustion engines, nine times. Exports of cars for July were more than twice the 1938 average and radio sets shipped multiplied five times.

Restrictions are continued on various commodities from which a Canadian market has existed.

Some 3,000 tons of unscoured yarn, 82 per cent of woollen piece goods, 75 per cent of cotton piece and 60 to 65 per cent of cotton piece goods are retained for home use.

Board of Trade spokesmen said British exports in coming months again remain, production in some lines is almost double the pre-war output of prams and push chairs was 171 per cent of 1935 and tobacco 131.

FORMER COACH DIES

Toronto, Aug. 29 —(CP)— Dr. Harry E. Hobbs, 52, a great football player and coach a generation back, died at his home yesterday after an illness that seized him last week while he was making a trip at Lake Nipissing, near North Bay. Dr. Hobbs was quarterback on the University of Toronto team that won the Canadian senior title in 1912, coached the Toronto Balmy Beach club to a Canadian senior title in 1927.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Aug. 29 —(CP)— Synopsis: A large mass of cold air now covers most of the continent except for the Atlantic and Gulf Coast regions. Skies are cloudy and temperatures are much below normal throughout Ontario in this Polar air. Showers and local thunderstorms along the leading edge of this air mass and also along the west slope of the Unified States Rockies.

Endless Horror Featured Bestial Rape of Nanking

Tokyo, Aug. 29 (AP)—Conquering, near-berserk Japanese troops slaughtered 300,000 Chinese in their bestial "rape of Nanking" in 1937, the War Crimes Tribunal was told today in a long series of documents from those who lived through the weeks of horror.

This was a tragedy the like of which never has been known in history," said a Chinese report, reading to the court which is trying former Premier Hideki Tojo and 26 others for war guilt.

Japanese civilian authorities, the report said, were unable to halt the rampaging troops from rape, robbery, looting, murder and arson.

A report by Nelson T. Johnson, American Ambassador to China at the time, said Japanese officials "were horrified when they saw the orgy of drunkenness, murder rape and robbery. ...but failed to make any impression on the callous military commander who deliberately turned loose his men."

One Nanking foheigner J. H. McCallum, testified by affidavit that "there were 1,000 cases of rape a night and 100 after."

His diary notation dated Dec. 19, 1937, read:

"This is a hell on earth. It is a story too horrible to relate. People in the streets by the hundred being carried off every hour of the day and night."

He said he watched one Japanese soldier smother a baby with its mother was being raped.

Chinese Communists Suggest 'National Govt.' for Red Areas

Nanking, Aug. 29 —(AP)— While fresh fighting broke out in the north, Chinese Communists today broached the possibility of setting up their own "National Government" for all Red-held areas of China.

Thus far there have operated only local governments, controlled locally by Communist headquarters at Yenan.

If Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek holds the prospect of a United States of China as much as any other Dominion but buys far less in return, he is not alone in Africa or Australia.

Board of Trade figures just issued show British imports from Canada during the first six months of 1946 totalled £96,701,000 ($386,804,000) while British exports to Canada in the same period were £13,547,393.

'Old Brass Brains' Figures Out Tide For Norway Waters for Two Years

By ARTHUR EDSON
Washington, Aug. 29—(AP)— For every mine sweep, "old brass brains" is at work 100 mathematicians might just as well go sit on their toothpicks.

"Old brass brains," a contraption that does the figuring for the insards of a watch magnified 1,000,000 times, works for the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey and has been for the last 26 years.

Just to give you a hint what "old brass brains" has been up to since 1910, she finished a small job for Norway today.

Norway has asked for help until it could get its own tide-predicting machine built. Hence the "old brass brains" went to work and predicted when, where and how much, each day for the next two years in nine Norwegian ports. It took her 18 days, par for the tide-predicting course.

Cmdr. C. K. Green told a reporter that as many as 100 men must be considered when predicting tides. For instance, one man places the moon exerts about twice as much pull on the tide as the sun, because it's so much farther away, provides the other third.

Then there is wind and everything and another, the Atlantic ocean is about twice as deep-er on the eastern coast during the fall than it is in the spring. "Old brass brains" has to—and does—take that into consideration.

But don't toss Sunday's algebra lesson or the family grocery bill away.

"All she can do is figure tides," Cmdr. Green admitted.

Definitely a gal with a one-track mind.

MEMBERS WANT FISHERMEN OF CAN. PROTECTED

Want Fishing Rights On Both Coasts To Be More Carefully Guarded by Govt.

By DOUGLAS ROW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 29. (CP)—Liberal members of Parliament called on their government yesterday to protect Canadian fishermen on both Atlantic and Pacific Coasts against both actual and potential encroachments of foreign fleets.

They pitched into a discussion of problems of their constituents after Fisheries Minister Bridges had launched study of his estimates with announcement that 100 new inspectors for the department's Field Service should be employed ready for work by May 1; 1947, 65 of them in the Maritimes and 35 in British Columbia.

The House earlier completed consideration of the estimates of the department of Mines and Resources.

Mr. Bridges said he hoped to be able to announce "from Ottawa the early reorganization of his department shortly and said he would like to see it made free from political influence because of inadequate number of suitable officials on the staff.

Called Masterpiece

In a speech H. G. Archibald, (CCF-Skeena) called a "masterpiece," Hansard (the Estimates at the department of Mines and Resources).

Benjamin Burley At 92 Worries About Garden

Benjamin S. Burley, Wellington's "grand old man," who observes his 92nd birthday on Friday at his modest home in the lakeside village, has a worry.

His health is all right. His mind is clear and he is alert in every sense of the word. But he has something bothering him.

And it's his little farm garden needs rain. His favorite vegetables and flowers are suffering from drought, and the popular worried lest they shrivel up and die before much-needed moisture arrives.

All summer he has tended with something like loving care the garden at the rear of his home. Lately, however, he began to feel the strain of the outdoor labor and on the advice of his son, he stopped up.

So on Friday, instead of an open reception as has been the custom of the past few years, Mr. Burley will remain quietly at home with relatives of his family in immediate family there to help celebrate his natal day. But south of the popular elderly gentleman will be the recipient of many congratulations and best of friends throughout Hastings and Prince Edward county.

Good Health

He has enjoyed good health practically all his life. He believes that busy hands are a requisite to good health and only quits works around his house or in the garden.

The late Mr. Burley passed away in 1938 a short time before the anniversary of their golden wedding. Eight children were born to the union, seven of whom are living. They are Mrs. William Ketchabaw, Wellington Square; Mrs. Clayton Church, Toronto; Fred, and Bruce Burley, and city; Harry Burley, Wellington; Earl Burley of the Govs and Ray Burley of Inwood, Manitoba.

In addition to the seven sons and daughters, Mr. Burley has 33 grandchildren. Twelve of these grandsons have followed in the footing the last Great War, eight of whom overseas and two paying the supreme sacrifice. He has 20 great-grandchildren.

"Monty" Gives Off-record Talk To 280 Officers

By JACK BRAYLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 29.—(CP)—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery observed the business end of his 11-day Canadian tour today conferring with service chiefs and giving an important off-record talk to 280 officers after a busy day yesterday in which preparedness for the possibility of war was the keynote of his two speeches.

Receiving an honorary degree of McGill University in Montreal he said that every wealth unit that combined with other factors to win the war was valuable but the foreign to some and he added that the British tommy was getting more than his share of the burden in keeping law and order in occupied countries.

"We won through," he said, "because the men and women of Britain and the Commonwealth of Nations were prepared to stand firm in the cause of liberty . . . in those dark days we drew close together and we realized how dependent we all are on each other . . . we must not forget . . ."

Later, addressing a state banquet here, he advocated a prepardness program that would include a small, well-balanced permanent force backed by part-time reserves, good scientific research, dispersed industrial potential and development of a strong national character.

Of the prospect of another war he said unfortunately it was doubtful if the world had reached that desirable state when there would be no more war. He spoke of new and terrible weapons and inventions and declared that there would be no period of grace preceding any future war.

This capital turned out and cheered him in the most tumultuous reception he has received thus far on his trip which will continue tomorrow at Kingston.

GOES ON TRIAL

Warsaw, Aug. 29 —(AP)— S.S. Commandant Amon Goeth, accused of killing 8,000 Jews in the liquidation of the ghettos of Krakow, Tarnow and Rzeszow, went on trial for his life yesterday before the Supreme National Tribunal at Krakow. Special courts there have sentenced two policemen to die for the slaying of two Jewish women and also condemned the former Gestapo director named Leon Gross, convicted of killing Jews and other war prisoners by injections of benzine.

Obituary

LATE EVERETT R. BRYANT

Wooler — The funeral of Everett Bryant which was held in the United Church on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 24, was the largest ever held in Wooler. The church was filled many being unable to find seats were obliged to stand outside. The service was conducted by Rev. W. E. Simpson of Wooler. Many floral tributes of the deceased, assisted by Rev. F. A. Lawson, Mr. Hughes Shelburne sang "God's Gumpass."

Everett Ivan, was killed in a motor accident on Grafton early Thursday morning was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Bryant and was in his 30th year. He enlisted in the Canadian Active Wooler public and continuation schools. After completing his studies in sports he had been a member of the Wooler hockey and softball teams for years.

In December 1941 Everett enlisted in the armed services and after eighteen months training in the Veranoa mechanical centres he left for overseas. He served for a year on the continent in France, Belgium and Holland following the invasion, and returned to No. 2 troop workshop R.C.E.M.E. He returned to Canada in January 1945 and in May was discharged in February. Soon after getting married Everett resumed his work of driving a truck for a dairy company here in Toronto and it was while on a trip from Trenton to Toronto he met his death.

The sixty floral tributes showed the esteem in which Everett was held. These included a wreath from Mr. and Mrs. S. Halpern, Toronto, his employer and co-workers; a wreath from the Toronto whose father was riding with Everett at the time of the accident. Wreaths were sent by the Trenton Athletic Club and many others. Telegrams and cards were sent by distant friends, including Mrs. T. H. Callahan and Barbara of Toronto.

The burial took place in the family plot in the Stockdale cemetery. The pallbearers were Jack McGill, Clifford Dalmas, Lorne Redcliffe, Herman Allen, Norman Rutchan and Karl Austin.

To the bereaved parents and friends the sympathy of the community is extended.

LATE FREDERICK WHITE

The funeral of the late Frederick White, 460 Benjamin Street, took place from the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street, on Tuesday afternoon with service in the home and at the graveside in Belleville Cemetery being conducted by Rev. Canon Spalding of Christ Church. The funeral was private with only members of the immediate family present.

Bearers were Arthur Ellis, Henry Hatfield, Edward Stewart, Frank Post, Chas. Carter and Clence Thompson.

Seek Survivors Of Lavish Yacht Sunk in Lake

South Haven, Mich., Aug. 29 (AP)—United States Coast Guardsmen patrols searched for survivors of the lavish yacht Verano, reported sunk in Lake Michigan by gales of Lake Michigan late Wednesday night as lifeboat boat rescue reached her.

The 92-foot craft, owned by Maynard Dowell, Park Ridge (Ill.), manufacturer, went down without a trace in 100 feet water three quarters of a mile off shore. A forward search of the vessel early today found no bodies.

Shore watchers saw the Verano in trouble 7½ miles south of here, but already awash, she went down before the Coast Guardsmen who sped to her side were about to send a line aboard.

The Verano sank in 60 feet of water and left tossed on the waves only a life ring, a door, hatch ladder, and coast guardsmen also reported finding "several" cork life jackets.

Owner Dowell said he could not account for the sinking. He said the Verano had a leak "long before" which was to have been repaired at Holland, but that he did not know how this could have been the cause. There was no sign of fire or explosion.

Kind of Letter Jap Deserved

New Orleans, Aug. 29 —(AP) —A Japanese guard who wrote to his former prisoner, ex-Sergeant George J. Fell of Chicago, asking intercession to keep from being executed as a war criminal, at trial will not get the kind of letter he wrote.

Yesterday Fell replied to the guard's letter, addressing it to "Jesse Hamilton, with grace by her attitude toward Albania.

Kingston Burley Wins Prize

Kingston — Miss Jean Burley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Burley, Kingston, has been awarded the Governor-General's medal for proficiency in the Grade 13 examinations. Miss Burley, who is a graduate of Kingston Collegiate Institute, has also been awarded a scholarship in the Faculty of Arts at Queen's University.

Stapleys Bus Service Purchases New Bus For Route

Residents in the northern part of the county making their regular shopping trips to Belleville will be afforded the latest in transportation when the new Reo bus recently purchased by the Stapleys Bus Service goes into operation this weekend between Maynooth and Belleville.

Embodying the most modern developments in bus manufacture the new bus is of all steel construction with air conditioning and seating capacity of 29 persons in addition to a commodious luggage and parcel compartment in the rear. In the Stapleys Eastern bus construction the six cylinder motor is in the rear.

Weighing in the neighborhood of seven tons the new bus was given a trial run over the Belleville-Bancroft route earlier in the week with the new owners being highly enthused over the riding qualities of the new vehicle. The bus has comfortable seats and is equipped with air brakes and the latest in electrical safety equipment.

The new bus was sold by Aseltine and Son, Centre Street, Reo distributors for Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

Offering Keg Nails For Sale Leads To Arrest of Two

In this day of current materials and commodity shortages a person just cannot offhand post for for just about any article in bid demand without arousing the suspicion of the authorities, it appears.

At least that is what two Burlington men found out to their sorrow when Trenton yesterday when they offered a keg of nails for sale. Local advice from Belleville police the two men were apprehended by Sgt. Taylor of the Trenton police force and have been charged with theft charges.

According to local police it is alleged the two Burlington men, Fred Law and Basil Smith, delivered a load of concrete blocks at the local Canada Packers factory and seeing a keg of nails lying unattended, picked them up and took them to Trenton where they were offered for sale. Suspicions of the prospective customer led to the arrest of the two and the nails were brought back to Belleville to stand trial on the theft charge.

NEWSMEN TAKE SELVES APART

American Press Institute Will Study Problems of Profession

New York, Aug. 29 —(CP)— Newspapers will take themselves apart and see what makes them tick, in a new venture which gets underway here Sept. 30 — the American Press Institute.

Working newspapermen will thresh out their problems, exchange ideas, and try to arrive at conclusions helpful to the profession as a whole.

Thirty-eight United States publishers have put more than $160,000 to ensure continuance of the Institute for two years.

There will be six seminars, each lasting two to four weeks, with attendance at each limited to 25.

Managing editors and news editors meet Sept. 30-Oct. 18; picture editors Oct. 28-Nov. 8; city editors Dec. 2-20; editorial writers Jan. 20-Feb. 14; reporters of municipal affairs March 10-28; general reporters May 5-23.

Subjects to be studied by managing editors and news editors give an idea of the range:

Newspapers relation to civic planning and the future of the community; newspaper crusades for civic improvement; relation of newspapers to charitable organizations and other groups of a service character; the newspaper and the world of science; coverage of labor news; coverage of news which (directly or indirectly) concerns race or religion; problems in various types of news; readability of news stories; relations of newspapers and wire services; relations of newspapers to charitable services; news versus interpretation; relations of editorial floors and composing room (with emphasis on avoiding overset); news room supervision of copy; standards to be used in hiring employees; newspaper's relation to newspaper libraries; practical methods of avoiding libel; facsimile reproduction; radio as a rival and a competitor.

There's a grim bit for general reporters:

"The Reporter versus the Copy Desk."

Women Barred.

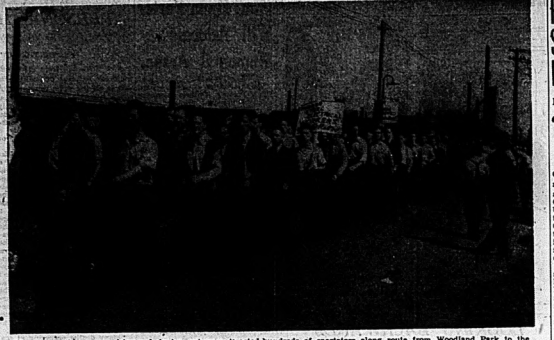
The Institute is an affiliate, for administrative purposes, of the Columbia University School of Journalism, with Floyd Taylor, professor of journalism at Columbia and editorial writer on the New York Herald-Tribune, director, and Claude A. Jagger, on leave from The Associated Press, associate director.

"We are," said Mr. Jagger, "going to try to get an exchange of information and ideas between editors and reporters from all over the country in exactly the same way that physicians exchange information and suggestions in their medical clinics.

"We are purposely trying to bring in conflicting points of view so that we can study the questions from all angles."

There is no academic requirement for admission. Requirements are five years' experience on daily newspapers and nomination by a publisher or other principal executive. Fees are $150 a week covering all charges, including room and meals. There will be no examinations and no academic credits, diplomas or certificates.

Because of lack of housing, only men are being accepted for the present.



Marching with army precision and singing, veterans attracted hundreds of spectators along route from Woodland Park to the main gate of the Steel Co. of Canada plant in Hamilton.

HAPPY GANG START 10TH RADIO YEAR

Most Popular Canadian Daytime Show Started With Cast of Three; Now Number Nine

By EDGAR SIMON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

For almost a decade the Happy Gang has been cavorting for the mid-day edification of a large and faithful audience across Canada and extending into the United States. Beginning as a threesome on Toronto's station CBL in June, 1937, they have extended in numbers and popularity and now enjoy a national following unequalled by any other day-time program.

As the Gang begin their 10th season of Monday-through-Friday half-hour broadcasts on Labor Day, they number nine rollicking musicians, all ready at a moment's notice to double as vocalists or comedians. Also in attendance is announcer Hugh Bartlett, whose daily and sometimes painful task it is to lift the lid off the "poke pot," and who occasionally sings a verse or two along with the boys.

There's nothing sophisticated about the brand of fun the Happy Gang purveys, and would the band's best friends call it a world-beater. But they manage to cram something into their half-hour program that sends virtually every listener away happy. And their clowning keeps their sensitively tuned radio studios audiences close to hysterics.

Individual members of the Gang have built up fanatical fan clubs of their own. Romantic balladeer Eddie Allen and hot clarinetist Cliff McKay are particularly favored, while the Gang's "original," master-of-ceremonies Bert Pearl, organist Kay Stokes and violinist Blain Mathe have long been an institution on the program.

Another "original," producer George Temple, looks after the occasionally troublesome job of getting the program on and off the air on time despite the impromptu antics of his irrepressible troupe.

CJBQ Upsets Pigeons

Official opening of Belleville's Station CJBQ was an occasion for rejoicing for the industry and listeners alike — but it was a headache to district pigeon fanciers.

The Central Racing Club of Toronto started 250 birds on the 100-mile flight from Belleville to Toronto Aug. 11, just as CJBQ were putting the finishing touches on their transmitter. Crossed by the radio waves which interfere with their homing sense, 205 of the pigeons were overdue at their base and search parties were scouring the district to round them up.

Broken pieces of stained glass windows collected overseas by Rev. H. F. Appleyard, former chaplain of the Royal Regiment of Canada have been made into four windows which were unveiled recently at Dr. Appleyard's church in Owen Sound, Ont., in a special ceremony broadcast by station CFOS.

The windows, containing fragments picked up in Britain, France and Belgium, were dedicated to members of the parish who gave their lives in the war.

Vancouver's CKMO has a monthly award for the station employee doing the most outstanding work that really pays off. Vic Fergie, who announces and supervises the station's commercial copy-writing, is round up with an extra week's holiday.

Arranges Parties For Movie Stars

By ENID ZEMY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Regina, Aug. 29 —(CP)— To some people food means just one delicious sandwich, a quick bite. But there are others who find it a fascinating subject, as does Rima Hunt, formerly of Saskatchewan, now of Hollywood.

Miss Hunt, a dignified, graceful woman with twinkling blue eyes, is a sister of Jack Hunt, idole are the best-known names in the world. She can whip up a party for Clark Gable or Greer Garson in about as much time as it would take the average housewife to prepare a good Sunday dinner.

Born at Indian Head, Sask., the daughter of the late Jack and Mrs. C. W. Hunt, she says she has "always been" at the baking bowl since she was seven years old.

"My mother was a marvellous cook and I guess I just followed in her footsteps."

After her early schooling she went to Buffalo, N.Y., where she went into a delicatessen, cafeteria and bakery business. In 1935, she decided to go to California, and she liked it so well she stayed.

During the war she trained men and women at Maither Field, Sacramento, in catering. Later, she acted as purchasing agent for a large hotel in the mountains where she bought "everything from nails to lingo."

She started catering in Hollywood after the war and soon was on many a movie star's list. She says movie people like highly seasoned foods but in general their parties are informal. Lunch is served on the patio, buffet style, and the guests wear slacks.

At one time, Miss Hunt arranged food displays for magazine pictures and also wrote a newspaper column under the name of "Patsy Pantry" but her catering and cook books now keep her fully occupied. She is in the process of selecting 2,000 recipes from her collection of 6,000 to put into a small but practical cookbook.

"I'm trying to make the books as simple and easy as possible," she says. "Just because I've baked 100,000 pies in my day doesn't mean everyone else has."

Her opinion of men as cooks.

"They're fine. They may get a little more on the floor but usually they turn out well."

Story of Sinking Of Lisbon Maru Told at Hong Kong

Hong Kong, Aug. 29 (Reuter) —The story of the sinking of the steamship Lisbon Maru, torpedoed off the China coast Oct. 1, 1942, with loss of more than 840 British and Canadian prisoners of war, was told at a War Crimes court here yesterday.

Nilmori Gen Ichiro, civilian interpreter attached to the Japanese army in Hong Kong, faces eight counts of committing atrocities against prisoners of war.

It was alleged that Gen. Ichiro caused the drowning of the prisoners by ordering them to be battened down in the holds while the vessel was sinking. When the prisoners burst open the hatch covers Gen. Ichiro ordered Japanese soldiers to fire on them.

NOT AN EGG CRACKED

Princeton, W. Va., Aug. 29 — (AP)—A transport plane carrying 13 men and a cargo of 10,000 pounds of eggs from Kalamazoo, Mich., to Jacksonville, Fla., developed engine trouble and made a forced landing in a cornfield near here Tuesday. Not a man was scratched — and not an egg was cracked.

Australia Develops Social Service Plan

By JACK HOLDSWORTH
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Canberra, —(CP)— A new hospital benefits scheme under which the federal government will contribute to the cost of treatment began operation in Australia in July.

The scheme is part of the government's long- range social service plan, and will cost about $20,000,000. Patients in public wards of hospitals receive free hospital treatment whatever their income.

Patients in intermediate and private wards of public hospitals and approved private hospitals have one dollar a day deducted from the cost of treatment.

The money will be granted by the Commonwealth government to the state governments, which will administer the schemes in their own states. Most of it will come from the taxes provided by social service taxation.

An act covering the scheme was passed by federal parliament last September, and each state has since made its own legislation.

The scheme terminates all other hospital plans. In New South Wales, it affects seven zoned hospital benefits associations and 30 individual hospital schemes.

These associations and schemes are to be liquidated, and any funds they hold, which have not been paid out in benefits to contributors, will revert to the hospitals for which they collected. The government feels there is no need to continue the individual schemes because the new plan recoups hospitals for any losses suffered on public ward treatment.

Big Power Supply For New Zealand

Auckland, N. Z. —(CP)—The record low level of Lake Taupo, which feeds the Waikato, main source of electric power in the North Island of New Zealand, has not shaken the faith of the electrical authorities in the huge hydro-electric program proposed along the banks of the river.

The theory that recent eruptions of the nearby volcano, Mount Ruapehu, may have opened fissures in the bed of the lake now is virtually discounted by the authorities.

Electricity Controller F. T. M. Kissel, declared that expert opinion was that the level of Lake Taupo would recover and that the present low level was merely aftermath of the drought last summer.

Present plans provide for 10 huge power houses along the banks of the river, able to deliver more than 1,000,000 horsepower. So far only one is in operation and another almost completed. The same water will thus be used 10 times between Lake Taupo and the sea.

The full scheme will give New Zealand an abundant supply and open the way for a huge industrial development at present handicapped by the limited amount of coal available.

Giving Service

There has been reference in the newspapers as to the need of signs on highways and on country and township roads, so that it would be easy to locate any person. The local Junior Board of Trade has proven that signs are read by tourists for their sign before the Chamber of Commerce sign before the Chamber of Commerce and advising that tourists could receive all information possible there, has made a daily average of seventy-five inquiries. Tourists on long tours such as Americans coming through this part of Canada have to make frequently receive information. So both the Chamber of Commerce and the Junior Board of Trade are serving the visitors and the public in a commendable style of sign. The also proving the advantages of the Junior Board has already brought its reward to the city and district.

Never in history have so many people been on the roads travelling over familiar and unfamiliar highways and roads. The very existence of these roads built especially for motor traffic proves that the movement is a feature of this age. Years ago there were narrow roads, quite unfit for modern traffic and those old roads have yielded and given way to the majestic roads which now thread the country, opening up unimagined vistas of beauty not only to our own people but to our good neighbors to the south.

These happy tourists, bent on sightseeing and meeting their neighbors on this side of the boundary appreciate every little courtesy shown them. Their appreciation brings a harvest both now and in the future because of the pleasure such kindnesses have created and given them through the opportunities for information that will save the visitors time and give them a more thorough knowledge of the territory through which they are travelling.

Canada has attractions of a majestic nature and she desires that her own people and her guests from the United States and other lands may visit them and enjoy them. So any service that adds to the enjoyment of the guest tourists carries out the aims of such highway journeys. Such service as a citizen can give returns in good will and friendly memories of a well-spent travelling public, who tell their friends and spread the good news of beauty of country and hospitality of the people.

Experiment

Britain has in Welwyn Garden City an experiment in the creation of completely new towns with homes, industries and amenities evenly balanced. An institution is being held there, covering products ranging from steel bridges and steel framed structures to almost microscopic springs.

One of the interesting evidences of the exercise of foresight in placing factories that is that the factory zone is situated to the northeast of the town so that the prevailing wind carries away from the residential areas what little smoke is produced and forms a belt of trees on the urban mass which enables the most remote worker to reach his factory in a mass of minutes. The total area now open is 400 acres.

Among the many more novel machine contraptions which emanated from these workshops were the "walkie-talkie" apparatus; Mortimer — which listened electronically for sources of German mortar fire; the guiding mechanism of both the "Queen Swan" — a crewless launch which helped to beat the German E-Boats, and the Rascal, which flung explosive-filled machines against the Nazi West Wall.

The Peasants of Koprivnik

Saying that "we think that the action of the peasants of Koprivnik is more representative of Yugoslavia than was that of Tito's fliers, New York Times reports a story from Bled, Yugoslavia. "There were fresh flowers on the graves (of the American fliers), placed there by peasants and townsfolk. The peasants had made the coffins for the airmen."

That was the tribute reported paid to American airmen who lost their lives when shot down over Yugoslavia in an incident which called for an immediate showdown. The writer of the Times editorial said, of the peasants who had brought flowers to the graves, "In their hearts there must have been only sorrow, not anger, when they saw the plane with the stars on the wings falling under the fire of Yugoslav fighter planes. Obviously they did not feel that their sovereignty had been compromised by the passage of this unarmed transport plane. Only a little over a year ago they had rushed into the streets to cheer— if there were no Germans near — when one of the planes with the markings of the white stars and white bars flew over their village. For they knew that either it was bringing arms and supplies for them or that it was on the way to bomb the common enemy."

The Yugoslavs must accordingly have been bewildered to learn that their planes had sent the U. S. plane down.

The writer then turns to the statement that the opposition has to press in Yugoslavia, a public spokesman and that "no one dares to question what Tito does. There is no internal restraint on him or his ministers, such as exists in a democracy. They were elected last November in an election where the opposition party did not even dare to put up a candidate. The Yugoslavs had the choice of voting for Tito or slavs had the choice of voting for Tito or no one. Even so, 700,000 of the 7,000,000 who went to the polls voted "No."

Linking Schools

A scheme to link English schools in Belgium and to put individual children in the two countries in touch with one another is announced by Britain's Ministry of Education. Its purpose is to improve Anglo-Belgian relations by the exchange of correspondence and by pairing schools of similar interests and background with a view to the interchange of pupils and holiday visits. A similar scheme between France and Britain was started in November last and has created wide interest. Fifteen thousand children in English schools are now corresponding with a similar number of French children and 250 schools in Britain have been directly linked with schools in France.

Thomas Atkins, Esquire

Shade of Terence Mulvaney! Tommy Atkins is likely to become Thomas Atkins, Esq., if that the suggestion put forth by Field Marshal Montgomery for a new British Army are put into effect. The Marshal would have Tommy living not in barracks —unconducive, Kipling tells us, to the cultivation of single men into saints — but in bedrooms where taps would be taboo and where, if he wished, Tommy might read in bed. Not only would Tommy have a bedroom to which to return, but he would not be required to return to it at any set time. "I believe," the Marshal says, "that the trained soldier, when not required for duty, should be free to go where he pleases and return to his quarters when he pleases." The formality of the short-term pass, he thinks, well could be dispensed with. He would make the military mess similar to a good civilian restaurant.

There is no assurance that the conference of British generals, to which the chief of the imperial general staff will submit these startling suggestions, will adopt all of them. But there is a distinct probability that the service of King and Country may shortly include refinements of "which Mulvaney, Ortheris and Learoyd never dreamed.

—New York Sun.

Newspaper Facts

As an indication of the lengths to which publishers were forced to go to have their newspapers appear on time, one Plymouth paper was forced to rush copies to Exeter, 44 miles away, after printing, make the return trip with the finished editions.

"Broken bottles still continue to litter too many of Ontario's bathing beaches, a circumstance which gives the measure of how far we are from being civilized," observes the Hamilton Spectator.

DREAMS

The night comes down with dreams and, Oh,
Sometimes they fearful seem,
But there are times when poor men know
Vast riches in a dream.

A little while they are allowed
All pleasures care denies—
May walk with pompous men and proud,
Though soon to work they rise.

In dreams, poor men may sail the sea
In yachts of gleaming white.
From all that frets them they are free,
That little while at night.

When day too filled with trouble seems,
And man's life harsh and grim,
How good it is that happy dreams
At night may come to him!

Whitehall Notebook

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Aug. 29. (CP)—Herbert Morrison, government leader in the House of Commons, automatically says the pressure of business probably will not have eased when members return after the Summer recess.

This has led to Whitehall gossip that Britain's 640 members of parliament will spend their holiday plotting to make their second year under Labor authority less trying than the first.

Clement Davies, Liberal House leader, said in a speech that both Labor and Conservative colleagues agree with him in private conversation. Members have pride, and a Conservative is unwilling to say publicly he cannot stand the pace set by a Labor Administration. Loyalty to his leadership keeps the Labor man silent in public.

Actually Labor members are working out methods of easing the strain of all-night sittings which have kept hundreds of members in the Parliament buildings several times this year.

The Parliamentary Labor party has a formula that two Labor members out of three should agree to stay on indefinitely after 10 p.m. If there is an all-night sitting. This would ensure the government had a majority if a vote were taken while one-third of the total membership enjoyed some sleep.

All members hope for arrangements to protect them against having to walk home when the House rises after London's theatre and sport services have closed for the night.

Hon. Dana Porter Will Address Municipal Assoc.

Toronto, Aug. 29—(CP)—Hon. Dana Porter, Ontario planning and development minister was scheduled to speak today at the luncheon meeting of the Ontario Municipal Association as the 58th annual convention went into its second day.

Delegates from 303 municipalities divided into rural and urban sections heard addresses given by Reeve F. G. Gardiner of Forest Hill, Toronto and Reeve Ivan Taylor of South Dorchester township, to consider questions and other topics.

Yesterday resolutions were passed favoring greater control by municipal councils over expenditures by local school boards, payment to municipalities for the upkeep of provincial highways within municipal boundaries and an amendment to the Assessment Act to give municipalities a greater share of revenue from mining taxation.

The resolution dealing with education followed the announcement by Hon. George H. Dunbar, municipal affairs minister, that the provincial government had increased its grant for education to municipalities by $1,000,000 to a total of $17,000,000 during 1945 but municipalities still complained of only $1,750,000. The convention unanimously passed a resolution demanding that revenue from the provincial gasoline tax be distributed to the municipalities to pay for maintenance of provincial highways passing through towns and cities. Delegates said the roads were used by non-residents of the municipalities, but the municipalities received none of the benefit when work on the roads earmarked for use on roads.

939 Polio Cases Now in Canada Survey Shows

(By The Canadian Press)

The 1946 incidence of infantile paralysis in Canada moved to a new peak today with 939 cases reported, 538 in Ontario, 301 in Quebec and 100 elsewhere.

Only centre where incidence has been termed "epidemic" is Manitoba region of Winnipeg and Montreal brought the total to 53.

Increasing seriousness of the situation brought decisions from Alberta and Alberta school authorities to postpone opening dates for public schools.

And a new development was the launching by Brigadier-General Command of the Canadian Legion of a "parade of dimes" campaign to build a fund to aid in future epidemics. The Legion hopes to make it a permanent fund.

As Canada moved through the late days of August — considered the worst polio weather of the year — concentration of cases in New York that the United States, suffering similarly, counted polio cases at 19,644 as of Aug. 25.

In Toronto a check of statistics showed more than twice as many boys as girls contracted Poliomyelitis there. Of 538 cases to date researchers lent no significance to these figures. Dr. Fred Routley said only that "generally speaking boys get dirtier than girls, their hands get dirtier and they're more inclined to put things in their mouths."

Provincial totals, with deaths in brackets:

Prince Edward Island, 25 (4); Nova Scotia, 13 (1); New Brunswick, 21 (2); Quebec, 345 (32); Ontario, 168 (9); Manitoba 22 (1); Saskatchewan 9 (0); Alberta 31 (4); British Columbia 4 (0).

NEW RUBBER SOURCE

New Delhi—(CP)—A plant which might prove of considerable importance as a source of rubber in India was recently discovered by Dr. L. B. Kalkat, Director of Botany in Meerut college.

Preliminary experiments have revealed that the plant, which grows wild as a winter weed in Meerut and other parts of India, might yield as much rubber as any other tropical tree known as a source of rubber.

PERSONAL HEALTH By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

PREVENTION OF MOTION SICKNESS

Air sickness, train sickness, motorcar sickness or seasickness — it is all the same thing, so the same motion sickness covers everything — even if it be only a fleeting ride in a motorcar. Then there is the motion sickness caused by a prolonged ride on the merry-go-round, or a knock or a swing.

Almost the cause of motion sickness, I had intended to get off a few facetious remarks to cover my ignorance and proceed immediately to the subject of treatment. But, shucks, a chap by the name of J. F. Montague has me by the horns, he said: "Yet, as a person who knows what it means to be seasick, I really pity the person who has never been seasick, for he has missed one of the great experiences of life." Now I wonder if Montague was simply being facetious about the seasickness, motion sickness doesn't seem so humorous to me. In his chapter on assistance in the Cyclopedia of Medicine and Surgery (Davis, '43) Kirby A. Martin, M.D., takes the line that it may do any fun in it, out of seasickness with this observation:

"Many deaths occur at sea, and when a person is said to have fallen overboard, it is usually suicide . . . The lonely, depleted mortal suffers inner torment . . . exhausted . . . and in fragmental agony, unable to understand or control his disturbed imagination. Nothing has value in his mind save relief, and he cannot be had. Instead of asking for medical assistance, he is moved to seek relief by self-destruction."

Hold on, here, where's my hat. I'm sorry, folks, but I seem to have blundered into the wrong column.

The best preventive against motion sickness — so, let's call it just my best bet, is this:

Begin two days before the journey or voyage and continue for the first day of the trip taking, first thing each morning, one-half bottle of Lea's Magnesium Citrate Effervescent solution of magnesium citrate.) (This liquid is prepared by druggist on order, in 12- Dille Co.)

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Why does salt melt snow? Salt melts snow and ice by physical rather than chemical action.

The freezing point of a solution is always lower than that of its solvent. Water freezes at 32 degrees, the German physicist, was the elementary rule, and degrees of temperature he found that the lowest temperature he could obtain was produced with a mixture of salt and ice.

Salt mixed with snow or ice at a temperature not too far below the freezing point forms a solution with a lower freezing point than water, snow or ice. That is why salt causes snow and ice to melt. If salt is mixed with snow its extremely cold, a little of the change is noticed, because the liquid thickens as fast as more of it is formed. Ice and salt make an excellent mixture for freezing ice cream. The cream is not frozen by taking cold from the ice, as popularly supposed, but rather because its temperature is lowered by the absorption of heat in the melting ice.

It is impossible for ice to melt without absorbing heat and a freezing temperature cannot be obtained inside an ice-cream freezer unless the ice is melting. Salt is added merely to hasten the melting of the ice and to speed up the freezing of the cream by taking heat away from it.

Why does snow melt around trees?

After a heavy snow there is always a ring of bare ground around each tree. This is due to the fact that the trunk of the tree reflects the heat of the sun's rays.

As a rule the temperature of snow-free ground is somewhat higher than the surrounding atmosphere. When the temperature of the air is below freezing the temperature of the ground is considerably warmer than the air four degrees warmer than the air over it. Snow, which is composed of about nine-tenths air and only one-tenth water, is a poor conductor of heat, so snow on unfrozen land — often called the poor man's blanket — protects ground from winter kill by preventing the warmth of the ground from escaping.

TRAVELS LONG DISTANCE TO HURL BRICKS AT WINDOWS

Birmingham, England, Aug. 29 —(Reuters)—Samuel Watts, 63, had to travel a long way to settle a boyhood grudge, it is recently he travelled from Liverpool to Birmingham armed with two bricks. Upon arrival he threw them through the plate glass windows of a clothing store and asked the police to lock him up. Hawkins said the clothing firm 30 years ago sold him a pair of trousers which split.

Huge Quantity Horse Meat Will Be Processed for European Consumption

Washington, Aug. 29 (AP) — After some coaxing, plus a good many dollars from relief funds, United States horse meat processors are shooting for a postwar foreign market. U.N.R.R.A. reported Wednesday.

Six new plants are packing horse meat for human consumption, as U.N.R.R.A. food specialist said, and increasing foreign purchases in this country are building a promising trade. In addition the United Nations will compete with Canada and Mexico.

U.N.R.R.A. will ship between 70,000,000 and 80,000,000 pounds of horse meat abroad this year. It is an important food item in many foreign countries, and most of it will go to Poland, Czechoslovakia and Austria.

To meet its quotas for this year, U.N.R.R.A. is buying horse meat in this country, Canada, Mexico, and New Zealand. The French government is buying from United States packers, and the Belgian government is buying in Canada. Between them, they will purchase about 30,000,000 pounds in addition to what U.N.R.R.A. gets.

Nine Convicts Tunnel Out Of State Prison

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 29 (AP) — A fire at one state prison here and ah exaggerated report of a wholesale escape at another nearby threw law enforcement machinery here into high gear during Tuesday night.

Police were rushed to highways leading from Alabama's Draper prison when the State Highway Patrol reported that 9 convicts had tunnelled their way to freedom.

Later, the report was corrected. It developed that only nine convicts, some of them long-termers, had escaped. Seven were recaptured and the search was continued for the other two today.

The sensational report was spread while the cotton mill at Dilby prison here was still smouldering from a fire which damaged it heavily and which night Warden W. D. Wester said was started by convicts.

The nine white prisoners who tunnelled to freedom at Draper were employees of the cotton mill there, the ditch they made was about 35 feet from a guard tower.

The break was discovered by a guard who was off duty at home about a quarter of a mile from the prison. He noticed the convicts running by his house and sounded the alarm.

Two convicts were recaptured before they had got outside the prison wall. Three more were picked up in the area immediately afterward. Two others were taken a little later.

WAR VEHICLES AUCTIONED

Borden, Hants, England, Aug. 29—(CP Cable)— Ten thousand former Canadian army vehicles went on auction Tuesday on the site of the Canadian Vehicle Depot, inaugurating the largest sale of army war equipment in Britain. Under veteran auctioneer William Smith's direction the vehicles, mostly Chevrolet and Ford trucks, sold like Gloster fighters. In little more than an hour, 160 trucks and ambulances were sold. It took only 30 seconds or so for the bidding to soar from the opening 33 (£47) guineas to the average selling price around 100 to 115 guineas.

Movement Designed To Learn Defence Needs of the North

Edmonton, Aug. 28. (CP)— Somewhere north of here — probably about Dawson Creek, B.C., a highly mobile Canadian army force some 50 strong moved today in an operation designed to learn the defence needs of the Canadian Northwest.

These men, and their problem, composed operation North, a 1,- 800-mile truck trip over the Alaska Highway to Wallahorse in the Yukon and return.

Maj.-Gen. F. R. Worthington, commander of the Dominion's Western Army Command, led the force which departed Edmonton, Tuesday. He minced no words about its import—" a start in getting us thinking in terms of defence of our country."

And word from the Pas, Man., that three high-ranking army and air force officers had been looking into defence installations at Churchill, Man., underlined the attention being paid to the north country.

Gen. Worthington, veteran of more than 30 years' soldiering and long-time advocate of increased armor and mobility for the army, stressed defence in his "jump-off" speech to his men. He pointed particularly to need for defence of the canol oil project at Norman Wells, the Yellowknife mineral field and the radium country of Great Bear Lake.

The former commander of Canada's fourth armored division oversees, with a reputation of being one of Canada's most thorough-going commanders, made clear he though of any attack on Canada in hypothetical terms—"we are not pointing the finger at any one nation."

It was learned the operation was first considered about six to eight weeks ago.

One source said it should not be considered along with the end of the Winter snowmobile operation Muskox, designed to test vehicles under Arctic conditions. Operation North in which Gen. Worthington was given a free hand to do as he liked and to work out details, has as its main purpose a journey through the northland and discussion among members of the force how the terrain could best be used under battle conditions if that were ever necessary.

Mississippi Valley Flyway Closed To Canada Goose Shooting

Chicago, Aug. 29 (AP)—The fish and wild life service of the Department of the Interior said Wednesday declared the case in the entire Mississippi Valley flyway to Canada goose shooting during the 1946 United States hunting season was made to protect the diminishing population of Canada honkers along the flyway.

"The present status of the Mississippi flyway flight of geese is serious and in some respects desperate," said Albert M. Day, wild life service director. "It has gone down steadily in numbers since 1938."

Mr. Day said after-season populations dropped from around 800,000 birds in 1944 to an estimated 55,000 in 1945.

PLATYPUS ODDEST OF AUSTRALIA'S STRANGE ANIMALS

United States Scientist Says Little Egg-Laying Mammal More Interesting Than Atomic Test

By WILLIAM STEWART
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Melbourne, Australia, —(CP)— Oddest of the odd assortment of animals native to Australia is the platypus, little egg-laying, hibernating mammal with a duck's bill, claws and poison spurs on webbed feet, and a fine fur pelt and beaver's tail.

Once called a "water-mole" and later a "duck-bill" the platypus whose real name is Ornithorhynchus was laughed at as a hoax when the first stories of its existence went abroad from Australia about 150 years ago.

Last month, Dr. Karl Compton United States scientist observing the Bikini experiments, visited this country between bomb, examined a captive platypus at Healesville, near Melbourne, and commended it as "More interesting than the atomic test."

Sir Colin Mackenzie Sanctuary at Healesville is one of the few places where the platypus has survived captivity. A few years ago five were shipped to a New York zoo but only one survived the trip. It died in seven weeks after the zoo $1,400 to keep that long.

None lived under human care for any length of time in Australia before 1933 when Robert E. Eadie, a patient naturalist, was able to build a "platypusary" in which about a half-dozen have been kept at different times since. It was only two years ago that Jack and Jill, a captive pair at Healesville, became the parents of a little male who has survived.

It was not known for several years after the discovery of the platypus in New South Wales about 1800 that it was a mammal. No one was able until about 1860 to produce irrefutable evidence of aborigines' tales that it laid eggs—about the size of a pigeon's.

Platypus In Captivity

It took years more to gather data on its habits because of the fact that as soon as the platypus was a prisoner it died quickly. In the past-few years, the efforts and study of men such as Eadie have shown it to be one of nature's strangest creatures.

For instance, the young platypus has teeth. The grown platypus has none. All are born with spurs on their hind feet but only the males keep them when fully grown using them as the chief weapon of defence.

The platypus lives in deep water and at its daily meal puts away nearly a quarter of its own average weight of four pounds in worms, insects and grubs. Its front claws, extending beyond webbed toes, are used for burrowing long tunnels, flat beneath the surface of the ground, where its two eggs are laid and hatched in a few hours.

With the claws on its hind feet, the platypus combs itself dry when it emerges from the water. Swivel joints on its hind legs permit the claws to reach all parts of its body.

Platypuses, as Australians make the plural, rarely grow longer than two feet from tip of soft, rubbery bills to the ends of their coarse hairy tails which contrast with beautiful brown body fur.

They are found practically everywhere in Australia from tropical north to temperate Tasmania, and even in mountain lakes, 6,000 feet up, in regions that have snow at this time of year. For their protection, strict federal laws make it an offence merely to own a platypus skin.

Australia's best-known platypus was "Splash," found by Eadie in 1933 and kept for four years during which it received fanmail from admirers sent on its behalf, and revealed the platypus secret of hibernation in two or three-day spells during the cold season.

Four persons were injured.

Industrial Wheels Again Purring In British Columbia

By GEORGE FINLAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, Aug. 29 —(CP)— The wheels of production speeded ahead Wednesday in vital British Columbia industry, strike-threats removed with the granting of pay increases and shorter work hours to more than 5,000 workers.

Fifteen days ago the picture was different. The Regional War Labor Board, following the lead of the parent board in Ottawa, placed a 10-cent limit on hourly wage boosts.

Immediate protest came from thousands of unionists whose unions had obtained through agreement with management pay increases ranging from 12 to 20 cents an hour, subject to ratification of the Regional Board.

Union leaders warned there would be a general strike, involving 10,000 workers, if the Board did not agree to the higher wage scale.

Labor Minister George S. Pearson, after many conferences with members of the Board and union leaders, announced withdrawal of the 10-cent limit order and that all cases would be judged on merit.

Now the Board has mentioned increases for shipyard workers, steel workers, construction men, mechanics, printers, plumbers, and dredge operators, who receive the top boost of 20 cents an hour. The Board also approved a 40-hour week, instead of 48, for practically all workers.

The largest group — 2,000 men — comprises shipyard workers, in the wooden boat yards, who get a 15-cent an hour raise, and next comes building trade workers — 1,400 — including plumbers, steamfitters, painters, bricklayers and shinglers, with a boost of 12 cents an hour.

The Board still has before it applications for wage boosts for several thousand more workers, with a decision expected shortly. But the pattern has been set, and general increases are expected.

The only dark cloud is the steel strike situation at Hamilton, Ont., reflected here in general labor disturbance, with the reinforcement of Ontario Provincial Police to the strike centre.

Dated Up Or Just Out-Dated?

Radio Star Alice Frost Wears a Chic New Short Haircut

By HELEN FOLLETT

SURPRISING how the mind of a woman with stand-patter ideas will refuse to tick. There seems to be a stoppage of the mental clock when a member of the family suggests that it is time for her to retire to modernity—and do, get one that is strictly up-to-date. Unlike the young sticker, she does not react automatically with soul elated, caring nothing about the number she flings, under the hair stylist to do his or her darndest.

No! Her hair-do is becoming, she claims, and becomingness is the main thing. She doesn't know that a coiffure that is out of date is becoming.

Fun to Be Alert

If a woman steps pretty, she isn't going to lag at the tail end of the fashion parade. She'll be in the thick of it—or know the reason why. She finds it great fun to be on the alert. If she gets a new hair-do, doesn't like it it is no killing matter. She'll keep trying them out until she finds the reflection in the looking glass is pleasing.

With a strong permanent wave, any hair is good material for arrangement. That is the first step, in retiring modernity. If mother or mother kissed you in the cradle, you have a natural undulation.

Old Fussy fancies that the hair-do you know is better than the hair-do you don't know, which means that she isn't willing to bother with the new fangled that requires a number of work-outs with a quiz lines.

Even the short cut isn't fatal, in case you don't fancy it after you've been wearing your tresses upped. Hair grows at the rate of five or six inches a year. In three months, the cropped hair will have attended itself sufficiently to be rolled up along the nape line.

He just left for California, and wants me to come there, but my parents said I couldn't go. What should I do?

Tiny

Of course you want me to tell you to go ahead and disregard your parents' wishes, don't you, "Tiny"? You don't quite dare do it yourself, but you'd like to have someone else take the responsibility of approving such a course.

Or perhaps, in the other hand, you know in your heart it would be a very foolish thing for you to do and you haven't the nerve to tell your boy friend you won't do it and want to be able to tell him somebody else advises against it.

You can't begin early to stand on your own feet and take the responsibility for your own decisions, "Tiny". You know perfectly well that it would be the height of foolishness for a 16-year-old girl to run off and get married to a 17-year-old boy. Why not have the good sense, the good judgment to have the courage to tell your boy friend that frankly?

He Got Himself Into Trouble—Now He wants Someone to Get Him Out of It

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Can you help me out of this?

I am an ex-sailor. When I came home, I met a married woman that I fell very much in love with, and she claimed she was in love with me. We were going together until I broke up her home, and after that happened, she was running around with other men.

When I found out about it I didn't want to see her any more, but she still keeps coming around and tells me she loves me. So what should I do—take her back, or when we have left it? She is five years older than I.

This is a problem that you're going to have to settle with your own conscience, I'm afraid.

But why should you expect a woman who wasn't faithful to her own husband to be true to you? You seem to feel she's doing the wrong thing to run around with other men. Didn't you feel it was wrong to entice her into running around with you when she was the wife of another man?

You admit you broke up her home. Don't you think you have any responsibility toward her as a consequence of that? And why does it suddenly become important that she's five years older than you are, when that apparently made no difference when you induced her to double-cross her husband?

I certainly can't help you of this" and I don't see why you should expect anyone to figure out a way for you to get out from under the consequences of your own deliberate wrongdoing.

Too Proud to Pursue

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 19, and have been going with a fellow the same age for six months.

He got discharged from the navy two weeks ago, and I have not seen him since. When he left me, he said he loved me very much, and couldn't wait till we were married.

Many times I've wanted to call him, but I have too much pride to do so. I miss him an awful lot, so will you please tell me what to do?

"Miss Pride"

You're doing the very best thing you could do already, and that is showing too much pride to pursue a boy who seems indifferent to you. Keep on being that way.

If your boy friend ever intends to come back to you, he'll come without any prodding from you. And if he doesn't, no amount of calling him up can make him come. Being a girl with pride and good sense, you wouldn't want anyone who had to be coaxed.

I'm sure you do miss this boy, but just sit tight, go out with other boys and before you know it, you'll have forgotten all about him. A friendship of six months doesn't leave an impression you will never get over.

He Has a Bad Reputation, But She Thinks He's Changed

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 16, and like a fellow of 17 very much. I am not in love with him as yet, but the problem that stands between us is his reputation. He had a bad reputation before, has been going straight for six months and I personally know he has changed. He also told me he would be good if he had a girl to settle down with. He talks very nice to me and never uses the wrong language in front of me.

My parents know about his reputation and they hold that against him. Would you advise me to see him, or take my parents' advice about that?

Undecided.

Any boy or man who can't "go straight" on his own, but puts the responsibility for his "being good" on whether or not he has a girl to settle down with, is decidedly of whom I would be a little leery. The fact that he expresses such a statement indicates that he has no principles, no standards of his own and that would be a pretty unstable husband. Chances are that if he got a bit tired of what-girl he settled down with, that would be an excuse for slipping back into his old bad habits.

On the other hand, perhaps you are right and he has decided to change his ways because he is convinced they're wrong. But I would wait a good length of time and see how real his reformation is before letting things get serious between you. If his change of heart lasts, say, a year or two, no doubt your parents would be willing to revise their opinion of him. But I think they're quite right in their feeling at present.

Air Cadet Dance Held at Mt. View

The Girls of the Half-Way hub of the Y.M.C.A., and a number of "ex-age girls" (supervised by H.W.C. members) were entertained by the personnel of Mountain View Air Station and the Montreal Squadron of Air Cadets at their annual Field Day dance on Tuesday evening.

The drill hall was smartly decorated with flags and pennants and the orchestra was hounded Belleville's own Commodore orchestra.

Presentations were made at 10.30 to the various track winners in the athletic activities held followed by the floor show featuring by "Commodores" playing their trumpet specialty "Boy Meets Horn"; Miss Barbara Dinsmet sang and danced and a musician performed several interesting feats.

The Air Cadets of Montreal crowned their "Queen" by means of a popularity contest held among the teen-age girls. Miss Dorothy Bone, of Belleville, was officially crowned "Queen of the Air Cadets" by Commodore Lee and she who wins "Teen-towners re-turn to Belleville and the dance continued to its successful close.

The Experts Say

By HELEN BANNERMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 27 (CP)— Squash is the name applying to various types of edible gourds, including pumpkin and hubbard, which are well liked and generally used.

Vegetable marrow belongs to the squash family but might be called the weaker sister since its personality is so often uninteresting. When properly cooked and well seasoned vegetable marrow is sweet, tender and has a mild nutty flavor. One reason why vegetable marrow is popular is that when if is matured it develops a stringy, coarse texture, so that it should be used when of small or medium size.

The home economists of the Agricultural Extension Consumer Section suggest cooking vegetable marrow with tomatoes and onions as the Europeans do.

Vegetable marrow creole requires one medium vegetable marrow, four medium tomatoes (two cups cut), one medium onion (1-2 cup sliced), 1-2 teaspoon of salt and 1-8 teaspoon of pepper.

Peal marrow, cut in one-inch slices and remove seeds.Peel and cut tomatoes small pieces. Peel and slice onions. Cook the tomatoes and onion together for five minutes, add marrow and seasonings. Cover and simmer for 35 minutes. This makes six servings.

Nothing adds more zest to the salad materials you bring from your "vegetable garden" than a good French dressing. Here is one of the best:

Mix 1-2 cup of salad oil, three tablespoons of malt vinegar, one teaspoon each of salt, paprika and Worcestershire sauce, 1-2 teaspoon of dry mustard, 1-4 teaspoon of pepper and a dash of cayenne pepper, in a jar which can be tightly sealed. Then, when here is the big secret, add half a can of undiluted cream of tomato soup. No cooking— you just shake chill and serve.

Having every little bit of food is the motto these days. It also applies to everything having to do with food and the Consumer Section has these practical pointers along the way to greater conservation:

Save fuel by cooking several dishes in the oven at one time.

Save sugar by careful planning and careful cooking.

Save butter by scrapping every bit from the wrapper.

Save all fat. Clarify and use for cooking.

Save sour milk. It makes tender cakes and biscuits and delicious cottage cheese.

Save dry bread to make into Melba toast or crumbs for escalloped dishes, dressing, puddings.

Save vegetables for your soups sauces, gravies. Save vinegar from pickles. The spicy flavor adds zest to salad dressings.

Save celery tops and parsley. Dry and use for the soup pot of seasoning.

Fashion Flashes

We have heard that next season's smart Chandlemores will be wearing plume-trimmed hats with their long dinner dresses in very Edwardian fashion. Thus a pencil-slim gown of black crepe is paired with a profile hat of black net trimmed on the of-the-face side with curling black ostrich plumes.

Apparently it isn't too soon to be thinking about fur-trimmed hats, because the news in many parts of the country report not only enquiries but orders. A beauty is a head-hugging hat in palest beige velvet with diadem effect in the back held by gilt and jewelled rings.

Hand in hand go comfort and good looks in some of the new suits for general daytime wear. In this happy category is a suit of cocoa-brown wool jersey. The almost-hiplength jacket has high notched revers, small collar and five-button closing and is made with big patch pockets. It has an all-over ornamentation of dark brown velvet leaf-appliques.

New emphasis is on the reefer which appears with well-handled, smartly tailored trim. A pencil-slim skirt in black woollen-cut on double-breasted lines, the buttons linked with braid and arranged in taper formation—has slenderizing bands of black broadtail applied on either side from under the shoulder to the hem. Bands, with beaked revers and collar are of broadtail.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Gift Not Necessary

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper for me to bring a gift to it be to be given in honor of a friend who is to be married soon? I am not certain if she is to be given a shower later, and I am not sure that I will be able to be present at her wedding.

J. M.

It is not at all necessary for you to take a gift to the tea in honor of the bride-to-be. It is when a "tea" is referred to in the invitation as a "shower" or "shower-tea" that every guest is expected to take a gift.

Announcements of Golden Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother's and father's Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary will be the latter part of next month. Is it proper to send announcements of this special anniversary to relatives and friends, often "Open House" is not to be held? We had thought of having a "family dinner" on the Sunday following actual date of the anniversary and then sending announcements to out-of-town friends. Would that be a proper plan?

M. B.

Yes, the plan is entirely proper . . . to have a family dinner, and to send announcements of this important anniversary to friends and relatives, those who live in town as well as those who live out-of-town.

Receiving Line at Reception In a Hall

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a wedding reception is held in a hall, where should the bride and groom stand at the beginning of the reception?

Undecided

The bride and groom usually receive on the side of the room opposite the entrance. Usually the bride's mother, who is the hostess of the wedding and reception, stands first in line to receive the guests. (The bride's father may stand next to her, or he may prefer to mingle with the guests, making introductions and so forth.) Next may be the bridegroom's father, and then the bridegroom's mother; then are the guests of honor, and this arrangement of having them next to the hostess or host makes introductions convenient. Next to the bridegroom's mother is the bridegroom; at his right, the bride; at her right, the maid of honor, the last in the line, the bridesmaids.

The Mother Should Wear Similar Type Dresses

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter is to have a semi-formal wedding, wearing a wedding dress with a short sweep, and a fingertip veil. Is it proper, at the time of wedding for the bride's mother to wear an evening gown if the groom's mother does not?

W. S.

It's proper, of course, for both mothers to wear gowns of similar type and length. And it creates a problem when, for any reason, the groom's mother is unwilling to, or can't conform. Since the groom's mother is the honored guest of honor at the wedding, it is important that she try to dress as appropriately as possible for this occasion of her son's wedding. But if circumstances or inclination prevent this, my suggestion is that the bride's mother wear what she considers fitting; if the semi-formal wedding is in the evening, a dinner dress, rather than a formal evening gown, is appropriate, and would probably conform better to what the groom's mother is planning to wear.

Announcements Not Sent to Those Who Were Invited

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper to send out formal announcements after the wedding to the ones who were not invited to the wedding?

B. A.

Yes . . . announcements are not sent to those who were invited either to the ceremony or to the reception.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Exotic Beauty is a Big Order

Now and then, at social gatherings, one woman will stand out from all others. She has the grand manner. She is austere and stately, somewhat brittle in appearance. Her hair-do is a sticked-back affair with never a sign of wave or ringlet, piled high on one side of her head in a way that would make the average woman look completely goofy. Her clothes are extreme her hat an oddity—even in these days of millinery.

She is an example of what no run-of-the-mill woman should attempt to be. All right for her, maybe, though one sometimes fancies that if she had a little softness about her she would look more human. Her aim is to be the exotic type, to appear mysterious and interesting. She's stunning, smart, distinguished—a lady of fashion. The build-up has required much thought, time and money. She is Sophistication personified. A type few of us ordinary mortals can ever hope to be.

Drawings by Jean Parker Lefebvre, Inc.

Never try to Imitate a Type Not True to Your Characteristics

The thing to do, my friend, is to run true to form, never to try to be a type for which you are out of character. It is a nice, comfortable feeling.

The exotic woman often takes on the appearance of the "proud and haughty beauty" of which men are a bit shy. So let's not envy her, those of us who must keep to more simple attire because of the constant drain on the balance in the checkbook. After all, we can flavor our personalities with kindliness and good humor. It is possible for any girl of intelligence and wit to develop charm to the highest degree. She doesn't have to "look like that" to get by.

Naturalness is fashionable. Posing and affectation are old. They seem almost Victorian at the present time. Years of war work prevent many a lot of silly ideas. The objective now is to be healthy —mentally, physically and spiritually—to carry on, to be capable, and to face one's responsibilities with courage.

Beautiful being is improving all along the line. When we touch up our complexions we let Nature be our guide. White hair is considered more becoming than locks that have gone to the dye pot time and again. Manners are easy and comfortable, but still conform. A lot of stuffy old notions about conduct have been thrown overboard.

Leg Mrs. Exotic do her refrigerated-looking. It makes her happy and doesn't bother anybody.

ZELLER'S LIMITED — The Store For School Time Needs

Hope to Hold War Gains in Dress

L. CALLS LINNON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Aug. 29 (CP)—Outfits ranging from glamorous evening creations to raincoats combining high style with utility are in the collections with which Montreal designers hope to hold the progress achieved against foreign competition during war years.

"With Paris, London and New York competition again becoming an important factor in the Canadian fashion picture in the next few months will provide the test here," commented Alfandri, French-born fashion authority, special interest is formal evening wear.

"If our designers do as good a job in the future as they have during the past six years, foreign competition will not be the menace it was to our industry in pre-war years."

Among the top numbers of his own varied and extensive collection is a rich red taffeta floor-length gown with gold scroll embroidery and two gold tassels hanging from the waistline. Teamed with it is a full-length hooded greatcoat in black velvet lined with red taffeta, and worn is a tiered gown in white satin with cap sleeves.

Among costs, which share the longer-skirt trend with dresses and suits, black leads the color parade, followed by grey, autumn green and deep reds. The silhouette varies from the fitted style comfortable to wear over suits. The whittled waist, with its belt of self-fabric and with the slightest hint of a bustle, appears in the Samuel Mints collection. Many coats show lavish use of fur on sleeves and at the hemline as well as at the collarline.

Stress Simplicity

Of special interest to the college and career girl is Albert Ehryman's collection of classic suits in which the stress is on simplicity. Limiting his range to eight or nine numbers instead of the usual 40 to 50, the designer has aimed at quality and good styling in mass-produced garments at a moderate price. Typical is a cardigan suit of grey worsted and soft wool, capable of changing its style entirely with each change of blouse or sweater.

Also working with yarn new to the college set is Minka, attractive young Montrealer showing her first collection this fall. Featuring finely tailored skirts and blouses her campus fashions indicate a trend away from the sloppy styles of past seasons. Outstanding are "Klitie," a wrap-around in pastel plaids, fringed edge and old-fashioned blanket-pin fastening, and "Checkmates" an all-round pleated number in checked wool. The blouses have an easy-laundering feature in the removable shoulder pads.

Housecoats and hostess gowns, emerging from a wartime dimout appear in a variety of materials and styles. Beatrice Pines uses clever styling in one bengaline hostess gown to overcome the yardage restrictions still in force and give the effect of a much greater sweep. Another of her designs has an old-fashioned bustle, with half-length zipper closing in the back.

Dual-purpose coats—looking like casual travel coats and probable evening wraps—highlight Lou Ritchie's rainwear in the modern manner, featuring such materials as nylon satin and rayon twill. One self-belted coat has a detachable hood, and a slimming waistline—a series of darts molding the figure.

SIX DROWNED

Fingringhoe, Sussex, England, Aug. 29 —(Reuters)— Six privates attached to the British 15th Infantry Training Corps at Colchester were drowned Tuesday when their collapsible wood and canvas boat overturned in a gravel pit flooded to a depth of 19 feet during a military exercise in beach landings.

Cotton Dance Frock

BY PRUNELLA WOOD

PICK-UP FOR THE last days of Summer, leg on the season to come in palmy resorts, this eye-catching striped dance frock is made of sheerest cotton. It's a find, in a day when silk and cotton, both, are practically gilt-edged possessions.

This department, while well aware that designers are crazed about uneven hemlines themselves, doesn't orally like them. But somehow, as a novelty, the 1914 dip and swoop of this dress seems less affected, perhaps because the dress is frankly a dress-up toilette and not to be taken seriously at a good, big price tag. This gown is moderately tagged.

Finds Canada Is Incredible

Regina, Aug. 29 —(CP)— Canada is an incredible country to a young English girl who is paying her first visit to the Dominion.

Ann Badon of London, describes her impression of Canada with: "First you see vast plains of farming land, then woods; rivers filled with lakes; the climate is first extremely warm, and then suddenly a storm . . . but when I see Canadian wheatfields I don't think we need worry about bread rations in England."

Miss Badon was amazed to find there were no queues in Canada. "Even in small towns you seem to be able to get everything," she says.

BLOUSE, SUIT SEASON

Regina, Aug. 29 (CP)—For those who like to know in advance what fashions will be this fall, Eveline Bennett of Toronto, says, "it will be a blouse and suit" season.

Miss Bennett, a fashion advisor for a patterns company recently returned from New York, and she says that fancy blouses and feathered hats are being worn with tailored suits, something never considered in good taste before.

The first fall dress should be black, she says, but browns, greens and blues are good runners-up.

Miss Bennett, born in Winnipeg, moved to Toronto while still a youngster. She studied commercial art at the University of Toronto before becoming a fashion advisor.

Fashion Flashes

THE RAINBOW appears during the rain-storm as a spectrum of brightly hued raincoats. Pale blue proofed satin twill is used for a smart raincoat with a bias-cut, belted front and flared back. Shown also in pale pink.

Easy to wear little frocks that look smart enough to appear anywhere during the day are featured for Fall. Classic brown fine woollen makes such a dress detailed with tiny self-buttons that begin beneath the high, stitched, dandy collar and continue down the bodice to below the waist, which has a set-in self-tie belt. Lantern sleeves have deep, easy armholes and soft shoulders.

Hamburg Makes Good Comeback

BY ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Hamburg, Aug. 29 (CP)—Under British control this heavily bombed port at the mouth of the Elbe, which before the war ranked next to London among European ports, is working 25 per cent of normal—remarkable progress, most considering the chaotic state of its 20 miles of docks at the war's end.

British, United States, Canadian and Scandinavian ships come to Hamburg now with food and supplies for occupation forces, for Germans in the British zone, for U.N.R.R.A. and relief in Germany. Since early May and June alone, 47,786 tons of Canadian wheat were imported through Hamburg.

Imports are Hamburg's biggest job but the port also is handling flour exports since from Germany to Britain at present approximately 1,000 tons of scrap iron and 1,000 tons of timber are leaving Hamburg daily; for British—exports which will help lighten the financial burden of occupation carried by British tax-payers.

Col. M. R. Haddock, British port controller, says the daily tonnage at Hamburg now is about 16,000 compared with more than 30,000 before the war. There are 9,000 registered German port workers compared with 20,000.

Resume Normal Trade

One of the major difficulties is absenteeism and sickness.

"We don't know whether it is caused by contentment on the part of German workers or apathy because their rations are slim," said the Canadian at work with the Canadians at Antwerp when on that point was questioned.

"But tonnage figures are really good here now, considering terrific damage done to the port.

The first signs of normal civilian trade also are showing. Barges are coming down the Elbe from Prague with glass; boats and leather goods for export and returning with gasoline, grain and foodstuffs.

Canadian ships which come to Hamburg have mostly been Park ships of 10,000 tons.

The British are carrying out an extensive demolition program, including submarine pens with concrete 12 feet thick are being blown up and tremendous ship building cranes and machinery as well as drydocks have been destroyed or destruction is planned.

Barring of Married Women Favored

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Aug. 29 —(CP)— A majority of British government departments favor continuation of the bar against married women in the civil service on the ground they are less efficient employees than single women or men.

This is the finding of a government commission set up to study the working of the marriage bar which has been in effect for 50 years. It makes no recommendation but its 24-page report leaves little doubt that it feels the present relaxation should be introduced.

"Like other employees, the government could not have managed without its married women employees in the acute shortage of manpower caused by the war; but in comparison with other employees married women have in many cases been found to have disadvantages," said the report signed by Mr. Justice J. A. Barlow, chairman, and the 12 men and three women committee members.

Perhaps the most obvious implication of the removal of the marriage bar would be that the government would have to be prepared to face a certain amount of inconvenience arising from the domestic responsibilities of its married women employees.

"We do not consider that a married woman should be retained in the service if she is frankly not efficient or if, except the main conditions of service of low grade, including for instance the liability to move from one town to another in accordance with the needs of the service.

"But occasional absence and irregular attendance, arising solely from domestic responsibilities, would be inevitable though they ought not to be so large a problem as they have been in wartime conditions.

"Moreover, absences of several weeks or months, on maternity leave would have to be allowed for."

Slow Down Promotion.

The report said the marriage bar recently has been removed in the teaching profession, the British Broadcasting Corporation and the London County Council. A similar step in the civil service would have a still greater effect on the practice of employers generally.

"If . . . it became the widespread practice for married women to be recruited and retained freely, important social and economic consequences might follow."

A serious disadvantage in the civil service would be that retention of married women was "to be bound to slow down the rate of promotion as a whole and would "by its adverse effect on staff morale be against the interests not only of the staff themselves but of the public service."

Most big employing circles interviewed by the commission reported they maintained re-marriage bar except in exceptional cases. British Overseas Airways Corporation reported employment of married women had "no serious disadvantages in practice" but most other companies said there were disadvantages.

TWICE BEREAVED FORMER W.A.A.F. MAKES NEW START

Two Husbands Killed, Engish Mother of Two Joins In Labor In New Zealand

Auckland, N. Z., —(CP)—Having lost two husbands, one a New Zealander, the other a Canadian, in the war, an attractive English girl of 23 has reached New Zealand to start life afresh with her two sons. She is blond Mrs. Joan Powers, of the Isle of Sheppey, Kent, and her story is one of shattered romance, wartime hardship and youthful courage.

At the age of 18 Mrs. Powers entered the Waacs and while developing combat films at an R. A. F. station met P/O. Graeme Fenton of Auckland, a fighter pilot attached to a squadron there. They were married in 1942 but less than a month later her husband was killed in an air crash. Mrs. Powers' elder son Graeme Fenton, was born and she returned to her duties with the WAAFs.

In May, 1943, she married her first husband's close friend, WO. C. Powers, a fighter pilot in the same squadron, who came from Manitoba. The two men used to work together and were inseparables.

But just after D-Day when WO. Powers was engaged in combat with a Messerschmitt over France some stray ack-ack shot up his plane and he was killed. He was the father of her second child, Gay Powers.

Now with the future of her sons to consider, Mrs. Powers has accepted an invitation from her father-in-law, Hon. C. Fenton of Auckland, to start a new life in a new land free from blitzes, ruins and food shortages.

BOMB REPAIRS AID QUARRIES

Dying Slate Industry of North Wales Revived

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Bangor, Wales, —(CP)—Bomb-damage repairs have brought boom conditions to North Wales' dying slate-quarrying industry.

It needs a sharp increase in its labor force, which has dropped from 15,000 to 3,000 in five decades as the use of tiles for roofing gained in popularity.

But there is no guarantee that the post-war business surge will continue. All roofing slates are allotted by government order to repair work, with tiles used for all new buildings. When war damage is restored, quarrying will probably fall off.

To look into the situation, Works Minister Tomlinson appointed a "working committee" representative of employers, labor, and government departments. Unless new uses for slate can be discovered, many quarries face closure and the pockets of unemployment which appeared in slate towns before the war may again become a problem.

In 1913, 364,000 tons of slate were used by British builders and only 200,000 tons of tiles. By 1938, when construction was much more active, the slate figure had dropped to 271,000 tons while tiles were up 1,200,000.

Despite the obvious trend, they say rising coal costs will increase the price of concrete and clay tiles and help bring slates back to popularity.

They claim, however that some government protection should be given their industry. When the working committee held its first meetings here, they argued that because their industry, under works ministry control, was sacrificing all it should be given assurance that slate will later be used on a proportion of new home built under the state's rehousing program.

Suggestions have been made for establishment of a research centre to study new uses for slate and a seek source of using waste stone. At present some 20 tons of rubble are produced for every ton of finished slate, and only a small quantity of rubble ever becomes a marketable by-product.

Chairman of the working party is Sir Frederick Rees, principal of Cardiff University College.

U.S. GIRLS ENJOY MILK-WAGON TOUR

Two Ancient Horses Provide Motive Power to East Coast

Buffalo, N. Y., —(AP)—We're having a grand time—this is the ideal way to see the world, said Zane Laidlaw, 20, one of three Detroit girls who are travelling east in a 45-year-old milk-wagon drawn by two elderly horses.

Zane and her companions, the Welborn sisters, Willy, 22, and Connie, 18, left Detroit June 21 and have averaged eight miles a day in their blue and yellow painted conveyance which they have named "The Wayfaring Lass."

"It all started when we couldn't get a car for a summer trip," said Connie. "Then somehow we thought of a horse and wagon. We visited a horse auction in Detroit, and there sitting in the rear back was the wagon. It was old and dirty and being used for a hitching rack. We bought it for $35."

Zane added that the horses were purchased about a week before they set out "so that we'd have time to practise taking care of them, since none of us had much idea of what a horse considers a good standard of living."

The wagon contains two small chests of drawers, a 10-gallon milk can of water, a small gas stove "which always seems to be running out of gas," a portable ice-box, harness, three sleeping bags and a large trunk.

The trunk, placed near the front of the wagon, contains a phonograph records, art materials for the Welborn girls who sketch, a typewriter for Zane who is writing a story of their experiences, and books "which are impossible to read when the wagon is bouncing along."

Take Turns Driving

The trunk also doubles for a driver's seat. The girls take turns driving. Their other "chores" are equally divided, and with horses to hitch up and feed, and the "housework" they say "there's always plenty to do."

Several narrow escapes have added to the excitement of the trip. Near Port Huron, Mich., when the journey was barely under way, one of the horses got a hoof tangled in a railroad tie, plunged in teammate to the ground and gave the girls "some pretty scared moments."

In the vicinity of London, Ont., the horses became frightened "for some unknown reason" and a runaway was feared, but they were brought under control in time to prevent it.

At night, the girls pull into a farmyard or the grounds of a country school, unhitch the horses, and unroll their sleeping bags. Farmers have been "more than kind," they said, and they have had no trouble in obtaining food and water for themselves and the horses.

The girls estimate they spent less than $500 in the 36 days it took them to reach Buffalo, including the cost of the wagon and its outfitting, and an $80 guitar for the horses, 16-year-old Prince and 11-year-old Gypsy.

"We're not in any hurry to get anywhere," Zane declared, speaking for the three. "We don't have to get back at any certain time, and we're just out to see the country at our own pace. We plan to head for New England and then to New York. When the weather gets cold we'll drive south."

NO TEA RATIONING

Toronto, Aug. 29 —(CP)— Before this thing gets any further, the local office of the Prices Board wishes it understood that there is absolutely no truth in rumors that rationing of tea is again being considered. Such a rumor cropped up here and led to spotty buying in some sections. "There is no need to ration tea and the matter has not been considered," said a Prices Board official. "If the public generally would not create artificial shortages by getting in a panic they would save themselves a lot of trouble."

WESTFALL GIVEN DECISION OVER RON MANSFIELD

Semi-Final Bout at Hume Arena Is One of the Best Seen in Some Time

The semi-final "go" between Bill Westfall of Trenton and Ron Mansfield of Belleville stole the spotlight at the boxing card at Hume Arena Wednesday night. Westfall was awarded the decision after three of the most furious rounds ever witnessed in the Hume Bowl palace.

The boys went at-it hammer and tongs right from the opening bell and kept the pace up for the entire bout. It was a dandy.

Mansfield had a decided edge in the battle in the first round, Time and time again he beat the Trenton boy to the punch and sent Westfall down for a "ten" count midway through the round.

Midway through the second round, Westfa.l got organized and started to force the fight. Mansfield tired badly in the last round and it was here that Westfall showed the stuff he's made of.

Lot of Punishment

Both boys took lots of punishment during the battle but neither one would take a step back or backward discretion. The fans showed their appreciation to no end and a return bout between these boys would go well.

Mansfield has improved greatly in the last two or three months and he certainly gave the champion a run for his money Wednesday night.

The main bout between Don Mogard of Toronto and Bellamy Valley "Peewee" Graham was a fitting finale for the fans with the boys showing just a little less than respect for each other to make room for excitement. Mogard, formerly of Mt. View and No. 1 Air Command heavyweight champion, had a little too much experience for the rugged Belleville battler and so earned the decision. He kept his left hand working constantly and kept Acerra at arms length, not letting him get in one of his solid haymakers.

Rounds Very Tame

The first three rounds were very tame and the crowd kept wanting action. The boys did open up a bit during the fourth and fifth rounds but there wasn't a great deal of damage done. The fifth was the best round by far but then there wasn't sufficient time for a knockout. Both boys showed themselves to be hard hitters and a return bout with a little more action would be appreciated.

The local boy fought a smart fight by sticking to his left and boxing skillfully with the visitor. Mogard has had a lot of experiences and is no mat to be taken lightly.

The Belleville and district 118 lbs. champion "Soup" Mondeville first awarded a technical knockout over Toronto's Bill Graham at the end of the second round when the Toronto boy suffered a badly cut left eye and handkerchiefs decided that he had enough. Some of the fans didn't like the decision but, Referee Is to say that Graham had to be taken to the hospital for medical attendance after the bout.

Mondeville Had Edge

As far as it went it was a good scrap although Mondeville had an edge at the time of the TKO. Graham is a willing scrapper and they were really mixing it. Once Graham's eye was cut, Mondeville kept working on it and thus piling up a lead. The first round was fairly even but when they started to open up in the second stanza Mondeville showed to advantage.

There was a lot of controversy over the Jerry Downes-"Babe" Gibson bout. Referee Knocked Gibson down just at the end of the first round and the count of nine was tolled and then came the bell to end the round. The Toronto boy thought that Graham had been counted out and that's the way it looked. Referee Harry Robinson claimed that the bell had been sounded at the count of nine and so Graham was "saved" the bell.

When Graham got back to his corner, his handlers took his gloves off, thinking it was over. Downes was awarded a TKO.

Downes did have a big advantage in the round and, had the fight gone on, there would have been no question about the final outcome.

Earns Decision

Gus Rubidel of Toronto earned a clean-cut decision over Cecil Anderson of Belleville in another of the preliminaries. The heavier Toronto boy was "on top" all the way. Anderson put up a good fight but just didn't have the stuff for the Toronto lad and forced the fight all the way.

John Murray of Belleville lost no time in putting away Fred Liddle of Belleville, knocking him out at the 1.50 mark of the first round. Murray looked to have it all over Liddle right from the start. It was the first time for both boys and they put on a good show. Murray looked particularly good and big things are expected of him in the future

SWACO LASSIES LOSE TO COBOURG BY 11-6 SCORE

Second and Third Games of Provincial Playdowns Will be Played at Cobourg

Tommy Colden's Stewart-Warner-Alemite softball lassies playing a much inferior brand of the game than they usually do, dropped the first game of the first round Womens Provincial Softball Association playdowns under the floodlights at the Alemite Field last night, to the Cobourg Towers Classers squad.

The score was 11-6 and the losers go back at the struggle in Cobourg on Saturday at 2 o'clock and if the third game is necessary, will play it at five on the same day.

The Colden colleens couldn't do a thing right, and it was definitely one of their off nights. Lois Calcutt was given the mound chore by Manager Colden but the Cobourg belle had to be lifted in fourth and she was replaced by Thelma Hall.

Hainden on the mound for the Cobourg team held the SWACO girls scoreless for three innings but gave way to Bridish when the local girls nicked her for four of their six runs. Bridish stifled the SWACO bat for the remainder of the nine-innings pastime. Hainden partially redeemed herself with the hickory, driving out a brace of homers when clouts meant runs.

SWACOS were shaky in the field when several costly bobbles converted outs into runs. They had the score tied in the fourth but Cobourg came back with the tallies in the fifth and sixth that they never relinquished. SWACOS rallied in the ninth but the best they could do was a couple of runs to whittle down the commanding lead of the Cobourgers.

Manager Tommy Colden and his girls however, are not downhearted. They say that they lost a good game out of their collective systems and are fully confident they can take the measure of the Towne Cleaners in two straight games on Saturday.

as he gains ring experience.

Split Decision

In the curtain raiser, Bruce Polmanter punched his way to a split decision over Howard Dean. Both are Belleville youngsters. The lads put on a very fine show and showed that they have to be reckoned with in the future.

On the whole, the card was better than the last one. The Officials be, stated on Wednesday, September 11th.

AMATEUR BASEBALL

(By The Canadian Press)

The second straight six game was recorded by Thorold-Merritton Thormers and St. Catharines in their Niagara District Baseball League senior "B" final last night at St. Catharines, when the teams battled to a 7-7 deadlock.

In the Intercounty Intermediate "A" semi-finals the Galt veterans spotted the visiting Brantford Red Sox six runs in the 1st inning, but Galt won the game, 8-6 and qualified to meet St. Thomas in the final.

In the first round of the O.B.A. junior play-downs at St. Catharines last Niagara Falls Flyers eliminated St. Catharines Lisceins, winning 6-5 for the two and straight triumph.

Guelph Maple Leafs took the first of their Intercounty juvenile final against Brantford Laurels, winning 8-4.

Mickey Owen Faces $127,500 Action By Mexican Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

Now leading the life of a farmer down in Missouri, Mickey Owen, star jumper of the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Mexican baseball loop, found himself facing a $127,500 court action by President Jorge Pasquel of the Mexican League who filed suit yesterday in the player's home state. Pasquel lists $100,900 for damages, $12,500 for an alleged bonus and $13,000 advance salary for 1946.

The shoe was on the other foot for Hooper Triplett, former outfielder of the Chicago Cubs, Cardinals, barred from organized baseball by Commissioner A. B. Chandler until he was ready to play for a Mexican club when Pasquel ordered cancellation of his contract.

Lee Savold of Paterson, N.J., lasted less than two rounds against Elmer Ray, Florida negro heavyweight, in Brooklyn last night. It was referee Ray's 13th straight knockout.

The players union in British soccer threatened strike action yesterday with the football league season scheduled to open Saturday. The league had given down a demand for an increase in pay from $40 to $48 per week.

King's Counsel turned ~the year's best time for a pacer yesterday in travelling the first mile in 1:58 3-4 to win the $2,500 single "G" stake at the Duquoin, Ill., State Fair.

Major League baseball owners at Chicago yesterday acceded in the players' demands for control restrictions, which reportedly included $5,000 minimum salary, a pension plan and other concessions.

Jack (Spider) Armstrong, Toronto lightweight, scored another victory last night when he defeated Freddie Yelavich in a 10-round technical knockout at Providence, R.I.

BATA SHOEMEN TIGHTEN GRIP ON SECOND PLACE

Defeat Napanee in an Abbreviated Contest by 9 to 2 Score

Bstawa Shoemen further consolidated their hold on second place in the Belleville Senior Baseball League with a Napanee last night when they defeated the home town squad by a 9-3 score in an abbreviated five-inning contest.

The winners nicked two Napanee hurlers, Saulnay and Mc-Taggart for eight safeties all told getting three runs off Cowtop and five for six off his successor.

Harry went to the mound for the Shoemen and turned in another neat hurling performance holding the Napanee hitters to five hits, three of which came in the third when the losers scored all their runs.

Batawa scored in every innings getting two in the first, one in the second, three in the third, two in the fourth and a single in the fifth. Spencer and Austin got two hits each for the winners with Napanee clouts being scattered over five players.

EVEN LACROSSE SERIES

Vancouver, Aug. 23—(CP)— New Westminster Adanacs last night ended Vancouver Burrards 11-10 to even the best-of-five inter-city box lacrosse league semi-final series at two games apiece.

Fifth game will be played at New Westminster Friday. Winner of the series meets New Westminster Salmonbellies for the league title and the right to play for the intrer representatives for the British Columbia championship.

Piqued because the Russian delegation was assigned to second row seats on the reviewing stand at Porte Foiel de Ville during the celebration that marked the second anniversary of the liberation of Paris, Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov, leader of the Soviet peace delegation, walks out on the ceremonies. He is followed by M. Massigli, Ukrainian delegate, whose expression shows what to RIGHT, are Australia's J. A. Beasley, who called at the Russians bellies, and second them of hiring; U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, who looks the other way; M. Vergniolle, president of the Paris municipal council, who seems put out, and Georges Bidault, French president and leader of the country's delegation to the peace parleys. He is obviously outraged.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON Jr.

New York, Aug. 29—(AP)— What's this boxing business coming to? . . . Welterweight champ Marty Servo spent a lot of money acquiring the title and has paid out more good cash for two tune-up fights preparatory to defending it against Ray Robinson next week . . . and now Robinson comes along with the statement that he's contributed his entire purse, minus training expenses and the manager's cut, to the Police Athletic League . . . Servo "owed himself $9,000" (as manager Al Weill explains) after lifting the unrewarding Red Cochrane because of a guarantee to Red. Then he took on middleweight Rocky Graziano for a "money" fight and had a measure of an operation on his nose added to the costs. Since then he has had to pay Tommy Anset and Bobby Larkin to fight him at army hospitals because he isn't permitted to make tuneup fights.

One-Minute Sports Page

Although Sept. 1 marks their St. Louis the Dodgers aren't safe yet. Three of the eight teams they have already beaten this season were at Chicago's Wrigley Field. Two former Iowa football captains, Dave Schmidt (1945) and Warren Reigle (1944) will be battling for starting jobs at end of this year's Hawkeye team . . .

Mexico City is angling for a Joe Louis-Tommy Godoy fight (what, again!) and don't think Joe isn't interested. His decision may be different when the champ's managerial board figures the financial angles.

No Defence Against Deathly Radiation

Ottawa Aug. 29 (CP)—There is no defence against the deadly radiation of the atomic bomb Maj. Hes. Stewart, who observed the Bikini bomb tests, told members of the parliamentary press gallery at a press conference.

Maj. Stewart, an army Public Relations officer, was seconded to represent Canadian newspapers at the tests. He said the United States could turn out atomic bombs on a mass production basis at a cost of about $1,000,000 each, which was a reasonable price when their effectiveness was taken into consideration.

Poullot Suggests Howe for Next Prime Minister

Ottawa, Aug. 29 (CP)—Jean Francois Poullot (Ind L—Temiscouata) said in the Commons that Reconstruction Minister Howe should be chosen as Canada's next prime minister.

Mr. Poullot said that Prime Minister Mackenzie King should choose a "realist" as his successor and his opinion Mr. Howe was the man to do that job. He had not always agreed with Mr. Howe over the war, but there was no one who challenged the minister's war record.

Municipal Assoc. Meets in Toronto

Toronto, Aug. 28. (CP)—The 48th annual meeting of the Ontario Municipal Association got under way here today with delegates from urban and rural municipalities making 30 resolutions, dealing with a variety of topics and including demands for provincial government action.

Among them were: Provincial financing of cost to consumers in changing from 25 to 60-cycle household electrical appliances; increased municipal control over Boards of Educatie'; a province-wide campaign against starlings and higher unemployment relief rates.

Approximately 300 delegates took part yesterday in preliminary discussions of relief, budgeting and municipal administration problems. Mayor W. S. Benallick of Sudbury, president of the Association, opened the conference this morning after addresses of welcome from Mayor Robert Saunders of Toronto and Municipal Affairs Minister G. H. Dunbar.

Control of Educational expenditures is the subject of two resolutions being considered today. In one, the City of Welland asks that the mayor be an ex-officio member of the Board of Education as he is of other local boards. In the other, Brantford asks that the province pay all educational grants to the municipal treasurer and to arrange for "definite control" by the council over education expenditures.

F. J. Parker, city treasurer of Kingston, criticized the practice of budgetting for surpluses and said budgets should be planned to meet necessary expenditures and no more or less.

Herbert H. Smith, city clerk of St. Catharines, urged setting up of a permanent or semi-permanent Voters' List for federal, provincial and municipal elections.

Liquor by Glass Program Delayed

Toronto, Aug. 28 — (CP) — It will probably be well into the autumn before the Ontario government starts drafting final regulations for selling liquor by the glass in Ontario, it was learned at Queen's Park last night. Sale by the glass is authorized in Ontario's five cities of more than 100,000 population — Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton, London and Windsor — by legislation passed at the last session of the legislature. Attorney-General Blackwell is still receiving delegations from various parties concerned.

Guns Blaze Men Drop Dead

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 29 (AP)—Guns blazed on Rankin County's "gold coast" early Wednesday morning in true wild western style and two men fell dead on a barroom floor.

They were Sam Seaney, extensive landowner and liquor dealer, and Norris Overby, Brandon constable.

Sheriff H. G. Laird said the men met as Seaney entered his place of business as Overby was leaving. The men spoke briefly to each other, scuffled, drew their guns, fired and fell dead on the floor, their arms locked.

Laird said he knew of no previous trouble between the two and was at a loss to explain the gun duel.

WOULD REVIVE LASH

Sydney, Australia — (CP)— There has been talk in Sydney of reviving use of the lash to punish men responsible for the wave of thuggery that has swept the city. No sentences of corporal punishment have been imposed in New South Wales, of which Sydney is the capital, since 1905.

Thin Steel Tower Marks Gold Strike

Opendaalsrust, South Africa, Aug. 29 (CP)—A spidery steel structure, no more impressive than the gantry that carries the ordinary farm windmill, and a small hut with a flock of sheep grazing nearby mark the site of the Geduld borehole, richest gold deposit in the world.

Nearby are other spindly structures, each attended by a European supervisor and a half-dozen natives marking boreholes any one of which may revive the fever of speculation caused in the gold-mining world three months ago by announcement of the assay result at the Geduld core. Each represents an investment of millions—yet they give no hint to the layman of the potential riches lying beneath.

In the centre of the new gold-field area, five miles north of the Geduld deposit, lies the tiny village of Opendaalsrust, sleepy and apparently unaffected by the three-month-old boom set off by the Geduld strike.

Then speculators stepped in and the prince of plots in the tiny village rose from about £5 (£20) apiece to £3,000 or £4,000. Up to £10,000 was offered for one plot facing on to the central market square.

But today the speculators are silent in the bar of the wood-and-iron Commercial Hotel, with its seven rooms and dilapidated exterior. For it may take five or 10 years before they can see any appreciable return for the big money they have invested in Opendaalsrust property.

Today, Opendaalsrust is still the same sleepy backveld village it was a quarter of a century ago, peaceful in the centre of a vast plain.

Coming into Opendaalsrust, the motorist must drive over at least 30 miles of unpaved road, from which rise great clouds of dust as long, long convoys of trucks roll on with their supplies toward the village.

If your eyes are good enough, you can see Opendaalsrust from 100 miles away, a tawdry conglomeration of a half a dozen shops, a bank, an hotel and a Dutch Reformed church, set plank in the middle of nothing.

Opendaalsrust is very despondent. Most of the population don't mind—they are satisfied with their sheep, their dirt farming. They are all strong Nationalists in that part of the world. They were all anti-war, anti-Smuts. But they welcome the English with traditional Boer hospitality.

Until recently, the village's only water supply was a solitary windmill from which water was taken to the few householders by donkey-cart. There is now electricity and no railway.

But new plans are booming for the development of the area. Water will have to be brought from more than 50 miles away on the mighty Vaal River. Power will have to come from more than double that distance.

Some of the wealthier Opendaalsrust—the older women—still wear a modern version of Voortrekker clothing, the long, full-skirted dress and the traditional "kappie," like the poke bonnet of covered-wagon days. But many of the younger women stroll round the market square, and along the only street, in the most modern clothes.

Miss Vera Hegadoren spent the weekend with relatives in Peterborough.

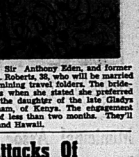
St. Paul's Sunday School will reopen at 10 a.m. next Sunday following the summer vacation.

Steve Glemhiast visited friends at Port Colborne, Niagara Falls and Toronto last week.

Mrs. J. A. Shannon is spending a few days in Peterborough with her daughter, Mrs. D. LaPlante and Mr. LaPlante.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grant and family are visiting relatives in the northern part of Hastings county.

Had Very Bad Attacks Of Dizzy Spells and Weakness



MRS. CYNTHIA BUDDER

"Felt Very Nervous. Couldn't Sleep Well," Says This Woman. But Feels Like Different Person Since She Used Syntone."

If you feel tired, wornout and nervous; if bowels are constipated and you suffer with indigestion, gas, headaches or rheumatic pain; if you have dizzy spells, backaches and nerves are on edge, try a short treatment of Syntone Herbal Compound and the chances are that you, too, will find this medicine will help you eat better, sleep better and feel better once again.

Here, for example, is the fine experience of Mrs. Cynthia Budder, 101 Curtis Street, St. Thomas, Ontario, as reported only a few days ago:

"I have been troubled with very bad attacks of dizzy spells and weakness for the past year or so," said Mrs. Budder. "My nerves were so on edge I often couldn't get to sleep at night, and I felt tired and rundown. I was also having trouble with my bowels which constipated me terribly. I'd be miserably distressed at night. My diet, too, were sore and painful.

"After reading in the paper about Syntone, I decided to try some and this medicine has made a wonderful difference in the way I feel. My nerves are calmer, I sleep like a baby, my bowels are cleared up right and the kidney action is improved, allowing me to get a full night's rest. As a result I am not troubled with the weak, dizzy spells as I was before and I have more strength and energy."

Syntone is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST. Find out how it can help you, too.

First Fish Caught With Bare Hands, Original Fishermen Very Cunning

Toronto, (CP)—History records the fact that the first fish was caught with bare hands—not with line and hook, accordion regulations require. Since that early day when man discovered that was palatable, the means of trapping these elusive creatures have been many and varied.

But in this day and age of equipment unequalled in perfection, anglers still resort to primitive methods to make their catch despite the fact these are frowned upon—not to the point of incarceration—by officials of the Games and Fisheries Department.

The fruitful fisherman—and his "no-luck" partner—have always had an abundant stock of tall stories and this year has proved no exception. At Gananoque, Ont., some days ago, a mashinongs was caught in a slip-knot by a couple of men who were preparing to go for a sail in their dinghy.

A few days previously, two Toronto women—probably the type who are afraid of live bait and can't cast a fly—developed an even more unusual approach.

An innocent 25-pound muskie was peacefully sleeping in some comfortable weeds near Midland, Ont., when these two women chanced to spy him. Next thing the fish knew he was being attacked with—of all things—ice tongs. One of the women speared him into submission with a small anchor—who wouldn't submit?

That went one better than the fisherman last year, clouted a muskie over the head with a shovel, then shovelled his quarry out of the water.

None of these methods are as cunning as the neanderthal pastime of tickling. This primitive though it be is rare sport, requiring patience and agility. Leaning low over the water where your quarry swims lazily, and taking care not to fall in, you slip your hand under the fish's belly and proceed to tickle it. While the poor fish is enjoying the attention paid it, you open your fingers, slip them around the fish and grab.

You, of course, prefer the more orthodox methods of fishing and get a hearty nod of approval from the man with the silver badge who quotes from the rule book a single "Thou-Shalt-Not": "No one shall fish by any means other than angling or trolling."

If you haven't tried these means—ice-tong, anchor-swing, rope -tying and shovel-swatting—delve deep in the writings fish from Aeolian down the ages of Izaak Walton.

Then again you may try some of the more "approved" methods: Get hold of a hand grenade from your assets corporation, throw it in the water after releasing the pin and then scoop out the stunned fish.

Perhaps if you're more of a sportsman, the Northern Ontario pastime of suspending the bait above the water and shooting the fish as they jump for it, will appeal.

Bids For Russia's Participation In World Bank

By WILLIAM T. PEACOCK

Washington, Aug. 29 (AP)—The United States held out a fresh bid for Russian participation in the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank.

It came in a message from Treasury Secretary Snyder telling the Soviet government that if it wants to send observers to the meetings of the Boards of Governors of the two institutions here Sept. 27 he will ask the boards to issue formal invitations.

Mr. Snyder acted in his capacity as chairman of the boards.

Similar messages also went to six other governments—Australia, Haiti, Liberia, New Zealand, Venezuela and Colombia—and to a group of international organizations, principally those associated with the United Nations. Colombia is a member of the fund and not of the Bank.

Moscow's reaction was awaited particularly because of the momentous implications involved in the question confronting the Soviets: Whether to go their own way or join in the international attempt, as represented by the Bank and the Fund, to bring greater economic stability to the world.

In the American government's view, the Bank and the Fund represent a compandium machinery to the United Nations in the general concept that war can be banished and the lot of all peoples improved through international co-operation.

Speaking Tricks Hard to Correct

Edmonton, Alta. —(CP)—Few people practice what they preach, but Mrs. Bertha Briggs of Edmonton is an exception. A speech consultant for an Edmonton radio station, she has taught the correct voice production, enunciation and pronunciation to many during her last 10 years in the profession.

Mrs. Briggs says the most interesting part of her job is in trying to bring out the personalities of individuals through their speech.

Reviewing of all radio scripts before they go on the air and a rehearsal of news broadcasts with announcers are her main tasks. This is done particularly where announcers are most likely to strike unfamiliar phrases and where an "unpracced" announcer often makes mistakes.

There are few persons in Canada doing this type of work, Mrs. Briggs says, but there is a wide field opening up. "The basis of good speech is the desire to interest others— no one speaks for himself alone," she says.

"With proper training, almost everyone can learn to speak attractively and correctly. This is one of the things that makes the work so exciting.

Mrs. Briggs formerly gave many of her pupils instructions in several languages since she speaks French, German, and Italian.

A speech characteristic she finds hard to correct in pupils are idiosyncrasies; tricks in speaking that have grown up with the individual.

Concentrated Milk Producers to Engage Economist on Cost

London, Ont., Aug. 29. (CP)—The Ontario Concentrated Milk Products Association decided to engage an economist to determine accurate production cost to make the organization better able to present its problems to the Dominion Government.

Harry Scott of Norwich, Ont., president and Agriculture Minister Gardiner had stated that concentrated milk producers failed in the past to submit cost figures.

"Ottawa saw it to grant a subsidy of 20 cents for each 100 pounds to whole milk producers but not concentrated milk producers," he said. About the time a mass meeting was scheduled the government had announced an eight-cent subsidy on concentrated milk and a 10-cent subsidy on milk for cheese production.

"I do not think Ottawa had any intention of giving us anything at all until we started to hold mass meetings".

Wheat and Flour Shipments to U.K. Doubled in War

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, —(CP)— Canada's proportion of wheat and flour shipments to the United Kingdom was doubled during the war food Ministry statistics reveal, and by 1944 she was supplying more than four-fifths of total imports.

The way Canada adjusted her export program to meet British needs when submarines were sinking up to nine per cent of imports—and enemy advances cut off normal sources of supply is told in "In How British Was Fed In Wartime" H.M. stationary office, 1/3)

These are some other facts culled from the 68-page story of Food Ministry activities since 1939:—

1. Civilians in 1944 (and the situation is little changed today) were eating one-fifth more bread one-quarter more milk and three-fifths more potatoes than before the war. But butter consumption was down one-fifth, sugar one-fifth, meat one-seventh and fruit one-quarter.

2. Losses of food by enemy sea action reached a peak of 9.3 per cent of imports during January, February and March, 1943. The worst full year for losses was 1941 with 8.1 per cent from January through December.

3. The food ministry became the sole importer of all the-chief foodstuffs.

4. Food prices increased more than 20 per cent during the Second Great War, compared with 130 per cent from 1914 to 1919.

5. Some food found its way into Black Market transactions, but never enough "to affect the national supplies materially or to interfere with the housewife's purchase of staple foods."

6.It is still too early to assess finally the effects of the wartime diet, but the statistics of infant and maternal mortality are encouraging."

Before the, war Canada shipped 39 per cent of Britain's wheat and flour, the booklet reported. By 1944 total imports had dropped to two-thirds, but Canada's contribution had doubled— to 83 per cent.

The same thing happened to meat shipments. Argentina remained the chief supplier but the United States and Canada supplanted Australia, New Zealand and Denmark.

Carleton College Now Has Home

Ottawa, Aug. 29. (CP)—After conducting night classes in rented quarters for four years, Carleton College of Ottawa finally has a home.

It was learned today that the college has purchased the Canadian Women's Army Corps Glebe barracks, formerly Ottawa Ladies' College, on First Avenue.

The building will be renovated and converted into administrative offices and classrooms in time for the opening of the Fall term, Sept. 18. Full-time day classes will be held for the first time and offer students first and second year university courses in Arts and Commerce, first year in Applied Science and Engineering and four years in Journalism.

It's No One's Business Where U. S. Warships Go, Says Admiral

Washington, Aug. 29. (AP)—Fleet Admiral William F. (Bull) Halsey, replying to reporters' questions about current deployment of United States warships, said today:

"It's nobody's damn business where we go. We will go anywhere we please."

The Wartime commander of the United States 3rd fleet made it clear that he did not mean that American ships could intrude into the coastal waters of any foreign country. He declared, however, that the high seas are "free".

Admiral Halsey's comments were made at the break-up of a general press conference.

Kiwanis Juniors Win First Game of O.B.A. Playdowns With Oshawa 6-5 in 11 Frames

Winning Run Scored by Vern Green on Fitzpatrick's High Fly That Went for Single

Dick Fitzpatrick's lofting hit that dropped about twenty feet behind the second-third baseline at the Alemite Field, yesterday afternoon while Oshawa players looked on, sent Verny Green, starry Belleville Kiwanis Juniors second baseman racing across the plate in the eleventh inning with the winning run that ended one of the most thrilling baseball battles seen here in some time.

The game, won by the Kiwanis Juniors over the Oshawa Flyers, Ontario baseball League championship by a score of 6-5 in the first of the second round of two-of-three series for the O.B.A. junior championship. The concluding game will be played in Oshawa on Monday, Sept. 2, at 3.30 in Alexander Park, according to convener Ernie summers. The winners' member teams of the Oshawa-Kingston series now being played.

Fitzpatrick's hit climaxed a game that had the large crowd of spectators on edge from the first inning until Green galloped home with that game-winning run. It was a nip-and-tuck battle all the way with the local kids rallying behind the fine pitching of Bobby Bunton to overcome a two-run deficit to the the score in the seventh beat at 4 all.

Anybody's Ball Game

After that innings it was anybody's ball game. Both teams sought the lead that never came until that fateful 11th inning with both batters leaning down their mates playing airtight ball behind them and the fans stilled on the edge of their seats.

Belleville got an early lead in the second innings when Bud Green rapped out a sharp single to center field, got by Murphy, Oshawa centre fielder. The galloping Green Deserved that single and stole the base and scored standing up as the ball was thrown in from the outfield.

Oshawa tied the score in the third when Pattie, got the second hit of his four for the day and scored home, when Aileen lashed out a clean triple to deep centre field. Bunton steadied down and forced the next two batters to get to "Moose" Bush at short. Ind Clans to Bat

The Oshawans appeared to have the game in the bag in the fourth when they sent three runners scampering across the plate to take what appeared to be a commanding lead.

Kelleher's error, put Dell on first with one out. He stole second and came home on Bathe's clean hit. Dave walked and Langmaid drove both runners in with a sharp single to left centre. Murphy stogied but Bunton forced Dell to flip to centre field to retire the side.

Kiwanis eked out a run in the fifth and tied the score in the seventh. Kelleher drew a walk, Bunton whiffed and Verny Green, Kiwanis sparkplug, singled. Bush was hit by the pitcher, filling the sacks and Dick Fitzpatrick lined out a clean hit that scored two runs.

Oshawa again took the lead in the eighth, when Tyson scampered home when Fitzpatrick let Reserve throw to third get past him.

Belleville, however, came back to tie the score in their half of the ninth when Verny Green raced all the way to third on a single and an outfield error to romp home when Bush flung a long fly to deep centre field. Goes Into Overtime

The game went into overtime and both teams settled down to wait for the breaks. Pitching duels are the rule when Verny Green drove a sharp bounding ball to deep centre field, scoring Kelleher who juggled it long enough to allow Green to reach second safely first. Bunton, that man up had struck out and Bush went out to the first baseman with Green going to second.

The third man was in an uproar as Fitzpatrick strode to the plate. Langmaid shot over a fast ball and Fitz lofted it high in the air to a point behind second-fish outfield baseline. Verny Green took off with the crack of the bat and as the Oshawa outfielder left-fielder allowed the ball to drop between them, scampered the plate with the winning run.

Both Pitchers Good

Bunton for the locals and Langmaid for Oshawa hurled airtight ball ball. Both were good in the clutches and both suffered from errors behind them in the outfield. Bunton struck out three and walked four while his pitching foe whiffed ten and walked three.

Oshawa's second baseman, paced his teams attack with four hits, Aileen got a double and a single and Murphy got a brace of singles. Verny Green and the heroes of the piece got himself three hits Fitzpatrick and Bush got two each.

JOHNNY GRECO EARNS DECISION OVER CASTILLOUX

Acclaimed as Canada's New Welterweight Champion by Victory

By DOUGLAS AMASON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Aug. 29 — (CP) — Johnny Greco, stocky Montreal veteran boxing fan favorite through the rugged school of the New York ring wars, was acclaimed as the Dominion's new welterweight king.

Twenty-three-year-old Johnny settled convincingly last night in a long unanswered question by outpointing a fellow Montrealer, veteran Gene Castilloux, in a 10-round decision that earned him the title.

Canny Dave's boxing skill was not enough, only the defensive except for a brief period in the eighth round when Greco, with his head, set a spirited rally brought his many supporters to their feet, leaving Castilloux with a cut under the left eye, weltering in blood and smarting from punching harder than Dave at the final bell.

Catty made no excuses for his defeat but said he underestimated his opponent. He thought he had won. Dave came out of the fight unmarked except for that cut and good shape.

The defeat ended a five - year reign for Castilloux who dethroned another Montrealer, Sammy Berger, in 1941. Dave still holds the Canadian lightweight title which was not at stake.

The smiling young scot pictured above is well-known to Belleville wrestling fans, none other than dashing Whipper Billy Watson, the pride of East York and the idol of rassle faithful all over the country. This fellow, Karl "Krippler" Davis, who has been behaving something like the Big Bad Boys of the Henning, has cut up authentic didoes with the good boys of the mat—and Manager Wrat Green is getting mighty tired of the Krippler's antics. "There is nothing I would like better," he said this week-end, "and I think yes will find Mr. Davis a very quiet man after Friday nightsie main bout in the Hume Arena here."

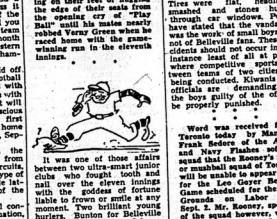
Wrat sneered the Krippler, "who is this guy Watson. Just another good-looking young guy who has been pushed around by the Cobra, Indian and Nature Boy. I'll bet you my last nickel I'll get it aplenty on Friday.

Frankie Talbot, dark-haired Hollywoodian, who is rapidly becoming a favorite here, will meet Jim "Goon" Henry in the semi-final while the old reprobate Al "Sunny" Dunlop, will be back to clash with handsome Ben Sharpe.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

That junior joust between the Belleville Kiwanis kids and the Oshawa Flyers yesterday ones at the Alemite Field Wednesday afternoon was nothing to be ashamed of from a thrill standpoint for the large crowd of fans present. It was a ring-tail snorter, as Waldo the copy boy forward would say, and had the fans standing on their feet or hanging on the edge of their seats from the opening cry of "Play Ball" until his mates nearly robbed Verny Green when he raced home with the game-winning run in the eleventh innings.



It was one of those affairs around which fought tooth and nail over the eleven innings with the issue in doubt of fortune liable to frown or smile at any moment. Two brilliant young hurlers, Bunton for Belleville and Langmaid for Oshawa turned in superb exhibitions and came through with flying colors despite their mates bobbled the ball at times behind them.

The Oshawa kids are a smart team, and don't kid yourselves that they are not the real thing. That second game scheduled for Oshawa on Monday at 2.30 of the afternoon clock should be as neat a thrill-feast as the first one fans have seen in many a moon, providing they can get softball for an afternoon.

The game was a dilly to chalk up in the score column and speaking bromidically, a heart-breaker for the loser. The decision could have gone as easily one way as the other and we can't figure out exactly why Dell the Oshawa shortstop did not pull down that high fly of Fitzpatricks that brought home the winning run. It appeared to us that the Oshawa infielder misjudged that ball and turned and ran with it hoping to grab it over his shoulder. Legree raced in from left field and the ball sailed over his head and the ball drop on the ground.

Officials of the Kiwanis squad were loud in their protests of the work of Umpire-in-Chief Allen of Oshawa behind the plate, despite the fact that the locals won the game. Continuous howls of protest against certain decisions arose from the fans throughout the game. Allies provoked such a concerted roar of indignation when he called an Oshawa runner safe at the plate, with the Belleville catcher walling with the ball to tag him out.

Officials served notice to convener Ernie Summers that they will not stand for Allen officiating at the second game. This is not a pity-baby stuff, it is strictly up to the Ontario Baseball Association to see that qualified competent officials are chosen to officiate in an important play-off games.

A regrettable incident occurred during the game when a gang of Oshawa boys, whose names are in the hands of the police, went considerably damage to cars of Oshawa fans parked near the western entrance to the Alemite Field. Tires were flat, headlights smashed and stones hurled through car windows. Police have stated that the vandalism was the work of small boys and not of Belleville fans. These incidents should not occur in any instance least of all at places where competitive sports between teams of two cities are being conducted. Kiwanis and the officials are demanding that the boys guilty of the offense be properly punished.

Word was received from Toronto Scout Executive Frank Sedore of the Army and Navy Stadium softball squad that the Rooney's senior municipal squad of Toronto will be unable to appear here for the Leo Geyer Memorial Game scheduled for one of the Fair Grounds on Labor Day, Sept. 2. Mr. Sedore's message, received by the squad however, wired that he has arranged with the Prince of Wales team, of the Dovercourt Senior League to play here. This squad is one of the starriest munkhall aggregations in Toronto and the game between it and the local All-Stars should be a gala holiday attraction.

They tell me there were high links over at Mountain View last night when the surprising Tweed intermediates 22 scored a dandy softball car crew by an 8-6 score to tie up second round series in between the squads. Mountain View knocked off Sam Carter's softball team in the first joust. They say the third till will likely be a thriller of the pamps. Joe Marsh, Latta baseball hurler coaches the Tweed side and they do say that Joe, who is a diminutive but gutsy 5ften, can toss plenty of trouble.

Goodman's softball junkers the horse-hide champions of the hit for the past two or three weeks will go into action on the Fair Grounds on Friday evening when they meet Oshawa, winners of the Peterborough-Oshawa travel round, OABA junior series. Manager Don Boyle states that his chargs are in fine fettle and rarin' to go and with reports from up west indicating that the opposition boasts a starry aggregation, interest is running high in this classic of the kids. The game is called for 6 o'clock, barring last minute changes.

Tonight in Kingston, the SACOS will back up against the powerful DVA Intermediate "A" softballers in the second tilt of the first round playdown. SACOS will need to leave their batting eyes, something they lost in the first game if they want to even the series and force a third game. Manager Mervin Peoples has Bill Jim Hunter ready for hurling duties, while DVA will throw Slevy Hook back at the local squad. The game is being played on the Cricket Field and starts at 6 o'clock. A large number of SACO fans are making the the safari with the team.

George Case of the Cleveland Indians sprinted 100 yards in ten seconds flat to lurk back the batting challenge of his unofficial title as speed king of baseball. Case, 22-year-old Washington rookie is the first player to get his feet held his own until about 20 yards from the finish, when he began to draw away. At the finish Case was still going strong. Bookies reported heavy betting, with Case a 7-5 favorite on a 5-2 pay against money.

Both men were congratulated by President Dwight Eisenhower and each received a check for $500. Clark Griffith, Case's boss and Bill Beeck of the Indians put up the prizes. The attendance helped draw 24,123 fans to the stadium.

Hollywood Wolves Part of Leafs' Chain System

Toronto, Aug. 29 — (CP) — Manager Conn Smythe of the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League announced officially last night that the Hollywood Wolves of the Pacific Coast Hockey League now are part of the Leafs' growing chain system. Bob Gracie, Leafs' property star, is manager and coach of the Hollywood team.

Toronto will send players to the Hollywood team, immediately after its athletic breasts visions of Lana Turner and Betty Grable, not to mention Dotty Lamour. Leafs are also linked with Pittsburgh Hornets of the American League and Tulsa Oilers of the United States league. A condition Leafs sponsor three junior teams — Winnipeg Monarchs, Memorial Cup holders, Toronto St. Michaels and Oshawa Generals.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By BRUCE LEVETT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, Aug. 29 — (CP) — Racing fans along the Pacific coast like their favorite sport dished up with just the right amount of sentimentality.

Take the case of jockey Emil Sportel.

Sport, who is 44, has been riding on Pacific Northwest race tracks for the last 30 years. In all that time, he has kept up a record and character unsullied and has yet to have his name mentioned in connection with any of the periodic scandals which hit racing.

He has ridden in thousands of races and several times taken the the fox furs, emblematic of the British Columbia riding championship. Prior to his arrival here for the 20th season of racing, he was top rider at Atlantic.

In appreciation of Sport's fine record and impeccable turf conduct, a Vancouver newspaper (the Province) is conducting a "Sport Day" at Hastings Park — "Little Saratoga" race track.

Sport has a host of friends, race fans and the public may contribute for the purchase of a fitting presentation for the hard-riding little jock.

The presentation will be made after the third race on Labor Day. Sport, in arrangement with the Racing Association, will be joined by the Emil Sportel and he'll take this one in from the stewards' stand.

Another indication of the spirit of sportsmanship is the story of Harry Heywood.

Mr. Heywood, a horse owner, was dying, he specifically asked that his ashes be scattered along the stretch at Hastings Park's race track, Vancouver.

Recently, with the people in the, stands looking on, his wish was carried out.

Toronto Indians Defeat Tigers

Hamilton, Aug. 29—(CP)—Toronto Indians of the Ontario Senior Rugby Union defeated Hamilton Tigers of the Interprovincial Rugby Union 4-1 last night in a pre-season exhibition football game that attracted 6,000 spectators despite heavy rain.

Sensational punting by the Stukus brothers, Annis and Bill, kept the Hamilton team on the defensive for most of the first three quarters and high class kicking by Fred Kijek also aided the Indians.

The Indians won all their points in the first and third periods, while Tigers got two in the second and six in the last.

Bill Stukus put Indians in front when he plunged over from the one-yard line for a touchdown, converted by McKelvey, in the first quarter. In the second period Annis boots over the line, after both scoring attempts had seemed to set the stage for touchdowns following Indian backfield fumbles.

In the third quarter Indians kicked two three singles on high-class kicking by Kijek and a safety touch when Tiger snapped away from Scotty Wright behind the Tiger line.

The Tigers rose at their best in the last quarter. Andy Sokol and Earl Stewart, both playing their first game of senior football, carried the ball on successive plays with Midfield before Stewart plunged over from two yards out. The touch was converted by Scotty Wright, to end the scoring.

New, Old Wear Blue and Gold Of Winnipeg

By CHARLES FINCH
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, Aug. 29 (CP)—Take a dash of the old and experienced, the new and ambitious, add a touch each, new plays, dress it up in the blue and gold of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers and you will have some idea of the team that will face the first contest in the defence of its Western Canada Senior Football championship.

The Bombers take the lid off the Western Football season Aug. 30 and Sept. 2 with a two-game series against the Montreal Alouettes. And it will be a team of lateral-conscious backfield men, their first scheduled league affair at home since Sept. 30 last season, last November 9.

Coach Jack West, whom the Club Executive imported from North Dakota gridiron circuits, has promised a new-open type of play with single and double lateral crossed on many of the plays.

On the offence they will concentrate on the "T" formation, using three United States imports in the backfield.

West probably will use 26-year-old 170-pound Walter Dobler in the quarterback slot. Dobler, a triple threat who starred on North Dakota circuits last year, can run up well as a passer, forward passenger and runner.

Don Honey, another North Dakota import, who scales a slight 160, will alternate with Harry Hood, a local product, at halfback while 190-pound Gerald Conway, also a former North Dakotan, will do his chores at the fullback spot.

Veteran gridder, 39-year-old 235- pound Matt Wilson, a local boy who has held the team's centre spot since 1938, is back again. The wingline is a mixture of old and new players. West isn't making any official prediction but if Western Conference champ West finals he will be a surprised coach.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You probably hate to lead from a weak or worthless hand, most of us do. Or from a weak or worthless suit. However, there are when such a lead seems best. Even against a no-trump contract.

Of course, you may not mind leading from a short and weak suit if your partner has bid that suit. Unless you have a good and handy reason to avoid it, you should lead partner's suit.

But I am talking about a lead from a weak or worthless short suit when partner has given you no hint. Any lead of such a time is known as a blind lead.

One type of hand from which such a lead seems best is when all your cards and suits are worthless. That is when you have no suit of your own that has a chance of being developed for future tricks.

Then is when a lead from your shortest suit may be a good one. If opponents have not bid it and you are short, partner is likely to be long and strong in that suit.

Since you have nothing to develop in your own hand, try to let your partner know that your lead. At the same time try to start with the suit he is most likely to have.

Another type of hand from which to lead a short, worthless suit is when your other suits have tenaces. That is when each of the other suits has in it A Q or A J or K J or Q J and no more than five cards.

Against a three no-trump contract, your opening lead is from this hand:

♠ K J 6 2
♥ A 10 8
♦ 9 6
♣ K 10 7 3

No suit of yours is more than four cards long. Each of three suits contains a tenace. From this hand you want to lead your worthless suit diamond nine.

This is known as a waiting lead. You are waiting for some other player to lead the suits in which you have a tenace.

—Times are when you wait until they come to you.

Hollywood Column

ROLLYWOOD COLUMN ...O.
By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Aug. 28 (AP)—It's no use—Jose Iturbi won't battle with Xavier Cugat or Arthur Rubinstein.

Cugie was quoted in a recent magazine as saying that Iturbi had "the hands of a woodchopper and suddenly crowd his concerts to see "Iturbi the movie star," not the pianist. I reported this to Iturbi, expecting a Latin explosion. But no.

"My good friend Cugie called me to annoy it," said Jose. "But he's right—my concerts now appeal to two audiences, music lovers and those who go to the movies".

The musician explained he has not chopped much wood, but if Xavier thinks he has that type of hands, "it must be true."

Nor would Jose get excited about boundmates on the long hair front. Pianist Arthur Rubinstein was reported in a trade paper as scorning film offers "because he fears embodiment of things beneath his dignity, its; cinematics of Joe Iturbi".

"My good friend Arthur called me about that," he replied blandly. "I told him to forget it."

Where, then, is the famous temperament we hear about in the higher reaches of the musical world?

That is largely a myth. Musicians have no more temper than businessmen executives. But executives are said to have displays of temper, whereas musicians are 'temperamental'.

Then you won't fight with Cugat or Rubinstein?

"No. What we need these days is solidarity."

Nomination: Iturbi for a United Nations post.

AT THE CAPITOL — Robert Hutton and Joan Leslie, lovable sweethearts of "Hollywood Canteen," are in love again in Warners' new comedy romance "Two Young To Know", now showing at the Capitol Theatre. Also featured in the film are Delores Moran, Rosemary DeCamp and Harry Davenport. On the same program Sunset Carson in "Bandits of the Badlands."

Dyer's Knack of Selecting Right Pinch Hitter at Right Time Boosts Cards' Lead

Rookie Hits Two - Run Homer to Put St. Louis 1½ Games Up Over the Dodgers

Manager Eddie Dyer's knack of picking the right pinch hitter at the right time has moved the fast flying St. Louis Cardinals into a 1½ game lead over Branch Rickey's Dodgers in the sizzling National League pennant race.

Dyer put the finger on rookie Walker Cooper last night and the young outfielder, who had connected for only one hit in 11 official times at the plate, came through with a two-run ninth-inning homer which gave the Redbirds a 5-3 victory over New York Giants and a sweep of the day and night doubleheader at St. Louis.

Earlier in the day, Dyer's Cards had broken their first place deadlock with the Dodgers by outlasting the Giants 13-8 while the Dodgers were bowing to Chicago, 6-4.

Sessi's game-winning blow marked the 12th time the Cards had pulled a game out of the fire with a last inning rally and the ninth time the winning run was driven in by a pinch batter.

Two Cub runs in the last of the ninth proved the Dodgers' undoing, a few minutes after Pee Wee Reese's eight-inning triple had apparently won for Brooklyn.

Ylast in the 12th inning.

With 71,551 cash customers, the largest crowd ever to see a night game, looking at the Yankee Stadium, New York Yankees banded 22-game winner Bob Feller his 10th defeat when Ernie Bonham shutout Cleveland Indians 6-0.

In another night game, Orval Grove and Chicago White Sox shaded Bobo Newsom and the Senators in Washington 3-1 in 13 innings.

With Denny Galehouse pitching two-hit ball, St. Louis Browns shut out the Athletics in an after dark game at Philadelphia 7-0.

Cincinnati and the Braves divided a doubleheader, Johnny Sain recording his 19th victory in the 8-4 opening Boston encore and Ewell Blackwell registering his fifth shutout in the Reds' 2-0 victory in the nightcap.

Detroit finally best Boston Red Sox after nine straight losses at Fenway Park, downing the American League leaders 7-2.

Oscar Judd of Ingersoll, Ont., limited the Pirates to four hits and drove in two runs with a double as Philadelphia Phils shoved Pittsburgh deeper into the National League cellar with a 4-1 night game triumph at Forbes Field. It was Judd's eighth victory against 11 defeats.

SYRACUSE CHIEFS ONLY HALF GAME UP ON BALTIMORE

(By The Associated Press)

With the International League pennant race settled since last Sunday when Montreal Royals clinched the flag for the second straight year, the fight for the runner-up berth continues unabated today with only 16 percentage points separating the 2nd-place Syracuse Chiefs and the fifth-place Buffalo Bisons.

The Chiefs, by virtue of their sixth consecutive victory last night, a 5-3 decision over the Jersey City Giants, are now the Orioles.

The winning run resulted when Newark's second baseman Bisa Monaco dropped an easy fly ball in the 12th allowing Jodie Beeler to cross the plate.

The Orioles kept pace with the Chiefs by downing the last-place Jersey City Giants 5-3 to take the series three games to one. Ray Flanigan went the distance and helped his own cause with a triple, single and two walks.

The Bisons missed a grand opportunity to replace the Bears in the first division by dropping a 10-7 decision to Rochester Red Wings. Eddie Joost, with a home run and single, good for three runs batted in, led the Wings.

A scheduled Montreal-Toronto doubleheader was rained out.

Eastern Gridiron Stalwarts Preparing For New Expanded Season With Stronger Teams

Fourteen Teams in Three Senior Leagues Will Play 66 Scheduled Games

1931. The imports include Chet McCance, the Winnipeg veteran and Ted King from Regina.

The Eastern Canada Football season is slated for the earliest start in history this Autumn and gridiron stalwarts in half a dozen cities are busy every night with field drills and the conditioning. The three-month campaign opens the first week in September.

The 14 teams in the East's three Senior Leagues play 55 scheduled games this year, compared with 50 last season, and for the first time games are scheduled for Ottawa, at Montreal, where the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union entry has three Sunday home games.

The 10 team in the Big Four and in the Ontario Rugby Football Union have started pre-season workouts, but the only ones which have a chance to contest the Dominion championship, now held by the Toronto Argonauts.

The Big Four is represented by the traditional four cities—Hamilton, Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal. Its 24-game schedule opens Sept. 7.

The O.R.F.U. has grown to six teams from the last year's five with the return to the football wars of the Sarnia Imperials. The other entries are the 1951 Champion Toronto Balmy Beach, Toronto Indians, Hamilton Wildcats, Windsor Rockets and Ottawa Rough-riders. The 30-game schedule opens Sept. 6.

Open an Oct. 5th

The four intercollegiate teams —Western, Varsity, Queen's and McGill—start their practices in September, opening a 12-game schedule Oct. 3.

Norm D'Agonaus, with Joe Krol the triple-threat smoothie back again, steps up as the team to beat for the Big Four title and pre-season expectations are that their toughest opposition will come from Hamilton Tigers, who have also an imposing array of backfield and line talent. The Montreal Alouettes, with several imports from the United States, will be the team to upset both Argo and Tiger hopes.

The Alouettes are counting on the skill of Coach-master strategist, Lew Hayman, to weld their imposing and homebrewed into a powerful team and are hoping for their first Big Four title since

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

Toronto, Aug. 29 —(CP)— Alfred Harold Jackson, 23, yesterday was committed for trial on a charge of rape of a 17-year-old school playground supervisor. Aug. 20 the girl testified she was assaulted in the woods. The accused is the son of the school janitor.

SOLDIER'S MORALE

His definition of leadership:

"The leader's power of decision, bearing from his shoulders the mental imperturbable in a crisis. His calmness prevents panic and his resolution compels action. It follows from this that the leader must be free from fear himself.

"The leader's greatest asset is the ability to act rationally in abnormal conditions, to continue to think rationally when his men have ceased to think, or to be creative in action when they are paralyzed by fear."

His definitions of other army factors:

Discipline — Men must learn to obey orders when all their instincts cry out for them not to be obeyed. They must learn to obey orders in times of stress so that they will do so in times of danger.

Comradeship — An army is made up of human beings so that however much a leader may inspire his men, however perfect the discipline, the army will be a hard and unsympathetic if the warmth of comradeship is not added to it . . . It surrounds a man together with a presence of warmth and strength at the very moment when he is feeling cold and weak.

The Field Marshal said this in conclusion:

"Man is still the first weapon of war. His training is the most important consideration in the fashioning of a fighting army. All depends upon him. He rewards towards his assistance, but on his efforts depends the success of the battle. The morale of the soldier is the most important single factor in an army in war; and in peace."

Pupils Remain In Peach Orchards

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 28—(CP) — Hundreds of busloads of pupils from 123 public and separate district orchards this year unless the shortage of labor is relieved, Fred Jackson, chief high school students to remain at work after the scheduled opening of school Sept. 3. Thomas W. Brant, national employment service manager, said today.

Fruit-growers distributed much of the success of this year's crop to the help of more than 2,000 boys and girls, he said, but the return to school now the growers face a "tremendous problem."

At Grimsby, in the heart of the Niagara district, high school opening has been postponed two weeks to enable pupils to remain at work in the orchards.

Monty's System Beat Rommell Also Reporters

By JACK BRADLEY
(CP Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 28 — (CP) — Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery told reporters here today the way he beat Rommel's Afrika Korps was to decide on a battle plan and refuse to be diverted from it. The reporters, having his first press conference in Canada, decided the veteran of Alamein had overcquered them by the same method.

He kept the ball during most of the interview and when he did let it go, he made sure it was rolling in the direction that suited his plans.

He neatly sidestepped questions on delicate Canadian subjects such as conscription, Canada's Commonwealth defence contribution, Anglo-American equipment, standardization and integration of forces. With a bland smile and a wave of his hand to Defence Minister Ilsley, the famous soldier said such subjects were matters for the statesmen and not for the soldiers.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Aug. 29 (CP)—Trade this morning on the livestock market here continued firm with prospects of a fair cleanup.

Weighty steers brought $13.50 and good butcher steers and heifers $12-$12.25 but most went at $10.50-$11.50. A few good to choice steers at $7.50 and cows to medium cows $6-$9 down to $5.50. A few bologna bulls went at $5.25-$6.25 with stockers $8 to $10.50.

Few calves were offered and brought $15-$15.50, good vealers sold down to $13.

Hog prices unchanged at $21.75 for A grade, $12.85 B1 and $12.50 for sows.

The lamb market was steady at $14 off trucks and $14.50 off cars for good ewes and wethers, bucks discounted at $1 per cwt. Good sheep sold from $7-$7.50 and culls down to $5.

HOGS

Toronto, Aug. 29—(CP) — Grade A dressed, bacon-hogs were $21.60 delivered at Brantford, advanced 25 cents and are $21.45 delivered in Toronto and $21.85 delivered to truckers at Stratford, and $21.50 delivered at Barrie, in markets reporting early today.

Canada to Retain Exchange Control, Aid to Sterling

By SIDNEY CAMPBELL
London, Aug. 29 —(Reuters)— Canada's decision to retain her foreign exchange controls despite the strength of the Canadian dollar is regarded as a good omen for sterling.

Canada is not a member of the sterling area but she may choose to retain the exchange controls until sterling regains its full convertibility. The Bretton Woods Agreement allows and encourages Canada, Britain or any other country to maintain exchange controls on capital transfers.

Canada still requires exchange control in relation to the dollar because she is not getting paid in convertible currency for her exports to the sterling area. She is resuming her pre-war role on a large import surplus from the United States and a large export surplus to Britain — and she pays cash for former without getting cash from the latter.

Her position cannot balance itself without control until her sterling earnings can be used freely to pay her United States creditors.

It is accepted generally that sterling's strength after next July — when all sterling currency has to be made freely convertible and the present dollar pool will be abandoned — will depend on the willingness of the other members of the sterling area to coordinate their exchange controls with Britain's.

VETERANS' PLUNGE IN CO-OP FARMING GIVEN GOOD START

Take Over 16-Section Ranch Site in Project Sponsored by Saskatchewan Government

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Swift Current, Sask., —(CP)— Fifteen veterans who want to be "big farmers before they are too old to enjoy it" today have 320 acres of flax almost ready for cutting and more than 3,000 acres of land broken to show for three months' work on their co-operative farm about 45 miles north of here.

The 16-section site is on the former Matador ranch, long used as grazing ground, but now turned to rich farming land by dawn to dusk tractor work. Next year's project to have 2,500 acres turned before winter.

Incorporation of the provincially-sponsored project is complete after four surveys. The Saskatchewan government has loaned four caterpillar tractors, two trucks, a scop and other farm machinery to the men who will take over the equipment when incorporation is completed.

And to the veterans—average age in their early 30's—who are backed by this provincial authorities whether or not the group is recognized under the Veteran's Land Act. The question of federal loans to the group now is under discussion at Ottawa.

The project has been divided into three working groups since the men arrived at the farm site in April. One group has been dismantling and moving six barrack-block buildings from St. Aldwyn's airport eight miles north of here to the farm site. A second group set up the houses and a third plowed and sowed.

Now five family homes and one dormitory have been set up and two of the co-operators' families have joined the community.

Irrigation Started

An irrigation project has been started at the site with immediate expectations of irrigating 160 acres of land and eventually 400.

The co-operative plan was first formulated last year with a meeting of representatives of farm management, representatives of the soil department of the University of Saskatchewan, provincial rehabilitation and co-operative officials and a Dominion experimental farm representative.

Of the 25 men who first showed interest in the plan, 11 have dropped out of the project.

The men have signed a 33-year lease on the land with an option to purchase from the provincial government in 10 years. Purchase price will be determined by the productive capacity of the land over the period. Rental will be charged on a scale varying from one-sixth to one-eighth of the crop, depending on returns.

The veterans regard their pioneer work as an experiment affecting the future of co-operative farming.

They say: "On our success or failure rests the future of co-operative farming. We must prove that co-operative farming on a large scale can be democratic and economically sound."

JEWISH CYPRUS DEPORTEES CLASH WITH BRITISH

Using fixed bayonets, British Tommies kept visiting Jewish immigrants within their barbed wire enclosure on the Island of Cyprus where they were sent after attempting to enter Palestine illegally, it was revealed. The violence broke out when the deportees heard a report that members of the "illegals" would not be permitted to enter Camp Karaolos where they were being held under heavy guard.

Strive to Bring Beauty to Homes

Winnipeg, Aug. —(CP)—Students of the University of Manitoba's school of interior decoration are learning the principles of color and design in a movement to bring new grace and beauty to prairie homes.

Professor John Russel, head of the school, hopes to see his pupils develop a good, contemporary style of decoration that will bring glowing color to the dwellings of Western Canada. Already, graduates of the course, now in its eighth year, are designing home interiors, store displays and street-car interiors.

In all classes, the emphasis is on beauty and usefulness.

"Interior decoration is not simply a matter of hanging tinsel on a christmas tree," Professor Russell tells his students. "Every item in a room must be planned for its contribution to the total effect, for its comfort, for its use."

"Usefulness is the test of modern furniture. That doesn't rule out everything except, modern furniture. Period furniture can be combined, with contemporary types into a pattern suitable for living today."

The smooth-talked students—nearly all of them women —start off with primary lessons in color, shapes and forms. Later, they build cut-away models of houses, and for their graduation thesis they do a series of sketches of a complete home.

Professor Russell emphasises that well-handled interior decoration is not just for high-priced homes. In fact he says, it will probably find its greatest usefulness in the four-room dwellings now mushrooming up all over Canada.

DURBAN YOUTHS SHOCK VISITORS

"Spooning" on Beaches Draws Fire of Visiting Capetowners

Durban, South Africa,—(CP)— Two young Capetown women who spent two days in Durban are shocked by the "spooning" that takes place on Durban beaches. "Spooning in public to the extent to which it seems to be practised in Durban is disgusting," they say.

They say that they could not sit in a cafe or walk about the beach without being accosted by young men "making passes" at them. However, Durban's pretty, blond Elvia Johnstone puts it down to Durban's many visitors, and adds, "Maybe it's just plain jealousy. Perhaps they find that Durban's 'Rennoc' lack the technique of those in Capetown."

A Durban man with a good knowledge of Capetown was of the opinion that the less said about the moral standard observed at some Capetown beach resorts, the better.

CANADIAN'S DIARY AIDS PROSECUTION IN JAP WAR TRIAL

Wing Cmdr. L. J. Birchall, "Savior of Ceylon," Kept Record of Prison Tortures

Ottawa, —(CP)—The diary of one of Canada's noted fighting men, the Second World War R.A.F. is one of the key factors in compilation of evidence against Japanese who tortured Canadian prisoners-of-war.

It is the diary of Wing Cmdr. Leonard Joseph Birchall, O.B.E., D.F.C., "Savior of Ceylon," who, with surprising thoroughness, took down the history of every prisoner he met. In fact his collection of data is valued by every country whose warriors became Japanese prisoners.

A native of St. Catharines, Ont., Birchall was shot down over the Indian Ocean and taken prisoner after sending back the warning that a Japanese fleet was approaching Ceylon. The warning led to a repulse of the enemy armada and to a hero's welcome back in Canada.

His contribution was made known by the R. C. A. F. in its report of Canada's efforts to track down the torturers of her men.

In Ottawa, the Canadian War Crimes Investigation Section at National Defence Headquarters, under Lt. Col. M. J. Griffin of Vancouver, sorts out the evidence, and adds the written testimony of former prisoners now in Canada. Liaison with the Air Force is maintained through an officer who handles the atrocities against R.C.A.F. personnel receive appropriate attention.

Saved Half Diary

The Birchall diary consisted of several flimsy-papered books, only half of which he was able to get out of Japan. During the war he kept the books hidden in a false-backed book and smuggled part of it from place to place in his pillow. Half the diary was lost in a bombardment by an American fleet.

Birchall suffered all the usual hardships including sentence to a "disciplined" camp where life was made particularly miserable in an effort to crush the spirits of officers whom the Japanese found particularly unmanageable.

One of his camps was that at which the United States fliers who first bombed Tokyo were imprisoned. All saw at least one of them tortured and heard of the deaths of others. He was camped outside Tokyo during the burning and bombing of that city.

Progress reports list names of men and places that will ring a familiar, if painful, note to many prostrated Canadians from the Far Eastern war theatre.

One report is "Captain Eiichi Soida, formerly of Cycle Camp in Batavia, Java, is in custody facing charges for mistreatment of prisoners of war and civilians," and, Captain Kantaro Tanaka of Makasura Camp in Batavia, Java, is awaiting trial on charges of brutality and neglect."

Other names and places include Sgt. Major Masao Mori of camps in Bandoeng, Java, and on Ambon Island in the Moluccas; Lieut. Col. Bano of Medan Camp, Sumatra, who as awaiting trial on charges relating to the "Notorious camps on the Burma railway."

Bantin also told of Japanese sentries who cut out chunks of infected flesh from prisoners' arms and legs without administering anaesthetic.

Flt. Lt. William Lockwood of Renfrew, Ont., Sgt. Clarence Aitken of Vancouver, F/O. Donald Simms of Montreal and Flt. Lt. Lawrence Montgomery of Lachine, Que. described intolerable living conditions with food of such poor quality and meagre rations that to keep alive was a real achievement.

In a few cases transportation is arranged for a serviceman or civilian to the East where the trials or investigations are being held. But more often affidavits or "depositions" are sufficient.

A check on all sources or evidence requires affidavits be obtained from all parts of the world.

Descriptions of beatings by Japanese guards are numerous in depositions. Sgt. L. Voyvich of Montreal described the nervous tension under which prisoners at the camp lived daily due to the cruelty of a camp guard named Captain Sono. Sono, according to Voyvich, stoned and struck, without provocation, any prisoner he met while walking through the camp.

Voyvich also described an instance when a ring of guards surrounded a prisoner and passed through a small opening at the top. The nakedness of the atomic bombings instead of invasion plans."

Long trenches, "presumably for air raid shelters," built at detention camps of Flt. Sgt. W. F. Smith, still in the R. C. A. F. at Ottawa. "They had no doors at the ends made of logs which could be secured from the outside," his affidavit reads.

Sgt. Voyvich said he was once used in a test and but the whole camp was warned that when a certain signal was given any man in camp was to proceed on the double into the pits with a blanket. We found out after the Jap exercise that these were our graves. At the first sign of invasion of Japan, we were to be formed around a prisoner and gassed through a small vent at the top. The nakedness of the atomic bombings instead of invasion plans."

21 Persons Killed, 32 Seized by Reds In Greek Riots

Political Violence Grows As Vote on Monarchy Nears

By L. S. CHAKALES

Athens, Greece, Aug. 30 (AP)—Political violence increased sharply today as the Greeks prepared to vote Sunday on the fate of the monarchy. The Ministry of Public Order said 21 persons had been killed and 32 others seized by Communist bands in the last 24 hours.

Slayings occurred in Macedonia, Thessaly and the Peloponnesus. Four mine clashes were reported from Trikkala, in Thessaly.

The heaviest attack was by 400 Leftists, armed with automatic weapons, on a police station near Grevena, in western Macedonia. The Leftists killed a policeman, seized six others and carried off 15 civilians after forcing the station to surrender. The Rightist civilian and his son were slain.

Another outlaw gang of 100 attacked a police station near Trikkala, killing three police and wounding two.

Acting Premier Stylianos Gonatas published announcement of the plebiscite guards over loudspeakers and also forbade political gatherings.

"Now is the chance to express our free will," Gonatas said in his formal statement. "If this day (Sunday) passes with calmness you will know it is to the credit of Greece and will raise us in the eyes of the nations, while the world whose eyes are centred on Greece."

The military said any communists disturbing the balloting should be directed to the military supervisors at the polls. The United States Embassy statement said it could not send observers because of lack of personnel. Russia rejected an invitation to send observers.

Russo Espionage Ring Broken By American Agents

By THOMAS A. REEDY

Frankfurt, Germany, Aug. 29 (AP) — United States authorities today formally announced the smashing of a German spy ring with Soviet ramifications and asserted that the ringleader had made a full confession of furnishing the Russians information of American troop movements.

The announcement added that at least one of the defendants had been employed by the American military government.

The public relations division of the United States forces of the European theatre confirmed a disclosure from Stuttgart that a night of the arrest of the alleged spies. The division said that 15 Germans were in prison awaiting trial on espionage charges.

The defendants were said to be leaders of an organization known as "The Gehlen Group."

The announcement gave the names of the principal defendant, Walter Kaznarek of Stuttgart, and his wife Hanna.

"It is clear we support the Soviet policy to the limit. A few of us in the West will do more to them than a few divisions. When the next war comes letters will disappear in a hurry."

Sought to Make Contact

USPET said Kaznarek first was employed by the American military government in Dec. 1945, and that his position as interpreter attracted the surveillance of the counter-intelligence corps. He and his wife were picked up when they sought to make contact with Russian officials in the Russian zone of occupation, the announcement said.

Electrical recordings of conversations secured by microphones installed in what the group was dedicated to a long-range political espionage system in the American United States military attaches' apartments in Berlin, USPET said.

It was said a Russian secret police officer, founded the "Free Germany" movement, and Stalin and Gen. Dwight Eisenhower had each paid 5,000 marks ($500 at the official rate) to Kaznarek for reporting on American troop movements in the Frankfurt area.

Russian officers in the Soviet repartions commission were in the group's employ, the statement said. Russian officials in Berlin refused to be turned to the U.S.S.R., it added.

Employers Praised For Finding Work For Returned Vets

Ottawa, Aug. 30 —(CP) — Labor Minister Mitchell today praised the efforts of employers to provide suitable work for ex-service personnel returning to their former employment or to be called upon recently-discharged personnel to break in with their former employers and declare their intentions.

In a statement, the minister said re-absorption of veterans into employment would be greatly assisted "if certain veterans who have never accommodated to their pre-enlistment employers would do so."

Some employers were keeping jobs open for veterans who had long left the country and thus did not intend to return to their former jobs.

"It would clear some vacancies in employment if persons who after discharge in this category would inform his pre-enlistment employer that he will not be seeking reinstatement," Mr. Mitchell said.

The employer was "doing his very best to get in touch with reinstatement in civil employment each year and first half of 1946 detailed programme to facilitate re-employment of ex-servicemen. Some progress even went so far as to set aside jobs for former employees while still in uniform.

Under the re-employment in civil employment act, veterans may apply for reinstatement up to three months after the time of discharge. If a period of convalescence is required, this may be extended six months on application.

SECOND SESSION 20TH PARLIAMENT NEARING ITS END

Members Hold Late Sitting in Order To Hasten Prorogation Set For Saturday

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 30 — (CP)—The second session of Canada's 20th parliament was seemingly near the end today after its longest in the legislative saddle of the nation.

The clock in the big green Commons chamber ground slightly beyond midnight before the forces its members called it a day and went home to catch some sleep before resuming their seats at 10 a.m.

They are ready to sit from 10 until midnight daily until they finish their work. Indications are that prorogation may fall today.

Members waded through the estimates of the Fisheries Department, completed those of the Finance Department and were knee-deep in those of the Trade and Commerce Department when they quit for the night. The Senate, meanwhile, cleared off its slate in preparation for the formalities of the nation's end.

Launching his department's estimates, Trade Minister MacKinnon said in an expanded foreign trade programme more than $1,000,000 in the appropriations fits "every part of the world-way" made in reopening trade offices abroad.

Objects to Britain's Policy

In debate, Karl Homuth, (PC-Waterloo South) warned that if Canada built up an expensive merchant marine policy she would not be able to compete in world markets. Canada should buy the best wages but they should not increase to the point where they would destroy Canada's trade position.

He objected to Britain's policy in refusing to allow imports of certain Canadian goods.

Joseph Burton (CCF — Hamboldt) objected to export of cattle during a meat shortage and said Canadians should benefit first from Canada's products.

Mr. MacKinnon told W. Chesley Ward (PC-Simcoe North) that he was attempting to do away with export permits for pulpwood as quickly as possible.

Hal Winkler (PC-Renfrew North) asked the minister of finance if

The course will be under the instruction of Mr. Frank Stevens, camp superintendent and applicants can be either boys or girls over 16. Any eligible boy or girl is welcome to attend.

COUNCIL MEETING WILL BE ON WEDNESDAY

The regular meeting of the city council, the first since the summer recess, will take place on Wednesday evening, September 4, instead of on Tuesday evening as would normally be the case, it was decided by council members at their committee meeting on Thursday evening. Monday evening would be the regular meeting night for council, but in view of the Labor Day holiday the session will be held on Wednesday.

RUNAWAY HORSE CAUSES EXCITEMENT

Street pedestrians and residents of the Pinnacle and Dundas Street neighborhood had all the excitement of an old fashioned runaway Thursday afternoon when a horse owned by the Harry Smith Fuel and Fuel Company became frightened and shat out her hocks before he was quieted.

Kenneth Peoples, John Street, was driving the horse west on Dundas Street when the animal became frightened and bolted across a nearby gasoline station before turning south on Pinnacle Street. The horse galloped along Pinnacle Street, then into the Graham Dried Foods building lot where the wagon struck a parked auto owned by Miss Louise Rollins, R.R. 4, Belleville. The force of the impact drove the parked car into another vehicle owned by Keith Roblin of Brighton. Wonder damage resulted to both autos but the horse escaped injury.

KINGSTON-HIT-AND-RUN DRIVER APPREHENDED

A Kingston hit-and-run driver had short liberty Thursday evening on Dundas Street when in attempting to pass the car ahead his vehicle was in collision with another proceeding in the opposite direction causing extensive fender damage.

Police Constable Warring witnessed the accident from the local police cruiser and promptly gave chase overhauling the hit-and-run driver at William Street. The driver, Thomas Cota of Kingston, was driving a New Brunswick owned vehicle.

SEVEN DELEGATES LEAVE FOR EDMONTON

Seven delegates representing the local Army and Navy Veterans Branch No. 201, left today for Edmonton to attend the annual convention of Dominion Command which will run for four days, starting September 2nd.

Delegates from the local branch to go to Edmonton are James Lasenby, 2nd vice president of the Dominion Command; Bill Ford, president of the Provincial Command; Wm. Hamilton Kenna, acting president of the local branch; Thomas York, Jack Park, Percy Ford, Cecil Reid, and Arthur Galbraith.

THREE LANGUAGES USED IN COURT

There is a court reporter has to be something of a linguist to correctly take down evidence in certain cases. This was amply demonstrated in Trenton this week when no less than three different languages were heard during one charge.

The case in question was a charge of trespassing against a French Canadian who had been apprehended in Trenton as he "changed" trains at that point after travelling blind baggage from Montreal.

In consideration of the man's nationality, Crown Attorney R. D. Dunnett asked the man in French, but when explaining to the magistrate was surprised to hear the accused ask in English "What are you going to do with me now?"

Taken aback the Crown remarked something about the requirements of being a linguist and in German promptly ordered the accused to get out of town.

Juice Analysts Hired by P.E. County Factories

Graduating last week from a short course at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, three young Prince Edward County girls have started their new spheres of activity.

They will be employed at three tomato canning plants in the county; at Tomato Juice Limited, Consolidated Canneries Limited and Dominion Canners Limited. Each of these plants has been rated "A" by Government regulations and will be permitted to be contained in the juice when canned. It is not unusual for a fruit to be found in the mould until the fruit has been processed into juice.

The young ladies' work will be to test the juice at frequent intervals during the processing operations.

The newest specialists are Miss Allison Geddes, Picton, who has accepted a position with the Imperial Food Plant there; Miss Eleanor Willes, Wellington, who will join the staff of the Canadian Canners' plant in that village, and Mrs. Arthur Cork, Bloomfield, who has become associated with the Canadian Canners plant there.

U.S. Protests Proposed Russo-Swedish Loan

Washington, Aug. 30 (AP) — The United States has sent a note to Moscow and Stockholm protesting a proposed $200,000,000 Russian-Swedish loan and trade agreement which the Washington diplomatic officials disclosed last night.

The American government is reported to have complained that the trade pact envisaged between Russia and Sweden is a bi-lateral deal which will conflict with United Nations plans for expanded multi-lateral commerce.

These informants said the American Embassy in Moscow and Stockholm had delivered the United States protest about a week ago. Russia signed the nearly-completed five-year pact before then, however.

Under its terms, Sweden would agree to loan Russia about $200,000,000 while both countries would deliver specific amounts of commodities and services and raw materials to each other.

The Swedish pact is similar to one which caused Britain and Canada to alter the terms of a bi-lateral trade agreement several months ago.

Four District Students Win Awards at Queen's

Two Belleville and two Belleville district students at Queen's University won awards and bursaries according to the scholarship list released by the university today.

Norman W. Meyers, Belleville, received the award of the Reid Scholarship in chemistry, valued at $40, while Donald B. Reavis received the Elias Nickle Scholarship in English, also valued at $40. Recipients in both the above awards went to other students.

District students to win awards included Miss Margaret L. May of Trenton who was awarded the Forbes McHardy Scholarship in Latin with the honor graded to Keith Gallie of Windsor. Miss May also received a J. S. McLean bursary valued at $125, given to assist promising students from rural communities, while a like bursary was received by Howard P. Brooks of Picton.

Jack Bonn First From Flying Club To Fly Solo

Jack Bonn, proprietor of the Bonn Motor Sales, has the honor of being the first student pilot of the Belleville Flying Club to "solo."

Mr. Bonn got the surprise of his life the other day when after the usual instruction from the teacher pilot, he was told, "O.K. Jack, you're on your own."

He had taken several hours of instruction, so according to Mr. Bonn, with his hands on the controls and his heart in his mouth, he took off and flew over the field and the city.

The flight was a success and Mr. Bonn will go on in order to get his licence.

TWO SLAYERS EXECUTED

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 30 (AP) — John Luffman, 46, and Alvin Hicks, 24, went to their deaths in the electric chair at the state penitentiary early today for the slaying of a young married couple, Grady and Ruphine Cherry, in August, 1943.

The execution came one year and 19 days after Luffman and Hicks were convicted of killing the Cherrys, whose bullet - torn bodies were found in the living room of the Dover, Tenn., home of their uncle, Deputy Sheriff N. K. Herndon.

Legion President and Montgomery — Major - General C. B. Price, president of the Canadian Legion, was a busy man on Parliament-Hill when Field Marshal Montgomery visited with representatives of the Legion shortly after he arrived in Montreal. Maj.-Gen. Price conducted the Field Marshal around the assembled veterans and is pictured above leaving down the steps of Parliament Hill with the Field Marshal while the flag of Parliament Hill can be seen in the background. —(Canadian Army Photo).

Qualified Volunteers Urgently Needed to Assist at Hospital

"An appeal is being sent out by Belleville General Hospital officials to those ladies of the city who qualified, during the war years, in the local Red Cross Nursing Corps.

"Help is urgently needed at the hospital, according to Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson, in charge of the Red Cross Nursing Division here.

Those ladies who wish to assist in a work that is crowding hospital personnel to a point nearly beyond their capacity, are requested to get in touch with Miss Johnson at the hospital.

The work is light and consists of helping to carry trays and to assist with dressings.

This assistance is needed particularly for the next two weeks, and volunteers will be asked to work a couple of hours daily, only. Time can be arranged with hospital authorities to suit the volunteer's convenience.

These ladies it is pointed out, did an admirable job during the war years, and it is felt that they would once more be willing to assist in similar work.

Wrong Interpretation on Shipping Points for Cheese Confuses Salesmen

Wrong interpretation by Belleville Cheese Board salesmen as to the exact meaning of the recent Wartime Prices and Trade Board ruling that cheese factory is the recognized shipping point for certain class of cheese, was responsible for a lengthy discussion on the Belleville Board, Thursday evening at the regular monthly meeting.

According to the regulation the factory was made the recognized shipping point for domestic cheese only and did not apply to cheese intended for the export market. Many of the factory salesmen, however, took the view that the order applied to all cheese and were in favor of withholding cheese from the board until a ruling on the order was received.

Cheese buyers were in accord with the correct interpretation of the order applying only to domestic cheese.

These ladies it is pointed out, did an admirable job during the war years, and it is felt that they would once more be willing to assist in similar work.

Mail copies of the order were offered on the board, all being sold at the ceiling price f.o.b. factory.

Six New Teachers Join Staff Of Public Schools

Six new teachers, two men and four women, have been added to the public school teaching staff for the opening of the school term next week, it was stated today by L. A. Kells, public school inspector for Belleville.

The new men teachers are George A. Elliott, formerly of Lowlands, Ontario, who will be manual training teacher for a new course to be instituted in local public schools and W. J. Musgrove who will act as part time guidance director.

Women teachers added to the public school staff include Miss Mabel Chapman of Brighton township; Miss Phyllis Beatty, and Miss Julie Crosby, both of Sidney township and Miss Jean Allan of Thomasburg.

Consider Landing Strips For Tourists Flying to Canada

Ottawa, Aug. 30 — (CP) — Trade Minister MacKinnon proclaimed consideration today of a suggestion that landing strips be laid down to accommodate tourists who wish to fly into Canada.

Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC — Macleod) said Alberta Boards of Trade had suggested that such strips be built at places such as Banff and Lake Louise.

Maritime Union Calls off Strike

Detroit, Aug. 30 — (AP) — The National Maritime Union (C.I.O.) today called off a Great Lakes strike except against seven firms operating 21 vessels.

N.M.U. headquarters said strike bound ships would be freed as of midnight except for those operated by the seven firms which refused to sign "not interested yet in reaching a satisfactory settlement."

The seven operators were the Inland Steel Co., Minneapolis Honeywell Company, American Steel and Wire Company, International Harvester Company, Brown Shasta Steamship Company, Jupiter and Texas Oil.

Action ending the strike came after the 15th day of the walkout after the N.M.U. had signed agreements with several lake firms calling for a 40-hour work week at sea and 44 hours ashore. The standard work week previously was 56 hours.

The said nine companies operating 33 lake vessels have settled on the 40-44 hour basis, the Interstate Steamship Company and International Harvester the latest to sign.

In a statement N.M.U. officials declared they were "not giving up the fight for the 40-hour week" however, they said the decision was made to call off the general strike because the union had "broken" the seven-day, 56-hour week and the Lake Carriers Association had recommended the shorter week be adopted for unorganized seamen.

The Plot Against Hitler

The story of the only serious attempt to overthrow the Fuehrer is here told by Chester Wilmot, who recounts in London calling the events that led up to 'a blot-dash in which the last traces of opposition were drowned', leaving Hitler to fight on 'until five past midnight.'

One usually begins at the beginning, but I want to start this story in the middle. The time is mid-day on Sunday, July 20, 1944. The place is Hitler's headquarters near Rastenburg, in East Prussia. In the compound outside the Fuehrer's bunker, a German officer, Count Klaus von Stauffenberg, is sitting in a staff car, smoking a cigarette. On the seat beside him is a brief-case. In the brief-case is a bomb—a rather important bomb, which may alter the course of history. Up on it, there depends the immediate future of millions of people in every continent, and of one man in particular—the man for whom it is intended, Adolph Hitler.

This was the occasion for which von Stauffenberg and his fellow conspirators had been waiting and planning for years. Several times plans had first been shaped, behind the closed doors of a small and exclusive Berlin club, known as the Wednesday Society. There was the rendezvous of three men now prominent in the German public life: General Ludwig Beck, Chief of Staff of the Army, until he had disagreed with Hitler's plans for Czechoslovakia; Dr. Karl Goerdeler, Reich Commissioner for Price Control, until he had expressed disapproval of Hitler's economic policy; and Ulrich von Hassell, German Ambassador in Rome, until he had warned the Fuehrer that Mussolini would be a military liability.

Conspirators Drawn from All Classes.

Even in the days of Hitler's triumphs, these men foresaw disaster ahead, and began to collect around them a mixed group of conspirators as ever hatched a plot—unified only by their hatred of serving Nazi officials, or civil servants and former German diplomats; Socialists and Communists; Catholics and Lutherans; Junkers and Socialists; Conservative Trade Unionists; idealists, contractors and opportunists; men in all sections of the community except the extreme Left. The Communists and the more radical of the Social Democrats remained aloof.

Beck, Goerdeler and their main associates had no illusions. They were not pacifists or Conservatives. They wanted a political revolt, and a social and economic revolution, and the extreme Right saw no point in removing Hitler for the purpose of establishing a military Conservative government.

In 1943 there had been two abortive attempts to kill Hitler, and when these failed, the conspirators decided to put their hands until after the Allied invasion of Western Europe. They planned then to assassinate Hitler, to seize control of the Home Army headquarters and the State, and to stop the battle in the west while continuing to fight in the east. They hoped to force the hands of the Western Allies by declaring publicly that if Britain and America had a chance to end the war, they would not demand 'unconditional surrender' but form a non-Nazi Government.

In June, 1944, we landed in Normandy. By the end of the month von Rundstedt and Rommel knew that the campaign was lost, and they said so to Hitler, who replied by sacking the one and reprimanding the other. This rebuff drove Rommel into the camp of the conspirators, and he agreed to cease negotiations in Normandy as soon as Hitler had been removed from power. But they must act at once, before the Allies gained so decisive a victory in the west that they would no longer consider a compromise.

The task of assassinating Hitler was assigned to von Stauffenberg, in spite of serious physical handicaps. He had lost one arm and two fingers of his other hand in battle in Tunisia, but, as Chief of Staff of the Home Army, he was the only conspirator who had regular access to Hitler's operational conferences. Into these he could carry a brief-case without exciting suspicion.

His first chance came at a conference at Berchtesgaden on July 11. Von Stauffenberg arrived with the bomb in his brief-case, but when he found that Himmler and Goering were not there, he carried it back to Berlin, for he had been ordered to ensure that they were killed as well. Goering was in Berlin, he discovered that two Socialist members of the Resistance Movement had been arrested that day by the Gestapo. These two men had been trying to enlist Communist support for the plot, and had been rash enough to supply the Communist Central Committee with the names of the Army, Navy and Air Force officers in the conspiracy. One of the committee was evidently a Gestapo agent and the crucial question was: did Himmler now have the list of names?

As the days passed, and the Gestapo made no further action, the conspirators breathed more freely, and on July 15 von Stauffenberg flew again to Hitler's headquarters, at which he was moved back to its usual location in East Prussia. Once more, carrying the lethal brief-case, he entered the Fuehrer's concrete bunker. Hitler was there, Goering was there, but Himmler was not.

Von Stauffenberg thought quickly. Perhaps Himmler did know, and was merely waiting for them to assassinate Hitler so that he could seize power for himself! When it came to von Stauffenberg's turn to report, he opened his brief-case, drew out his papers, and gave the information required of him. But he retrieved his lurking fingers from setting off the mechanism of the bomb, which, in the cramped space of the bunker, would have blown Hitler, Goering and the rest to oblivion.

As soon as he could, he left the conference, telephoned to Berlin to his chief, General Olbricht, and told him of Himmler's absence. Olbricht ordered him not to return to the conference and complete his mission, but when von Stauffenberg reached the bunker, Hitler had already left.

Once again, he flew back to Berlin with the bomb in his brief-case. Once he found his fellow conspirators in considerable alarm. Anticipating action that day, they had 'alerted' many of their minor agents throughout Germany, and had divulged in some indiscreet discussions of plans and dates. This alarm was intensified next day when one of the conspirators, who was also Chief of Himmler's Criminal Department, reported that the Gestapo was hunting for Goerdeler—the Chancellor-designate of the new government.

And so, when von Stauffenberg found himself sitting next to the bunker at mid-day on July 20, he knew that was now or never. He knew, too, that the circumstances were less favorable than they had been on the two previous occasions. Neither Himmler nor Goering was there, and, more serious, the conference was to be held, not in the concrete bunker, but in a flimsy wooden hut at ground level, where the bomb would be less effective.

About twelve-thirty, Keitel, Jodl, and a dozen other officers of the Supreme Command, gathered outside the hut, waiting for the Fuehrer. Von Stauffenberg remained in his car until Hitler had appeared and had led the way into the hut—a bare room with a massive oak table in the centre. It was an unusual table, not standing upon four straight legs but resting on a sort of under-structure. This consisted of a solid, central block, from which four deep, massive beams ran out diagonally to the corners, so that the space beneath the table was divided by four thick partitions.

Round this table, Hitler and his officers ranged themselves and spread out maps upon its broad surface. Hitler stood about the middle of the side furthest from the door, and leaned forward, studying the map, as he listened to a review of the eastern front given by General Heusinger.

Premature Announcement of Hitler's Death.

Von Stauffenberg waited about five minutes. Then he set the time mechanism of the bomb in operation, snapped his brief-case shut, and walked briskly across to the conference room. Heusinger was still speaking, and von Stauffenberg moved to end of the table to Hitler's right. Bending down, he placed the brief-case against the outer of the two beams on which the table rested. There the bomb was only six feet from Hitler's head. Only four minutes it would explode.

Von Stauffenberg turned to the Fuehrer's adjutant and said calmly, "I must go and telephone. Keep an eye on my brief-case. There are secret papers inside it." Von Stauffenberg walked from the room, and had gone about sixty yards towards his car when there was a fierce explosion. The place where the hut had been was enveloped in dust, smoke and flying debris. He did not pause for further evidence of success. In a few seconds, he was aboard his aircraft, heading for Berlin, convinced that this time the bomb in the brief-case had done its work.

Soon after three o'clock, von Stauffenberg telephoned the news to Beck and other leading conspirators at the headquarters of the Home Army. Within a few minutes, teleprinter sets were sending to Army headquarters throughout Germany the code-word Valkyrie — appropriately chosen to herald what they believed was the approaching twilight of the gods.

This set in motion the sealed orders which the conspirators had already sent out, and which now instructed military commandants to secure vital areas and preserve order. The code-word was followed by an announcement that Hitler was dead, and that there was a state of emergency, and that the Wehrmacht had taken over the government. One set of orders was directed to the Commandant of the Berlin Guard Regiment, Major Remer, who was instructed to occupy the Government area and protect the Home Army headquarters. He carried out his orders, but he then communicated with Goebbels, head of the Berlin municipal administration.

Until then, Goebbels had heard nothing of the plot, but he telephoned at once to Rastenburg and spoke to Hitler. The Fuehrer declared that four of his officers had been killed, but that he himself had been only slightly injured, a fact which von Stauffenberg would have discovered if he had waited another minute before dashing off in his car.

Factors Answerable for Foiled Attempt.

Hitler had been saved because the meeting had been held in the wooden hut instead of the concrete bunker, and because the explosion which followed while the brief-case rested had taken the main force of the explosion, and protected him from the blast. But until he spoke to Goebbels, Hitler had not realized the full implications of the plot. He would have been both strong and powerless if the signals officer at Rastenburg had carried out his part of the plot, and cut all communications between the Fuehrer's headquarters and the outside world, as had been arranged.

These communications now functioned with perfection, as Hitler acted to reassert his authority. Goebbels was to secure the capital, and particularly the central radio station, which was the key to the struggle for power. The conspirators already had several hours' start with the story that Hitler was dead, but this could be overtaken by a nation-wide broadcast.

General Olbricht had arranged for a leading Nazi to go to the radio station, but Goebbels got his men there first, and made the announcement that there had been an attempt on the Fuehrer's life, and that he had escaped with only slight burns and concussion, but no other injuries.

This announcement caused consternation among the conspirators at the Home Army headquarters, for until that moment they had thought that the radio station was in their hands. They still believed that Hitler was dead, and that Goebbels was bluffing, but the power to convince the nation of this had slipped from their control.

This broadcast was the final blow to the conspirators' hopes.

They had been so uncertain of the national reaction to the news of Hitler's death that they had avoided any bold announcement of their own responsibility. The orders they had sent out to the Army, at home and abroad, declared that they had taken control because the Fuehrer was dead and because Party members were away from the front had attempted to stab the fighting troops in the back. The implication in their instructions to commanders was that troops were being called out to maintain order, not to conduct a revolution. And so, when it was announced that Hitler was alive, most commanders ignored the conspirators' orders, and the plot fizzled out.

By early evening, all chance of success was gone. The Commander of the Home Army, General Fromm, who had joined the plot that afternoon, changed his coat again, and began rounding up the leaders in the hope of destroying all evidence against himself. Beck was given the choice to commit suicide, but Olbricht, von Stauffenberg, and a number of others were shot out of hand. Before midnight, most of the leaders had been arrested or killed.

At one a.m., all doubts about Hitler's fate were settled, when he broadcast over all German stations.

The Biggest Purge in Nazi History.

This speech was the start of the biggest purge in Nazi history, a bloodbath in which the last traces of opposition were drowned in set. Simultaneously, a series of decrees intensified the hold of Himmler and the S.S. on every phase of German life. The people were bound irrevocably to the Nazi war machine. There was now no chance of anyone daring to contest Hitler's right to drag the nation with him down to ruin.

The people and the High Command knew that the war was lost, but they were powerless to end it. Its continuation now depended upon Hitler's blind refusal to yield to fate, and upon a blind faith in his divine mission—a faith fortified by the miracle of his deliverance on July 20.

The failure of the putsch made it clear that he would go on until Hitler was killed by the Allies, or by his own hand, and that he would continue to fight, as he once declared privately, "as he fell, he did—beyond the eleventh hour, to the twelfth hour, and on until five past midnight.

U.N. Spotlight

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Aug. 30—(CP)—What strikes the observer of the United Nations Security Council, now meeting in the new interim headquarters building at Lake Success on nearby Long Island, is the quiet, casual atmosphere over the council table.

This aside powerful body in the United Nations Organization, whose five permanent members are the so called Big Five— the United Kingdom, the United States, France, Russia and China and six elected powers— Australia, Brazil, Egypt, Mexico, the Netherlands and Poland— carries the world's hope for permanent peace.

When the delegates say in the privacy of their exclusive lounge outside the chamber is not known. But when they get in and take their seats they act almost like strangers to each other.

It would be only fair to say that Russia is the greatest contributor to this atmosphere. From the start of the council's activities here last March the Soviet delegate, Andrei A. Gromyko, has been the implacable proponent of a single contention of what is right and wrong—Russia's conception.

Whether he is right or wrong, the attitude he has adopted has been the keynote of the proceedings and continues to be, and he wastes no words on the niceties of international dealings.

All the other delegates at least express the courtesies of international exchanges, attributing to their fellow delegates the best possible intentions and feeling, even when they disagree.

The system of successive translation is followed at Lake Success which means that every speech must be in both French or English. If it is spoken in one of those languages only one translation is necessary. If it is spoken in Russian there must be translations in French and English. Mr. Gromyko speaks good English and proves it when he corrects the interpreter in every error. But he delivers his speeches in Russian and thus the national prestige is sustained.

Newspaper correspondents are well happy at the arrangements in the new U. N. headquarters. The security council chamber seats the bobby soxers, the Long Island dowagers and other invited guests on upholstered seats close to the delegates table. The press sits as far as possible from what's going on. Changes are pending, however.

DECIDED ON GAS ATTACK

St. Thomas, Aug. 30. (CP)— Local firemen, called out to deal with a skunk, trapped beneath a garbage pail, decided a gas attack was the only method to use. Fireman Fred Davis attached a hose to the exhaust of the fire truck, gently inserted the nozzle under the pail and raced the motor. The carbon monoxide proved too strong for the skunk, taken from the pail, limp and inoffensive.

UNITED NATIONS COUNCIL MEETS IN NEW HOME

Britain's Divorce Laws Will Speed Separation of Loveless Couples

By STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Aug. 30—(CP)—Britain's cumbersome divorce system, swamped by a post-war rush of loveless couples, is undergoing revision that will make legal separation more quickly, if not more readily, obtainable.

So far no new grounds for divorce have been suggested, but a Committee on Procedure in Matrimonial Causes, making its first report, recommended that the waiting period between the decree nisi and decree absolute should be reduced from 6 months to six weeks. The change went into effect Aug. 8.

Some 60,000 couples awaiting divorce will be affected by the revision which was generally greeted with applause although some persons criticized it as making divorce too easy.

"Here in England it is often easier to get a divorce than to get yourself a pair of shoes at the right size," Rev. K. J. S. O'Ferrall of St. Mary's Church, North London, wrote in his parish magazine.

The committee, which was appointed last June and included four women among its 13 members, said six weeks was ample time for any interested party. It would not impose extra work on the King's Proctor, because he would be spared the task of probing the court petitioners who sought to have the six-month period lessened for special reasons.

"For a long time I have seen the hardship the six months' delay has caused," said Thomas G. Lund, secretary of the Law Society.

"Of 4,000 decrees absolute secured for servicemen and women between 1942 and 1946, the King's Proctor has intervened in only one or two cases, which has meant a waste of 3,000 years in order to stop two cases in which there might not to have been decrees absolute."

London lawyers estimate the reform will make it possible for divorce proceedings to take less than a year from start to finish.

Numerous other steps are being considered to whittle down the great backlog of divorces, including 40,000 by servicemen. Judges are holding longer courts and being granted greater powers in dealing with applications.

The committee, which has yet first report, recommended that another recommendation which will relieve solicitors from searching divorce registry files to seek if any objections have been raised before applying for a decree absolute. This work in future will be done by law court officials.

Tenoned to life imprisonment after Captured After 3-month Frolic

New York, Aug. 30—(AP)— The madcap monkey of Manhattan, which grew fat on bananas it stole from trays set for it, was captured yesterday after a three-month frolic over city rooftops. It was only a half block from home. Last of a mob of freedom-loving Simians which escaped last May 11 from a pet shop, the monkey got lazy and arrogant from his success in stealing bananas from spring trays.

Schacht Throws Coffee On Press Photographer

Nuernberg, Germany, Aug. 30 —(AP)—Hjalmar Schacht, former Reichsbank president and one of the war crimes defendants, threw a cup of steaming coffee Thursday on B. L. Sanders, Associated Press photographer.

Sanders calmly wiped off his camera and took his picture of Schacht, eating lunch in a small dining room above the international courtroom.

Record Rail Traffic Expected Over Holiday

Montreal, Aug.30.—To handle a Labor Day weekend traffic greater than any during the war years, A.A. Gardiner, general passenger traffic manager, canadian National Railways System, reports that everything possible will be done by the Railway to provide important trains with extra coaches, sleeping and parlor cars. Mr. Gardiner's prediction of the big travel rush this coming weekend, which he says will require every car on the System, is based upon holiday traffic handled so far this summer, the heaviest in many years.

The exodus of the holiday crowds from the large centres will commence on Friday afternoon and carry through until Sunday morning. Returning, nearly all will have to be handled on Monday night. In a number of instances it will be necessary to operate trains in special sections. On other runs, additional cars will have to be added to regular trains.

The greatest strain upon the Railway's equipment will occur on Monday night, when in addition to handling most of the returning weekend holiday traffic, it will have to carry a large number of families from summer homes in the country to the cities in time for the reopening of schools and colleges. Due to the polio epidemic in a number of large cities, announcement has been made of the postponement of the reopening of schools, and this is expected to relieve the weekend return movement traffic problem to some extent.

"Whether some postpone their trips until after this weekend or not," Mr. Gardiner said, "it is going to be a busy holiday for us. But no person planning a trip by rail need fear being left at the station."

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

AT HOME

Mr. and Mrs. George Sprackett, 31 Forth Street, Belleville, will be at home to their neighbors and friends on Sunday, September 5, from 3:30 to 5:30 on the occasion of their 60th wedding anniversary.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Johnson, Sidney, announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Joyce Barbara to Stanley Edward, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bay Williams, Campbellford, the marriage to take place early in September.

WEDDINGS

HALL—REID

A pretty, wedding took place quietly on August 18, at 2 p.m., in Christ Church, when Olive Marguerite, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Reid became the bride of Walter Edward, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hall. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Arthur Smith.

The dark-haired bride was lovely in a street length dress of aquamarine blue crepe, with white accessories and a corsage of gardenias. She was attended by Miss Dorothy Bird, Point Anne, who wore rose crepe cyprei embroidery with navy blue accessories and a corsage of white gladioli petals and pink carnations.

Mr. Barney Parsons was groomsman.

After the ceremony a family dinner and reception was held at the home of the bride, where the bride's mother received in a black fleecewool chiffon gown with a corsage of red roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore a navy blue ensemble with a corsage of red roses. About one hundred guests were present and the home was beautifully decorated with multicolored gladioli. The wedding table, centred by the wedding cake, was also decorated with gladioli. Many telegrams of congratulations were received including a cable from the bride's aunt in England.

For the wedding trip by car through the New England States, Saratoga and Lake Placid, the bride chose an American Beauty suit with black accessories and a corsage of roses.

CARSON—ADAMS

In a setting of gladioli and sweetpeas in Christ Church on August 28, at 2 p.m., the Rev. J. Grant Spalding joined in marriage Shirley Faith, daughter of Mrs. Embury Adams and the late Mr. Adams, Belleville, and Maclen Kennedy Carson, Trent Road, son of Mrs. Harry Eldridge and the late Mr. W. J. Carson. Mr. Kaye Martin presided at the organ and accompanied Mrs. Berdan Kilpatrick when she sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "Because".

Given in marriage by her mother, the bride was lovely in a gown of white slipper satin and an embroidered net veil falling from a Mary Queen of Scots headdress. Her only ornament was an aquamarine pendant which her mother had worn at her wedding. The bride carried a shower bouquet of red roses and baby's breath. The bride's only attendant was Miss Jean Stark.

Mr. William McIntyre attended the groom and ushers were Messrs. Doyle and Frederick Little, Trenton.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Bar-B-Q

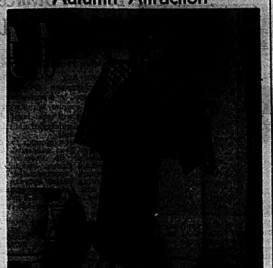
Autumn Attraction



BY ALICE ALDEN

HERE IS an ideal street outfit from the collection of that topflight New York designer, Adele. Three dress is of navy blue hand-loomd wool knit and is detailed with double envelope-flap pocket's set close to the centre front of the skirt. The high neck has a ribbed section, the plaid woven scarf has fringed ends and the fullsleeved jacket uses navy blue as the predominant color.

Schiaparelli Fashion Show Features Bustles, Bright Colors

Paris, Aug. 30. (AP)—Bustles and brilliant colors were the most striking features of Elsa Schiaparelli's fashion show here.

The bustle—termed "illusion" by Schiaparelli—is a small curved cushion nowhere near the size of the one grandmom wore and it is placed strategically in the middle of the back well below the waist. Combined with the long sheathlike bodices of Mme. Schiaparelli's formal gowns, it gives a slender look to the figure—or so the designer says.

Crude brilliant greens, reds, blues and yellows were the most contrast to muted shades in many of the dressier items in Schiaparelli's collection. Tobacco browns are favorites in the tailored-suit category.

Bulky Sleeves

Schiaparelli's suits this year are sticking with the clean, smooth line of last year's article with the exception of some travelling ensembles featuring bulky sleeves and shoulders which contrast with slim skirts reaching well below the knee. Many twopiece outfits featured contrasting skirts and jackets.

The afternoon frocks in the collection featured a revival of the "bateau decolletage"—or boatshaped neckline for the uninitiated—usually cut from shoulder to shoulder, it is shown with tiny sleeves, long scarf-like ruffle. Most of the dresses are black with contrasting bright sequins, embroideries and spangles.

The general silhouette is narrow with fitted bodices and slim skirts with any fullness concentrated at the back. A few had drapery at the front.

Hats are Bizarre

The hats in the collection were even more bizarre than the night have been expected. One widebrimmed affair was covered with skunk fur with a bundle of blue and yellow feathers right in the middle of the crown. Another black feather springs up out of the middle of all this fron-fron. But there were a number of tightfitting bonnets and caps, mostly in fur.

Formal dresses featured brocades and striped moires, generally reminiscent of the turn-of-the-century.

Spectators were smiling already at a bulky travel coat in thick grey material with four huge pockets when the model pinched a pair of pyjamas and a pair of orange slippers out of the pockets.

Surprise Birthday Party For Husband

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like very much to have an informal surprise party for my husband's birthday in October. I would very much appreciate your answering the following questions:

1—Is it proper for a wife to give such a party for her husband?

2—Should I send out invitations, or just call by telephone? I do not mind doing the inviting girls; so do you think it better to call or write? Which is less trouble? What would I say?

3.—Is it necessary to provide entertainment such as games and so forth?

4—Since our dining-room is rather small, would it be all right to serve the refreshments buffet style? I intend to make the birthday cake myself. What else could I serve to bring the party to much expense?

5—If my husband makes the first cut into the birthday cake, is it necessary for him to finish the cutting and serving?

A. D.

1. Yes, indeed it's proper for a wife to plan a surprise birthday party for her husband.

2. To this kind of party you should send the inviting only to intimate friends, and so it would be proper to give the invitations by telephone. When you say, if you wish, say, "And please, Mary, no gifts." However, I do think your guests may be disappointed if they are not allowed to them to bring gifts, since these, either serious ones or merry ones from the five-and-ten, are a traditional part of the birthday party fun, even for a grown-up party.

2. Planned entertainment usually isn't necessary for this kind of party, but if your group is established and you have the necessary equipment for one you might bring it along. Games of the evening might be a "sing" old songs and merry.

4. Yes, set your dining-room table attractively for the buffet-style meal. A lodge or other party is to be given in the evening, you might serve first course, sandwiches and coffee, with a cold drink (perhaps fruit punch) provided for the toasts; then the birthday cake, probably with ice cream, and perhaps some accessories as potato chips, popcorn, or the like.

5. No . . . he'll undoubtedly be relieved and delighted if you take over the cutting and serving of the cake!

Bridal Attendants to Carry Prayerbooks?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In my wedding party and I am having a maid of honor and two bridesmaids. Please tell me if it is proper for them to carry white prayerbooks with streamers instead of the usual bouquets. I would like to make these prayerbooks my gifts to my attendants.

E. A.

Although it is unusual for the bridal attendants to carry prayerbooks, it is entirely proper, and I think very beautiful and effective. However, I have never seen prayerbooks with streamers—books with streamers or markers, and I advise against this, particularly if you are the bride, planning to carry a prayerbook with streamers. I think it would be an excellent idea for you to give these books to your attendants, either white prayerbooks or prayerbooks covered with white satin, perhaps with material similar to that of your wedding dress.

GOOD MANNERS

Your Radio . . . Is It a Pest to Your Guests

You are invited to dine or to spend the evening at the home of some friends. High-heartedly you accept the social visit with them. P.S.: You spend the evening grimly listening to the radio.

You've had this exasperating experience?

So has this reader:

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What is your opinion of people who play their radio constantly while guests are present?

I have some friends to whom I am deeply devoted and I would love to go to their home and really visit with them. However, I do not go very often, and they are wonderful people, so I don't accept their invitations. The truth is, Mrs. Beeckman, that when I go to call they keep their radio screeching all the time, so that I can't hear them, and I'm completely exhausted trying to "shout" (that is, talk) over the conversation.

The last time I was there their daughter, about twenty years old, kept the radio turned on so loud that there was no possibility of conversation. I was finally so exhausted, so nervous, so irritated at this rudeness that I went home.

My family tells me I must forgive them, that this is young people's way of entertaining guests. But it isn't my idea. I think my guests if they care to listen to the radio, and if they say they'd like to, I consult with them as to what program they'd prefer. In any event, I don't turn the radio turned on "full tilt", and I keep it on only for one or two programs, news programs perhaps, and certainly never for the entire time the guests are with me.

I wish you would write about this subject so that my friends will read it, for they read your column. Many of my other friends find this radio-nuisance a difficult situation in their lives.

I'm "all-out" too against this maddening radio habit. And I could not convince your friends (and several of my own, indelicately) how distressing and as you say, nerve-wracking, it is to attempt to carry on a conversation with the radio at full volume blaring away.

It's a great enigma to me why a host and hostess, who are most reasonably considerate of their guests in every other respect, will scramble, and even unhappily, have a blind-spot (or should I say a deaf-spot?) about radio consideration. Naturally, guests expect to talk and be talked to during the evening, and to have the radio is on loud and continuously, the guests find it difficult to keep up a conversation, they find it difficult to hear the remarks of other people say, and impatience and a grim distress falls on the group. No one is to blame but the one who turned the radio on, and who blithely tries conversation with the other with a "let's listen to this", thus defeating the very object of conversation. Finally conversation dies out the window . . . or out of the door, or out of the door.

Your radio-manners in your own home are proper, because you are considerate. The only way to find out how guests feel about listening to the radio is to ask them. Sensible people feel as you do, that when they go to visit with friends they prefer to visit with them and not with their radio. Guests at a dismal disadvantage in a home where there is no radio-consideration. And real hospitality is certainly not a quality that puts guests at a disadvantage. Real hospitality considers, always, the preference of guests.

Misses M. Lyall And N. Hunter Feted by Friends

Prior to their departure for Montreal, where they will enter the School of Nursing, Royal Victoria Hospital as nurses-in-training, the Misses Mary Lyall and Nancy Hunter were entertained at several delightfully arranged parties. On Tuesday evening, Miss Margaret Anne McGuire held a bridge party at her home on Bleecker Road when thirteen were present. Miss Elizabeth Keeler won the prize for high score, with Miss Betty Flynn receiving the consolation prize. At the close of the evening dainty salads and cakes were served by the hostess.

On Wednesday evening, the bridge club of which Miss Hunter and Miss Lyall were members, was entertained at the home of the Misses Yvonne and Elizabeth Keeler. During the evening the two guests of honor were presented with gifts, and delicious refreshments were served. High score for the evening was won by Miss Margaret Anne McGuire.

The Misses Milda Dandeno and Jo Dows were joint-nonsense at Spencer's home, Bridge Street East, on Thursday evening, when eighteen friends were present. Miss Margaret Anne McGuire won the prize for high score. Assisted with Miss Joan Morgan receiving the consolation prize. Bountiful refreshments were served, and later the guests left for their homes, wishing Miss Lyall and Nancy every success in the future.

Trousseau Tea Held For Miss A. Bell

In a picturesque setting of asters, gladioli and other Summer flowers, at the home of Mrs. Mabel Bell, 59 Everett Street, a trousseau tea was held Wednesday, August 18, in honor of the youngest daughter, Annie, whose marriage takes place in early September. About forty guests called during the afternoon and evening.

Miss Helen Spearman opened the guest book and Miss Mabel Irene Reid showed the trousseau. Assisting in the dining-room were guests enjoyed dainty refreshments, Miss Linnie Reid and Mrs. J. S. A. Spearman pouring tea. The tea table was appropriately decorated for the occasion with a centrepiece of sweetpeas flanked by silver candelabra holding pink tapers.

Miss Vivian Bell and Mrs. Art Stewart acted as serviteurs.

Development Plans Should Not Have Regard to Municipal Boundary Lines Dana Porter Tells Association

Toronto, Aug. 20—(CP)—Hon. Dana Porter, Ontario planning and development minister told a luncheon meeting of the Ontario Municipal Association Thursday that urban growth frequently spread beyond arbitrary municipal boundaries and development plans should not have regard to municipal boundary lines.

"A whole area of urban development must be regarded as a single unit for planning purposes if effective work is to be done," he said and described town planning, as visualized by his department, as "the spacing out of buildings for work, for pleasure and for profit" and a means of facilitating "the most profitable use of urban land."

Prior to the minister's address, Controller Dorothy Rungeling, 203 Ontario municipalities at the Association's 68th annual convention, heard Mayor Fred G. McAlister, London, describe London's committee system of municipal administration as a means of coping with the backlog of problems created during the war.

"When we read . . . of the heavy toll of traffic accidents on our streets . . . when we view the disorderly congestion of city living . . . we may conclude that much of it could have been avoided by planning," said Mr. Porter.

The function of the planning board, consisting of representatives of the affected municipalities is to investigate the social and economic conditions in relation to the development of the planning area and draw up plans for the future development of the area.

The urban section of the Association endorsed a resolution asking for amendment to the Industrial Standards Act to give municipalities control over hours of retail businesses. The resolution, aimed at the practice of urban gasoline retailers controlling hours of sale in suburban areas, will be dealt with by the Association as a whole tomorrow.

Jekyll and Hyde Career Ends For Ted Desormeaux

Toronto, Aug. 20 (CP)—Joseph Theodore Desormeaux, Hamilton-after known as Ted—last night waved a final farewell to Toronto and a three year Jekyll and Hyde career in the Canadian army. He headed back to his home town of Timmins where he's looking for recovery from a knee ailment, a job in the mines and perhaps reunion with his wife.

Ted and his older brother Stephen joined the army in March, 1943. They hoped to stay together, but when Ted was posted at Petawawa and Stephen to Cornwall, Stephen deserted. Ted stayed in the army until he was discharged in January, 1945, because of chronic bronchitis.

After that provost corps men looking for deserters asked Ted his nameand he gave the name of his brother Stephen. So Ed was promptly back in the army, and under detention. While under sentence he went to hospital with an injured knee.

"I was sentenced to eight months' detention," Ted said, "and I was told that if I was a good boy the time would be halved. I was good; got no marks taken off. The last months and a half I was in Chorley Park military hospital with a knee infection. It was there that they found out I wasn't who I was supposed to be."

Ted said his impersonation of his brother was not only because he wanted to stay in the army, but because he felt a permanent force career would give him a chance to "get along" with his wife.

"We haven't been married many years," he said, "but we've been separated three times. I thought that with the steady life and the allowances, we might make a go of it."

He didn't have much money when he left. "The legal officer said I was a civilian," he said, "and not entitled to any allowances or anything. They gave me a battledress, boots, shirt, trainers, a berth and a meal ticket.

"One thing: "I'm Mr. Desormeaux from now on."

As for Stephen, wherever he is, he's in the clear as far as the army is concerned. Under the amnesty regulations even repentant deserters aren't wanted.

3,000,000 Fans Expected to View Soccer Matches

(By The Canadian Press)

In the first full-scale opening this weekend, since pre-war days of the soccer leagues in England, more than 3,000,000 fans are expected to see the 88 teams in action. The reorganized English Association has three divisions, two with 22 teams each and the third with 44 clubs split-divided into 3 groupings. Big money has been changing hands for many players. Wolverhampton Wanderers have paid $60,000 for three men and Nottingham Forest spending $32,000 for Albert Brown of Charlton.

A Scottish soccer league has been in operation for three weeks after a bad start, with some of the teams playing their seventh matches this Saturday.

The American Association lost its last independent club yesterday when Boston Braves acquired Milwaukee Brewers in a $400,000 purchase of 321 of the club's 357 shares.

After-setting a European record of 10.2 seconds for the 100-metre dash the day before, E. Macdonald Bailey of Jamaica was clocked at 21.3 seconds for the 200 metres at Gothenburg, Sweden, yesterday. It was the fastest time in Europe this year.

Claiming that ski instrucors are amateurs and not professionals, the International Ski Federation decided yesterday to stage its own world championships in 1948 if no agreement on the amateur question can be reached with Olympic games officials.

In the only full day's play in English cricket yesterday, Middlesex clinched second place in the county standings by defeating over Essex or an innings and 129 runs. Yorkshire has won the title.

Fast time was seen in yesterday's Grand Circuit racing at the Duquoin, Ill., State Fair when Millbrook, from the Hanover stables in Conn., won all three heats, one of them in 2:00 ½, to take the Dominion Gratian Pacing Stake.

Discussing his reported retirement at the close of the season, Hank Greenberg of Detroit Tigers said yesterday at Boston that "it was the big leagues or nothing." He would be happy to play for Detroit next season if the club wanted him.

Mickey Owen, the baseball outcast, can't even play softball. He was denied the privilege yesterday of catching for a softball team in his home town of Springfield, Mo., although it was only an exhibition game.

Patty Berg of Minneapolis entered the quarter-finals of the women's National Open golf tournament at Spokane, Wash. thanks to a 5-and-1 victory yesterday over Mary Mozel, a professional of Portland, Ore.

Detroit, Aug. 20 (AP)—All production of Nash automobiles has been halted because a company official asserted Thursday of the refusal of some employees to work on right hand drive models designed for export.

TORONTO LEAFS DEFEATED TWICE BY THE ROYALS

Chet Kehn Had a No-Hit Effort Spoiled by Single by Ben Steiner

(By The Canadian Press)

Coaker Triplett, former major league outfielder with St. Louis Cardinals and Philadelphia Phillies of the National League, is playing a big role in the Buffalo Bisons' drive for a playoff berth in the International League's Shaughnessy Cup series which gets under way in two weeks.

The veteran flychaser last night banged out six hits in eight official trips to the plate, including a perfect four-for-four in the second game to lead the Bisons to a double victory over the Rochester Red Wings 10-1 and 5-3. The twin triumph ended a seven-game losing streak for the Bisons and united them in fourth place, half a game in front of the idle Newark Bears.

Triplett smashed two doubles in the opener as Hal Manders, recently purchased by Chicago Cubs, gained his ninth victory via a three-hitter. Two more doubles by Triplett besides a pair of one-baggers helped Lee Mueller register his ninth win in the nightcap.

The pace-setting Montreal Royals lashed the splendid hurling of Chet Kehn and Steve Nagy, whipped Toronto Maple Leafs twice 2-0 and 6-1. A single by Ben Steiner spoiled a no-hit effort for Kehn in the seven-inning opener while Nagy allowed only four blows in the nightcap.

The second-place Syracuse Chiefs and the cellar-dwelling Jersey City Giants divided a double bill, the Chiefs winning their seventh straight 5-4 in the opener but dropped the nightcap 7-5 when Lou Layton of the Little Giants doubled home two runs in the 11th inning.

Newark Bears and Baltimore Orioles were postponed by rain.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Aug. 20 —(AP)— Only two of the six clubs in the Georgia-Alabama baseball league have the same managers who started the season and one club has changed twice. Other minor league teams have made what (besides good players) makes a good manager . . . . One smart baseball man observes that pilots, especially in the minors, are "just drawn out of a hat." Another points out that Branch Rickey selected likely candidates last spring and had them report at Sandford, Fla., for pre-season training with the result that Brooklyn farms have made an exceptionally good showing this season. . . . Wonder why some "chain" operator doesn't organize a real school for managers. They even have schools for umps, though a lot of them act as if they had flunked out.

Sports Before Your Eyes.

Bernard Docusen, who makes his Garden boxing debut tonight, is a good boxer and a first-rate pool player but he never learned to punch a light bag, which most fighters consider an essential of their training. . . . Billy Evans, Southern Association president, has almost reached the point where he's losing money in income taxes under the bonus arrangement which allows him one cent for each paid admission over a figure which the league has long-since passed.

Observation Ward.

Two girls were arrested at the Louisville ball park recently for using a beer bottle to rebuke a customer who was booing Chuck Koney, Red Sox farmhand who has been tabbed the "Second Babe Sinatra." . . . The Boston Traveler's Arthur Siegel observes: "That's a new version of the Louisville slugger."

AMATEUR BASEBALL

Welland Atlas Steels bunched their hits last night to take a 3-1 Ontario Senior "A" baseball victory from Niagara Falls Houcks in the Niagara district qualifying round play. Al Morrison the Merritton - Thorold - Thorners turned back St. Catharines, 7-3, in a Niagara district Senior "B" playoff.

Victory gave Thorners a 3-2 lead in games in their best-of-seven series. It came in lowering twilight which coach Lefty Coderre thought too dark for olay. . . . emphasized his point by walking out on the diamond with a lighted lantern at the end of the eighth inning.

Walter Scott, a junior making his first senior start, hurled six-hit ball for the Saints but suffered four errors. Then in the ninth inning the umpires agreed with Coderre that it was too dark to continue and the score reverted back to the end of the eighth.

The Welland victory gave Atlas two straight in the best-of-seven series with Niagara Falls. Pitcher Jack Worrall of Houcks appeared headed for a shutout until Cam Pickard, Gordon Grogan and Jack Fairs whanged three hits that gave Welland the win.

GETS PLANE SEATS AFTER 13 DAYS

Dublin, Aug. 20 (CP) — The Dublin, Aug. 20. (CP)—The long wait of the Pentland family of Toronto for plane reservations finally was awarded last night.

After spending 13 successive nights in the lounge of Shannon airport with his wife and 18-year-old daughter, Olive, George W. Pentland obtained three seats on a New York-bound aircraft. A last-minute cancellation made seats available for the business executive and his family, who had been sleeping on couches and armchairs in the lounge.

Nude Girl Swimmer Tantalizes Policemen

North Bergen, N.J., Aug. 20 —(AP)—An attractive 18-year-old girl swimming nude in the Hudson River gave two policemen in a rowboat a merry 90-minute chase.

Lieut. Arthur J. Foley and Patrolman Frank Robbins who finally coaxed her into their craft, said she laughed at them as she sported in the river, swam under the hulks of sunken scows to elude them, and then rocked the boat and swished water at them as they rowed her ashore.

The policemen said the girl, Susan Zakar, told them she was practising to swim the English Channel.

No charge was lodged.

Cardinals Exploding Theory That Team Ahead on July 4th Usually Wins the Pennant

On That Day Team 7½ Games Behind But Today Are 2½ Games Ahead

Racing down the stretch, St. Louis Cardinals are trying to explode the theory that the team in the first place on July 4th usually wins the pennant.

On that day the Cards were trailing the National League leading Brooklyn Dodgers 7 1-3 games and prepared hopefully out of the race. Today they are 2 1-3 games in front of the flock.

The Cards gained a full game yesterday when they shut out New York last 4-0 as Chicago Cubs were beating the Dodgers 3-2.

Howie Pollet the Cards' Ace, hurled the shutout over the Giants, limiting the New Yorkers to five hits in registering his 17th triumph. Dave Koslo lost his 15th game.

Phil Cavarretta's seventh-inning single broke a 2-2 tie for Hank Borowy's ninth victory in the Cubs-Dodger tilt. The victory moved Chicago six games behind the Dodgers.

Detroit, which hadn't won a game at Fenway Park until Wednesday, made it two straight over Boston Red Sox, 9-8, in 14 innings. The winning run resulted on George Kell's walk, a single by Roger Cramer and a force play by Hank Greenberg. Dizzy Trout, in relief, won his 11th game while Dave (Boo) Ferriss, trying for his 12th straight, was driven from the box in the sixth.

The Yankees clinched the season series with Cleveland on a 5-3 victory in New York behind the nine-hit pitching of Randy Gumpert.

Boston Braves' hopes to overtake the third-place Cubs remained alive when they defeated the Reds in Cincinnati 4-3 behind the six-hit pitching of Ed Wright

The season's smallest crowd this year, 3,000 fans, saw Brooklyn shove the Pirates deeper into the National League cellar with a 5-2 victory in Pittsburgh.

The scheduled Chicago White Sox-Washington games was postponed by rain while Philadelphia Athletics and St. Louis Browns were idle.

COMIC BOOKS BANNED

Riverside, Aug. 30 — (CP) — Members of the local police commission took their first action recently to safeguard public morals. Six child comic books described as unfit for children to read, were banned. Chief target of the officials' wrath were scantily clad cuties in various poses.

Pembroke Lumber Kings Likely To Be Broken Up

Pembroke, Aug. 30. (CP)—Coach Cully Simson, who led Pembroke Lumber Kings into the Ottawa District Hockey playoffs last winter, has lined up all but one of the popularity of Upper Ottawa Valley Hockey players.

Simson, one of the best defence stars, here's what he finds:

Defenceman Thain Simson and right-winger Joe Fitzpatrick of last year's Lumber Kings are returning to leave Pembroke September 12 to try out with Detroit Red Wings, the National Hockey League, and may be accompanied by Bert Gleasebrecht, who played with Red Wings before the war.

Two other Gleasebrecht brothers, Jack and Bert, are slated for a tryout with Montreal Canadiens, although Bert and Bronco still another Gleasebrecht are considering playing Junior "A" hockey with Pembroke. Last year paced Pembroke Juveniles to the seventh district championship in eight years.

In addition, Hubert (Flash) Anslow plans to go to Winnipeg next month for workouts with New York Rangers and Jim Fitzpatrick is considering an offer from Peterboro Petes, Junior "A".

If the contemplated moves materialize, Coach Simson figures the chances of his next year's Lumber Kings will be pretty slim.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George B. Carver, Sports Editor

Tunis Prince of Wales softball squad, of the Devercourt Junior League will be here on Labor Day to meet an all-star softball aggregation selected from the Belleville town loop in a benefit game being staged by Gene Gerow, local ace right-winger of softball star, who suffered a severe knee injury in 5 league games this season.

According to Manager Frank Soldwedel, of the Devercourt Flashes team, the Toronto team will arrive shortly after three o'clock on Monday afternoon and the game will get under way at four sharp, barring accidents.

It is hoped that softball fans and others will attend the game in large numbers and not only see an outstanding softball squad in action against the cream of city and district players but make it a worthy cause. Leo Goyer is one of the city's outstanding softball players but since he didn't hesitate when the chips were down, nor did he linger when the call came for players in the greatest of all wars, the bloody fields of Europe. The game is sponsored by, and those in charge of the arrangements are confident that the faithful will support the Labor Day holiday by attending the game.

• • •

Mr. Jack Yanover, proprietor of the New Queen's Hotel has presented a substantial purse to the Leo Goyer benefit Fund, and the generous gesture has been much appreciated. Any more, boys? If so, send in your donations to this desk.

• • •

Tonight's sports tidbit will be located at the Fair Grounds when Don Barrett's Goodman & Sons softballers officially diamond matters with the Cherry Harmony Millionaires from up around Oshawa way. The Harmony boys are almost-money member sent the Peterboro Trojans championship hopes a-flimmering by knocking them off in two straight bouts. To-night, they are a right noble bevy of ball-hawking lads from Oshawa and what not. But, like any other squad, they can be beaten.

The Goodman Juniors management has their ace Don Boyle ready for mound duty. He is the kid who flung the now defunct Columbian Squires to the Ontario Junior Championship last year, and who has been chucking some swell mush-ball this year. The Goodman's are ready to go, and the whole this eventide should be worthy of a packed house. Curtain rises at 8 bells.

"Sonny" Green, well - known veteran of many a COBL baseball battle scratched a greying thatch. He blew the foam off a glass of white-collared soda, easily an inch below the rim, cocked an eye at the ceiling and opined:

"They're not right yet."

Knowing the inimitable "Sonny", thoughts of schools of bass, lacome tazes, National League pitchers, palefaces in general and other topics which might be flitting through the medulla oblongata of the estimable former baseball star, came into mind.

"And prithee, my dusky friend," quoth a pal, "who or what is not right?"

Sonny drained the suds. "Those kids of mine, dag-nab it" he came back. "I've told 'em how to set out there on the diamond and with the club, but they don't pay much attention. Like their old man they do it their own way anyway."

• • •

"But Bud and Vern are both smart ballplayers so I'm told" quoth the pal. "They are," came back the irrepressible Sonny. "What shouldn't they be. Look who their old man is."

• • •

When the waiter had been received and the customary tonsorage resumed, Sonny went on. "I've had those boys out in the snowbanks in winter time putting them through their paces. Bud is a natural hitter while that pepper-pot Verny, is like one of his noble ancestors, an all-round athlete. The kids live, sleep and eat baseball and some day they will be players. But not now."

• • •

There was a slight protuberance in the neighborhood of Sonny's cheek — and he does not chew tobacco.

"I think you're right," murmured the pal. "From what I've seen, those kids couldn't make a Brownie squad of crosseet playing."

Three minutes later he opened his eyes. All he could see was the ceiling and a kindly waiter bending over him. Water sloshed down his face. He observed the dusky face of "Sonny" in the background, eyes flashing with anger, or some other emotion. "Dammit, Sonny, didn't you see my tongue in MY cheek, y'big tramp."

"Sonny" grunted and lit a cigarette. "Ya guy can talk about my kids like that and get away with it," he said. "When was the last time you've played baseball?"

The pal sighed, and signalled the waiter. "Two on, Sam" he ordered, rubbing a hand over a sore spot on his head.

"I said so yourself, didn't you?"

"Yep, but I'm the only one who can say it, and get away with it," said Sonny. "So, Bud, whaddya think of that strike in Hamilton?"

And peace reigned once more in the sods emporium.

Tonight Whipper Billy Watson returns to the wrestling wars here and clashes with Karl "Krippler" Davis, the villain from Oklahoma. The "Krippler" upheld his reputation as a bad boy still effectively subdue the dashing Whipper, no matter what kinds the British Empire champion brings into play. But the Whipper is a mighty young man who fears no one inside the ring, and proved it for that matter. So it looks like a hot time in the old town at the Home Arena tonight. Frankie Taylor will be here to do battle with Jim "Goon" Henry, and that deep-dyed rogue Al Bunny Dunlop will attempt to spoil the Adonis-like features of Handsome Benny Sharpe.

Maxie People's RACOS regained their softball crown with a vengeance last night when they smeared and pounded two Kingston DYA hurlers for run-counting hits in the city's softball circuit. It was a case of too much Hunter, and the Kingstonians could not get by the whizzing shoots of the latter Hunter had the foe's main batsmen baffled and mailed for seven lusings allowing them but four blows up to that time. But in the last of the eighth and the Veterans unloaded with four three-baggers and their runs of the game, but caused the eighth and he retired the side in order in the 9th. The Marines lodged on Talbot's left field barrier right off the bat, as to speak, and clouted for the four hits and six runs in the first two innings. Hoot was rushed into the breach and he held the runners to one run and two hits over the rest of the pastime.

Ulster United Titlists In Canadian Soccer

Toronto, Aug. 30. (CP)—With speedy Bobby Hume running home three goals, Toronto Ulster United won the Dominion Football Association's trophy and the Canadian Soccer title last night beating Fort William 7-1 for their second straight victory in the finals of the Canadian final. Ulster took the first game 3-1.

A crowd of about 2,000 turned out at Cockburn Stadium to see the first Dominion final since 1938 and the Ulster Club's first championship in 21 years. The last half of the game was played under flood-lights.

The Fort William Army, Navy and Air Force team drew first blood, Nesbitt heading a high pass from Goodrian into the Redlegs' net after 10 minutes after the start. But the Redhanders tied the score three minutes later, and it was all Ulster from there in.

Stevenson with two Ulster goals was right behind Hume, Hric and Jacquesten got the others. Two of Hume's goals came two minutes apart in the second half, just before he was replaced by Don Rose. Goals by Stevenson and Hume followed Nesbitt's lone first-period counter to give Ulster a 3-1 lead at half-time.

The victory brought the championship to Toronto for the first time since 1933.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By FRED KERNER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Aug. 30.—(CP)—Sport page readers blinked twice, looked again, and then reassured themselves that they were reading the sport page.

For a moment the headline telling of an anticipated strike—not the baseball variety—had them fooled. But it was so and the culprits were Winnipeg's Blue Bombers, who are staring at capturing the Grey Cup, emblematic of Canada's grid title, this year to make amends for the shellacking they took in Toronto last fall.

But the oldtimers weren't taking the strike talk from the western gridders. They remembered Canadian teams had engineered a few strikes years back.

The place was Montreal and it was in the days when imports from the United States were plentiful. Some of the players — importers and Canadians — decided they had been underpaid for their labors. The management was confronted by a flinty-eyed demands and they came through. Though the (Montreal Star) O'Mears recalls that the strike left repercussions.

Two of the more famous strikes in the past involved teams called the Tigers.

In 1912 the Detroit Tigers baseball squad staged a walk-out after the great Ty Cobb was suspended for beating up a spectator who heckled him. The strike only lasted two days during which time a pickup team of Philadelphia sandlotters wore Tiger uniforms and showed a 2-4-3 tearing at the hands of the A's.

The net result was each striker was fined $100 and the Georgia Peach himself took a $50 fine as well as a 10-day suspension.

Thirteen years later the Hamilton Tigers hockey team withdrew from the National Hockey League play-offs because the players wanted more money. It is also said the Tigers had a grievance against the club management which they said forgot Santa Claus comes once a year.

The team of that day included Billy Burch, Jakie Forbes, Harvey Roach, Ken Randall and the redoubtable Green Brothers — Shorty and Red — and they refused to compromise.

The result of that labor dispute was that the Tigers were exposed to the perils of Broadway the year after and survived to write the hilarious, hectic chapters in the N.H.L. history books entitled — "The New York Americans."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You have probably made many resolutions about leads. But none of them will guarantee the safety of a lead from a holding of the queen with two small cards.

When you lead from such a holding of Q X X, what card do you favor as the safest to start with? The queen? Or the middle? Or the lowest? Or the one your thumb is covering?

If your choice is to lead the lowest, you will find a number of players in this world who agree with you. But do not expect me to.

If you like the middle and I like the queen, we could each find enough reasons for upholding our opinions. But neither of us could find enough proof to make our decision stick.

Which card to lead really depends on what has been bid. If south had stuck in a no-trump bid, you should lead the middle. If dummy had stuck in a no-trump bid, you should lead the queen.

If the contract is in no-trump after the three suits have been bid, your choice is still a doubtful one. So, I will give you no rule that can be safely recommended.

Suppose south bids spades and no-trump and north assists spades. The contract ends at four spades. The clubs are distributed in the four hands as you see them here:

NORTH
♠8 6 3

WEST
♠Q 7 2

EAST
♠K 10 9 4

SOUTH
♠A J 5

It is your opening lead from the west hand and you decide to lead a club. Is dummy to play the queen or the deuce?

If you lead the queen, declarer is bound to take two tricks. If you lead the seven, declarer will take only one trick. His ace is forced by your partner's king and south has it in his hand.

Dummy in the north may have been the ace in the hand. In that case, your best lead would be queen. It would catch north in the lock.

Even with a peek, some players would lead the wrong card.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Aug. 20 —(AP)— About this time, "To Each His Own" is bombarding Mostly Amateurs from every radio, juke box, bandstand and amateur whistler. Fans of the hit tune may be surprised to learn that it was written not from inspiration, but on strict orders.

The songwriting fathers, Ray Evans of Salamanca, N.Y., and Jay Livingston of McDonald, Penn., were told by Producer Hal Wallis that he must be long-hair attacky dwellers who compose every note.

Ray and Jay (who go out with girls named Wyn and Lynn) met while attending the University of Pennsylvania. Ray studied economics and Jay took journalism, "so we of course became song writers." After a few years of hard work on Broadway and a round-the-world cruise, they landed at Paramount, pounding out tunes on order.

One day they were instructed to write a tune called "To Each His Own," to be used for scenes of the Olivia de Haviland picture.

"We though surely the song would be a flop and we'd get fired," added Jay (music) cheerfully. It wasn't and they weren't.

Shades of the Past: Norma Shearer is turning down interesting scripts these days. She's not working. She says she has nothing to say, particularly about MGM, in which she is a free lance actress.

The screen's most unseen actress, Martha Vickers, almost her fifth big role in "Love and Learn." Others are awaiting release.

In the Film Palaces: "Notorious" (RKO) shows Ingrid Bergman and Cary Grant and through a lot of smooching and spy-chasing by Alfred Hitchcock. You'd think this would be a natural combination, but it seemed a bit tame to me. I can be wrong. It took in $150,000 at the Radio City Music Hall in a week, and as I exited ,the local theatre I saw a woman say, "Gee, some drama!"

Provincial Lawn Bowling Championships to be Held On Local Greens on Holiday

First and Final Stages of Rink Competition to be Held Here While Doubles and Singles' First Stages Will be Held at Kingston; All Finals to be Played Tuesday in City; Winners to be Entertained

One of the outstanding sports events ever held in this district takes place on Monday, Labor Day, and Tuesday of next week when the annual championships of the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association of Ontario get under way on the greens of the Belleville and Kingston Lawn Bowling Clubs.

The Belleville Club will be the scene of the finals in the rink championships. Rinks will be played here with the doubles and singles played on the Kingston greens on Monday starting at 9 p.m.

The final stage of the championships will be played on Tuesday when group winners in rink and doubles play in the semi-finals by bowlers who reach the finals scheduled for 2:30 p.m. Championship finalists will be entertained at dinner at the Belleville Club immediately following the final games when awards will be made to the winners by the guests of the City of Belleville.

Entries have been received for all events.

It is expected that the cream of Ontario bowlers, winners of the sixteen provincial districts will be here for the rink-skip bowling classic. Many of the stars of the province will come these two days in order to get competitive of fistically every major bowling title in the province.

It is the first time in the history of the Provincial championships have been held in Belleville, and in fact, the first time that the city has had the election to hold the championships since the last provincial championship earlier in the year, when members of the Kingston club were over London, Hamilton and Markham requests, to hold the finals there.

On the broad shoulders of Mr. Cliff Carlaw, Belleville, member of the council of the PLBA, rested the responsibilities of the preliminary arrangements . These are now complete and present to the last detail, point to one of the most successful championship events in the history of the association. This could not have been made possible without the co-operation of the Belleville and Kingston clubs in donating the use of their greens.

OTTAWA JUNIORS BEAT KINGSTON IN SECOND GAME

If Kiwanis Kids Get Over Oshawa They Will Earn Trip to Hull

Kingston (Special)—Kingston's Junior Baseball team's chance for title, Bob Nesbitt's Athletics, were ousted from the race in no uncertain manner last night at the Cricket Field, as the Wrightwires from Hull took the best-of-three series with a smashing 10-3 behind the five-hit hurling of Roger Dupere. The victory made the two straight for the visitors who won at home by 3-1, but were held to a tie in a game here Tuesday.

Young Dupere handcuffed the Athletics and this, coupled with his team mates' ten safeties and eight Kingston errors helped the wide margin of victory. The Kingston youngsters never got up the struggle but over-anxiety and errors proved their undoing. Frank Dupere, brother to the Kingston baseball, started for Kingston and although giving up six hits, might have pulled out of trouble on several occasions if his team mates had not cracked under the pressure. Only a handful of his team was guilty of five miscues which allowed four runs. In the sixth George Kay, star hurler of the Athletics, relieved the tiring Dupere by visiting young sters showed not the slightest respect for this mounduman's prowess. Lay gave up only four hits but batiery-mate Carnegie seemed to have trouble holding his fast ones and two more unearned runs were registered.

The Athletics notched a single counter in the third when Ernie Mason, stalwart reinforcement from Queen's, walked, stole second and third, and scored on a wild peg to third. Their other runs were scored in the fifth and sixth. In the fifth Carnegie doubled, reached third after a long fly ball and scored on an infield grounder. The last Kingston run was chalked up when Rank smashed out a mighty drive to centre and scored on an infield error.

SACOS DEFEAT KINGSTON D.V.A. TO EVEN SERIES

Third Tussle Slated for Napanee on Saturday; Score is 9-3

It was too much Jim Hunter down on the Kingston Cricket Field Thursday night, and with his mates batting forth wonderful support in the clutches, the tall hurler led the team to a sparkling 9-3 victory over Kingston DVA's to win the second game of the first round ,OASA Intermediate "A" series and make matters even stephen. The third tussle is slated for Napanee at 8 p.m. Saturday.

The Sparkling attack of Dusky Oshawa Tannery squad which eliminated the Peterborough Dee Lavals, in two straight games.

The SACOS lost a close decision here the other night to the DVA crew by a 6-3 score when they were unable to fathom the slants of Steve Hook, Kingston hurler, during the early and late clutches when hits meant runs.

Fitting Support

Hunter pitched a superb game, The big fella had the old ball working like a charm. His control was good and he blanked the foe for seven innings allowing only four hits over that period. He eased up in the eighth when Kingston nicked him for four blows for their only three runs but in the ninth he settled down and retired the side in order. His mate fielded well behind him as he only whiffed a pair.

Tallion, starting hurler for the homesters felt the weight of the SACOS attack in the first innings. Barriage walked, Henn grounded out and Sword singled. Gene Lebonne clouted a home-run that practically put the game in the bag there and then.

Three More in Second

The Peoples' choices got three more in the second off two walks, a brace of DVA errors and Tallion's fat hit. Gowan scored once in the eighth and the last one in the ninth.

Steve Hook relieved Tallion in the fourth and held the winners to one run and no hits over the remainder of the game. He will likely be Manager Belwa's choice to start in the third game tomorrow.

CHAPTER 21.

"Yes, and I took it back without a word. I didn't remind you that you had sidestepped the contract. Nevertheless, I consider you morally responsible."

Jacqueline swallowed a sob and blinked rapidly to keep back the tears. Somehow she felt so thoroughly humiliated, so....

"Larry" her voice had changed suddenly. There was a note of tenderness in it she never had heard. "We're not going to quarrel dear. Look at me."

She kept her face turned obstinately from him. So very often it was about then that Jacqueline found herself fearing that Larry would hear her heart pounding.

"If you think I've broken my promise," he went on gently," I suppose there is no great wrong in doing it again. I'm not sure when I will see you again....or now."

He hesitated, as if trying to choose the right words.

"I think you have honored me as almost no other woman ever honored a man. Believe me, I know that to the full. I....oh, it's no use, Jack! I have to tell you about it!"

Larry was speaking in quick, hurried sentences.

"There's no way in which I may tell you how utterly I've loved you from that first day. It's been almost unbearable! To be near you, to see you.... so many more times than you've been aware. And all the times my arms have ached to hold you. No one could love you as I do! They never have. They never will."

"Larry! Please...."

"No! You must understand that it's always going to be that way. No matter what happens, it will be that way. You are the only woman who ever had come into my heart, it belongs to you. So do I. I'll wait forever to you. So have to. But there never will be anyone else. Please believe that. Please, Jack...."

Neither of them could have told how it happened.

Jacqueline was in her husband's arms, pressed close against him. His cheek rested against her hair. She felt his heart beating—or heard his broken whispers.

"Jack....my own little Jack. I love you so."

She struggled to release herself, pushing at him frantically with her small hands.

"No, no....I....she choked brokenly.

"You do love me, Jack... just very little. Tell me you do!"

"Oh, I....No! Let me go.... Please let me go!"

He released her at once.

"I'm sorry if I have hurt or offended you, dear. But you do love me. I know it and so do you. You needn't be afraid. I won't forget again." He busied himself with putting the roadster into motion.

The ride to the city was made in silence. When they reached the Courtland street house, all Larry said was, "May I see you and tell you good-bye before I leave?"

"I....I don't think so." Jacqueline was fumbling blindly with the car door. She had it open now.

"Good-night, Good-night, Jack." The car was moving as he reached out and closed the door with a ruthless bang.

But Larry was gone.

Larrimore Cutler left an elevator at the mezzanine floor of the Mayer store and made an instant looking about him.

Almost at once, his eyes encountered a woman sitting by herself on a small settee, one arm resting on the marble balcony rail, apparently studying the busy lobby below. She was modishly attired in black. A small hat of the same shade was perched saucily on her decidedly blonde head. Rather pretty, made up, he decided. But attractive. Generously proportioned. This type that would make men turn for a second look.

He approached her slowly, his feet making no sound in the thick-piled carpet.

"Miss Morris?"

She turned with a start, her red lips parting in a friendly smile. "It's Mr. Cutter, isn't it?"

"Yes." He took a seat at her side without waiting for an invitation. "I was writing a letter when you phoned," he explained, "and forgot to sign it. I'm in a hurry."

Larry frowned a trifle, as he remarked. "I'm sorry you didn't arrange to meet me somewhere else, Miss Morris. Didn't they tell you about that?"

"No. I thought this would be all right today." She glanced about nervously. "I wonder if it wouldn't be better for you to call me Alma...."

"Very well. And, since you are here, we may as well talk. First of all, have you had any luck?"

"Not a bit, I'm sorry to say, I haven't overlooked any bets so far, but-if he's got what you're after....well, he isn't taking any chances."

"Have you had a chance to go through his pretty thoroughly?"

"Rather. I thought I was on the scent the other day. It was a small safe. Looking promising. It's an old-timer and I didn't have much trouble getting into it when I got a good chance."

"Papers?"

"Sure. But nothing very hot. One of them was a will. But I don't suppose you'd be after anything out of that." She showed her white teeth in a smile of amusement. "But no sign of any money."

"They told me out in Chicago that you could always be depended on to find gold. That's why I've been marking time, hoping you could get here. I'm getting tired of getting busy on my own." Cutler leaned forward interestedly. "But I would like to know how you landed that job. Do you mind telling me?"

"It was easy enough, Jerry .. you know who I mean...he came out here first and sized up the lay of the land. Made all the necessary contacts. He stumbled onto the old gentleman's weakness, I'm the newest one." Miss Morris laughed as she produced a pack of cigarettes from her bag. "I can't smoke on the job," she explained. "Will you have one?"

"No thanks." Larry held out a lighted match. "I still think it was a foolish move," he insisted.

"Maybe. I suggested that he needed a secretary. The idea was a new one to him, but....Well, I'm going in my own line."

"I can believe it."

Miss Morris blew a thread of smoke into the air. Her blue eyes twinkled as she watched it.

"My dear, you should have seen my act. I don't know the first thing about shorthand! When he dictates, I put down a lot of hen tracks in my notebook and try to remember what he said. So far, I've gotten by. If he asks me to go back and read my notes ...heaven help little Alma!"

Larry laughed in spite of himself. Then his face grew grave.

"I've been afraid that you would draw a blank, I've been making you guess of my own. I think I'll sit in the game. May-be two heads will be better than one."

"Wish you would. I'm pretty sure I'm on a blind trail. I'll be glad to resign any time."

"No. That isn't necessary. Stick where you are until you get orders to do something else."

"You don't care how you spend your money, do you?"

"Not this time." Larry's mouth tightened in a grim line. "I've waited a long time for this chance. I expect to recoup before I'm through. Here's the situation."

He lower his voice a trifle.

"I'm being followed here. Got a tip not long ago....Checked up on it."

"Local cops?"

"Yes. That's why I wasn't so anxious to have you meet me here. You can guess who started it."

"I'd be dumb if I couldn't figure that one out."

"They haven't showed their hand yet and I'm going to beat them to it. I'm leaving here tomorrow. I'll see that it's well advertised. After a few weeks.."

"I get it."

"That's why I want you to stay on the job. You may get a break. And I may fall flat. If anything happens, you know what to do."

"Sure. Beat it. And I wish I could do it now." She reached out and ground the stub of her cigarettes petulantly on the tray of a smoking stand. "I don't know what I've had to put up with out there. I'm fed up on it! It wasn't...." She broke off suddenly. "Be careful," she said in a low tone.

Larry turned his head instinctively.

A young woman was passing close to the settee, walking slowly. She did not so much as glance at the pair, but made her way toward the wide stair case leading to the lobby.

"Friends of yours?" inquired Miss Morris, noticing Larry's scowl as he started after the intruder.

"She works here," he explained shortly.

"Hope I haven't mixed things for you. I had to come in to the city on an errand, or I wouldn't have risked it."

"It doesn't make any difference, Alma. I'm leaving tomorrow anyway. Tell me...." He changed the topic suddenly. "What is the situation out there? All's well, what?"

"Family and that sort of thing." "Nobody but the wife. I feel sorry for her. She's a motherly old thing, rather fond of me. I'm in her room most of the time. I see her at meals and occasionally in the evening. The office is in a wing. I'm there most of the time."

"I see."

"I feel sorry for the old girl ....she's too good for him. I try to make her gay when I'm with her. You know....dress quiet and keep my eyes open. The old man's always on his good behavior then. Butter wouldn't melt in his mouth. But oh so crazy about that."

"Well, I hope it won't last much longer. I guess that's about all. I'm going back up on the elevator." Larry rose as he spoke. "You know what to do, in case...If you leave you, I'd go down the other stairway and out the side. Thanks a lot for dropping in. Good-bye and lots of luck."

"Good-bye to you."

He walked swiftly away.

When Virgie Blake surrendered after her illness, she made prompt discovery of Larry's return and plied Jacqueline with eager questions. Receiving little information or encouragement, she had not reverted to the subject again.

But today, when Jacqueline saw her entering down excitedly on the other, she knew instinctively what her friend was going to talk about and prepared to meet it with a show of indifference.

Virgie closed the door behind her and bent over the desk. Her black eyes were wide, her red lips parted.

"My dear!" she burst out in a stage whisper. "Guess what!"

"I'm sure I don't know," Jacqueline ventured casually.

"Mrs. Cutler's here!"

This was too much for Jacqueline's composure. Her own eyes widened. She gave a little gasp.

REPLACE LIGHTHOUSE

Chatham, Aug. 30.—(CP)—The Isaac Walton lighthouse, which for more than 80 years has guided mariners on the Canadian shores of angler, impatiently waiting to be served in a tap room, whipped by a new steel structure shaped back his rod and let fly with a something like a windmill. It will swish. The plug hit its target—be only 55 feet above lake level, back of a waiter's neck—and the structure.

A PERFECT CAST

Sudbury, Aug. 30 — (CP) — Erieau lighthouse, which for more Isaac Walton himself couldn't have made a better cast. A local ers on the Canadian shores of angler, impatiently waiting to be Lake Erie, will soon be replaced as compared with the 70-foot waiter promptly responded with a "pony" of ale.

HOTEL CLERK IS CONOVER'S CHOICE

Miss Martha Jane Lee, 21-year-old blonde information clerk at a Dallas, Tex., hotel, was named the prettiest girl in Dallas by Harry Conover, head of a nationally-known model agency. Conover spent three days selecting five Dallas girls to go to New York to work for Conover. And Miss Lee is to go to New York to work for Conover.

Battle Tsetse Fly In Bushveld War

Written for The Canadian Press by REYS MEIER

Mkuzi River, Zululand (CP) — Here in one of the wildest and most remote parts of the Natal hinterland, scientists of the South African department of Agriculture are waging a large-scale war on the tsetse fly, carrier of sleeping sickness and of the dreaded nagana disease which has brought death to 25,000 cattle in this area in the last nine months.

The battle-ground is the Mkuzi game reserve in Northern Zululand and from a leading strip cleared in its thick and deadly bush aircraft of the South African Air Force one morning and evening, skimming low over the trees in the target area, the planes belch from their exhausts smoke impregnated with DDT.

This spreading of the smoke over the Mkuzi bush will last about three months, and then a full-scale campaign will begin to clear a two-mile strip of bush round each of the three game reserves — Umfolozi, Hlabluwe and Mkuzi — a total clearing of 130,000 acres.

Into these reserves flys the game on which the tsetse feeds, and there too are the trees needed by the fly. But the fly can live only in the shade, and it is believed, will not be able to cross a two-mile belt of open country. The cleared country will, it is hoped, be an impassable barrier between the fly in the reserves and the country beyond.

Great bulldozers, tractors, tank carrying vehicles, are assembled in clearings in the bush. Water trucks and trailers, tank-making machinery, huge compressors and their attendant tilting-like mechanical axes and jack-hammers have been gathered for an attack on the bush.

Farmers Enlisted

This is essentially a ranching country and was thrown open to settlers after the First Great War. It was cut into large farms because the settlers were meant to grow cattle here. But today, on some of the farms, there are no cattle at all. On others, there are only young stock, in the open country the tsetse cannot reach.

One leading farmer said: "We had about 45,000 head of cattle in the Hlabluwe area. Today there are fewer than 25,000. The cattle are still dying from the average herd of 500, the farmers have lost 100 or more and have had to sell the remainder as quickly as they could before these animals died as well."

Another farmer told me: "At one time I had as many as 2700 head of cattle. I have lost 1,200 and have sold all the rest except 300. Nagana hit us in 1942 and we have been losing cattle ever since."

All Africa is watching this campaign. The method is unique in the war that has now been waged for a generation to free tropical Africa from the scourge of nagana and sleeping sickness.

Tests at Bikini Add to Knowledge Of Atomic Energy

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

New York (AP) — The atomic bombs at Bikini atoll marked the beginning of a new appreciation by man of the nature of the invisible rays around which he has always lived.

In the flash of both bombs was the equivalent of hundreds of tons of radium. The world's total supply of radium, after extraction from pitchblende, is less than 20 pounds—not much more than one-millionth part of the radio-active energy released by a single flash.

The lesson is that from now on men will become acquainted with rays of a power scarcely dreamed of before the war. These rays already have shown what they can do as military weapons, and it is likely that they will be harnessed for many productive uses.

Radio-active rays are not as unknown as most people think. They are in the air all about, and deep in the earth, all the time. They are produced mainly by cosmic rays, invisible particles that come from some unknown source in space. These cosmic particles produce gamma, or x-rays, and a number of others less penetrating.

Safe at a Distance.

The atomic bomb flash at 21 miles, and also far closer to the bomb, was almost certainly harmless to human beings. That lack of risk at distance brings out another peculiarity of radio-active rays that will be very important commons knowledge with the advance of the atomic era.

These rays do not—with an exception discovered in atomic bombs—do instant damage. Time of exposure is as essential as intensity of rays. These radio-active rays burn like sun tan rays. Ordinary gamma and other rays are like sunburn in needing time to produce serious burns.

The exception is the atomic bomb flash, in which a fraction of a second, close enough, can produce death days or weeks later.

After the flash, there is an aftermath that lasts for long periods. At Bikini, nearly one month after the explosion, the great lagoon, 21 miles by 10, still was not tenable as a harbor. Men remained, in safety, on a few selected ships, where they could be washed of ex-rays that were borne in the shifting currents of the lagoon.

Such persistent radio-activity will become in the atomic age one of the common facts of life. Barring occasional accidents, people who are informed probably will not find it difficult to avoid the persistent rays. But in an atomic war the rays would be used to empty cities of populations and to remain untenable for important periods some areas of military importance.

Several feet of concrete or lining equivalent in steel, is protection and at distances of a mile or a little more, probably complete protection against even the atomic bomb flash rays. Men at present there is nothing except great mass, as of concrete, that will afford close-up protection against an atomic bomb flash.

Canada Opposes Amendment By Australia

Paris, Aug. 30—(CP Cable) Canada on Thursday opposed an Australian amendment seeking a sub-commission to obtain more information on the Trenda and Brigs area of the Italian frontier, ceded to France in a draft treaty.

As the Australian delegate, Col. W. R. Hodgson, scowled at him, Health Minister Clarton said: "It appears doubtful if the sub-commission would be useful in this particular case."

Canada then voted against the Australian proposal, which was heavily defeated. Col. Hodgson came up for Mr. Clarton, who leads the Canadian delegation in the absence of Prime Minister Mackenzie King, and said he wished the Canadians had stuck with him.

However, Mr. Clarton was emphatic in his belief that such a commission would be a waste of time and prolong the conference even more.

The amendment was proposed as a conference commission on Italian political and territorial arrangements.

Will Not Proceed With Bill To Amend CBC Act

Ottawa, Aug. 30—(CP)—Acting Finance Minister Abbott said Thursday in the Commons that the government did not plan to proceed this session with the bill amending the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation Act.

Mr. Abbott made the statement in reply to a question of John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, for further supplementary estimates had been tabled.

The estimates provided for a loan to the CBC to enable it to carry out plans for expansion.

The CBC bill now standing for second reading has been strongly opposed by Progressive Conservatives and Social Credit members.

The bill would provide for a loan of $2,000,000 to the CBC. It would also provide that all revenue from licence fees be turned over to the CBC and that collection and other costs be paid out of the consolidated revenue fund.

Under the expansion plans, the CBC plans to take over stations, CFRB in Toronto, CKY in Winnipeg and CFCN in Calgary.

Calls Testimony For Nazi Organizations 'Untrue', 'Ridiculous'

Nuernberg, Aug. 30—(AP)— Sir David Fyfe, British prosecutor, Thursday characterized as 'untrue' and 'ridiculous' testimony presented to the International military tribunal by witnesses testifying in defence of seven Nazi organizations indicted for crimes against humanity.

Concluding his two-day summation, Sir David said defence witnesses had cast doubt upon their own credibility by describing the notorious Dachau concentration camp as a recreation camp and by describing the motion pictures, libraries and other facilities allegedly provided for the prisoners at Buchenwald.

Little Benny's Note Book

Brainy Merkle walked passed while I was taking a walk with pop, and I said, Hey pop, did you see that guy that just waved at me? That's Brainy Merkle. He's the smartest guy in our class and his seat is always number one on theforest form, and the teacher is always asking him favors because he never answers wrong; and the worst of it is he dont even have to study, because all he has to do is just read something and he remembers it forever. The lucky guy, I said.

You'd probably feel much happier if you pitied him instead of envied him, pop said. Surely he must be a dunce in some field of endevor in which you shine. Prehaps all all strong points are mental, and when it comes to running and jumping and so fourth you can make him look silly, he said, and I said, No sir, that's just what makes it still worse, pop, I mean he's got muscels like a man in a side show and he can play any kind of a game better than anybody else, and the other fellows always follow him like the leeder of their side, and if anybody claims they can do anything better than Brainy can, he can even prove they're wrong by licking them in a fight. So what can I pity him about? I said.

It's a complicated case, pop said. By golies I'll bet he doesn't have to go to the barber shop as often as you. I'll bet you dont know anybody whose hair grows as fast as yours, he said, and I said, Gosh, that's right pop. Brainy's hair sticks up, and you can purty near see every hair, it looks so delicate, I said.

By the time he's 30 there probably wont be anything between his brains and his hat except his naked skalp, pop said, and I said, Oh, boy, the poor guy.

The result being I felt better instead of worse.

FULLY CLOTHED MAN
BRAVES ICY WATERS
TO SAVE YOUNGSTER'S LIFE!

ROBERT GORDON WINS
Dow Award

There was confusion on the pier which juts out from Britannia into the Ottawa River. A young boy, unable to swim, had fallen into the river and was being carried away by the current. The Icy May waters were no obstacle to Robert Gordon, veteran. Leaping from the pier, fully clothed and without even pausing to remove his sun glasses, Gordon swam to the floundering boy. For a time there was a violent struggle. Finally, Gordon managed to get the frantic boy to climb on his back. Then, with the boy's arms tightly around his neck, he started to swim back to the pier. The strong current and undertow were almost too much for the rescuer :: but he eventually reached the pier where they were both helped ashore.

To Robert Gordon, of Ottawa, we are proud to present The Dow Award.

THE DOW AWARD
is a citation for outstanding heroism performed by a Dow employee, or by a person in the employ of a Dow Associate, or by a member of the family of either. Dow Awards are made only once a year.

Recommended Romania Pay Soviet Russia $300,000,000 In Reparations After Debate

By ROBERT RUNSON

Paris, Aug. 31 (AP)—The peace conference economic commission for the Balkans and Finland approved by a narrow margin the "Big Four" recommendation that Romania pay Soviet Russia $300,000,000 in reparations.

The action came at the end of a week-long debate which had engulfed the commission in a dispute on Romanian oil.

Azeuth Arkan amendment to force Romania to pay her reparations in "Fair" instead of "equivalent" to world standards was set aside for further study and the vote on Romania permitted to proceed.

It was the second Russian reparations demand approved in the commission in two days—the Italian economic commission endorsed the Soviet claim for $100,000,000 against Italy yesterday.

Article 22 of the Romanian treaty, as approved by the commission, would give Romania eight years from Sept. 12, 1944, in which to pay the $300,000,000 that payment will be made in commodities such as oil products, grain, timber, seagoing and river craft and sundry manufactures.

Russia opposed the Azeuth Arkan amendment and Britain and the United States favored it. Americans and Britons said the significance of the amendment was that Romania should make reparations with oil from fields which in previous days were largely financed by Anglo-American interests.

The Italian political and territorial commission meanwhile adopted the plan placing the Italian frontier on the Mont Cenis Plateau as defined in the proposed Italian peace treaty drafted by the Big Four Foreign Ministers.

This frontier, as defined by the proposed treaty, "shall leave the present frontier about three kilometres southeast of the summit of Mt. Thabor, the present frontier about four kilometres southeast of Mont Chaberton and 1½ kilometres northeast of Mt. Damblin."

To Furnish Italy

The military committee proposes the frontier in favor of France and gives France the Gran Scala hydro-electric plant. Under the Italian-France agrees, under an annex to the treaty, to furnish Italy with the electric power she needs.

The military committee adopted Article 39 of the Italian peace treaty whereby "each of the military, naval and air clauses of the present treaty will remain in force until modified in whole or in part by agreement between the Allied and associate powers and Italy or, after Italy becomes a member of the United Nations, by decision of the Security Council."

Meanwhile, the stage was set for a verbal battle between Russia and Hungary over the former enemy states now in the Russian sphere of influence, over their eastern frontiers, the Russian and Hungarian political and territorial claims and what is expected to hear representatives of the Hungarian government on the return of Transylvania to Romania.

COMMONS SCENE OF RADIO CLASH AS SESSION DIES

Two Million Dollar Loan to CBC Given On Vocal Vote After Stormy Discussion

By DOUG HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 31.—(CP)—Weeks of heavy opposition warfare behind them, the CBC's plans for expansion were in the parliamentary clear today.

Organized opposition of the Progressive Conservative and Social Credit parties yielded in the Commons last night and, on a vocal vote, a supplementary estimate of $2,000,000 as a loan for the government-owned corporation went through on the basis of the Liberal and C.C.F. support it has received throughout its stormy passage in two fortnights.

The House sat for 13½ hours in its efforts to clear the decks and prorogation, but it was still on their seats about 12:30 a. m., still ahead in Labor Department estimates but anticipating an end of the session before the 20th Canadian Parliament some time today.

Their work yesterday carried them through the last of the estimates of the trade and commerce, revenue, health and state secretary's departments and into the labor late in the night.

In launching the estimates, Labor Minister Mitchell said Canada's unemployment register had been reduced by 20,000 on April 1 to 148,000 on Aug. 15. At the same time, there were 44,000 vacancies for males and 44,000 for females.

Mr. Mitchell promised Angus Macinnis (CCF — Toronto East) that he would do all possible to bring about settlement of the steel strike. Mr. Macinnis said settlement should be reached on the basis of the steelworkers union proposals to the industrial relations committee of the commons.

Major activity for the day was in the committee of the whole, climaxing in the vocal vote which passed the $2,000,000 at sight.

Opposition Outshouted

Progressive Conservative and Social Credit members shouted "Nay" when Deputy Speaker Gus Macdonald put the estimate in a vote but they were outshouted by the Liberal and C.C.F. members.

It signalled the end of one of the most bitterly fought arguments, one that pivoted largely around the CBC's commercial policy of taking over the frequencies of three private stations, CFRB Toronto, CKAC Montreal and CFCM, Calgary.

The CBC case was introduced after the government, in the hope it would settle the dispute, announced withdrawal of a bill which would have given the commercials some purpose on a legislative basis. Douglas Ross (PC—Toronto-St. Paul's) charged that the estimate be sliced to $1.

The CBC has said it plans to use the money for long-standing plans for a Toronto studio, for new construction, new stations and for the improvement of some existing stations, for the shifting of frequencies of the three stations involved and that channels should not be developed to 50,000 watts until the CBC can be sold to Canada by international agreement.

Goering, 20 Top Nazis Make Their Last Pleas At Nuernberg Tribunal

By G. E. RODENFIELD

Nuernberg, Aug. 31 (AP)—The verdicts in the nine-month-old Nuernberg war crimes trial will be given September 25, the tribunal announced today.

The disclosure was made by Lord Justice Sir Geoffrey Lawrence of Britain, presiding, after the twenty Hitler henchmen in the "prisoners' dock completed their final pleas.

Sir Geoffrey announced that the International Military Tribunal would recess until Sept. 23 when the verdict is to be given against Hermann Goering and his fellow defendants and seven Nazi organizations.

While the 20 co-defendants sat in the prisoners' box, Lawrence opened the string of last minute speeches by shouting his innocence over and over again in an impassioned 10-minute plea.

Behind him, Rudolf Hess followed Goering. Unleashing a storm of abuse, Hitler's former deputy attacked the entire proceedings.

The old courtroom was packed to the doors for the third day of the dramatic case against the one-time Nazi leaders. The court was expected to recess soon to write its verdict, about two weeks are expected in blood.

The once mighty German leaders, for all of whom the death penalty has been demanded by the prosecution, present a far different appearance than they did when they first took their seats in the dock on Nov. 20, 1945.

Haggard, Mental Changes

Nine months of listening to the evidence of the crimes against humanity with which they are charged and to the efforts of their defence lawyers to offset their records, has changed them physically and mentally.

Goering is reported to have told a prison psychiatrist:

"I know I am going to hang and do not want to quit fooling ourselves."

Franz Pfluecke, former deputy propaganda minister, has been the gayest of all during the court sessions despite the grim interpreters. He is reported to have smiled frequently, however, in his cell at night.

Julius Streicher, No. 1 Jew baiter of the Nazi regime, sits and chews all day, seldom listening to the sessions.

Joachim von Ribbentrop, the foreign minister who was Hitler's foreign minister, is said to have undergone the greatest change of any of the defendants. Ribbentrop now is thin and haggard, a far cry from the dapper diplomat of earlier days.

C.S.U. THREATENS STRIKE ACTION, WANTS CONTRACT

Union Feels at Liberty to Act Against Three Lake Operators

Montreal, Aug. 31.—(CP)—J. A. (Pat) Sullivan, president of the Canadian Seamen's Union, last night warned three major lake vessel operators that unless assurance is given today that a work contract is to be signed, the union will ask the C.I.O. in Detroit to take strike action "at any time after midnight Tuesday."

In a telegram to Paul Hellyer, union, legal counsel and representative of the three firms — Canada Steamship Lines, Paterson Steamships Company and the Colonial Steamship Lines — Mr. Sullivan expressed regret that agreements had not been signed in Montreal yesterday, as "it was my understanding that all that were to conclude and finally settle all outstanding matters between the companies that you represent and ourselves."

"Failure to heed your Mr. Mathewson by noon today "means that we will take it to mean that arbitration is off . . . (and) we shall feel that we are at liberty to take the last resort, namely, strike action . . ."

Cites Agreement

A C.S.U. spokesman said the agreement called for a 30 per cent wage increase, on the basis of a 1946 year contract, a preferential shop and a check-off system. The union also wants two additional statutory holidays.

Sullivan said early last night on the union's ultimatum, Mr. Mathewson had said he had not yet received the telegram, added that it "would appear to be a violation of the co-operation and good faith that should be the atmosphere in which further discussions should take place."

He was willing to meet Mr. Sullivan and his associates, and Frederick Mathewson, independent commissioner, Mr. Justice S. E. Richards of Winnipeg, at Ottawa, for further discussions. He said the matter under dispute was the "question of the union membership in the union." The question of arbitration had been proposed only 24 hours before, and required days consideration.

Capt. E. R. Brand, federal shipping controller named June 21 as the conclusion of an earlier C.S.U. strike that virtually tied up lake shipping for three days, was requested to comment on the union's new threat.

FOURTEEN HELD ON SPY CHARGES NOW RELEASED

Only One Held in Custody is Fritsche Gauweiler, Alleged Leader of Organization

Frankfurt, Germany, Aug. 31. (AP)—Col. C. F. Fritsche, deputy British military intelligence Chief in Europe, disclosed today that all but one of 15 Germans arrested on suspicion of Soviet-sponsored espionage in the American zone have been released in Germany.

Col. Fritsche said the only one held in custody was Walter Kaemarck, alleged leader of the Russian-sponsored clandestine organization known as "Free Germany."

He declined comment on the reason for the release of the others, but indicated it would depend on whether charges had been filed against Kaumarck.

The Col. Fritsche said not even say when the 14 were freed. All were taken into custody months ago as a result of what the United States termed a probe of "evidence of Soviet espionage and subversive activities operations." Many of the arrests were alleged to have been made in the Stuttgart area and to have involved members of the Soviet zone American troop movements.

Classed as Small Fry

"This operation has been going on for five months," Col. Fritsche said. "Those we may have been released months ago."

The Germans held in still continuing and we cannot disclose information about them right now, under our future operations."

He declined to discuss the question of whether the Germans can legally be prosecuted for espionage under the laws of occupation on that has not yet been decided.

Col. Juan Sedillo, legal chief for the Stuttgart military government, said the army's counter-intelligence corps had ordered the arrests and had collected evidence against the defendants.

Intelligence officers at army headquarters said the activities of the "Free Germany" group were "not necessarily espionage" and that Soviet propaganda was the principal objective. They called the "Free Germany" organization organized by Soviet officials against all Germans converted to Communism by indoctrination in Russia.

CO-OPERATION OF LABOR ESSENTIAL SAYS MITCHELL

Believes Unions Under Wise Leadership Will Have Big Part In Canada's Future

Ottawa, Aug. 31 (CP)—Labor Minister Mitchell in a Labor Day message said today full co-operation of labor was essential to Canada's reconstruction program.

"My appeal to the workers of Canada on this 1946 Labor Day is for solidarity in the task of helping our country through this period of reconversion into the happier days of high employment and better living which lie ahead" he said.

Percy R. Bengough, President of the Trades and Labor Congress, and A. R. Mosher, President of the Canadian Congress of Labor, in their messages stressed current unrest to a sense of insecurity on the part of Canadian workmen.

Mr. Mitchell made no direct reference to existing strikes but sounded a warning against dangers of inflation.

"Inflation is not a bogey to be used to frighten people into doing what otherwise they do not like to do," he said. "It is a real threat that still hangs over our national economy."

While great strides had been made in reconversion, much remained to be done and the country still had the legacy of problems inevitable after the war.

"Without the full co-operation of labor we could not succeed just as we could not have shared so fully in fighting for the cause of freedom," Mr. Mitchell said. "Given wise leadership which recognizes not only the rights of labor but also the responsibilities there is no doubt in my mind that trade unionism will occupy an increasingly large & growing part in the general progress of our great country."

Mr. Bengough said unsettled conditions were not peculiar to Canada.

Referring also to the theory that the present unsettlement is a natural follow-up after a period of war, Mr. Bengough said "Few cone gets down to the basic reason for it. It is the fear of insecurity.

"The time has gone by for our governments to squabble over who is going to collect the taxes. Considerations must be given first to the well being of the individual."

Mr. Mosher said the present unrest in the labor movement was settled "largely from a feeling of unsatisfactory appreciation." Many of the strikes could have been avoided if government and industry had adopted a more favorable attitude toward programs advanced by unions.

Girl Tells Experience in Fabled Islands, Mixture Gumfire, Romance

By JOHN B. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Aug. 31 — (CP) — Romance and adventure were two words used to say that South Sea romances were strictly magazine stuff, Elizabeth Willie found out wrong. Just ask blond Wilhelmina Willie, Elizabeth's mother, Foremost, Alta. She's got strong feelings on the subject.

Willie flew to the United States from Paris Tuesday. Before that, for a half hour, she had which took her half-way around the world to the fabled shores of the Fiji Islands, which put her under gun fire at least four times; and which finally brought her a husband in the best romantic tradition.

It all started two years ago — when Willie, living on a wheat farm near Foremost, was taking Medicine Hat, Alta, decided to join the Canadian Red Cross and in September, 1944, in Vancouver, met and took her basic training along with a score of other Dutch-Canadian girls, in the United States.

Then, a full-fledged member of the Red Cross, she was finally women's corps — Willie sailed for Honolulu, where she spent 10 restless months there before the Japanese surrendered and things were quiet enough for her to fly to Batavia, Java, centre of the pre-war Dutch East Indies empire.

Early last January Willie was given a new assignment. A United States army officer, Lt.-Col. A. L. Weston of Lancaster, Pa., and Miami, Fl., had just arrived to do a job in Fiji. Mrs. Montgomery was for the American government. He needed an interpreter and secretary and Willie was chosen.

Willie started a two month tour which took Col. Weston and Willie to 20,000 miles of the Pacific by boat and 6,000 miles by native cart, horseback and on foot, to Fiji's capital, Suva, and the pageant—the rank Willie had reached by this time—of lieutenant colonel never seen by a white woman before.

For instance, there was the time Willie had dinner with a Fijian and he paid her the special tribute of giving her a cocktail made from the blood of severs.

"That was quite, something in the East Indies — where women are always in the background," Willie laughed. "Me, I was always in the foreground. The Rajah of Fiji, Sir Lala Sukuna, is Medicine Hat, Alta, decided to join the Canadian Red Cross and in September, 1944, in Vancouver, and took her basic training along with a score of other Dutch-Canadian girls, in the United States.

When the job of assessing Indonesian war losses and assets was finished, Willie went with Anderson and Col. Weston went to Washington to report.

Then they had no intention of letting things drop there. Willie returned to Paris on a plane from Paris last Tuesday. On Thursday in Toronto, Willie and Col. Weston were married. Today they start for Miami, where Col. Weston's father is ill, and on their wedding trip.

After that they'll visit the Dutch legation in Ottawa and will visit Willie's father in Foremost, Canada is familiar to the colonel, who just missed being born there. Col. A. L. Weston's parents emigrated to Galt and on a recent visit to the United States Col. Weston was born there. He spent part of his boyhood in Galt, Windsor and Walkerville.

RUSSIAN, GREEK ENVOYS REFUSED SEAT IN ASSEMBLY

Charges Against Greece and Great Britain May Never be Heard

By LARRY HAUCK

Lake Success, N. Y., Aug. 31. (AP)—Russia's Andrei A. Gromyko's bitter charges against Greece and Great Britain were hanging fire today while the United Nations Security Council went into its Labor Day weekend holiday without having decided whether the case is worthy of a hearing.

The indicated opposition at Friday's session posed the question whether the necessary seven votes could be mustered to have the case heard at all.

The next session was set for 2 p. m. E.D.T. today after Great Britain and the Soviet Union clashed sharply further over the entire question and the council itself adjourned immediately to cast Dmitri Manuilsky, Ukrainian foreign minister who flew here from Paris for the peace conference to present his Russian-supported case.

Also denied a seat was Ambassador Nikolai Vasilievich Kosirev representative, but the pre-voting arguments centered on Manuilsky's and Kosirev's attempted the Greek situation at length last night at a press conference held at the Soviet Consulate in New York City. He said he had two suitcases filled with evidence and documents to support his charges. He declared that the plebiscite in Greece set for Sunday was against the wishes of the people, severe terror and that the Security Council should concern itself with how it was conducted.

Andrei Gromyko, usually caustic in comments on the day's stand taken by Sir Alexander Cadogan, British delegate, and Oscar N. Van Kleffens, of The Netherlands, who succeeds Parodi, of France. He contended their opposition to be based on from yesterday was contradictory to the United Nations Charter and to the council's rules.

Dr. Oscar Lange of Poland, council president, adjourned today's four-hour meeting at the suggestion of delegate Herschel V. Johnson of the United States after Mr. Gromyko declared that he wanted to continue the debate into the night.

Semenov and Five Co-defendants Are Executed

Moscow, Aug. 31 (AP)—Gen. Grigorie Semenov and on the gallows today for bearing arms against the Soviet Union and spying for Japan.

Five co-defendants were shot. All were convicted today by the military collegium of the Russian Supreme Court.

The five sentenced to die with Semenov, grizzled, 54-year-old Cossack counter revolutionary leader, were Constantine V. Rodzayevski, Alexei Ilyitch Ilyin, F. Vasilevsky, Boris N. Shepunov and Ivan A. Rikhalkiv, former Prince Nikolai Ukhtomsky, another defendant, was sentenced to 20 years penal servitude and Lev P. Okhotsky to 15 years.

All pleaded guilty to charges arising from what the prosecutors described as a 25-year-old plot to overthrow the Soviet government. Semenov confessed collaborating with Japanese generals in a plot to seize Eastern Siberia for Japan.

Stories of Good Food Lure Britons To Continent for Vacation Periods

By STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Aug. 31 — (CP) — Honeymoon sweet home holds no enchantment to Britons as holidays and story streams of would-be travellers are exhausting their bank accounts and wearing out travel agents in an effort to get out of the country — even if for the country.

For many it's the first vacation away from home in seven years (it's 20 years for many but don't discourage the travellers. Nor does red tape or obtaining passports and visas daunt their hearts on a holiday in France or Switzerland.

Aircraft seats are reserved weeks — in some cases months — ahead. Trains are packed, whether they're running to Southend-on-Sea, the "Cornish Riviera" or to Dover for the Channel crossing to France.

Returning travellers' chief topic of conversation is the food they have eaten abroad. After years of austerity diet, Englishmen drool at tales of rich repasts available on the continent, though shortbandering at the prices.

Visitors to other parts of Europe bring back similar reports, particularly those who have come to appreciate the delights of the meals in Switzerland, where 70,000 British tourists are expected to have boarded more than £4,000,000 this year.

Switzerland welcomed 20,000 visitors from Britain and other countries, serves still meals from 6a. m. ($1.20) to 12s., but is still short of meat, fresh eggs, Belgium, Sweden and Denmark are reported to be solid meals at fancier prices.

Visitors to Italy and Austria are reported to spend nearly £5,000,000 this year. Prices there, too, are reasonable but are roughly three times what they were in 1939. Accommodation is very limited, with no an inflated scale.

Even at home the holiday-maker finds himself involved in expenses far above pre-war. Rail fares, hotel bills, food and boarding - houses have invented new and fantastic charges and meals, although officially pegged at 5d maximum, rarely cost less and often more.

Obituary

ROBERT STEWART

A veteran of two wars, Robert Stewart, 197 Church Street, died in Veterans' Memorial Hospital in Belleville early this morning. He was an illness from war wounds that has continued since last December. Mr. Stewart, who was a resident of Belleville and district for the past thirty-three years, was a member of the Canada Central Company and held in high regard by the employers and fellow employees.

He was born in Scotland, 68 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stewart of Scotland. He was a bachelor man. When the First Great War broke out he enlisted in the infantry and served for the duration being wounded in the battle of Vimy Ridge. He fell in the Second Great War and served in the Veterans' Guard from 1939 until 1946. He was a corporal in both wars. The late Mr. Stewart was an active and enthusiastic member of the Army and Navy Veterans branch 201 of this city and did much to advance the cause of the branch.

He was a member of the Church of England faith. Church and leaves to mourn his wife, the former Miss Elizabeth Ellis, two daughters, Miss Helen at home, Mrs. Ernie Cowley of Belleville, and one son Frank Hebert also of this city.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

THOMAS WALKER

(Queensboro)

Madoc (Special) — Ill for the past six years, Mr. Thomas Walker, Queensboro, died at his home there on Friday. He was in his 67th year.

Born in England, Mr. Walker came to Canada 43 years ago and had been a resident of the Queensboro district where he was a well known farmer and C.N.R. Anglican Church. He was a member of L.O.L. No. 1, Queensboro, and past master of the lodge.

He is survived by his wife, the former Miss Rose Wilkinson of Queensboro.

Peach Prices Drop on Market

Result of a plentiful supply, peaches dropped sharply in price on the Belleville market yesterday with No. 1's to be had at from 85 cents to 90 cents per basket and No. 2's ranging from 55 cents per basket up.

Plums were also quite plentiful with Bradshaws bringing 75 cents per basket, while Italians at 75 cents and other varieties of Prunings at 50 cents to 60 cents per basket. Huckleberries held at 50 cents a basket, while a few blackberries sold at 45 cents the box.

On the inside market eggs held firm at 50 cents the dozen for selects, while the cooking eggs did not large with prices ranging from 40 to 45 cents per dozen chickens.

Potatoes sold at 2½ the bag or at 25 cents the peck with tomatoes holding at 25 and 30 cents the basket. Corn was becoming more plentiful at prices averaging 50 cents the dozen. White beans were sold at $1.25 per basket. Cauliflower brought up to 40 cents, cabbage up to 25 cents and pie pumpkins up to 25 cents each. Onions brought from 10 to 15 cents per basket. Muskmelons sold from 10 to 35 cents and watermelons from 50 cents to $1.50.

Apples were quite plentiful with eating varieties selling at 35 cents the basket, while a few cranapples sold at 60 cents.

Only a few young pigs were offered at prices averaging $10 each.

Canners Agree On 60cts. Bus. For Tomatoes

Following a brief buyers' war during which time several Prince Edward County canners had increased bonuses to growers, with one firm paying as high as 80 cents per bushel for certain tomatoes, canners met last week and agreed to no-price contract, price of 60 cents per bushel.

All except one county canner was present at the meeting with those in attendance being unanimous in their agreement to adhere to the 60 cents contract price.

To encourage early growing, one Bloomfield factory has paid three cents extra per bushel for August tomatoes. This year a second factory in that village increased the price to 70 cents and the other factory to 65 cents the same.

In Cherry Valley this year one factory delighted growers by offering 80 cents per bushel for August tomatoes and a second factory followed suit with 70 cents. As result all tomatoes possible were rushed to get in on the higher price.

Pickers are flocking into the county and are at work in the field to that in the factory as at present the fields alone they can earn more. However, the factories have also received help from outside the county, part/dularly Hastings County.

Solicitor Authorized to Take Up Option on Properties Necessary to Complete Drive

Council in Committee Also Recommends Appointment of City Relief Rounds; Will Hire Aid to Guide Safety Children Across Highways, Streets at Schools

City Engineer Charles Mott and City Solicitor A. B. Collins received the go-ahead signal Thursday evening from the Belleville Riverside Drive when at city council committee meeting council authorized the solicitor to proceed immediately proceedings.

In a recommendation submitted by Alderman Harold Ketcheson, Alderman Harold Arnestrong, the city engineer and solicitor be authorized to proceed with two exceptions to take up options on properties necessary for completion of the Drive. If the options will not be accepted reasonable are not settled satisfactorily, it was recommended that expropriation proceedings by Municipal Board for submission of value.

The recommendation further that the city solicitor be authorized to city officials to proceed with all requirements necessary to bring the Riverside Drive project to a conclusion.

Parking Areas Required

On Friday the parking area to the rear of several of the Bridge Street stores was covered with crushed stone. Gravel would be laid in an oil mixture, this being rolled to provide an even surface.

A committee of Aldermen Harold Ketcheson, Harvey Arnestrong with city engineer Charles Mott was appointed to investigate the garbage dump and report to council regarding a future dumping ground.

Through the office of the city comptroller, Harold Bateman, council that five men be employed as safety patrolmen. This would be given a salary not exceeding $30 per week, subject to the concurrence at the opening of the school terms.

Committee Named

Public rest rooms came in for discussion by council with members authorizing a committee of Aldermen Harold Ketcheson, Harvey, the city engineer and comptroller Harold Bateman to report on the feasibility of building suitable rest rooms for the city. The committee was also asked to recommend a proper site and to submit plans and costs.

The question of closing part of McDonald Avenue between Bridge Street and the Bay of Quinte was brought to the attention of council members through a communication from Mrs. Imlah, president of the Ivan Imlah Tuberculosis Association.

It was suggested to council that it would be a great advantage to the city if part of the proposed erection of a new chronic hospital, McDonald Ave., could be used for that purpose. When the hospital is built it is proposed to connect the building with the present hospital by tunnel so this land would also be built direct instead of underground a considerable saving would be effected. This would also be the added advantage of the residents to make from passing trains as it would then be unnecessary that residents be blown to the McDonald Ave. crossing.

Committee to Report

A committee of Aldermen Chandler Thompson, Wilbur, Hyde and the city engineer, was appointed to investigate the matter and report back to council.

The city engineer, the Traffic Power Commission was granted permission to extend power lines along certain city streets on condition that the city engineer be permitted to approve the recommend regarding location of poles and attaching street corners and storm sewers.

Residents of Bridge Street, West, are objecting to the proposed bus terminal at the foot of Murney Hill and council have received a petition from persons living in this vicinity who are objecting. A council committee of Aldermen Thompson, Carter, Wilbur and Marshall will investigate the matter and report back.

12 New Teachers Will be Added To B.C.I. Staff

Twelve new teachers will be added to the staff of the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Technical school for the opening of the school term next month, it has been announced by Mr. George R. Cochrane, school principal. Three of the teachers are former members of the staff who are returning to Belleville, while the others are new to this city.

Forest Hill Village joining the Belleville Collegiate staff include Miss Jessie Priest, B.A., who will teach English and History; Miss A. E. Grout, B.A., formerly of Forest Hill Village, who will teach Home Economics, and Mr. John M. Jury, B.A., English teacher, who will return to teaching following overseas service.

Plenty of Good Food and Recreation In Outdoors Restore Young Bodies Of Boys and Girls at Kiwanis Camp

The shrill clamor of a bell echoed in the corridors of the Kiwanis Fresh Aid Camp's spacious building at Roblin's Lake. Brilliant morning sunshine streamed over the calm waters of the lake and picked out the trees through doorway windows.

It was Saturday morning. Outside birds twittered in nearby trees, and from the large kitchen, and it smelled like it. Noises coming from the large kitchen, and from the large annex nearby came the sound of youthful grumbly voices. "Gee, Pete," said one, "do we have to get up this early."

A few minutes later groups of tousle-headed laughing boys, the sheer joy of living shining in their every tumbled out of dormitory and annex for their morning dip. Letter-writing and packing cast in the direction of the kitchen, for this was the morning after.

Another day of glorious living for underprivileged boys had started.

1946 Camp Privileges

Thanks to the foresight and efforts of the Belleville Kiwanis Club, 200 boys and girls who otherwise would not have had a Summer respite from the dull city routine, enjoyed two weeks in glorious outdoor life at this Summer. Plenty of good substantial food was provided, there was good beneficial recreation, expert supervision, efficient cooks and staff, fresh air that whetted already keen appetites, amusement, entertainment, bathing, boating and swimming brought days of healthful living and contributed much of the less fortunate children of the city and district.

And they loved it. Any effort or money expended had the reward in the shining faces of these boys and girls. For many it was a brand new experience, many never-care-free days with plenty of sunshine. Bodies grew healthier. The city pallor slowly gave way to the healthy brown of outdoor life. Appetites grew keener. For a new expression. Lack-lustre eyes grew gleamed with happiness and enjoyment. It was the dividend paid by the public-minded to the public-minded. Investments in youth by members of this service club, aided by the generosity of the public in its response to appeals for funds through the Kiwanis Fresh Aid Camp and ensured that untiring Kiwanians have defined.

Good General Behaviour

And that unpretentious grey stone building with its airy dormitories, spotless dining rooms and kitchens, cool lounging rooms and outside, its tree-fringed pathway to the shallow waters of the lake, at Roblin's Mills, has each other visited many.

Fresh "Peter" Stevens, and his attractive wife, who officially supervised the camp, have been remarked with pride, that the general behavior of the campers was excellent "in fact we were proud of the campers here, but this year even bettered that."

As an example of the respect and affection in which "Peter" for that is what the boys and girls call him, effectively and naturally Mr. Stevens, is held, a loaded specimen of a garter snake grew from the house.

Asked how a number of healthy young campers could desist from helping themselves to the pet's fare, he quietly replied, "They were told to leave them alone."

HAS LOTS OF TROUBLE

CHAPTER 23

"Who?"

"Miss Cutler, the old ball and chain herself! And, of all things....She's a dizzy blonde! You couldn't have knocked me over!

"But, but how do you know?" Larry's wife managed with a supreme effort.

"Listen, dearie. I saw them just now on the mezzanine. And that isn't all. I got in on an odd-time family battle! Was she telling him where to head in? I'll say she was. I heard her tell him she was fed up with everything. She looked it, too! She's that sort of a dame. Can you feature it?"

"Not quite," was the truthful answer.

"Well . . ." Virgie straightened up. She wished that she might add more details, but none suggested themselves. Then she noticed Jacqueline's pretty expression, eyes downcast, staring at the toe-point of her pumps. Virgie's eyes narrowed shrewdly.

"Jack", she began in a low voice, "that didn't hit you, did it?"

"Of course not." The stenographer's hand fumbled in the open desk for a sheet of paper. Mechanically she inserted it into the machine. If only Virgie would leave her.

Instead, Miss Blake's hand came out and rested lightly on a small shoulder.

"Sorry, dear. That's me every time. Forget it."

"It's all right." Jacqueline's smile proved it.

As Virgie left the office, the stenographer's fingers tapped swiftly on the keys, faltered. Her hands dropped into her lap. The words had been written, were blurred. The whole world seemed rocking crazily.

Virgie was wrong. She had to be, unless....Oh, no. She was wrong! That couldn't have been Larry's wife.

"I'm Larry's wife," Jacqueline found herself whispering. She could not have told why but she knew that she was clinging to that illogical fact desperately, the first time. But....there was an insistent pounding in her ears. Larry's own words. "You're the only woman. Only woman....Only woman."

But she wasn't the only woman. Jacqueline shivered slightly. There was another woman. With Larry now. Come to find him, to quarrel with him....in public.

"A dizzy blonde."

When Larry Cutter stopped at Jacqueline's office door on the next afternoon, it needed but one glance from the dark blue eyes to confirm his worst fears.

That edgar woman had come and reported. No telling what kind of story she had concocted. And the worst of it was, he could not utter a word in his own defence. Nothing to do but take it. He swallowed an oath and walked into the little room with as genuine a smile as he could muster.

"Well, Miss Anthony, we're checking out." He felt that the expression was singularly appropriate. "Zag and baggage."

Jacqueline looked at him and said nothing.

"I expect to see your dad tonight." He moved nearer the desk and lowered his voice. "Any word you want to send?"

She shook her head.

"Jack . . ." he exclaimed impulsively, then got himself in hand. "I guess there's nothing to say this time....except good-bye."

"Good-bye, Mr. Cutter."

Jacqueline hesitated, then turned on his heel and left.

Jacqueline never knew how she managed to get through the balance of the afternoon. There were few customers, and her boss ached so that she could not read. She had a vague feeling that some one had tacked a vacant smile on her face. There was but one thing she wanted....a chance to go home. To throw herself down on the bed and let the tears come. It seemed to her that she carried an accumulated grief of a lifetime in her heart; she could not hold it back much longer.

Added to her trials, just about the time she planned to escape from the office, was a call from Lieutenant Frank Staples. The detective entered, helped himself to a seat and grinned amiably at Jacqueline.

"Want to hear a good joke, Miss Anthony?"

"I'd love to." Jacqueline placed her hand on the desk to steady herself that the smile was still there. Lieutenant Staples' face showed that fellow Cutter we were talking about one day?"

"Yes."

"Well, early this afternoon I wandered into the bar here. I had another guy on my mind, another racket artist. I was sizing up the mob along the mahogany when some one taps me on the shoulder. It was young Cutter, too."

"Was it?"

"No less. He gives me a pleasant nod, waits for me, says 'Have you?' he asks. I tried to act dumber than usual and tells him he's got the wrong number. I don't know him. So he's got a couple of drinks in him. They're pretty steady, Lieutenant. So I thought maybe he could save you some trouble, I'm pulling out today for good. So I might pass the word along anywhere it'll do you some good.' Get it, Miss Anthony?"

"Very."

"And all the time, I thought I was doin' a nice job of playin' shadow. I don't know whether somebody tipped him off or not. Or whether he's naturally smart."

Jacqueline nodded vacantly. Her heart skipped a beat as Staples paused. His next question might be for her.

"That sure was a good one on me," the detective continued. "I knew you'd get a smile out of it, too. Well, I guess that's gone, all right. Co's my weekly retainer. They tell it in the garage he'd been in there asking some questions about the roads to the Windy City. But I'm not interested."

Jacqueline found herself breathing again.

After her coveted spell of weeping, she forced herself to take stock of the situation. For the time, there was no spontaneous decision to make. Larry was gone. She was left to where she had started.

Perhaps fate had played enough with her.

The days dragged along wearily, each one bringing the same routine. There was but one bright spot....business seemed to be picking up. If the spurt lasted, there was a hope for Jacqueline that it would not be too long before she could square her final account with Larry. Not quite the final one, either.

She dreaded that. Not because of the idea of that last, and legal, it could not be accomplished separation, but the certainty that without the usual legal, separation, but the certainty that it could not be accomplished without the usual legal formalities and publicity. The resultant state might let people into wedlock without any such fuss and trumpets, but it was too much to hope that this disgusting process would be like that. What would it be? Charges of desertion, incompatability....or worse? She seemed to worry over that. The unknown blonde perhaps.

Vince wrote occasionally from the farm. His letters were like himself, vague and erratic.

Jacqueline had by no understand that he was feeling very well now and was hard at work. His enthusiasm in the new occupation had not lagged, apparently. He said nothing about working for Larry, save that the latter had insisted he learn how to drive the roadster. Vince liked that. He was becoming an accomplished chauffeur, he admitted.

"We were down your way the other night. Got one of the notes said, but the boss was in a rush." Only "the boss" he meant, Larry no doubt.

There was no suggestion made that Jacqueline repeat her visit to the farm. And very little about Larry. Mrs. Cutter could easily understand Vince's reticence on the subject. Still....she wondered.

And then, one September day, Vincent Anthony strolled into the lobby of the Raynear.

Jacqueline scarcely recognized her father when she discovered him smiling at her from the doorway. He looked so much better than when she had seen him. His grizzly hair and small moustache were neatly trimmed. He wore a natty blue suit and carried a gray hat, obviously new, in his hand. A healthy tan browned his cheeks.

"Why, Vince! Come in!" his daughter laughed, for the first time in weeks, it seemed to her. "I scarcely knew you. I thought you were one of our millionaire customers!"

Vince grinned almost sheepishly and helped himself to a chair.

"I've been fixing up a little," he admitted. "About time."

"But where did you come from? I'm so thrilled I hardly know what to say! You're going to stay for a while, aren't you?"

"I came down from the farm," Vince admitted.

"Oh," Jacqueline's smile faded. It brought everything back.

"Yes, I had to come down on business for Larry."

"How is....Larry?" She had to ask that.

"I don't know. He's been sticking pretty close to the office, but he don't act the way he used to. He's got something on his mind ....always brooding. He worries me. I bet he's lost about fifteen pounds. Maybe you've noticed it."

"I haven't seen him, Vince."

"No? I rather figured he'd been down here on some of his trips. Though he didn't say so, and I never asked. He told you here a quarrel with him, Skipper?"

"Of course not."

"I didn't know. He's coming down here late tonight sometime. I'm going to stay with him."

"But you're not going right back, Vince?"

"Not sure." Vince looked uncomfortable. His acted as if he had said rather more than he intended.

"Then you'll have dinner with me. We'll eat down in the cafeteria so that you'll have to waste time getting a meal."

"Why, I guess I can do that."

"Of course you can! Then we'll go home and talk. We've a lot to talk together. You know you've never seen my apartment."

"That's right." Larry told me you said it fixed up pretty nice. All right! I'll be on hand. Tell your parents to do now....I'll drop back about ten o'clock. Will that be close up?"

"Oh, about five-thirty. But take your time, I'll wait for you."

After he had gone, Jacqueline realized for the first time how she had missed him. It seemed so good to see him again. And he looked so well. If only he wouldn't start upon talking about Larry too much. It still hurt....about the seeing first and Larry was coming to the city tonight.

That bit of news made Jacqueline vaguely uneasy, vaguely unpleasant. What was Larry coming him here? What was he going to do which he was ashamed? Nothing, so ill at ease after he admitted he was on his way to see Larry.

She would try to find out something about that before the meeting was over. Enough to assure herself that everything was all right as far as Larry's affairs concerned. Strange she never could get over the feeling that she was responsible for him. Some one always had to look after her mother, and now herself.

Philosophy of a Soldier

One of the greatest military commanders, one whose deeds have been recognized in the late war, Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery gave at Ottawa this week a philosophy of the modern army in a democratic state. This philosophy, the result of the thought and experience of a lifetime by a soldier, proven in military achievements, can be carried weight because it fits into the needs of the world. Every commander has had his philosophy, expressed or unexpressed, on the place of the army, as history shows, but Lord Montgomery's is modern and democratic because it is a modern democratic in a world that is trying to achieve security. To the democratic peoples therefore this expression of views by the distinguished commander carries significance. The democratic army is not an army for sheer conquest or aggression but a weapon to protect the democratic state.

So he says the army is outside politics and must remain so. He says the soldier is not chiefly a military figure, but primarily a social figure and that the true and ultimate strength of a nation lies not in the armies and fighting suits to protect them from the intense ultra-violet and cosmic rays and the enormous changes of temperature.

Snow shoes four or five feet long would help them to walk more easily on the slithers of rock which, owing to the low force of gravity, would be disturbed at the slightest touch.

Describing the conditions an astronaut would be likely to encounter, Mr. Wholey said:

"On climbing down to the ground he would be conscious of an amazing sense of lightness, as the force of gravity is one-sixth of that on earth.

"The sun would be unbearably bright, exhibiting its corona in its full glory."

—London Daily Mail.

Drake's Drum

According to Lieutenant Commander Peter Crandall, R.N., who writes in a Reuters information department bulletin, there are many men still alive who claim to have heard Drake's drum. It beat at Trafalgar, they say, and it beat at Jutland when the cruiser Queen Mary blew up. The skipper of a cabin cruiser which was nosing into Dunkirk at the time of the evacuation heard something like the booming of a pompom, but there were no aircraft overhead and no pompoms firing.

A veteran navy man assured his skipper that it was Drake's drum "wot beats when the British Navy is in a tough place. Cheers you up like," and in 1940, when transport after transport over England, Commander Cranshall was aboard a destroyer going out from Plymouth. As he passed Drake's Island, he says, he is almost certain he heard the drum.

It may have been, he admits, "the beating, pulsing heart of a proud little ship—or even perhaps of a proud people." And, heard or unheard, the drum is the symbol of a great tradition.

LAKE HURON SUNSET

Sunset on Lake Huron is a glorious sight to see.
The waves seem robed in purple; gold-
leaf's on every tree.
The day slips out so softly, as on tip-
toe it must tread,
Lest it wake some baby angel that is sleeping overhead.

We stand in adoration on a tall and rocky ledge
As the sun slips down in splendor at the water's distant edge.
And if ever we have doubted that the Lord is good to men,
The majesty of evening brings us back to Him again.

I have said it to the children and I've said it to my friends:
'Tis too hot in the room is darkened
when man's earthly journey ends.
Could I have but one wish granted
when I reach my final day—
With a touch of sunset glory I should like to slip away."

Landing on the Moon

An attempt may be made to land on the moon from a rocket-ship of 1,500 to 2,000 tons within the next 15 years.

That is the view of Mr. M. W. Wholey, a mechanical engineer and a member of the British Inter-Planetary Society, who are "prospecting" for a suitable landing place.

He told a reporter that the first astronauts would be equipped with oxygen apparatus and pressure suits to protect them from the intense ultra-violet and cosmic rays and the enormous changes of temperature.

Snow shoes four or five feet long would help them to walk more easily on the slithers of rock which, owing to the low force of gravity, would be disturbed at the slightest touch.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

August 31st., 1926.

Thousands of interested and pleased people attended the opening of Belleville's new exhibition grounds today. There are over 2,500 exhibits made by 109 exhibitors. The new buildings, the band stand, the fountain, the roads and lawns were a surprise and a delight to everyone.

Miss Viola Ashley, nurse-in-training at Albany, N.Y., is spending her parents at their home on Moira Street.

Mrs. Thomas W. Third of Jersey City and Miss Grace Waters of Utica, N.Y., are visiting their mother, Mrs. David Waters, Foin Street.

Mrs. George Bacon, Hillside Street, and Mrs. J. Ross, Hollowray Street, have returned after a pleasant trip to Chester, Pa., and Philadelphia, Pa.

30 YEARS AGO

August 31st., 1916.

Mr. Maurice Lavois is spending his vacation in New York city.

Mr. Perry Gill is spending his vacation with relatives down the bay.

Messrs. Michael Lynch and John Rishl of Winnipeg, Man., are visiting relatives and friends in the city and vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Armour E. Doonan of Waterdown, N.Y., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Hinds, Moira Street.

Mr. A. N. Reid of Toronto, formerly of this city, is spending a few days in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Alford of Detroit, Mich., are visiting relatives here.

That the water in the bay is exceptionally high this season may be judged by the fact that a small schooner laden with 8,000 feet of lumber went up Moira Creek to have the cargo unloaded.

40 YEARS AGO

August 31st., 1906.

Messrs. W. Reed and D. Lees are spending a few days in Toronto.

Mr. Philip Harrison of the Intelligencer Staff is spending a few holidays in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Walsh of Verona, B.C., are the guests of Mrs. (Dr.) Clarke, Victoria Avenue.

Miss Kate Shea returned to Toronto today after spending the past two months with her mother, Mrs. J. Shea, Church Street.

Miss May Burns has left for her home in Rochester, N.Y., after visiting her brother, Mr. J. Burns, Everett Street.

Mr. John Reats of the Intelligencer staff is spending a few days in Toronto.

50 YEARS AGO

August 31st., 1896.

The final step in the creation of the new Diocese of Ottawa within the Church of England, was taken recently when the deed of the new province for the division of the church funds between the Diocese of Ontario and the new Diocese of Ottawa was executed by His Grace, The Archbishop of Ontario, Dr. Walkem, Q.C., his Chancellor; Bishop Bedford Jones, and Chancellor Travers Lewis. The document provides for the division of $563,000. There is, however, an outstanding debt of $12,000, part of the Clergy Trust Fund, under the award made in 1859 by Sir John Macdonald, Sir A. Worrell, Q.C., has been appointed to settle these and other questions with regards to this sum.

Mr. James Conger spent Sunday in Port Hope.

The Rev. W. Roberts of this city preached in the Methodist Church at Welcome last Sunday.

Mr. William Webster and Mr. Wesley Bullen will leave this evening to spend two weeks in New York City and at the sea side.

Ottawa, Aug. 31 —(CP)— Among the Montgomery stories that the daughter Field Marshal has spiked by practical application, since his arrival in Canada is that he retires early and makes his daughter to his staff.

The story gained circulation because his busy itinerary calls for few evening engagements, as a matter of fact he follows a very wearying schedule.

He's up at 8 a.m. to study the dispatches that have come in from Whitehall and been deciphered through the night. He also reads the mail which is delivered at regular intervals by Trans-Atlantic airmail. By hand, fast he has a good picture of the difficult military situation in troubled spots such as Egypt, Yugoslavia, Palestine and India.

Returning at night for dinner he closets himself with his three aides, relaxes over a private cocktail then they all go to work on the big job of directing the British army. Sometimes they work to midnight signing off dispatches and replying to correspondence.

Last Stretch: As the marathon parliamentary session neared its wearying conclusion, the passage of legislation was often speeded up and items involving millions of dollars passed unchallenged.

So the other night when seven figure items were being adopted in a rush, there was some surprise when a dollar item was called. Finance Minister Ilsley and M. Nicholson (CCF-Mackenzie) jumped to his feet to ask "Could the Minister explain what this dollar is to be used for?"

FOOD AGREEMENT HELPS FARMERS

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

Auckland, N. Z. —(CP)— Comparable from the New Zealand and Britain point of view with the agreement recently concluded between Britain and Canada is the barter of the meat and butter agreement between Britain and New Zealand, the terms of which have been announced by Finance Minister Nash in Wellington.

This contract will form the real basis of the Dominion's economy during the next three years as it provides for Britain buying the country's entire meat and's exportable surplus of meat, butter, cheese and tallow dairy produce. With wool, recently the subject of separate planned marketing arrangements, this accounts for the majority of the country's trade.

The bulk purchase contract was negotiated in 1944 and is to be wholly lasted until 1948. Under the revised contract the period is extended one year, and considerable increase in prices over the original rates has been agreed upon and prices for the remainder of the period will be arranged annually.

The new rat; for butter is 231 hundredweight, as against with $20.10 for the previous two years. This is still considerably below world parity as measured by ruling rates in the United States market. The rate is in line with that paid to Australia, but Britain has undertaken that it may be necessary to pay higher rates to other countries for the balance of its supplies, and this is not to affect the price to New Zealand.

This agreement has, however the advantage to New Zealand that it assures the latter of such a market for the whole of its production, despite the present living costs and hence prices for purchases in Britain, and that it will enable a considerably increased output to be carried out.

Meat Prices Up

Prices for meat other than pork will be 7 1-2 per cent above those ruling for the past two years, and for pork 11 1-4 per cent above.

In announcing the revised contract, Mr. Nash pointed out that it gave New Zealand a ready basis for expanding, their production to the utmost, to feed the hungry consumers in the United Kingdom. New Zealand has retained the right to sell butter and cheese in other markets in accordance with the international program.

All payments from the sale of produce to the United Kingdom are paid into dairy and meat industry rehabilitation accounts, from which the farmers are paid the guaranteed prices for the year's production. This guarantee is based on the basis of the prices received from Britain or on the world markets if these are higher. Costs of production plus an agreed profit margin related to the 1936-39 period.

The government's theory is that in this way the farmer is insulated against sudden rises and falls of the world markets and is given security for a planned production program.

High world prices during the war years have resulted in the stabilization fund being built up to very considerable sums and even if prices should fall to the levels of world markets, the farmers could still be paid at ruling rates for the whole or part of the surpluses that they have built up in stabilization funds.

Say Vitamin B-1 Used Successfully In Painless Childbirth

New York, Aug. 31 —(CP)— The New York Times said Friday in a Moscow dispatch that vitamin B-1 has been used successfully in "painless" childbirth. Tests of the drug have been made in Obstetrics and Gynecology using the vitamin provided 'effective and painless childbirth' in 1,000 births out of 1,000, the newspaper said it was reported by Dr. Nikolai Shub of Leningrad, while in 51.3 per cent of the cases the period of "protracted alleviation" of pain was obtained.

The newspaper said Dr. Shub's thesis, as outlined by the Moscow Pravda, is that during birth a woman's organism receives large supplies of vitamin B-1 because of muscle contraction and nervous excitement.

Reconstruction Minister Howe said chuckles said it was just to prevent any legal authority to provide for payments of amounts owing under the Housing Act.

Time Gentlemen: It took a seemingly long time to sink in but Thursday night in the House laugh the other night out of a long parliamentary session.

Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto-Eglinton) was speaking in the course of a full-fledged speech and, waving his finger, was about to make a major point.

"Mr. Speaker," he said, "the time has come . . ."

But just then Speaker Gaspard Fauteux, interrupted him and politely corrected unofficially, declared: "I am sorry but the Honorable Member's time is up."

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

RECURRENCE OF MOTION SICKNESS

Many popular remedies for seasickness are dangerous because of their unsuspected sweet-weakening, blood-destroying or liver-clogging effects. And I honestly, I have never had motion sickness myself. But I am not going to "telling what irrational thing I might do if it as dreadful as Dr. Macbeth (quoted in a recent article in this column) says it is to some instances. I only say right mind I'll take neither Dramamine nor Benzedrine Sulphate nor amytal (barbiturate) in any dose or form under (1) a doctor's bed and (2) the constant care of a physician.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Calcium and Rheumatism

When I asked our doctor about taking calcium he snorted and said "Don't be silly—you have too much calcium in the system in your arthritis . . . It's what causes rheumatism . . ."

Answer — Frankly I don't doubt it. Doctor Brady said that he, if he is a real doctor. On request, if you inclose a stamped addressed envelope, I will send you a pamphlet "Calcium and Rheumatism" which tells how to take calcium and Vitamin D, say the right time to take it. At least it can do no harm.

Dampness

The basement of our house is full of water much of the time. Could this be the cause of my having so many colds?

Answer — No. It has no effect on your health. In my judgment if by "colds" you mean sore throat, sinus, bronchial troubles, you may find Vitamin C helpful mind, even benefit to the health of your family. In this connection "Call it Cri" — for copy send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope.

Peroxide

Will the use of peroxide on the hair over a period of twenty years affect the eyes or the body in any way?

Answer — No.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Who invented the wheel?

Without the wheel mechanical and industrial civilization would be impossible, and yet nobody knows when, where or by whom the wheel was invented or how it was invented. The wheel and axle is an application of the principle of the lever, the simplest of all devices for transmitting and modifying motion.

Wheels antedate authentic history, which is very, very many thousands of years, and when and by what people they were first used probably will never be known. Fragmentary evidence indicates that the principle of the wheel was known to the ancient Chinese, Babylonians and Egyptians. Some authorities are inclined to believe that the wheel was first used where it may have been known a hundred centuries before Christ.

The potter's wheel was employed already in the Bronze Age many thousands of years before the birth of Christ. A chariot excavated in the city of Ur is dated back to 3200 or 3300 B.C. In Genesis 41 :43 is related that Pharoah made Joseph "to ride in the second chariot he had." And further on in the same Biblical book we are told that the Egyptians had supplied wagons for bringing Jacob and his family to Canaan. The Hebrew "agalah" is rendered "wagon" and "chariot" in the English. The word came from a root meaning "to be round" or "to roll" and signified originally a circle.

Perhaps long before that period the Egyptians and Assyrians used wheels with spokes. Generally the early wheels made by these peoples had no spokes, while those made by the Greeks and Romans had from two to twenty-four spokes. Generally a box with handles for two men

100,000 Young Canadians, A Good Proportion Veterans Trekking into Universities

Subsidiary Projects Formed to Handle Vast Influx of Students, Housing Major Problem

(By The Canadian Press)

Around 100,000 Young Canadians — a good proportion of them veterans of the services — are trekking into the universities from coast to coast for the new term, and next week will see the higher institutions of learning jammed to the doors.

And jammed beyond that, for several of the universities have spent thousands of dollars on subsidiary projects to handle the vast influx of students. Apart from the classroom question, there's the problem of housing the students, many of them with wives and families, and the accommodation question has been handled in various ways.

A survey by The Canadian Press today shows that it's going to be a problem in many parts of the country, but on the whole the arrangements should be adequate, even if they don't allow for late entrants.

All universities report higher enrolment than last term, and several of them have reached the highest figure in their history. The University of Toronto is planning to handle 16,000 and McGill, Queens, McMaster and

WEDDINGS

MARSHALL—WEESE

Bloomfield Street United Church was the scene of a quiet but pretty wedding on Saturday, August 24, when Miss Jean Phillips Weese of Toronto, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Weese of Belleville, John Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Marshall, Tweed, were joined in marriage by the Rev. C. A. Perfect, in a double-ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a floor-length gown of white flowered marquisette with sweetheart neckline and long sleeves with points at the wrists. She wore a cap fashioned of the same material as the gown, and was carrying a bouquet of pink roses and white heather.

Miss Murray Wright, of Belleville, was groomsman. The usher was Mr. Val Marshall, a brother of the groom.

For her bridesmaid was Mrs. Murray Wright (nee Marguerite Phillips), of Belleville, sister of the bride. She wore a floor-length gown of pink net over taffeta, with headdress of pink orchid plumies and tulle, and wearing a single pearl necklace. She also carried a nosegay of pink roses with white and blue cornflowers.

Beware of The Man Who Is Too Busy To Say That He Will Call Again

Maybe I am just an old cynic, but I have very little faith in the sincerity of the man who tells me his girl her freedom on the ground that he can't marry her for a while on account of the fact that it is his duty to give her up. Men do love, but so often they love only one. Usually, they are so afraid that some other girl will get that girl that they want to tie her up tightly, with all the promises possible.

That is why it is sometimes little hard to understand why so many girls seem content to accept such noble-minded offers on their face value.

Here is one who is not certain whether to do so:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I am a girl 21 years old and very much in love with a fellow two years older.

"We went steady for over a year while he was working in my city. Everything was too wonderful to last, and it was discharged. Then he decided to go to college away from here. Of course, I was very sorrowful to this, for I realized that it would mean leaving me out at least until he promised me that within a year we would be married, as he was willing to go to work and help along, to which I agreed.

"Later he wrote me that from him, saying that he loved me very much and that I was the girl he should part. He felt that we should be as friends and that I should go out with other fellows. Now, if after he has gone through with school, he can lucky enough to find me still single, and we still feel the same toward each other, we would get married. He said he was willing to wait, for he will never love anyone else, but he feels that it is not right to ask me to wait for him.

"I never answered him, and a few weeks later he wrote to ask me. He never mentioned his letter, but, because I was angry, I forgotten the fact that we would be just warm friends, for he has gone away again and I have just received a letter from him, saying that he loves me very much, etc., but still he feels that I should not wait for him.

"Sometimes I think he is taking me for granted, as he knows I have always been faithful to him. He knows that I am going out with other fellows, but I could not know I am just as much in love with him as ever. I would do anything to be with him. I am willing to go anywhere to meet him. I know I could get a good job. But why does he act this way? If he loves me, why does he not write me to go out with others? I have never written to him, because I am afraid he will think I am trying to be too sweet or something like that. I would be so glad to get your opinion.

You sound to me as if you were anxious to know the truth, even though it might hurt you, and so I am going to tell you frankly, whether you like what I say to me.

My feeling is that this young man has probably decided that he wishes his own freedom and wants to be in a position to do as he pleases, instead of being tied up to anyone. I don't believe that he is going to ask you to wait for him or is a heartbreaker, as he tries to make you think. I think he is taking this way of "letting you down easy" because he thinks that by saying you, if possible, and also to keep you feeling that he is a "prince," you will write to him often, and, as you say, he wants to get out of his situation and have the freedom that comes without paying any price for it, which is rather a contemptible course.

If I were you, I would simply write and tell him that you fully agree that it would be foolish for you to wait for him, and that, in view of the circumstances and that you get perfect friends to be "just friends". This may surprise him rather badly, and may take a different attitude, but, if he doesn't, then I would just cross him off the list and be glad you have all the fun you can with other people, for I am sure that there is someone else more worthy of your affection and loyalty waiting for you.

BEAUTY

Walk toward the good looks goal

Do you fly out of the door, leap into the family bus even though it has a sober trip to make, a run of a few blocks to the corner store, the moment you out. You may develop the limousine shape. That is what has happened to some of those friend of yours whose figures are built on the lines of the conventional of a cream puff.

Walk on your feet and walk. Do a little stepping: it is good for you. Do not be afraid of tramping will take to fretting silvers out of your mind. It will not make you look like a bride to be squawking—a habit they have in these days of tension. It will do good by your complexion.

Walking is especially efficacious to keep their hips neat, the waistline small. We hear about the bobbed hair shape. That should be no such thing. With regard to the "boyish bob," which include a certain amount of muscle control, which should retain youthful lines all her life long. Overweight is the direct result of consuming more food than one needs, not burning up enough energy in exercise.

Walking aids the proper functioning of the digestive system. A visit intended that we should be active, not on your seven-league boots and lazy.

By taking a daily walk the plump woman will gradually shuffle off some of her poundage. The skinny girl will put on full flesh because she will develop her muscles, create a healthy appetite, be better nourished. Questions About Christenings

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

After an expectant mother has been given two lovely baby showers is it customary for her to send birth announcements to those who attended the shower? Or do the parents of the baby send announcements to relatives and friends not-at-town who have sent gifts?

M. J.

It is for the christening of a baby in the Episcopal church, is it correct to ask a friend to be godfather, even though he is not a member of the Episcopal church?

R. M.

1. If birth-announcements are being sent out, they would be sent to all friends, whether or not they attended the showers.

2. Yes.

M. B.

Notes of Thanks for Wedding Presents

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Even though one intends to be a small and informal one (and minus a reception), must a thank-you note for wedding gifts or will written notes be sufficient?

H. Y.

No matter what kind of wedding and reception the bride-to-be should receive, ready-made cards of thanks. Every wedding gift must be acknowledged by a note of appreciation.

Invitation is Ordination

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister-in-law has a son who is to be ordained in the Presbyterian! Is it proper under any circumstances for friends to ask to be invited to the ordination.

I should say that under the usual circumstances a friend might properly ask for the privilege of attending the ordination. There might conceivably be some circumstance when this request would not be proper, but generally speaking such a request from friends is out-of-town who have never been invited to a church ordination would not be out of order.

Man in the Service Need Wear His Uniform

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to have a church wedding, and to wear a white bridal dress. The bridegroom is planning to wear formal morning attire. If the best man is in the service, would it be all right for him to wear his uniform, or would he have to be dressed like the groom.

D.

If the best man is still in the service he must wear his uniform.

Engagement Party Gifts

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me whether or not it is proper to bring a gift to an engagement party?

If the engagement party is to announce the engagement, usually no gifts are given. If the party is given for the party until they are married. Then they would not bring gifts. If the party is to celebrate the engagement, after the announcement, the guests may bring a gift, but usually, if the invitations or intimate friends wish to give an engagement gift, it is sent or given before the party.

Goodman's Juniors Coast To 15-2 Victory Over Harmony Millionaires at Fair Grounds

Goodman's Juniors mistheliers came through in an unexpected easy victory over the lightly touted Millionaire Harmony nine, champion conquerors of Peterboro in the opening game of the second round OASA Junior "A" softball playdowns at the Fair Grounds Thursday night.

The score was 15-2 and it was an easy walkaway for the local kids who were paced by the batting of one Don Boyle who thumbed the Columbian Squires to a provincial junior championship in 1919.

The Oshawa aggregation proved a keen disappointment in their appearance here. Heralded by some after their spectacular victories over the Peterboro Trojans as one straight among the Mimico city kids, on paper that is, were considered potential provincial championship timber.

Beaten in First Frame

Here last night, the Goodman clan made that look very ordinary. As a matter of fact the game was won in the first inning when Goodwin, the Oshawa starting pitcher was due for 4 runs with three more in the second to put the game in the bag.

That was the end of Goodwin and a relief hurler by the name of Masson relieved him. He retired the side in the third but in the fourth the Goodmen had went to work on him.

A triple, a home run and three singles by Barrett, Moher and Rollins accounted for three more runs' and the fourth fans settled back with the sighing question, "How many?"

Blanked in the next two chukkers the Goodmen in this paced by Jim Barrett's triple and followed by hits by Green and Rollins plus a couple of walks and the occasional Oshawa error, scored three more and the fifth and sixth to start the fans walking home.

Don Boyle held the opposition to six hits. He struck out 10 and walked two and was never in any serious difficulty.

His mates gathered fourteen hits off Goodwin and Masson, and that was enough.

The teams:

Oshawa: Scott 2b; Masson lb, p; Greeno ss; Percival, Goodwin lf; Meeres p; Dart lf; Robinson 3b; Scott rf; Saunders c.

Goodmen: Culkin cf; Green c; Goodmen 2b; Rollins ss; Barrett 3b; Bowman lf; Wrenhaud 3b; Rollins 2b.

Score by innings:

Belleville	430	200	50x	—	15	14	1

The Old Boys Thomers won the Niagara District Senior "B" Baseball championship and advanced along the playoff trail last night when they won at Merritton from St. Catharines 7-6 in the sixth game of a best of seven series. The playoff games at Oakville, Toronto Bellwoods eliminated Brantford and Toronto Bantam competition with an 8-1 win.

In the Provincial Women's Softball Union playoffs, London the premier team, won its clean-cut 9-1 victory over Windsor Exquires at London, and will start the second the deciding run in the last half of the ninth inning on an error.

With a two hit shut-out, two Thomers out and two strikes on him, Alma Leonard hit a line drive down shortstop to Hookings, who bobbled it.

OTTAWA TROJANS HAVE YOUNG AND BALANCED TEAM

Ernie McWalters Hangs Up Cleats for Full - Time Coaching Job

By ANDY ROSS

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 21 (CP)—Ottawa's scrappy Trojans who clawed their way into third place in the Canadian Football Union last year have come up with a young and well balanced team" than his capable squad of a year ago.

Ernie Mc Walters is hanging up his cleats to full-time coaching after 11 years of service with the quarterback last season.

With a long spring training grind and two exhibition games behind them, Coach McWalters thinks, little Arnie is quite happy about his 1920 edition of Trojans. Sharing quarterback duties with veteran Ted Edwards, now in his 8th season as a Trojan, and a newcomer from high school ranks in Lionel Conacher, Mc Walters will fill Arnie's shoes as hoofers are Hec Smith, Rusty, a 23-year-old 175-pounder former Verdun, Que., flash and Rocky Mc Millard, up from Ottawa's Carleton College.

Still throwing their weight in the backfield will be hard-playing Stan Mc Millaki, Red Perrier and Norm Barkley, all experienced and clicke 190-pound Bill Bangs, with a wartime R.F.C. service at St. Thomas and Leckie, Eno Veale, Fly Hall, Hunt Bruce, Ken Brown, Dick Wilkinson and Millner Harper, a Soudan, 205-pounder from England, will complete the position ends under way Sept. 7.

Ben Hogan of Hartley, Tex., put the pressure of the United States, started out yesterday with a one-stroke lead over a five-under-par 66 in the $15,000 Golden State golf tournament at Los Angeles. One stroke behind was Herman Keiser of Akron, O.

Jockey Ted Atkinson of Tonopah rode four winners yesterday at Saratoga Springs, N.Y. The feature race of the card was the Sixth Saratoga Steeplechase which was won by Ormond K. Mallon's Replica 2nd by 10 lengths.

Way Wonder, from the Galaxway Farms, Lexington, Ky., set a season's record for two-year-old trotters by doing a mile in 2.03¼ at Empire City Maiden Stakes in the closing harness race of the Poughkeepsie, Mid-State Fair yesterday.

Fifty-nine leading scullers from the United States and Canada will compete in the Diamond Sculls at the Middle States Rowing Association regatta at Philadelphia, September 4.

Winnipeg Rugs Bombers struck terrific fire yesterday through the air and on the ground at Winnipeg last night to overpower Montreal Alouettes 17-7 before a crowd of 6,000 fans and take the opener of a two-game exhibition football series. The second game will be played at Winnipeg Monday and will forward your name so we can make some sort of notice.

On Monday at 2.30 p.m. the Kiwanis Junior baseballers safari to Oshawa where the kids will meet the local aspirants with the hankers of that city in the return game of the Kiwanis "A" league playdowns. The local kids shot out a sparkling 6-4 win over the Oshawa Juniors on Wednesday after an 11-inning battle that reailed they will need all their ability and diamond cunning to tack a second win on the fair city Oshawa nine.

The kids will travel by bus, leaving the Y.M.C.A. at 11.15 in the morning. The management has advised this contest that two buses will make the jaunt, one for the players and the other for fans. There will be room for 12 specs in the player bus and the Kiwanis Executive will accommodate exactly 40 each specs. But if you want a seat you had better be at the "Y" on Monday, for the local indicate that plenty of fans will make the trip to cheer the Kiwanis and see if they second victory and the round.

Speaking of junior title that recent Chief Griffiths Memorial (They hail from Hull) dunked the Kingston juniors by a one-sided score in Kingston the other day to take the first round of the OAA playdowns. The Hullions from Hull can now start swiping and swill the members of the Belleville-Oshawa series, which may or may not be over until after next Wednesday. Wanna bet?

And they do tell us, via the grapevine line, that while the table that this Ottawa aggregation is made up of a good team. They know all the baseball experts and baseball experts have gone so far to say that they are going to get the junior title." Could be, pals.

TO THE EDITORS OF THE OSHAWA TIMES:

Thanks chums, for the nice complimentary write up given in your issue of recent date which we greatly appreciate at this end. We got so many verbal and written kicks in the south side of the city that we are on the back-fests like the nudge of a sledge-hammer. Thanks again —and don't forget to call if anything is needed.—J. H. C.

HERE'S ONE AT WAY

The umpire usually has the last word on the field, but in the Kingston League proves the case of a substitute arbiter who got the decision on appeal.

It occurred in a recent game between Portsmouth and Alexandria, when a sandlot umpire was called in to officiate in the men in blue, who failed to put in an appearance.

The substitute was calling 'em from behind the pitcher, when the batter hit one and socked a pitch down the left field foul line that fell just missing the plate. But the umpire called it fair. The fielder claimed it was fair or foul. "No, sir, it's too close," the umpire for the day declared.

The pilots pleaded with the umpire, but he stuck his ground. Finally, one of the managers suggested that a coin be tossed to terminate a decision.

The umpire up "heads" giving the Alexandria batter a hit and his team two runs.

BOSTON RED SOX MAY BE ON WAY TO NEW RECORD

If Team Continues Present Pace They'll Win More Games Than Any Other Boston Club

By JOE REICHLER

(Associated Press Sport Writer)

If the pennant-bound Red Sox continue at their present pace, they should wind up the season with the most games ever won by a Boston team.

Having already bagged 90 of 130 games for a .692 percentage, the American League pace-setters can top their 1915 high of 101 victories provided they win 16 of their remaining 34-games—a .667 pace.

In the only scheduled American League games yesterday, the Sox gained the nightly Philadelphia Athletics twice 6-2 and 6-3 for their 14th and 15th victories in 18 meetings with the cellarites.

Tex Hughson fashioned the first gastic shutout, limiting the Mackmen to four hits for his 13th victory and his fifth by a shutout. A five-run fifth inning rally against Lefty Koetz clinched the verdict. Jim Bagby allowed only five Athletic hits in the nightcap while Penetang's Phil Archibald went the route for the A's and was charged with the 13th loss. He has won 6.

The pair of victories increased the Red Sox margin over the second place New York Yankees to 13 1-2 games. Any combination of 13 Boston wins and New York defeats will clinch the flag for the Red Sox.

Philadelphia Phils increased their sixth-place margin over the Giants to two games by defeating the New Yorkers 4-3 under the Polo Grounds lights in only National League game.

Honors accounted for three of the Phillly runs with Jim Tabor, Johnny Wyrostek and Del Ennis belting the four-baggers. Charlie Schanz held the Giants to seven hits in registering his fifth victory. One of the Giants blows was a home run by Buddy Kerr, who was honored in a pre-game ceremony witnessed by 18,213 fans.

Vernon Stephens Returns $5,000 To Mexican Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

The syuabble between Jorge Pasqual and Vernon Stephens appearing certain for a settlement out today with the Mexican League magnate announcing that he had received a cheque for $5,000 from the latter's attorney in Cincinnati, Stephens, who signed with the Mexican Leaguers in the closing days of the season in the American League after playing only a few games with Cleveland, will be had returned the sum, an advance payment, he reported $17,500 contract, in April.

A field of 98 players, including the foremost court exponents of the country, will compete for the title of world champion at Forest Hills, N.Y. for today's opening of the 40th United States tennis championships.

After going through the greater part of the season in comparative obscurity, Yorkshire cricket champion-ship without defeat, Yorkshire defeated Sussex at Dewsbury yesterday in losing to Hampshire by 10 wickets.

Owner of Walnut Hall Farm, Lexington, Ky., one of the largest breeding establishments for thoroughbreds in America, Mrs. Edwards died yesterday three months after the death of Harbinger Edwards, her only son, who had managed the farm.

The Ottawa Senators of the Quebec Senior Hockey League will be one of the teams to be included for a series of matches during the season at Wembley Pool, England, which is now being completed ga gets under way Sept. 7.

GOTHER RICKETY MONDAY

Labor Day's largest event shrinks to a little one this year when the Lou Gehrig Benefit baseball game, Yankees vs. Tigers at Yankee Stadium, is cancelled. Since the game was arranged as the Babe Ruth Benefit last year, it is the third game of the series and the People's game will be won a convincing victory over the veterans in their own backyard on Thursday night and is left to repeat and quality to meet the Oshawa Hamid in the second round and they'll know they've been in a ball game before the end is over. The Kingstonians also have their backs to the wall and will be out to cop the round themselves and that should make a thriller that fighting game with both squads going all out to win.

Orchids to the City Parks Board, which has offered the Pals' Committee the use of their worthy cause, and to various umpires who will call the games of the Belleville team, gratuitously all expressed themselves and stated that the squad will be here in the late afternoon.

There were no dissenting voices when Manager Sedgen contacted players from all teams in the Quinte District baseball Association to help out with the Pals' All Star team that will be represented on the All-Star team and it should give the starry visitors a busy early evening.

The entire proceeds of the game will be turned over to charities with the exception of necessary transportation, meeting etc. will be given to Leo Goyer, Belleville lad who gave his life that many others are giving their services gratis, for which those to share the extended gratitude.

The game is a worthy one and all sports fans in the city are urged to turn out and help the early sendat a fellow citizen but only two performers are on the field, so let's jam the Fair Grounds Monday evening. Remember the game starts at 5.30 p.m.

This evening at six o'clock, the Quinte District baseball league, People's Saco Intermediate "A" 's will go to the south end with the Kingston DVA squad on the Napapee diamond. Gerry Kesselring Junior Champion Of Ontario Golf Brantford, Aug. 21. (CP)—The Ontario Junior Golf championship still remains in the city of Kesselring.

The 17-year-old golfing whiz from Kitchener retained the crown yesterday on the second nine at a row when he wound up in front of the field at Brantford Golf and Country club with a 36-hole score of 74-80—154. Since his first victory in 1918 he didn't need his best golf to come out top of the biggest field in the history of the province's annual tourney for young men.

Kesselring's nearest rivals Bud Lloyd of Guelph who won the title and the Cup in 1919 and Ken Mc Kay of Toronto, were tied at 159.

Jim Moreland of North Bay, tabbed winner of the Mid-Ontario title, was fourth with a card of 83-79—162.

Kesselring's victory was seconded victory when a dozen or so were left out on the course, was up and down all the way. His three-putted greens for the day, including a seven on the seventh.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Aug. 21. (AP)—If baseball really is serious about abolishing the World Series, Harry Simmons, the International League's publicist-historian, offers a plan which certainly takes the sting out of that Pension Fund ..... Instead of just a series of exhibitions, Harry proposes a "top players" team to play all big league teams ..... he first round, matching the natural rivals which the Giants and Yankees would be played in May. The survivors, divided by economical means, would be played round in June. They'd skip July for the all-star game, play the semi-finals in August and end with the World Series in September. It might be interesting as a "World Series" preview. Harry says that by then the managerial conditions had been knocked-out.

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Aug. 21.—(CP)—Here's how you running horse thoroughbreds — Your country horses, that is. Seeing his muscles more ominously all the time, Jack Dempsey has set next year your position as aristocrat of the turftrack may be somewhat impaired.

Harness racing has long been a favorite sport in the Maritimes (there is not a running horse track east of Montreal) and it has been a source of amusement of why some "Upper Canadians" haven't heard the game in favor of the jockey-type running.

Perhaps one reason is that harness racing is faced with a shortage of horses. Even Ben Ayers the border several tracks during the season for the first time but here in Canada the old system of sending the horses up to the fairs and then on to the next town to the starting line in some kind of a jalopy is about in vogue.

Jack (London Free Press) Parks writes that a hunger for something new is about after the provincial Rugby Football Union campaign this fall.

When Al Massucci, one-time coach of the Samia Imperials, emerged from his wartime grid retirement and took over the helm of Hamilton Tigers, he had chins for the yellow-and-black this year he found some 40 players available, most of them with senior experience and of high calibre.

The Tigers open their Big Four schedule at home in Hamilton today, against the Ottawa Rough Riders.

Massucci has a choice of 14 backfield men, many of them highly-rated. Hold-overs from the 1943 team include Red Hickey, Jerry Olinger, Murray Cowen, Ted Manorek, Walter Gibb and that pair of hard-hitting line plungers Paul Miocinovich and Paul Peterson.

Back in Hamilton is Doug Smith, the tricky member of the Hamilton Wildcats team which won the Dominion title in 1943. Doug played alongside Massucci when he played with the Kitchener Panthers in the O.R.F.U. is just out of the army.

Other prospects include Jack Stewart a former Hamilton product star and Andy Sokol, a Sarnia Imperial star. Both are one of the best prospects in years.

Defensive Wildcats

Bill O'Brens, one of the best snapbacks in the east, has deserted the Wildcats for the Balmy Beach line up with the Tigers. Charley Wasserman, who played with last year's Tigers, and Nick Paikhouski, Wildcat performers from 1942 are also being groomed for snap work.

Massucci may come up with an American for an inside wing position. The prospect is Arne Anderson, pitcher for the Hamilton Cardinals in the Pony Baseball League. He played United States football in Cuba. Eddie Roscoe, long an inside wing all-star, Eddie Bevan, Nick Nowak and Geo. Zarek are other insides.

Hamilton Tigers With Massucci At Helm Will be Tough Birds To Pluck in Big Four Race

Former Coach of Sarnia Imperials Has Fourteen Backfield Men Of Them Highly Rated

By TOMMY MOORE

(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Hamilton, Aug. 21.—(CP)—The Hamilton Tigers promise to be as ferocious a football team in the provincial Rugby Football Union campaign this fall.

When Al Massucci, one-time coach of the Sarnia Imperials, emerged from his wartime grid retirement and took over the helm of Hamilton Tigers, he had chins for the yellow-and-black this year he found some 40 players available, most of them with senior experience and of high calibre.

The Tigers open their Big Four schedule at home in Hamilton today, against the Ottawa Rough Riders.

Massucci has a choice of 14 backfield men, many of them highly-rated. Hold-overs from the 1943 team include Red Hickey, Jerry Olinger, Murray Cowen, Ted Manorek, Walter Gibb and that pair of hard-hitting line plungers Paul Miocinovich and Paul Peterson.

Back in Hamilton is Doug Smith, the tricky member of the Hamilton Wildcats team which won the Dominion title in 1943. Doug played alongside Massucci when he played with the Kitchener Panthers in the O.R.F.U. is just out of the army.

Other prospects include Jack Stewart a former Hamilton product star and Andy Sokol, a Sarnia Imperial star. Both are one of the best prospects in years.

Defensive Wildcats

Bill O'Brens, one of the best snapbacks in the east, has deserted the Wildcats for the Balmy Beach line up with the Tigers. Charley Wasserman, who played with last year's Tigers, and Nick Paikhouski, Wildcat performers from 1942 are also being groomed for snap work.

Massucci may come up with an American for an inside wing position. The prospect is Arne Anderson, pitcher for the Hamilton Cardinals in the Pony Baseball League. He played United States football in Cuba. Eddie Roscoe, long an inside wing all-star, Eddie Bevan, Nick Nowak and Geo. Zarek are other insides.

Steve Chamlin, an outstanding performer with the Windsor Rockets last season, is one of the top candidates for middle wing. Three other middles are from last year's team, Ray Plasmondon, Ambrose Withers and Erskine Smith. Figure many also have a Notre Dame line star of 1942 at middle wing, Jack Cannon.

Massucci has two particularly strong candidates for outside wing, Clarence Dillon and Gerry Bolton and Bob Hazel, the latter a Toronto Balmy Beach player last year. Julius Gall from Windsor and Don Irwin, a 1943 Tiger, are also out with the team.

Pictured above is his Belleville Redmen hockey regalia is Leo Goyer, well-known city athlete who was seriously injured in Overseas action, when playing with the Army and Navy Flashes squad. He suffered a severe knee injury which may keep him out of sport for the rest of his life. His sports friends have organized a benefit game for Leo between the Toronto-senior softball-squad, the Dovercourt Prince of Wales, and an all-star aggregation from the Belleville Softball Association. The game starts at 5.30 p.m. on Monday, Labor Day, and no doubt many sports fans will turn out to see an outstanding game and assist an outstanding fellow.

Second Session of Canada's 20th Parliament Occupied For 5 Months With Heavy Duties

Matters of International, National and Local Character Decided by Members

By DARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 31 (CP)—The affairs of a country, restless in its full year of peace after six years of war, kept the second session of Canada's 20th parliament occupied for more than five months with matters of international, national and local character.

Members started to work March 16 and during their sittings the parliament became evident through a series of strikes for higher wages in the lumber, shipping, rubber, steel and other industries, through demands for higher returns for farmers, and through requests for the removal of wartime price and other controls.

There was still unrest when prorogation came. The steel strike, involving 15,000 persons to which members sought a solution during meetings of the Commons Committee on Industrial Relations was in progress and no settlement was in sight.

Coupled with the internal strife were the growing pains of a nation that came out of the war with an increased stature and a greatly expanded productive capacity. Some of the legislation adopted was aimed at keeping the country's world markets, and some was aimed at keeping the stature of citizens in line with that of the nation.

For instance, there was a bill establishing for the first time a distinctive Canadian citizenship. Passports for Canadians now bear the designation "Canadian Citizen" in place of the former "British Subject."

Member Before Courts.

During discussion on the measure some members stressed the need for developing a pride of citizenship to prevent a reoccurrence of conditions such as led to establishment of a Royal Commission to investigate the operations of Russian-directed espionage activities in Canada.

As the members broke, one of their number, Fred Rose, labor-Progressive member for Montreal - Cartier, was before the courts on charges arising out of the espionage inquiry. He was sentenced to six years in penitentiary, but has appealed the sentence.

Brought to the fore during the session was the contention, based on a distinctive Canadian flag. A joint committee of the Senate and the Commons reported on the choice of a flag, but no action was taken on the report, presumably because of the opposition of many Quebec members.

The committee recommended acceptance of the Red Ensign with the Union Jack at the flag staff reduced in size and with a golden maple leaf on a white background, replacing the coat of arms in the fly.

Did Not Change Name.

Left to die on the order paper was a private member's bill that would have changed the name of the July 1 holiday. The bill, moved by Palmer Cole (Kootenay-Rocky Mountains), originally would have changed the name of the holiday from Dominion Day to Canada Day. When the measure reached the Senate it was amended so the day would have been known as the "National Holiday of Canada."

The Commons did not have a chance to deal with the Senate change. There were reports that a similar bill will be presented at the next session, scheduled to be called prior to the end of January.

Because of Canada's expanded interests in the international field members passed a bill providing for the appointment of assistants to the minister of external affairs. Since 1912 the portfolio has been held by the prime minister of the day. Health minister Claxton has been mentioned as the likely choice for the post in the next session.

Steps were taken to bring about an expansion in Canadian trade were noted.

Approved British Loan.

In an effort to retain Britain, economically unbalanced by the war, as Canada's best customer members approved a $1,250,000,000 loan to the United Kingdom.

Following ratification of the loan, the government announced the signing of a four-year 600,000,000 bushel wheat contract with the United Kingdom.

In addition Agricultural Minister Gardiner announced that during his current trip overseas he hoped to put the final touches to a beef agreement with the United Kingdom. This would be added to the already existing agreements on bacon, cheese, eggs and milk.

With an eye on trade in Latin America, parliament approved Canada's first trade agreements with Mexico and Colombia.

Also, a government corporation was established to facilitate trade with foreign governments in countries where it is found impossible for private concerns to deal directly with Canadian companies.

Provisions Simplified.

The provisions of the Combines Investigation Act were simplified to facilitate action against the operations of cartels or monopolies in post-war trade.

Because of the pressure of inflation from the outside, particularly the United States, action was taken to bring the Canadian dollar to parity with that of the American dollar. During the war years the government fixed the value of the Canadian dollar at 90 cents in a move to attract to Canada American dollars needed for the purchase of war supplies.

Steps were taken to continue the wartime foreign exchange control restrictions so as to prevent any sudden withdrawal of investments in Canadian bonds and securities. This legislation met strong opposition in the Commons and the Senate on the grounds that it would restrict trade with the United States.

Trade and business also came in for attention in the budget for the current fiscal year. Effective from Jan. 1, 1947, the corporation tax will be cut from 40 to 38 per cent. The excess profits tax will be lowered from 70 to 15 per cent on income above 11% 2/3 per cent of standard profits. Cooperatives, heretofore tax exempt, will, in future, be subject to taxation.

Provided Tax Relief.

The budget also provided tax relief for the income tax payer. Effective from Jan. 1, 1947, income tax exemptions will be increased from $660 to $750 to single men and from $1,200 to $1,500 for married men. In addition new exemptions for dependents will become effective. Finance Minister Ilsley estimated that the changes would relieve between 350,000 and 600,000 persons from paying income tax.

Another budget item was the offer by the Federal Government to enter five-year taxation agreements with the provinces separately in view of the inability to reach agreement with all provinces at the Dominion-Provincial conference which broke up in failure last August.

Before giving approval to a bill bringing all boating activities under the reconstruction department, members of the House of Commons Committee on Reconstruction Minister Howe stated that the housing situation still was one of the most serious problems facing the country. He pinpointed no immediate relief.

Mr. Howe said there now was a shortage of about 120,000 homes despite the fact that some 46,000 units were built during 1946. The deficit would be increased to 180,000 by next spring because of the increased marriage rate and the arrival of British war brides.

The target for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1947, was 60,000 units and 80,000 for the following fiscal year. The aim for the five-year period ending in March, 1953, was 480,000 units.

Control Board Established.

Mr. Howe also obtained passage of a bill establishing an atomic energy control board which will control the domestic use of atomic energy and which will carry out nationally the international policies of the atomic energy commission.

Approval was given membership in two United Nations bodies—the International Health Organization and the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

As a result of the war, members were called on to deal with legislation aimed at providing rehabilitation for veterans of the force and the auxiliary services. They adopted a dozen or more bills which form part of a veterans charter.

Not least among other measures approved was a resolution paving the way for redistribution of representative in the Commons so as to increase the membership from 245 to 262 members. The redistribution plan necessitated an amendment to the British North America Act and permission to make the change was granted by the United Kingdom parliament.

The work of amending the Canadian electoral map is expected to be undertaken at the next session.

Quebec Gains Eight Seats.

Under the redistribution plan Ontario will gain eight seats, British Columbia two, Ontario and Nova Scotia, one each. Manitoba and Saskatchewan would each lose one. Prince Edward Island, the Yukon, Alberta and New Brunswick would remain unchanged.

There now are three vacancies in the 262-seat Commons. The Liberal seats of Pontiac, in Quebec, and Portage La Prairie, in Manitoba, were automatically vacated through the deaths of W. R. McDonald and Harry Leader, K.C. H. A. Bruce, 77, resigned as Progressive Conservative member for Toronto Parkdale to make "way for a younger man."

The redistribution plan would make no change in the 95-seat Senate where there now are seven vacancies as a result of deaths and resignations.

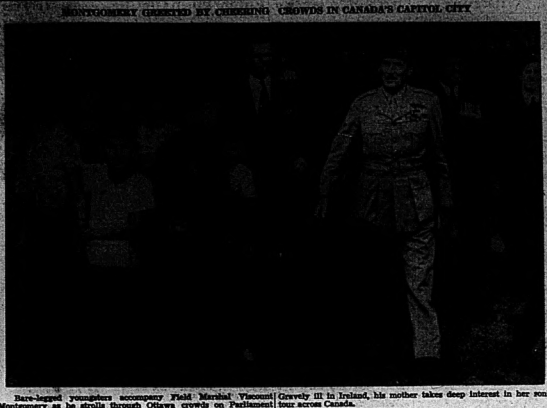
It was in the Senate Chamber during the session that a new Canadian Governor-General was sworn in. Viscount Alexander, British Field Marshal who had led Canadian troops under his command in the Mediterranean theatre, arrived in April to succeed the Earl of Athlone, now in retirement in the United Kingdom.

Aquitania Sails, 1287 Personnel, 840 Wives Aboard

Southampton, England, Aug. 30 (CP Cable)—The Aquitania sailed for Canada today bearing 1,287 military personnel and 840 wives and 160 children of Canadian servicemen.

The departures left 7,048 wives and 3,267 servicemen's dependents still to go from the United Kingdom.

Servicemen remaining overseas include 85 officers and 583 men in the Canadian Army and 578 officers and 8,859 men in the United Kingdom.



MONTGOMERY GREETED BY CHEERING CROWDS IN CANADA'S CAPITOL CITY

Bare-legged youngsters accompany Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery of Alamein, Canada's guest in Parliament Hill where he reviewed a guard of honor formed of war veterans.

Gravely ill in Ireland, his mother takes deep interest in her son's tour across Canada.

Field Marshal Montgomery arrived in Ottawa to receive one of the greatest ovations so far on his trans-Canada tour. The distinguished visitor is shown as he speaks to a crowd on Parliament Hill. Gen. Crerar is shown at LEFT. Note the shield in front.

With the young monarch are his mother, Queen Sanawan Chutikami and his sister, escorted by Swiss officials.

BURMESE SENTENCED

Rangoon, Burma, Aug. 30—(AP)—Daw Carla Wolff, the slender Burmese wife who babbled that she would sleep in a gold bed, was sentenced today to eight months' imprisonment for concealing $500,000 worth of the $36,000,000 Yokohama treasure for her Japanese paramour.

The fortune was stolen from residents of the Dutch East Indies during the Japanese occupation. A Capt. Nakamura, who fathered Daw Carla's children, left over the $500,000 [illegible] at the time of the Japanese [illegible]

Death Sentences Of 18 of Stern Gang Are Commuted

Jerusalem, Aug. 30 (CP)—Jacob Menahem Alcalay, the last of 22 members of the so-called Stern Gang charged with sabotaging the Haifa railway yards last June, was sentenced to death by a military court in Jerusalem today.

The sentence is subject to confirmation by the British Commander in Palestine, who last night announced that he had commuted to life the death sentence previously pronounced against 18 other members of the same group. Four girls tried with the 18 two weeks ago were sentenced to life imprisonment.

Military authorities reported today that British airborne troops searching the villages of Deroit and Rubama in northern Palestine had unearthed a large cache of munitions.

The informants were unable to specify which of the two villages, situated a short distance apart, had been the scene of the discovery. They said, however, that the find was "considerable."

Meanwhile, an Arab spokesman said Britain's refusal to allow the former Grand Mufti of Jerusalem to attend a scheduled Arab-Jewish conference in London Sept. 9 on the future of Palestine might result in an Arab boycott of the meeting.

Last night Dr. Hussein El Khalidi, secretary of the Arab executive, said British officials now had rejected all three of the conditions which the Arabs had made for participating in the Palestine meeting. He said there were "that no talks be held on the partition scheme, that the Mufti be invited and that the Arab executive be a full delegation."

Meanwhile, members of the Jewish agency executive remained in London for discussions on whether the executive would take part.

WON'T OPEN NEW ROAD

Ottawa, Aug. 30—(CP)—The Revenue Minister, Mr. Ilsley, in the Commons Friday said there is no intention at present of enlarging the number of ports of entry along the Canadian - United States border.

E. B. McKay (CCF-Weyburn) urged that Canada reopen one of the former ports. It would be a boom to the tourist and to less veterans.

MAYBE IT'S THE RADIATOR

It may be your "fuel" eater that's increasing your fuel costs. We have often saved home owners real economy by checking over the radiator and valve in the system to see that it's in good working condition.

Do You Gamble?

Perhaps yes. Perhaps no. But as long as it harms no one else you need not be concerned.

There are circumstances, however, where gambling is very unwise:

DO NOT GAMBLE WITH YOUR CHILD'S EYES.

Are you GAMBLING — or SURE that your child's eyes are fit and efficient for the long school term starting next week?

Your child must gain 83 per cent of all his knowledge through his eyes. Don't let him start with a handicap.

NO DRUGS USED.

Make-Believe Game Ends in Tragedy

Findlay, O., Aug. 30.—A game of make-believes in which four children played parts from a western movie they had seen ended tragically when Lawrence F. Switzer, 15, was killed by a bullet his sister, Audrey Louise, 8, fired from a pump rifle, Dr. Dwight King, county coroner, reported Friday.

The accident occurred yesterday in the backyard at the home of Mrs. Mae Switzer. Carrie Switzer, the parents, near Forest, Ohio.
